Goldwyn Does Not "Hire" Its Brains

Goldwyn Pictures are the product of a group of great specialists giving everything at their command to the exhibitors of America. In charge of the many departments of Goldwyn you find the actual owners of this organization.

The producers of Goldwyn Pictures have not merely engaged themselves to Goldwyn. They, as owners, are doing the things they want to do as great artists to win new honors for themselves, and for their own and your profit.

Men and women who work for themselves are always the ones who win the most distinctive successes.

The hearts and brains of these talented, successful men and women have been given without reserve to Goldwyn Pictures. Their tremendous achievements will be instantly apparent to audiences throughout the world.
Why Is Circulation?

A Talk to Advertisers

CIRCULATION has been discussed a great deal during the past few years, and the technical side of circulation analysis has been studied from every angle.

How much, how secured and where located are the big questions which are asked of the publisher by the advertiser, with various subdivisions of the inquiries as modified by individual interest.

The biggest question of all is seldom asked. Why is circulation?

The average space-buyer never stops to consider the one vital fact about circulation—that it is the definite result of a definite creation, editorial quality.

Editorial appeal pulls circulation of which that appeal is the index. The higher the appeal and the stronger its character, the better and more desirable the circulation is going to be.

The value of a trade publication lies in the character of its circulation appeal.

If it has built up a distribution based on specific editorial character, the advertiser who goes into a publication of this kind knows in advance whether the interest is live or passive.

The advertiser who puts quantity first, and who reads circulation statements so closely that he has no time to study the publications themselves, has got away entirely from the fundamental fact back of all circulation, he has forgot to ask himself, "Why?"

A page-by-page analysis of the "Exhibitors Herald" proves that it has a vital and commanding readers' appeal.
A CHANCE TO CLEAN HOUSE

The coming convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America imposes a greater responsibility than ever before upon the individual exhibitors throughout the United States.

Whether or not the national league is rightly representative of the exhibitors of the country, it is a fact that this organization is commonly looked upon as the official association of those engaged in the business of exhibiting motion pictures.

It need not be mentioned here that the affairs of the league are in a chaotic condition; that occasionally a charge of membership in the league seems to carry a sting with it.

It is apparent to all that out of a year fraught with great possibilities for constructive effort the only achievement the president of the league can boast of is the starting of a trade paper, bringing to bear upon this enterprise the weight of his official position, yet gearing the project to the program of personal aggrandizement for himself and his associates.

The official career of Mr. Ochs has been one of bitter disappointment for those who had hoped for better things from the exhibitors' organization. Everywhere, instead of encouraging conciliation and co-operation, he has created distrust, disorganization and confusion.

With a view to strengthening his political machine in Chicago he yanked Joseph Hopp from the obscurity into which he had been forced and engineered a deal which made Mr. Hopp president of the Chicago organization.

Mr. Hopp immediately upon his election took steps to crush out of the organization every one who dared oppose his will. Among those who incurred President Hopp's wrath are Maurice A. Chojnski and Louis H. Frank, and this was a sad choice indeed, for every element of the industry knows that for years these two men have been the nucleus of exhibitor organization in the Middle West.

Hopp, like the national president, whose servitor he is, instead of promoting organization has promoted disorganization. In Chicago the exhibitors who take an interest in the affairs of the league are now about equally divided between the Hopp league and the new Theater Owners' Association.
Mr. Ochs has talked loudly and wildly, both verbally and also in the columns of his trade paper, about what he intended to accomplish for the exhibitors of the United States. But a survey of his record to date evidences a scarcity of accomplishments that gives proof that his efforts have been directed more to other ends than to promoting the interests of exhibitors.

Hence the league left to its own resources and to the efforts of the men now in charge can do little to escape its present sorry state. The only hopeful remedy lies in the hands of the representative exhibitors of the country. These men—the real theater owners and operators whose interest is the motion picture business and not “exhibitors’ politics”—must for the sake of the organization come forward at the coming convention, make the voice of square-dealing heard on the floor of that assembly and elect to the president’s chair a man whose record, personal integrity and ability stamp him an able representative of the exhibitors of America.

Fire Prevention

Exhibitors should acquaint themselves with the progress that is being made in the work of fire prevention. The importance of this work to operators of motion picture theaters cannot be overestimated. To be familiar with methods of fire prevention is not only highly advisable from a commercial standpoint but it is an imperative duty growing out of the responsibility of managers for the welfare of patrons they are entertaining. Many theaters can be excellently safeguarded merely by the adoption of proper regulations; in other cases certain minor changes must be made, together with the purchases of some apparatus. In any event it is a wise course to know the essentials of fire prevention. Failure to do this carries with it a tremendous responsibility.

ILLINOIS STATE CENSORSHIP BILL BEATEN IN THE SENATE

Amendments Asking Continuance of Chicago Board Under Funkhouser and Giving Villages Power to Act, Bring Death Stroke; Checks Issue for Two Years

The state-wide censorship bill, which would have been a mill-stone around the film industry's neck in the State of Illinois, met a quick death in the Illinois Senate, at Springfield, June 17.

The measure, after being reported favorably from the Senate judiciary committee, was later amended in such a manner that it was doomed before it came out of conference. However, an amendment which specified that the present Chicago censorship board, headed by Second Deputy of Police Funkhouser, should remain untouched and another providing that any city, village or town with a censorship board created by ordinance or that might hereafter be created, should remain exempt from the state law, proved too much for the bill to stand, in spite of the efforts of a strong lobby.

The administration of the death blow to the censorship bill was the last official act of the Illinois general assembly, which did not adjourn until 7:35 a.m., June 17. Unexpectedly the bill had been sent to conference at 3:30 Sunday morning, further tying up both the House and Senate, which were waiting for the return of the conference reports on several other matters.

Women Fight for Passage

The measure, introduced by Representative Guy Guernsey of Chicago, provided for the creation of a state censorship board for motion pictures, which would have had a far-reaching effect.

The various women's clubs of Chicago fought hard for the passage of the bill and Representatives were daily annoyed by women around the capital, lobbying for the measure.

The women's clubs made a statewide campaign urging censorship, as the vigorous, high-handed censorship of the Chicago board under Major Funkhouser, they claimed did not seem sufficient in their eyes to protect the adolescent youth of the state. Hence the bill was framed at the instigation of the women and a certain clique of politicians and self-titled reformers attempted to secure its passage in every way possible.

Dead for Two Years

There was considerable rejoicing over the defeat of the measure among producers and exhibitors. The question of censorship now is settled for at least two years, in Illinois.

The defeat of the measure would have placed a big, new burden on the industry, which would have been felt in every branch, it is pointed out. When the state-wide measure was primarily brought to Chicago for the consideration of the trade, it was fought vigorously. At the time it was called a loophole for drastic censorship, and the prediction that it was merely a mask, it is declared, was obvious when the amendments were made asking the continuance of the Chicago Censor Board, and permitting villages to exercise full police power in this respect.

Had the bill passed the Senate with the damaging amendments, producers or lessors of film would have had to pay, not only a high state fee for having films censored, but would be forced to pay higher censor fees to local boards in villages and towns throughout the state.

H. B. VARNER OF NORTH CAROLINA LEAGUE TO OPPOSE OCHS FOR M. P. E. L. PRESIDENCY

Four Southern States Agree to Back Candidate, Who Has Gained National Prominence in Washington Fighting Tax Measures, at Chicago Convention

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N. C.—(Special to the "Exhibitors Herald")—At the conclusion of a three-day session of the North Carolina Motion Picture Exhibitors' League here, it was unanimously agreed to present the name of Henry B. Varner of Lexington, N. C., to the National Convention in Chicago as a candidate for the presidency of the M. P. E. L. to succeed Lee Ochs.

Mr. Varner is backed by a strong delegation from Virginia, Maryland, North and South Carolina and, it is said, has been assured the support of at least six other states. He already has received hundreds of letters from Maine to California urging him to run for the office of president of the league.

HAS NATIONAL PROMINENCE

In the various fights before Congress, Mr. Varner has gained national prominence, being active in defeating the one per cent tax a year on films, a year ago, and recently in obtaining the exemption of popular priced motion picture theaters from the war tax measure.

He pointed out to the Senate Finance Committee that motion pictures were an educational factor and as such were entitled to recognition, and further demonstrated that the film producers were not fighting the war tax in order to evade supporting the measure, but only to save the industry from ruin.

NOW IS LEAGUE SECRETARY

He was assisted in his fight before the Senate Finance Committee by Percy W. Wells and A. F. Sams, who are at the head of the North Carolina League, as president and attorney. Mr. Varner is the secretary.

The North Carolina League passed a resolution to have every exhibitor contribute one day's receipts each month during the continuance of the war to the National Red Cross in appreciation of the recognition given the industry by abolishing the war tax on theaters.

tion of delegates to convention. Flowers, patriotic emblems and souvenirs will be distributed to visitors at booths and there will be daily recitals by famous musicians.

Warren and Weiss Active

In the management and operation of the distributing corporation, Mr. Goldfish will be actively assisted by Alfred Weiss and F. B. Warren, the two vice presidents, who are specializing in establishing the closest possible relations with the exhibitors of the country. Mr. Weiss has been an important factor in both the Mutual and Triangle organizations and Mr. Warren has been publisher and editor of important newspapers in Chicago, St. Louis, New York and elsewhere.

INCE DISPOSES OF HOLDINGS IN N. Y. M. P. CORP. AND TRIANGLE; TO PRODUCE INDEPENDENTLY

Announcement comes from the office of Thomas H. Ince, New York, that he has closed a deal with the New York Motion Picture Corporation and the Triangle Film Corporation whereby he disposes of his holdings in those companies and has entirely severed his connection with both concerns.

The sum involved is said to be $750,000.

Mr. Ince's plans for the future are not as yet known, but it is stated he will undoubtedly produce on his own account feature films on a large scale. He will have several of the most prominent stars in the industry under him, he says, the names of whom will be announced in the near future.

MOTION PICTURE THEATER OWNERS’ ASSOCIATION OF ILLINOIS TO ELECT OFFICERS THIS WEEK

More Than 160 Chicago Theater Men and 70 Outside Exhibitors to Be Enrolled; Will Form Illinois Corporation

A meeting of the newly formed Motion Picture Theater Owners’ Association of Illinois, which was scheduled for last Friday in Chicago, was deferred, owing to the absence of several theater owners who were called to Springfield, Ill., to fight the Guernsey state-wide censorship bill.

It is expected the new organization will hold a meeting this week, at which time officers will be elected and application will be made for a charter under the laws of Illinois.

Big Membership
The new association will take in more than 160 representative Chicago theater owners and from sixty to seventy state exhibitors. Thirty owners of theaters in Chicago have already signified their intention of joining the proposed league and inquiries are being received daily by the organizers from all parts of the state concerning it.

Some important plans now are under way which will be taken up at the first meeting. These are for the benefit of exhibitors in general and will establish the new association on a solid foundation, it was pointed out this week.

Bona Fide Owners Only
Nobody will be admitted to membership, it is announced, except bona fide owners of theaters. With censorship and other obstacles constantly harassing the trade in Illinois, it is stated that the new association will prove to be a boon to the industry in fighting the industry’s battles.

Another point which was emphasized this week is that politics will be completely eradicated. Nothing will be considered except measures which vitally concern the exhibition branch of the trade, and the association will aim to co-operate with the producer in all matters of importance affecting both branches.

STAR CAST FOR “FALL OF THE ROMANOFFS” NEARLY COMPLETED BY HERBERT BRENON

Katerina Galanta, Who Came to United States with Russian Ballet, Picked by Producer as “Find” for Important Role; Other Stars Noted

Herbert Brenon has almost completed his cast for his big state rights picture, “The Fall of the Romanoffs,” featuring Iliodor, the “Mad Monk,” on which he has been working for five weeks at his studio on Hudson Heights.

Monk Enacts Own Role
Iliodor enacts his own role. Nance O’Neill appears as the Czarina, Alfred Hickman as the Czar, Edward Connelly as Rasputin, Mlle. E. Katerina Galanta as Anna, the girl who was the immediate cause of Rasputin’s downfall and death; Conway Tearle as the young prince, and William E. Shay and Mlle. Marcelle complete the star cast. All of these are artists of note who hold a high place on the screen and dramatic stage, with the exception of Mlle. Galanta, who as yet is not well known in this country.

Mlle. Galanta a “Find”
Mlle. Galanta is a “find” of Mr. Brenon’s. She is a young Russian girl who came to this country two years ago with the Russian Ballet and appeared in all the ballets both at the Metropolitan and Manhattan Opera Houses in New York. When the company returned to Europe earlier in the season she remained in this country and was engaged for the dancing girl in “The Wanderer,” where her dancing was quite a feature of the performance. It was during her engagement there that Herbert Brenon first was struck by her exceptional talent, both as a dancer and actress.

To Have Opportunity
Galanta will have ample opportunity to display her versatility in her first screen role, for the part of Anna brings into use both her powers of acting and of dancing. First she is seen as a peasant girl, later as one of the foremost ladies of the land, where Rasputin’s enormous influence at court has placed her.

WICHITA EXHIBITORS FIGHT KANSAS CENSORS

WICHITA, Kan.—The fight on state censorship was taken up by the motion picture exhibitors at a meeting held here last week and an attempt was made to get the present censorship board to be more lenient. Exhibitors met at the City Hall and the Eaton Hotel. About five hundred delegates were present. The exhibitors also asked the exchanges to do away with all deposit.
CHICAGO CITY COLLECTOR SEeks NEW TAX SCALE SUITABLE TO FILM THEATER MEN

G. F. Lohman Working on New Table of Fees Equitable to Owners; Present Rate Called Too High for Small Houses

With a view of arranging a schedule of licenses for motion picture and stage theaters in the city of Chicago, which will meet with the approval of all theatermen, George F. Lohman, deputy city collector, is working on another table of fees which will be submitted to the license committee of the Chicago city council.

The sub-committee of the license committee of the council has held several meetings in the city hall and listened to various propositions from the managers interested, but no feasible plan was offered upon which to make a recommendation to the council.

Seeks $30,000 in Licenses

It is the councilmen's desire to increase the city's revenue $30,000 by an adjustment of the license fees. Alderman James B. Bowler, chairman of the sub-body of the license committee, asked everybody interested to draw up schedules and have them in the hands of Mr. Lohman by Saturday, June 16. Only one had been received, however, by Mr. Lohman up to Saturday night.

It is the sub-committeemen's desire to get a schedule that will not prove burdensome to motion picture theater owners and they have endeavored to hit upon a plan to reduce the license tax on theaters by placing part of it on the manufacturers, but so far have not found a way by which they can reach the big producers, Alderman Bowler states.

FIRE PREVENTION AIDS FOR FILM BOOTHS GIVEN EXHIBITOR BY ASSOCIATION BODY

Makes Appeal to Theater Owners and Managers Urging Greater Safety Precautions to Lessen Blaze Dangers and Panic Hazards

An appeal to the owners and managers of motion picture theaters, urging the immediate adoption of greater safety precautions in the handling of film in projection booths and rooms, has been issued to exhibitors by the committee on fire prevention of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, New York.

Two Fires in Week

During the past week there have been two motion picture fires in the projection booths of motion picture theaters in New York. In one of the well known theaters a slight fire in the booth, through the prompt attention of the operator and the theater attendants, was extinguished before the firemen arrived and the audience was marshaled out of the theater without panic.

In a motion picture theater in Westchester county, however, a small blaze spread to the films in the booth and caused a bad panic in the audience although the fire did not spread beyond the booth. Women and children were trampled upon and badly injured, but fortunately no one was killed.

Emphasize Panic Hazard

These two fires serve to emphasize the fact that it is the panic hazard which must be guarded against and that every precaution must be taken to prevent the occurrence and spread of a film fire within the booth itself. The following recommendations are offered theater owners and managers for fire prevention by the National Association's committee:

1. Comply strictly with local regulations and see that the employees do the same.
2. Enforce the "no smoking" rule in the booth. The great majority of film fires are really caused by lighted cigars or cigarettes, although defective wiring, electrical sparks and spontaneous ignition are offered in most cases as excuses.
3. Keep all film when not actually in use in their proper containers. The burning of one reel of film will fill a theater with its fumes.
4. Don't keep in the booth a con necing room any film except one day's supply. Unfortunately the booths in many theaters serve as store houses for old junk and unless this practice stops there is going to be more film fires.

5. Keep the booth neat and clean and free from rubbish. Throw all film scraps and riddles into a self-closing metal can.
6. Have the wiring, lights and electrical equipment frequently and thoroughly examined.
7. Have two pails of water in the booth, also a pail of sand. If the sand is thrown on a small film fire it will quickly smother it and not injure the film. A soda acid and extinguisher is also a good precaution to take, in case you can arrange it, to have two automatic sprinkler heads put in the booth.

Most film fires have started through carelessness and could easily have been put out at the start with a bucket of water.

TRIANGLE LOSES CASE IN USE OF A PLAY TITLE

J. H. Manners Wins Fight to Halt Violation of His Trade Mark

In a decision handed down by Judge Martin T. Manton, in the Federal District Court, in New York, J. Hartley Manners, the playwright, secured an injunction restraining the Triangle Film Corporation from further exhibiting the photoplay called "Happiness."

The picture was presented at the Rialto theater, New York, during the week of April 29, and Mr. Manners brought suit at once, claiming that the film was an infringement on his play of the same name. The play was produced at the Cort theater in New York in 1914, and the author averred that the title is a trade-mark and as such is entitled to protection.

Judge Manton in granting the injunction said: "I think the use of the title of a picture-play as used by the defendants is an infringement of the plaintiff's sole right to the title of the play in drama on the stage and that the injunction should be granted."

The Triangle Film Corporation contended that the photoplay "Happiness" was a different work than the spoken drama of the same name, and was written by a staff writer employed by the New York Motion Picture Corporation. The film was presented, they state, without knowledge or reference to Mr. Manners' play.

Attend the Chicago Convention—make the voice of square-dealing heard upon the floor of that assembly.
New York—[Special to "Exhibitors Herald"].—With the entry of the United Booking Office and B. F. Keith interests into the motion picture field, which was announced this week, another outlet will be found for feature photoplays which will mean considerable to the industry.

Controls Many Theaters

Officials of the vaudeville organization, which controls hundreds of theaters throughout the country, have just completed arrangements whereby they will exploit and distribute through theaters other than vaudeville houses features at popular prices in addition to the short subjects that they use for closing their regular vaudeville shows.

The U. B. O. plans to buy up big features for exclusive distribution through their motion picture theaters, and also will work in co-operation with other theater owners for the presentation of such films as these managers wish to lease.

Eliminate Middlemen

The plan, which will be put into operation at once, is the outcome of their booking short-reel subjects directly from the manufacturers, and under the new system they will handle all features themselves, doing away with exchanges and middlemen.

The films which they control will not be shown in connection with vaudeville, but will be shown independently in theaters devoted only to motion pictures.

It is maintained that through the big Keith-U. B. O. circuit manufacturers will be able to reach territory which heretofore could not handle their output owing to wholesale competition. With the backing of the vaudeville organization, the features can be exploited in the same manner that the big vaudeville acts are shown throughout the country, it is said.

Edgar Hopp, son of the president of the Chicago league, conducts the Chicago office of this projector and supply company.

Another resolution also was passed, authorizing the use of league funds to retain an attorney to defend certain members of the league against whom suits have been filed by Louis H. Frank and Maurice A. Choyinski.

The national association committee sent 30,000 patriotic slides to the 15,000 motion picture exhibitors of the United States, together with letters from Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo and President William A. Brady of the association, asking for co-operation. Of perhaps greater influence was the patriotic trailer which was distributed broadcast to exhibitors. In animated form this told the need of support for the Liberty Loan and ended with an inspiring paragraph from President Wilson's speech asking Congress to declare that a state of war existed.

MUTUAL ISSUES NOVEL
THREE-SHEET POSTER ON NEW CHAPLIN FILM

The Mutual Film Corporation is issuing a novel three-sheet poster for "The Immigrant," the latest of the Mutual-Chaplin specials.

The lithograph presents Charles Chaplin in an unusual attitude, on shipboard. The film is said to be one of the best in which he has so far been starred.
When Mutual issues Gaumont’s “Tours Around the World,” No. 34, June 26, two of the world’s most interesting cities will be seen upon the screen. These are Naples, the largest city of Italy, and Buenos Aires, the largest city of South America. The Bay of Naples is regarded as one of the most beautiful in the world, and being upon its shore the city is famed as occupying perhaps the most beautiful site in Europe. The Gaumont views show the well-paved streets with lava blocks hewn from the side of Vesuvius, the unruly monster smoking in the distance, the stucco-covered houses, the beautiful opera house, one of the largest in Europe; the Castle St. Elmo, erected by Charles V in 1535; and the busy harbor. There are also pictures of Neapolitan types.

Buenos Aires, the capital of Argentina, has a million and a half inhabitants. The people call their city the “Paris of South America.” The views in this section of the Gaumont reel bear out their boast. Among the beautiful places of the city are San Martin Square, Twenty-fifth of May Square, Congress Square and the Third of February Park. A familiar sight to those who have visited Buenos Aires is the British clock tower and the new station of the Argentine Central Railway. Then there are pictures of a northern corner of the port, the government house, the cathedral dating from 1752, the national hippodrome and a panorama of the city from the House of Congress.

“VARIETY DAY” AT FILM THEATERS IS ADVOCATED BY GENERAL FILM CO.

Novel yet attractive has been the suggestion made by General Film Company in a circular to exhibitors urging them to devote one or two days a week to what is termed a “Variety Day.” The plan is meeting with excellent response and the response is growing. A new kind of motion picture exhibition has been inaugurated, causing somewhat of a change in the established methods of motion picture entertainment.

In its circular letter General Film urges the “Variety Day,” which in other words is a day given to a complete program of good, snappy one-reel, two-reel and three-reel pictures. This leaves out entirely the traditional five-reel feature.

Says General Film in its communication: “Exhibitors all over the country, men who have made a success of the show business and who are continually, and watchfully, keeping their fingers upon the public pulse, are beginning to vary their plan of showing five-reel and six-reel pictures throughout the week. They replace one or two such programs with something different, a day of short length pictures all selected for their especial work. And the public likes the change. It is high time that you become aware of the popularity of such a program and give it a good trial.”

It is General Film that has most successfully held that length is not the thing that makes a “feature” nowadays.

“JULIA DAY” APPEARS AT MIDWEST THEATERS

“Betty and the Buccaneers,” which will be Juliette Day’s first production for Mutual, is a story of hidden treasure, pirates bold, adventure and romance.

Juliette Day is Betty, a quaint little character, full of romantic dreams and fancies, who has lived an isolated life. Her only treasure is a copy of “Treasure Island,” and she is overjoyed when she is suddenly thrust into an adventure which parallels the plot of her well-worn book.

“JOE” HOPP DISCONTINUES SUBSCRIPTION

The following cancellation of subscription has been received from Joseph Hopp, the well known mental acrobat:

The above communication reminded us of another, received some time ago from the illustrious league politician.

Here’s what Hopp thought of the “Herald” before he became league president:

October 4, 1916.

To the Editor of Exhibitors Herald, 203 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Sir:

Your lively trade paper is a welcome visitor to my home each week. Glad I subscribed. It is just well spent. Of course I read all the reviews each week. Each issue manifests a spirit of independence that makes each Exhibitor stand in his own light if he does not profit by it. I suggest that in keeping with your progress and independence you put at your “headquarters” the slogan: FAIRNESS TO ALL: DICTIONARY OF NONE.

Your “live-wire” editorials each week are interesting and if not always accepted at least suggest food for thought. I am very much interested in the editorial in your issue of October 7, wherein you ask that the word “released” be relegated to the junk heap and the word “published” used instead in connection with putting out new files. To my mind if a film is made today and distributed at once it is then “published”. If a film (which is usually the case) is made today and the distribution not started for two months then it is just that long past the day of publication. Not necessary to define more fully, if as a result of my analytical state of mind I should be correct then it either remains “released” or becomes “distribution”.

I would like to see the Exhibitors of Chicago and vicinity, among whom there are many intellectual minds, utilize your valuable columns in giving expression to thought pertinent to their business. I hope this letter of mine will be an aid in that direction. If all have not already done so they should join hands with those who recognize in the Exhibitors Herald we in the Middle West have at our threshold an organ that has a genuine I WILL spirit back of it.

You said it, Joe. “Fairness to All: Dictation by None.”
BRADY PUBLICATION SCHEDULE OF FILMS IS REARRANGED TO AID ADVANCE PLAN

World's Move Keeps Ready Plays Up to Minimum of Three Months Ahead; Output Is Two Films Weekly

There has been a rearrangement of the publication schedule of World-Pictures Brady-Made.

The new photoplay, "Jerry-for-Short," in which little Madge Evans makes her first appearance as a star, has been moved up from its position at the far end of the line and will be published August 13.

New Dates Given

According to present schedule "Jerry-for-Short" will be followed on August 20 by Ethel Clayton in "Souls Adrift"; August 27, Montagu Love, June Elvidge and Arthur Ashley in "The Guardian"; September 3, Alexandra Carlisle in a dramatization of a popular novel; September 10, Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge and Arthur Ashley in "The Marriage Market"; September 17, Ethel Clayton in "The Woman Beneath," and September 24, Kitty Gordon in "The Divine Sacrifice."

This keeps the schedule of practically ready plays up to the minimum of three months ahead, with a number of pictures in the immediate offering. Six directors are always working in the World's studio. Each director is given three weeks in which to complete a picture.

Output Two Films Weekly

This regular process, under which six directors are completing photos every three weeks, makes a regular output of two productions weekly, so that no intricate process of computation is required to indicate the steady accumulation of Brady-Made motion pictures as time passes.

MERCHANDISING PLANS FIT FILM TRADE, SALES CHIEF OF GENERAL FINDS ON TRIP

S. R. Kent Visits Mid-West Branches and Exhibitors, Finding That Up-to-Date Methods Are Industry’s Greatest Need

After a trip of inspection of various mid-western branches of General Film, including among others Detroit, Chicago and Minneapolis, General Sales Manager Sidney R. Kent has returned to New York with this important section of the field confirming his expectations in regard to various new merchandising methods.

Also Sees Exhibitors

Mr. Kent is the expert who was recently induced by Vice President Harold Bolster of General Film to leave his successful career with the American Druggist Syndicate in the handling and working out of big sales problems to apply his experience to the motion picture business. His tour was devoted not alone to branch managers, but to exhibitors in each branch territory. His main purpose, however, was directly to instruct branch managers in the application of modern systems and policies that have been adopted by General Film. His trip was part of the educational campaign waged from headquarters and which includes every member of the vast organization.

Merchandising Plans Fit

“We are requiring that our branch managers discard many of the obsolete policies that seem to be a sort of tradition in the film industry at large,” says Mr. Kent. “Many merchandising methods new to this business are being introduced as swiftly as the magnitude of the organization permits. We find that most of these plans not only fit well into the distribution of motion pictures, but are badly needed. In fact, the old cry that up to date merchandising methods used with conspicuous success by large organizations in other lines of industry cannot be applied to film salesmanship is completely disproved.”

In making the latter picture Director Weber established a new record, it is said, completing the comedy at the Rothacker studio in four and one-half hours.

Mr. Cico Toodles of Cahill-Igoe Fame Now Is Among Us

Mr. Cico Toodles, who has been appearing in the “Herald’s” advertising columns lately, with a word or two declaring his intention of coming in and settling down amongst us, has arrived. And this is the message he brings:

He hails from the Cahill-Igoe Company, with whom you are acquainted. His business is to help the exhibitor through the summer, by directing a forceful appeal to the children of the nation and through them to the grown folks.

His method is this: the Cahill-Igoe Company have designed a series of thirty cards, which are known as Cico Toodles cards. Each one of them contains a verse and an accompanying illustration. The verse is one of the well known Mother Goose rhymes so arranged that it appeals to the reader to hasten to the nearest film show. The picture has a like appeal.

There is room on the face of the card for the theater name and the back has been left blank for the weekly program or for any special announcement the theater may care to make.

The distribution plan on Cico Toodles cards as a program is this: those who receive them will save them. To further instill this saving idea into the public’s mind, albums have been designed, just large enough to hold the entire set of thirty. These can be purchased at a low price by the exhibitor and distributed or sold.

In a number of tests in different neighborhoods of Chicago the Cico cards have proved their popularity beyond even the expectations of the firm publishing them. The firm is extremely confident that it has hit upon a novelty that will prove immensely popular not only among exhibitors but with the public.

"SEVEN CUTIE PUPS" IS NEWEST NOVELTY FILM FOR UNIVERSAL

The pictures were made by a special process at the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company's plant, Chicago, and present the animation of half-tone cartoons.

NOTED RUSSIAN STARS DIRECTED OWN FILMS; SEEN AS INNOVATION WHEN SHOWN ON BROADWAY

First Plays Imported from New Republic, Featuring Theater and Screen Actors, to Introduce New Form in Production; Big Ballets Appear

When the Russian art films are presented in New York with the leading national Moscow and Petrograd in the principal roles, Broadway will witness one marked innovation from the usual practice of American studios, it is announced.

The Russian stars direct their own plays. Not only do they accept or reject with absolute finality the parts they deem congenial or unsuitable to them as the case may be; not merely do they study the roles with the same attention, in fact, as in the stage plays, but they rule the proceedings in the picture studio and retain entire freedom of action as to expression of their individualities.

Actors Follow Own Bent

The logical result of this is that there are no dolls nor mannikins in Russian pictures. The artist knows his part thoroughly, picks his subordinates and builds the structure of the play as intelligently as he would build up a spoken production at the National Dramatic Theater or the Theater of Arts. In Russia there is a total absence of "Register scorn!" "Indicate hate!" "Fall down in a faint!" and other stereotyped commands of filmdom. It is contended that far greater heights of dramatic power are attained when the actors know what they are doing and follow their own bent than can possibly be attained under the old mechanical system of following a studio director automatically.

I. MOZUKHIN, RUSSIA'S LEADING ACTOR

What is the case with the lead in a Russian picture? The role is allotted to an actor or actress whose name is synonymous in Russia with that of the production. Thus, for instance, when Mme. Balasheva, Vera Cholodnaia and Mme. Gzovskaia reappeared last week in "The Deluge," they were so closely identified with the roles of Marie of the Kehs, the greatRussian and her lover, respectively, that the stage successes of the first and the failures of the second were both hailed as indicating that the destiny of Russia was "in the hands of the defiant woman who could never be afraid." The three names are inseparable from their respective characters, and the Russian film in its method of presentation equates the stage picture in its artistic nature with the screen in its commercial success.

With Mme. Balasheva as Marie, Tatiana Lisenko as her young and beautiful sweetheart, Mme. Lisenko as her mother, who is short and temperamental, and Vera Balasheva as her sister, the three stars were a triumph in the stage picture. The film, "The Deluge," was released in America this week, and the three stars, hundreds of the ensemble dancers from the famous ballet are also used in the picture studios.

PRESIDENT'S DOUBLE APPEARS IN ESSANAY FILM WITH WASHBURN

"President Wilson of Filmland" makes his debut in Bryant Washburn's forthcoming Essanay feature, "The Man Who Was Afraid." This person is said to be the closest resemblance to the nation's chief executive ever shown on the screen.

The photodrama is an adaptation of Mary Brecht Pulver's patriotic story of the same name, published in the Saturday Evening Post. It hinges on the President's call to arms. A man to resemble Mr. Wilson signing the proclamation was necessary for the production.

P. H. Westphal, a hotel clerk, from Lafayette, Ind., delivers the role of President Wilson. The production is scheduled for publication through K-E-S-F, June 2.

Bryant Washburn appears in the role of a national guardman who is afraid to answer the President's call, owing to the influence of his mother. His friends call him "Slacker" and the girl he loves spurns him. Pained by taunts, he disregards his mother's protests and hurries to the front. He distinguishes himself in battle, even more so than do the erstwhile friends who had branded him a coward. Thus he redeems himself and wins the girl he loves.

The production has a screen time of sixty-five minutes.

ROTHACKER FILM CO.
MEMBERS SUBSCRIBE
$4,000 TO U. S. LOAN

Among the Chicago firms which contributed to make the government's first popular war credit a success was the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, the members of which subscribed $4,000 to the Liberty Loan. The concern plans, it is announced, to do equally as well on the next subscription.

W. R. COLEMAN WILL DIRECT THE INITIAL MEREDITH PHOTOPLAY

William Robert Coleman, formerly connected with Biograph, Selig and other producing organizations, has been engaged to direct the first of six productions starring Lois Meredith and bearing the star's name as a trade brand.

The first story for Miss Meredith has been selected and Mr. Coleman, co-directing with Marcel Morhange, soon will start work.
BESSIE BARRISCALE HAS ROLE OF ORPHAN IN "ROSE O' PARADISE"; KERRIGAN TO START WORK

Feminine Star Now Works on Initial Film Under Own Brand to Be Published Through Paralta Plays, Inc.; "A Man's Man" Is Big Romance

Bessie Barriscale now is engaged in her own production of the screen version of Grace Miller White's novel, "Rose o' Paradise." James Young is directing her. The production will be ready for publication through Paralta Plays, Inc., in August.

Miss Barriscale plays the character of "Jinnie," or Virginia Singleton. "Jinnie" is an orphan who loves kittens, plays an old violin and is heiress to a fortune. An uncle, Jordan Morse, is her heir. The crux of the story hinges on his efforts to obtain her money and a love affair between her and Theodore King, a young Virginian, who nearly loses his life in her defense.

Hartford in Heavy Role

David M. Hartford, who is known through his association with Triangle as superintendent of production at the Culver City studios, is playing the heavy role of Jordan Morse, in Miss Barriscale's support. Howard Hickman is impersonating the role of Theodore King. Mr. Hickman made his initial appearance on the screen after a long stage career in the Lasky production of the "Circus Man." He was then engaged by Triangle, with whom he was cast for a wide range of characters.

J. Warren Kerrigan, who recently made a 12,000 mile tour of motion picture theaters, now is preparing the preliminary work before starting "A Man's Man."

The locale of the scenes in Kerrigan's new vehicle are a railroad station in the Arizona desert, Denver, New Orleans and a Central American republic called Sobranto, which is on the verge of revolution.

The story concerns a big adventure of a picturesque American, who meets with a great romance.

Lois Wilson, who won high praise for her work in many special feature productions, is Mr. Kerrigan's leading woman. She plays the role of Dolores Ruey. Eugene Pallette plays the role of Captain Benivedo; Harry Von Meter, Ricardo Ruey; Edward Coxen, Tom Cafferty; alias Don Juan Cafertero, and Ida Lewis the important character part of Mother Jenks, the proprietress of a cantina in the capital of a Central American republic. Mr. Kerrigan plays the role of John Stuart Webster, a western mining engineer.

GOLDWYN CORP. STARS TO MAKE FILM PLAYS IN N. Y. ARDEN STUDIOSS

Arrangements have just been concluded between Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, the company that has Mae Marsh, Mary Garden, Maxine Elliott, Jane Cowl and Madge Kennedy, and the Arden Studios of 599 Fifth avenue, New York, whereby that group of players will work before the camera.

The Arden Studios have several bases for their reputation throughout the decorative and art worlds. They are conducted by Miss Elizabeth Averill, a niece of Mrs. E. H. Harri man, and Mrs. John W. Alexander, widow of one of America's greatest painters, whose contributions to the nation's permanent art will make his reputation more enduring as time passes.

GAIL KANE'S NEXT MUTUAL FEATURE IS "FOR THE FAMILY NAME"

Dramatic Story Offers Star Opportunities for Strong Emotional Acting

"For the Family Name" has been chosen as Gail Kane's next vehicle for publication through Mutual. This is from a scenario written especially for Miss Kane by Dan F. Whitcomb, a fiction writer.

The story of "For the Family Name" affords Miss Kane an opportunity for strong emotional acting. It is based on the efforts of a young wife to keep secret her knowledge of a family murder and the dreadful mental agony and strain which she undergoes until she is rendered temporarily insane. Her actions lead to the belief of her husband and father, as well as the detectives, that she is herself the murderer. A clever climax exonerates her, however, and restores the faith of her family in her.

Gail Kane, the star, is the only woman lead in the cast. Five men play the principal roles—Lewis J. Cody, Henry A. Barrows, James Farley, Robert Klein and Ashton Dearholt.

"WHAT OF YOUR BOY?" SEVEN REELER OFFERED BY CAMERAGRAPH CO.

Feeling that the answer to America's query concerning the military situation would make an interesting and compelling picture, the Cameragraph Film Manufacturing Company, through General Manager Frank R. Abrams, has had Col. Sebastian C. Jones, U. S. A., an expert in methods of military training for young men, contribute his ideas for the concern's newest production, "What of Your Boy?"

Col. Jones, who is now supervising the military training at an important academy, has spent the major portion of his life preparing men along military lines.

"What of Your Boy?" was produced in seven reels and what happened to the boy under training has been filmed from every angle. To make the picture easy for the motion picture exhibitor to show at any time, regardless of whether a feature was on the day's bill or not, the Cameragraph Film Manufacturing Company reduced the seven reels to three, giving the gist of the proposition from start to finish.

Cameragraph has arranged to secure for the exhibitor publicity cooperation from his leading civic and patriotic organizations when he books "What of Your Boy?" Mr. Abrams is booking the picture in New York State direct from his own offices at 140 West 44th Street, New York City. State rights for the rest of the country and the rest of the world are being disposed of by the Victoria Feature Films, 220 West 42nd Street, New York City.

OUR PLATFORM

"There is but one course to take if the exhibitors' organization is ever to attain its rightful place in the industry: there must be a thorough house-cleaning of men and methods and the old parasitical system of making the league a roach-ground for a few selfish individuals must be forever abandoned."

Plans to Set Example in Production of Better Features with Material from Pens of Great Writers; Producer Leaves New York for Coast

Before his departure for California last week from New York, Jesse L. Lasky, in charge of production of Famous Players-Lasky pictures, announced his plans for the summer and fall, under the new "star series" selective booking plan.

The following stars he stated would appear in forthcoming Famous Players-Lasky productions: Marguerite Clark, Pauline Frederick, Billie Burke, Madame Petrova, Julian Eltinge, Fannie Ward, Jack Pickford, Louise Huff, Vivian Martin, Sessue Hayakawa, George Beban, Wallace Reid and Ann Pennington.

Mr. Lasky plans to do everything possible to set an example in the production of better features, and with this end in view, he has obtained the rights to the best works of many of the greatest authors and playwrights of the past and present. Among those who appear in the company's first announcement are the names of Mark Twain, Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, W. Somerset Maugham, George Broadhurst, Carolyn Wells, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Owen Johnson, Wallace Irwin, Gellett Burgess, Charles Kenyon, Benlah Marie Dix and Hector Turnbull.

The plays and writings of these authors are recognized as being among the finest contributions to present-day literature.

WILLIAM RUSSELL BATTLES AL KAUFFMAN, FIGHTER, IN CALIFORNIA ARENA FOR SCENES IN NEW FILM

Big Crowd at Ringside in Athletic Park, Santa Barbara, Sees American-Mutual Star Fight Heavyweight for Color in "Pride and the Man"

Through an invitation issued to the public by the American Film Company, a big crowd of Californians recently gathered about a ring constructed in Athletic Park, Santa Barbara, Cal., and witnessed a boxing contest between William Russell, the American star, and Al Kaufman, a well-known Pacific Coast heavyweight pugilist. The fight was staged for real color in the forthcoming American production entitled "Pride and the Man."

In the motion picture Russell knocks out Kaufman, but after the camera had secured the necessary scenes for the film, the fight continued, but took on a different aspect. Kaufman, it is said, gave Russell a fast, fierce battle.

Russell claims the American amateur heavyweight championship, which, it is stated, he won under the banner of the N. Y. Athletic Club.

For his fight with Kaufman, Russell trained himself into the pink of condition by work on the road and in the gymnasium.

The film, however, is not a prize ring subject. The boxing contest is only incidental to a wholesome romance, in which Russell stars.

Views of field dressing stations, close up to the firing line on the Somme front in France, with hundreds of men being rushed to the emergency operating rooms by stretcher bearers, are among the most interesting of the scenes in "Heroic France," the eight-reel war picture being issued by Mutual.

The field resting stations are established as near as possible to the firing line. They are equipped as thoroughly as possible, considering that they are but temporary, and wounded soldiers are carried directly from the battle line to the doctors and nurses, who care for their immediate injuries and pass them on to the rear as rapidly as the ambulances can transport them to the field hospitals.

There are men so badly torn with shell fragments that they are beyond human aid. There are others horribly wounded, whose injuries can only be dealt with in the permanent hospitals in the rear, but the majority of wounded are given treatment that saves their lives, right there in the first aid station, 300 yards from the firing line.

"THE DIVORCE GAME"
World comedy-drama; five parts; published June 25

As a whole: Entertaining
Story: Pleasing
Star: Excellent Support: Plenty Settings: Ample
Photography: Clear

The success of "The Divorce Game" can be judged by the audiences at the La Salle Theater, in Chicago, exhibitors who are on the lookout for successes can book this production with confidence. It is a somewhat different picture from the usual run of World offerings.

Miss Brady does some of her best work as the wife of a spendthrift minus a substantial bank account. John Bowers' interpretation of the spendthrift is all that it should be. Arthur Ashley is a most valuable addition to this cast, and he is given an excellent opportunity to display his ability as a comedian. Kate Lester, Joseph Herbert, John Drumier and Marie Lavarre all do justice to their parts. Travers Vale directed the picture. The story is from Leo Ditrichstein's play "Mlle. Fifi."

George Walsh in "SOME BOY"
Fox comedy-drama; five parts; published June 25

As a whole: Rambling
Story: Amusing
Star: Good
Support: Adequate Settings: Pleasing
Photography: Good

This is a comedy-drama with the accent on the comedy. It is another one of those rambling stories made to the five-reel measure to exploit the athletic Mr. Walsh. In it he jumps over sofas, tables and hedges, and throws men about at his pleasure. The story is too slight to hold interest, and the action is slow, with Mr. Walsh ever in the limelight.

The story: "Joyous" Johnson disobey's his father's wish that he give up baseball, and is expelled from school after winning the game in the ninth inning. He secures a job as press agent for a fashionable summer hotel, and in order to put the hotel prominently before the public he dresses up as a rich widow and parades around the grounds. Several men fall in love with him. He then steals a lady's jewels, and when this gets into the papers he loses his job. On shipboard he works as a waiter and gets acquainted with the beautiful young lady from whom he has stolen a necklace, who takes him to her Texas ranch. They arrive there just in time to save the ranch from "Joyous" Johnson Sr., which is accomplished only by Mr. Walsh climbing the second-story window of the courthouse.

In "The Pinch Hitter," which recently was such a success, Charles Ray again assumes the role of a poor country boy who makes good, this time capitalizing on his awkwardness. The story was written by Monte M. Katterjohn, and is an admirable vehicle for the Triangle star.

Winsome Margery Wilson plays opposite Mr. Ray, and a small but capable cast surrounds them. The direction and photography are both very good.

The story: Isaac Nelson is the tight-fisted president of a country bank and the owner of a small farm, which his son Nelson cultivates from morn till night. The son wears his father's cast-off clothes and seldom gets a day off. Even his Sundays are denied him. His mother saves a few pennies, however, and buys her boy a mail-order suit, and Everett goes to a Fourth of July picnic. The father, returning from town, sees his wife in the field doing the son's work. He thrashes Everett, and the boy leaves home. In the city he applies for a job as janitor at a theater, but his odd make-up attracts the stage manager, and he signs up at $300 a week for forty weeks to do a country dance, called the "clodhopper glide." The act proves a success, and when there is a run on father's bank, Everett returns home, saves the bank and marries the little girl on the next farm.

"WHO'S YOUR NEIGHBOR?"

Master Drama Features, Inc., drama; seven parts; state rights

As a whole ... Illuminating Story ............ Dynamic Cast ................ Splendid Settings ........... Lavish
Photography ...... Excellent

Willard Mack's story, directed and adapted by S. Rankin Drew, forming the production entitled "Who's Your Neighbor?" is a direct plea for districted vice to protect public morals. This is a tense, impassioned story in which a splendidly logical sequence of dramatic circumstances hypnotically sifts from all directions the few people who are obliged to face facts and pay the penalty for ill-advised reform. The subtitles are superlatively characteristic.

The cast deserves great credit for the interpretation of the story. Christine Mayo as the scarlet woman is clever and convincing. Anders Randolf as Harding gives a magnificent performance. William Sherwood as the son gives to the part a buoyant and youthful viewpoint and a direct method that gains sympathy. Evelyn Brent as Betty is direct, girlish and sincere. This capable cast also includes Frank Morgan, Gladys Fairbanks, Mabel Wright and Franklyn Hanna.

The picture is bound to have great success. It throws a bright light on a dark subject.

The story: Mrs. Bowers, a woman who insists upon looking at life only as she sees it, succeeds in getting a law passed which breaks up the tenderloin district.

The women are scattered throughout the city, taking up quarters in first-class hotels and apartment houses. Hattie Fenshaw establishes herself as the mistress of Bryant Harding. Their apartment is next door to Mrs. Bowers'. Mrs. Bowers admires the soulful eyes of her neighbor and makes friends with her. Hattie has already caused the breaking of the engagement of Harding's daughter, who uses her divorced mother's maiden name. Dudley Carleton, the fiancé, has a strong revulsion of feeling and escapes further entanglement until the influence of drink breaks down his resolution never to see Hattie again. Harding's young college son, with a wild desire to see life in the city, is introduced to Hattie during Harding's absence from the city. Hattie telephones for Betty (Harding's daughter) to come to sew for her. Mrs. Bowers has been responsible for the introduction. Betty hurries over, anxious to make a little money. She is introduced to her own brother under an assumed name and is still in the apartment when Harding returns unexpectedly. In a fury he nearly kills Carleton and shoots Betty after knocking Hattie into unconsciousness. Mrs. Bowers, with a party of tourists out to inspect conditions, hears the shot and rushes in to see the havoc her reform movement has wrought in the lives of her neighbors.

"The Ghost of Old Morro" is a well done production. The photography and tinting are excellent. The acting has been well taken care of. Helen Strickland's work stands out especially and her interpretation of Old Morro has left little to criticize.

The story is not of the most cheerful nature since the three characters whom every one would like to see live happily ever after are killed. But the story is exciting and because of its unusualness and different ending it should win favor.

Helen Strickland, Mabel Trunnelle and Robert Connors do good work in important roles.

The story: Old Morro makes her livelihood by extorting large sums from men for whom she does small favors. She has a daughter living at a convent, but this daughter knows nothing at all concerning her mother's life. One night the gates of the convent are left open and the girl goes to her mother's home. Here she meets an officer and when Old Morro sees that both are infatuated she pays to have the officer slain. However, the slayer kills the daughter. When Old Morro learns that her daughter has been killed she sets out to kill the officer. On the top of huge rocks the two struggle and finally roll off into the sea. And each night thereafter the ghost of Old Morro keeps solemn watch over the sea.

Harold Lockwood does only fair work in this story, which is poorly handled and which is utterly improbable and impossible.

If the spectators can forget that they are human and that the events as visualized are not ridiculous, then they will find the subject an entertaining one. It is doubtful if many audiences will enjoy "The Haunted Pajamas."

Carmel Meyers is given a role in which she might win for herself great credit, but her handling of it is so weak that it sags. Harold Lockwood is fair and without him the production would have no appeal at all. Others in the cast are Ed Sedgwick, Lester Cunéo, Paul Willis, Harry De Roy, Helen Ware, William DeVauü and Goro Kino. The play is adapted from the novel by Francis Perry Elliott and directed by Fred J. Balshofer.

The story: Richard Hudson receives a pair of haunted pajamas, and when Francis Billings comes to stay all night at Richard's house he is given the pajamas. As soon as Francis is attired in the pajamas he is transformed into the person of Frances Kirkland. Richard falls in love with Frances, and Billings, not knowing that he (Billings) has assumed the appearance of a girl, cannot account for Richard Hudson's strange actions. Later Richard meets the real Frances and, after an embarrassing and exciting courtship, finally wins her as his wife. It is then that he learns that the pajamas are haunted and that the Frances he had met in silk pajamas was not the Frances he had married.

Selig World Library

The days of George Washington and other historical events are recorded in the current issue of the Selig World Library and exhibitors should find it a pleasing as well as entertaining edition to any program.

Items of interest recorded are the historical hotel and the Carlyle house in Virginia at which Washington spent considerable time. An interesting feature is the human chess board. A large board is shown on which the figures are human. "Where Uncle Sam Makes His Money" and "The House of the Scal" are two other interesting topics.

“Fires of Rebellion,” a five-reel Bluebird feature written and directed by Ida May Park, presents an interesting story which, while not strikingly new in plot, should prove a fair attraction. It is the story of a poor factory girl who attempts to escape from the sordidness of her environments by going to the city, thinking therein lies her happiness.

Dorothy Phillips, in the leading role, should win an audience, and William Stowell, as John Blake, is a convincing hero. The photography and direction are all that could be desired.

The story: Madge Garvey and her father are employed in a shoe factory. Madge’s sister’s husband is discharged by the new foreman, John Blake, and in a fight with Blake is killed. Blake falls in love with Madge and she consents to marry him. The day before the wedding she goes to New York, lured by a girl chum and a desire to get away from Sackville and its squalor. There she finds life vastly different. She poses for an artist and is invited to his apartment late one night, where he attempts to force his attentions upon her. Blake, in the meantime, helps her sister through her illness, and the family moves into the newly furnished home he had provided for his bride. Seeing a picture of Madge in a paper, in which she is scantily clad, he determines to go to the city and save her. He seeks her at the artist’s apartment and rescues her as she lies fainting in the painter’s arms.

Blake marries her and they return home.

The second production from the hands of the Fairbanks-Emerson-Loos trio, entitled “Wild and Woolly,” transcends everything they have ever done before. The story, which was suggested by Horace B. Carpenter, has an amusing and popular theme. It deals with the widespread notion that the West still is in a primitive condition. With Anita Loos’ delightful subtitles and John Emerson’s artistic direction, this pair have evolved a splendid vehicle for Douglas Fairbanks. There are many new and exciting situations, also bucking broncos, rope twirling, real cowboys, shooting and desperadoes.

The scenes, which are laid in New York, California and Arizona, were filmed in the actual atmosphere. In the charming ingenue Eileen Percy, Mr. Fairbanks has found a delightful recipient for his picture affections. This is a real Fairbanks picture, and every foot of it radiates with his magnetic personality. Exhibitors should find this film a good attraction. The cast includes Walter Bytell, Joseph Singleton, Calvin Carter, Forest Seabury, J. W. Jones, Charles Stevens, Sam De Grasse and Toni Wilson.

The story: Jeff Hillington, son of a millionaire railroad magnate, tires of the East and longs for the wild and woolly West. He has his living apartments and office fixed up in the accepted Western style. His idea of the West has been gleaned from dime novels. A delegation from Bitter Creek come to New York to interest some financier in backing the building of a spur road. They go to Mr. Hillington and explain their proposition. He sends Jeff out to investigate. The citizens of the town, realizing that a favorable report from Jeff is necessary, decide to live up to his idea of a Western town. They plan a program to be carried out, consisting of a wild reception, a regular barroom dance and a train holdup. Steve Shelby, a grafting Indian agent, knowing that he is about to be caught by the government, decides to “turn one more trick” and escape across the border. So he enters willingly into the plan to hold up the train to amuse Jeff.

But things go wrong with the schemers, and events happen in earnest. Jeff has fallen in love with Nell Larabee. Nell is kidnapped by Shelby. The entire crowd is kept in the dance hall, surrounded by howling Indians. Jeff’s revolver had been loaded with blanks. The situation is explained to Jeff, who by superhuman efforts presenting many typical Fairbanks surprises, rounds up the band of Indians, rescues the girl, completely foils Steve, and becomes the hero of the hour, finally marrying “Little Nell.”

The first reel of “The Heir of the Ages” is a prologue introducing prehistoric characters and suggesting the influence they had on men of today. House Peters, Nina Byron and Eugene Palette play the principal roles in the prologue as well as in the modern story. The modern story deals with the love affair of Hugh Payne (House Peters) and Abby Hope (Nina Byron), and though the same plot has been used before, it is presented in an unusually interesting manner. The photography is exceptionally good, and the supporting cast, including Adele Farrington, Henry Bows and John Burton, gives a very finished performance.

The story: Hugh is the superintendent of a mine in Last Chance. He teaches little Abby Hope to read and write, and finally falls in love with her. She idolizes the strong man, but when his younger and dissolute brother Larry comes on from the East, he wins Abby's affections. Hugh rescues Abby and Larry from a burning roadhouse, and Abby turns to Hugh in his grief over the death of Larry.

"Steps to Somewhere," a unit of the "Do Child Count?" series, measures up to other films of this interesting series. Mary McAlister does excellent work in this production and the fact that she plays the part of naughty child, as if she were really one, proves her unusual ability.

Mabel Bardine and John Cossar give little Mary good support.

The story tells of Nonie Kayliss, who, through her naughtiness, has caused the separation of her father from his mother. She is sent to the home of her grandmother, who decides to tie her to a chair as a punishment. She falls asleep and dreams that she is a naughty girl she cannot have any of the beautiful toys she sees. This dream is the means of making a good girl of Nonie, as the first thing she does is to reunite her father and mother.

Wesley Jamison believes the same of Carol and, as a matter of difference, they decide to enjoy the sports participated in by people who do not belong to exclusive society. Louis Merevan, the director of “The Golden Lotus,” has produced a very fine picture. The story, which is an unusually strong one, with a good plot, deals with the tragedy in the lives of some of the French aristocrats. This company certainly knows how to stage pictures. This film is full of gorgeous interiors and exteriors. Many clever subtitles on backgrounds hinting at the psychological condition of the characters’ minds are a pleasing addition.

Regina Badet as Leah, the decoy and mistress of a gambling house, is magnetic and charming. Her emotional scenes are, exquisitely done without any over-acting. Surrounding her is a clever and capable cast, including Martin Bradford, George Corday, Guy Favieres, Paul Guide, Paul Obrey and Louise Sand. Each individual contributes convincing portrayals. This picture is a good box office attraction and a satisfying drama as a whole.

To see Frederick Warde is to see a finished actor—an actor who is master of the art of facial expression. His work in “Fires of Youth” is excellent. The story is a strong one, well directed and should prove a good box office attraction.

Perhaps the next in importance to Mr. Warde is little Helen Badgley. She is a brilliant child actress and, in the part of a little boy, does justice to her role. Jeanne Eagels, Ernest Howard and Robert Vaughan are other members of the cast.

The story: The men at the factory of Duryville only have heard of Pemberton, the owner, by the name of “Iron-hearted” Pemberton. He has never appeared at the mill. Pemberton decides that he will enjoy his boyhood at the age of fifty and so retires to his Duryville mansion. The minute the men learn that he is there they plan to kill him as punishment for the unsafe conditions under which he operates his mill.

Pemberton makes the acquaintance of Billy, whose father is an employe of the mill. Through Billy, Pemberton learns of the mill’s conditions and what the men think of him. Knowing his men have never seen him, Pemberton hires an employe in his own mill. Pemberton falls in love with Billy’s sister and, planning to propose marriage, Pemberton puts new furniture into his mansion and has it generally repaired. He does not go to work one day and little Billy, fearing he might lose his position, goes to the mill to do his work. While working, a boiler explodes and Billy is badly burned.

Little hope is held out for Billy’s recovery. The angered men decide that Pemberton must die. They draw lots. Billy’s sister draws for her sweetheart and gets the fatal straw. Pemberton quickly exchanges and goes forth to slay himself. However, Billy’s sister follows and, learning the truth, takes him back and after explanations are made Pemberton is allowed to live, providing he will make the mills safe, which he does. Little Billy recovers.

When the authorities learn of the woman's past the little girl is sent to an orphanage, while the woman finds consolation in the deep waters of the sea.

A TENSE MOMENT IN "WHEN SORROW WEEPS," FEATURING LITTLE MARY McALISTER (Essanay-K.-E.-S-E)

Mary McAlister gives an exceptional interpretation of the little orphan girl, who is trying to escape being sent to an orphanage. Mabel Bardon, as the woman who is endeavoring to live down a past, is well cast. John Cosner, as the man escaping justice, is good.

The story: At the death of her drunken father, Rags runs away for fear she will be sent to an orphanage. She is found by Caroline Busby, whose husband is a convict, and who is endeavoring to start over and lead a new life. Shq takes little Rags and goes to a distant city, where they are very happy.

Chris Bushy finishes his term and is released. He commits another burglary and is hunted by the police. He comes to the town where Caroline and Rags live, and when he recognizes Caroline he forces her to give him protection. She takes him into the house and then notifies the police. Busby is captured and Caroline is also taken into custody. Little Rags is turned over to the juvenile authorities, who insist that Caroline is not a fit woman to raise the little girl and so Rags is sent to an orphanage. Dishcartened, Caroline ends her life by jumping into the sea.

In a story that has no frills, but which contains plenty of interest, Mary Miles Minter is given an excellent opportunity to display her ability. The story is laid mainly at the sea coast. The settings have been well chosen.

The story gives Miss Minter a bigger opportunity for putting her personality into her work than previous ve- hicles have done, and no doubt "Periwinkle" will prove a very successful and popular offering.

Supporting Miss Minter are George Fisher, Arthur Howard, Clarence Burton, Alan Forrest, Harvey Clark, George Periolat, Ann Schaefer and George Ahearn. The story was written by Julian Louis Lamothe and directed by James Kirkwood.

The story: Periwinkle, the survivor of a shipwreck, has been reared by Ann Scudder. They live on the sea coast and Periwinkle always helps the coast guards in times of wrecks. One night Richard Langdon Evans is tossed upon the shore. He is the sole survivor when his yacht is wrecked. He is found by Periwinkle and taken to the guard house, where, under the tender nursing of Periwinkle, he soon recovers.

Langdon falls in love with Periwinkle. Finally the day of farewell comes. Periwinkle is broken hearted when she learns that Langdon is already engaged to another and that he must go out of her life forever.

However, Ann, who suspects that Periwinkle loves Langdon, learns the address of Langdon's fiancee and writes her to call Langdon home. A telegram is received by Ann to the effect that Langdon's fiancee is already married.

Joyfully Ann rushes with the telegram to Langdon and as joyfully Langdon tells Periwinkle that he will not have to leave and that he loves her only. A simple mar- riage brings joy to Periwinkle.

"A Roadside Impresario" is another feature with George Beban which audiences should find very enter- taining. Mr. Beban not only acts the principal role, but he also wrote the story. It is the type of screen play which will delight young and old alike.

As the amiable and excitable Italian itinerant street entertainer, Mr. Beban presents a serio-comic character which is a classic. An immense bear shares honors with the star, and a well-chosen cast gives excellent support.

The story was directed by Donald Crisp.

The story: Guiseppe Franchini lives with his wife and baby on the coast of Italy. While attempting to rescue an American from an overturned boat he is nearly drowned, and later is picked up by a fishing schooner. The American swims ashore. When Guiseppe returns home six months later he finds his wife dead and baby gone—the American having adopted it. He takes his pet bear and comes to America in search of his child. The bear gets him into trouble by invading a rich man's apiary, and is locked up. Guiseppe, while working as a dishwasher in a restaurant, discovers a note on an ash ray, which aids him in finding his daughter. He finds his daughter is engaged to the candidate for mayor of the town. He realizes, however, that he may be the means of ruining her chances of future happiness, and is last seen disconsolately traveling over the brow of a hill with his beloved bear.

HISTORIC FEATURES, INC., SECURED “CHRISTUS” SPECTACLE BECAUSE IT IS FROM GREATEST “BEST SELLER”

As one goes down the line of “best sellers” among publications, he finds that many of them have made successful photoplays. In most cases they have been successful in pictures in proportion to their popularity in book form.

This bit of psychology was largely instrumental in the acquirement by Historic Features, Inc., of “Christus,” the Cines photo-spectacle of the life of Christ. One of the directors of the company, which was formed for the exploitation of pictures of artistic and educational value, happened to be in Rome last fall, shortly after the run of “Christus” began in that city. Not only was his attention attracted by the size of the audiences, but also by the fact that here was an elaborately-made picturization of the book which must rank as the “best seller” of all time—the Bible.

Figuring that the volume with the largest circulation of any ever published must have a tremendous screen value, he sought the American rights for Historic Features and was successful in obtaining them. That his judgment was correct has been proven by the popularity of the picture in New York City. The production is being published on the state rights basis.

ANN PENNINGTON’S FIRST FILM APPEARANCE SINCE TOUR ON STAGE TO BE IN “THE LITTLE BOY SCOUT”

“The Little Boy Scout," starring Ann Pennington and written by Charles Sarver, has been completed at the Famous Players studio, under the direction of Francis J. Grandon, and will be published by Paramount June 28. This production marks the reappearance of Miss Pennington upon the screen, after a winter spent on tour with the Ziegfeld Follies. As in the summer of 1916, Miss Pennington will divide her time between the New Amsterdam Theater, New York, and the Famous Players studio.

In this production Troop No. 100 of the Boy Scouts of America and a full company of United States Regulars from Fort Totten play prominent parts.

It is a story of the Mexican border at the time the American troops were stationed there in great numbers and has to do with the escape of Justina Howland, a little Massachusetts girl, from her Mexican guardian. Miguel Alvarez, the guardian, endeavors to force Justina to marry his son in order that he may get possession of her fortune. The girl steals the burro on which the padre has come to marry her and makes her escape through the bed of the Rio Grande to the American side, where she is picked up by the United States soldiers. The subsequent adventures of little Justina and the romance which develops between herself and young Lieutenant Morton complete an interesting tale.

Among the players who appear in support of Miss Pennington are Owen Moore, Harry Lee, Fraunholz and Marcia Harris.

The settings of this photodrama are laid in South Africa and the story tells of the Boers’ hatred for their English neighbors. A pleasant love story is interwoven in the plot and some good animal pictures are shown. Charlie, the Universal elephant, has an important role.

Star appears as Molly O’Toole, whose love for luxury and wealth leads her to serious indiscretions.

Gail Kane occupies the place of honor on the Mutual schedule for June 25, in her third production for Mutual, “The Upper Crust.” This photoplay is an adaptation of Charles Sherman’s “best seller” of the same title. Miss Kane plays as Molly O’Toole, a girl whose love of wealth, luxury and position leads her into a series of indiscretions which go to make up a story replete with dramatic situations and clean, wholesome comedy.

“The Upper Crust” affords an opportunity for the exhibitor to co-operate with any local book seller with a big window display of the novel and stills from the play, also advertising the novel in the theater program and on the screen. The name of Gail should be featured, for this star of the stage and screen has a big following.

Twelfth chapter of rail serial

The twelfth chapter of the serial, “The Railroad Raiders,” entitled “A Fight for a Franchise,” is scheduled for June 25. In this chapter the suspense is not sustained through “thrillers” but by tense situations and strong dramatic action. Helen Holmes invades the house of Desmondo, steals the contract for a franchise and on his typewriter types in the name of the K. & W. Railroad instead of the Eastern while Wilson stands guard to see that nobody disturbs her. The action centers around the effort to get this changed contract signed without the deception being discovered.

The fifteenth chapter of the “Jimmie Dale, Alias the Grey Seal” series, “The Tapped Wires,” is scheduled for June 29. In this story the Grey Seal is defeated at his own game. The spy of the pretender manages to get the better of Jimmie Dale and secure papers which he is trying to obtain.

The Comedies Scheduled

“Discords in ‘A’ Flat” is the La Salle comedy for June 26. Jean Otto is featured in this film which deals with a composer competing for a prize of $10,000 offered for the best operatic score.

The Cub comedy, ready June 28, is “Jerry’s Hopeless Tangle.” George Ovey, as Jerry, resents father’s interference with his love making and so puts him in the water barrel to the roof, where father is forced to stay while Jerry and daughter make love.

“Weekly” No. 130 will come to the screen on June 27. “Mutual Tours Around the World,” ready June 26, shows Naples, the largest city of Italy, and Buenos Aires, the capital of Argentina.

“Reel Life,” scheduled for June 28, is made up of five subjects—Marketing Raw Tobacco, Launching a Life Boat, The Life of a Bee, As They Looked in the Beginning, and Butterfly Jewelry.

Santschi has biggest film role in Selig’s “City of Purple Dreams”

Tom Santschi has the best role of his career as star in the forthcoming Selig feature, “The City of Purple Dreams.” The whole plot of this story centers about him in the role of Daniel Fitzhugh. In this characterization Santschi runs the gamut of human experiences, beginning as a down-and-out derelict recently released from prison, through the various stages of his career as dishwasher, street fakir, confidence man, and finally his rise to a million-dollar speculator in wheat.

Others who will have important roles in the production are Bessie Eyton, Fritzl Brunette, Eugenie Besserer and Frank Clark.

George Beban and House Peters star in two Pallas features on Paramount program June 18 week

Two Pallas productions, “A Roadside Impresario,” starring George Beban, and “The Heir of the Ages,” with House Peters, will be issued by Paramount the week of June 18. That same week Paramount will publish the seventy-first edition of the Paramount-Bray Pictographs, the magazine-on-the-screen; the seventy-second of the series of weekly trips around the world, conducted by Burton Holmes, showing “Florida,” and a Klever Comedy, “Committing,” starring Victor Moore.

Mr. Beban is seen in “A Roadside Impresario,” as a roaming Italian with a trick bear performing for the benefit of the children in wayside towns. Mr. Beban, himself, doing the tricks the bear is supposed to do. How, while trying to earn money enough as a dishwasher in a restaurant to get Bruno, the bear, out of jail, where he has been incarcerated for wrecking an apiary, he discovers a blackmailing plot against the local candidate for mayor, and also finds his daughter, for whom he has been searching for sixteen years. This is brought about in a most unusual and appealing manner.

Mr. Beban is surrounded by a cast including Harrison Ford, Fred Huntley, Adele Farrington and Julia Faye.

In a drama of brotherly love, “The Heir of the Ages,” House Peters will be seen as a primitive man in the days of cave life and shows the human instincts of unselﬁshness and love. Later, the situations which confronted him ages ago come again when he is superintendent of a mine in a small western town. He falls in love with an ignorant little mountain girl, only to lose her to his worthless brother in the cast, and then nearly loses his life in an effort to save theirs. How he finally wins the object of his heart is brought about in a novel manner.

In the cast supporting House Peters are Eugene Pallette, Nina Byron, Henry Barrows and Adele Farrington.

Peoples Theater in Portland, Ore., gets record crowds with Fairbanks

Many photographs showing crowded lobbies of people seeking admittance have been published, but here is one from a different angle, telling a different story.

John Stills, Assistant Manager of People’s Theater, Portland, Ore., Going to the Bank with a Day’s Receipts from Fairbanks’ “In Again—Out Again” (ArriCraft)

The smiling carrier of the heavy money-bag in the picture is Assistant Manager John Stills of the Peoples Theater, Portland, Ore., leaving the theater for the bank with one day’s receipts on the Fairbanks-ArriCraft picture “In Again—Out Again.” The attendance broke all records at this house.
[To the Exhibitors Herald]:

As president of the Indiana Motion Picture Exhibitors League, I kindly ask that you publish the following article in your very next issue.

The motion picture exhibitors of these United States must be up and doing this very minute, get busy when you read this and for the next few days give your entire efforts and attention to the Federal tax question.

Do you realize the importance and dire consequences of prohibitive tax? I wrote and asked a Canadian exhibitor to give me the results of how a tax of one cent on each ticket had affected the exhibitors in that country.

Extracts from a Long Letter

He wrote: “Our tax regulation is the most costly in the world except perhaps the Italian government.

“People did not protest in time and now it is too late. We pay one cent on each ticket and this obliged us to raise the admission price from 10 to 15 cents and now people do not come; they have not the money to come so often, and business has fallen off one-third.

“Some motion picture managers, and as picture managers usually do, tried to get each other out of business and pay the extra tax themselves, and all profits were lost and they were in the hole.

“Enclosed you will find a sample of war tax ticket that we have to pay and since paying many shows have closed up and are going out of business because it costs hundreds of dollars which the shows cannot raise. Some fools paid the tax out of each admission and lost everything.

“I say you had better hold together and protest in time or else you will suffer commercial death and the people will suffer because amusements are all to charge high prices and only the large houses remain in business and cheap amusements for the poor and middle class people will end.”

These are facts quoted from experience and not theories and need no further explanation except to briefly review what has been done up to date.

When the house committee proposed a tax of 10 per cent on gross receipts, the Indiana organization sent a delegation to Washington and found only one other state taking an interest in the tax question. Mr. Varner, Mr. Sams and Mr. Wells of North Carolina, the same gentlemen who came to the rescue over two years ago on behalf of the small exhibitors.

We found Mr. Ochs and some trade papers and film manufacturers saying to Congress that the tax of 10 per cent was right on the exhibitor, but there should be no tax on film. As usual, gentlemen, let the exhibitors pay the whole burden and again as usual most exhibitors calmly submitting to the axe.

North Carolina and Indiana have been working diligently ever since, and Mr. Crandall at Washington, an exhibitor there, was splendid help.

Through filing briefs and seeing our representatives and senators we have been able to show and prove that a tax of 10 per cent or of 1 cent on every ticket, which is 20 per cent on a 5-cent ticket, would put most of us out of business. Fortunately, North Carolina was in a position to be of great service and Mr. Varner, who has now the second time come to the front in behalf of the exhibitor, deserves our great vote of thanks by the exhibitors of the United States for his work.

But our work is not finished. We need the co-operation of every exhibitor in the United States this mighty minute.

If you don’t say anything, Congress is liable to believe that you are able to pay the tax.

Here is the status at this writing: The senate committee report no tax on amusements of 25 cents and under admission tickets.

Indiana and North Carolina senators and representatives have been advised fully by their exhibitors how drastic this bill was and all we want is the rest of the states to do the same. Write letters to your senators and congressmen; wire them or talk to them over the wire. If you want to get somewhere, go down to Washington and see them in person, the way North Carolina and Indiana have done, and won’t wait. As a Canadian exhibitor has said: “Go before it is too late.”

F. J. REMBUSH.

President of the Indiana Motion Picture Exhibitors’ League.

Shelbyville, Ind.

P. S.—Exhibitors, you should say to producers, all film men and everybody not an exhibitor: “Keep your hands off; it is not your business and you do not know what an exhibitor can pay in the way of tax.”

[To the Exhibitors Herald]:

Gentlemen: Can you refer us to a concern that sells ventilators for roofs of motion picture theatres?

We desire to install something besides electric fans, in the way of something like a skylight proposition so that the front doors need not be kept open, with a resulting free show to a certain class that is looking for something for nothing.

RAGING FOREST FIRE IN LUMBER REGION IS FILMED FOR NEWEST KATHLYN WILLIAMS-W. REID PLAY

“Big Timber,” an adaptation by Gardner Hunting of Bertrand Sinclair’s famous story, has as its co-stars Kathlyn Williams and Wallace Reid. It is a Moro-co-Para-mount picture, staged under the direction of William H. Taylor, with John Burton, Alfred Paget, Joe King and Helen Bray in the supporting cast.

In order to get the settings for this production, which, as the name suggests, is a story of the California lumber district, the entire company traveled from Los Angeles to Fort Bragg, in the heart of the lumber district.

The filming of big trees and scenes on the timber chutes form interesting parts of the action of the story. By dint of careful watchfulness the players were able to film a forest fire raging in the big timber. It is forbidden by law to start such a fire, and the company was forced to hide its time until a fire was discovered and reported by the rangers.

Duluth, Minn.—Mertens & Hoff, proprietors of the Orpheum Theater at Ironon, have leased the Empress Theater here and will start operating it about July 1.
MISS DALTON AND BARRISCALE
STAR IN TRIANGLE FILMS FOR JULY

Dorothy Dalton and Bessie Barriscale are the stars of the Triangle plays to be published July 1. “The Flame of the Yukon” is the title of the drama in which Dorothy Dalton will make her ninth stellar appearance.

Bessie Barriscale will be seen in “Hater of Men,” a comedy from the pen of C. Gardner Sullivan.

The scene of Dorothy Dalton’s vehicle is Alaska during the early days of the gold rush. “The Flame” was a well known character in the country between Nome and Dawson. She is the ruling spirit of “The Midas Cafe,” where she lures the nuggets from her victims one day only to stake the unlucky to a new start when her sympathies were touched. Melbourne MacDowell, a stage player, takes the part of the proprietor of the cafe in which “The Flame” dances, while Kenneth Harlan appears as the hero opposite Miss Dalton. A tribe of twenty Esquimaux lend realism to the production, together with several malamute dog teams.

As the leading figure of “Hater of Men,” Bessie Barriscale takes the part of Janice Salsbury, a special newspaper writer. She is engaged to a reporter, Billy Williams, but becomes convinced that marriage is only another name for slavery. She breaks off relations with Williams. Phillips Hartley, known as the drawing room philosopher, is also a member of the group in which Janice moves. He loves Janice, but silently waits for the time when she will forget her mistaken ideas and turn to him for comfort. Miss Barriscale is supported by Charles K. French and Jack Gilbert.

FRIEDER FILM CORP. OF CHICAGO
WILL MAKE LONG LIST OF FEATURES;
GETS RIGHTS TO WELL KNOWN TALES

The Frieder Film Corporation of Chicago, which now is marketing its first big state right feature, “A Bit o’ Heaven,” founded on Kate Douglas Wiggin’s celebrated story, “The Birds’ Christmas Carol,” announces that a long list of copyrighted novels soon will be filmed at the Lankershim, Cal., studio.

This, it is understood, is due to the success with which its first feature is meeting throughout the country. Contracts have been signed with three different eastern publishing houses, calling for film rights to a number of widely known stories, similar to “The Birds’ Christmas Carol.” Activities now are under way in the Lankershim studio, looking toward the completion of the first of the new stories.

FAIRBANKS ENTERS SIXTH MONTH
AS PRODUCER OF ARTCRAFT FILMS

With two Aracraft plays already completed, and about to start on his third, Douglas Fairbanks is celebrating his sixth month as producer. It was immediately after the first of the year that he completed negotiations with Walter E. Green, president of Aracraft Pictures Corporation, to distribute his five-reel pictures made under the direction of John Emerson; from scenarios by Anita Loos. His business organization is headed by John Fairbanks, who resigned as vice president of the Morey Mercantile Company in Denver to look after his brother’s interests. The bookkeeping department is in the capable hands of Florence E. Gribbon, who until recently was identified with the Triangle Film Corporation. Director John Emerson has Joseph Henaberry and James Hogan for assistants, while Anita Loos is assisted by Ruth Allen. Mathilde Kanes is secretary to Douglas Fairbanks, with Bennie Ziedman as publicity representative.

WHO SHALL TAKE MY LIFE?” GIVEN
A PRIVATE SHOWING BY SELIG
TO ANTI-CAPITAL PUNISHMENT SOCIETY

A private presentation of “Who Shall Take My Life?” the Selig feature film, soon to be published, was given to the members of the Chicago branch of the Anti-Capital Punishment Society of America. The showing took place Friday evening, June 15, in the Selig projection room. Maurice Bennett Kovalt, the National Secretary of the Anti-Capital Punishment Society of America, was in charge.

Miss Maibelle Heikes Justice, author of the drama, and who was given permission to spend some time in the Death House at Sing Sing prison to gather material for her drama, was present.

Before the drama was screened, Mr. Kovalt delivered a short address in which he thanked William N. Selig for his courtesy in permitting the members of the society to view the film. He complimented Mr. Selig for the production of such a drama which, he said, carried convincingly and logically the Anti-Capital punishment propaganda. The showing was entirely in charge of the National Secretary of the Anti-Capital Punishment Society and only members were present. Following the showing, the verses, “I Want to Sit by the Side of the Road,” were recited. There was special music during the evening.

Among the prominent members of the Chicago branch of the Anti-Capital Punishment Society of America can be mentioned, former Governor Dunne, Bishop Fallows, Raymond Robins, Clarence Darrow, Judge Robert McMurty, former Senator Billings and others. A number of the above named dignitaries were present at the showing.

"Who Shall Take My Life?” is said to be a gripping drama presenting arguments against capital punishment in the form of a strong story in which an innocent man convicted on circumstantial evidence meets death. Coln Campbell directed the production, which features Thomas Santschi and others.

12,000 PERSONS FLOOD CLUNE’S
THEATER, LOS ANGELES, TO SEE
FIRST RUN OF FAIRBANKS FILM

According to William H. Clune, owner of Clune’s Auditorium, Douglas Fairbanks, in his initial Aracraft film, “In Again, Out Again,” played to more than 12,000 persons the first day of its showing in Los Angeles. Mr. Clune had originally intended to exhibit “In Again, Out Again” at his Broadway theater, which seats about 1,800 persons, but due to contemplated big business he decided to open the Fairbanks film at his large Auditorium Theater, which has a 3,500 seating capacity. He is running the picture on schedule time, four performances a day, in addition to a one-reel news film and an elaborate musical program.

Mr. Clune in an interview said that the crowds which attended on the first day of “In Again, Out Again” reminded him of “The Birth of a Nation” premiere in Los Angeles.

Clune intends continuing the showing of “In Again, Out Again” for two weeks, and then the same print will be transferred for a run to his respective theaters in Pasadena and Santa Ana.

As a courtesy to Mr. Clune, who is a close friend of Douglas Fairbanks, the latter appeared at the second performance on opening night, and after two minutes of enthusiastic applause the Aracraft star entertained the audience with some of the interesting trials and tribulations he experienced during the staging of "In Again, Out Again.”

The large over-subscription of the Liberty Loan has caused more confidence in the present financial situation and stocks and bonds, both listed and unlisted, are becoming more active. As soon as the government has definitely arranged the taxation program, and manufacturers and retailers know just where they stand, there is sure to be a better sentiment, and all experts predict great industrial activities. Motion picture companies should share in this prosperity, and we believe higher prices will be seen for all good issues.

On the 15th of June, Lone Star Corporation retired 25 per cent of the outstanding preferred stock at 110. All resulting fractions were taken up in full and the accruing dividend paid on the preferred up to the date of retiring.

New York Motion Picture stock has been somewhat stronger than last week's, sales being reported as high as 56, 52 is being freely bid with not much stock offered.

Triangle and World Film remain practically unchanged with few sales reported.

"THE RANGE BOSS" IS NEXT ESSANAY WESTERN FEATURE, WHICH STARS JACK GARDNER OF STAGE NOTE

"The Range Boss" will be the second of Essanay's series of Westerns.

This series, which starts with the publication of "Land of Long Shadows!" on June 18, presents a new and novel screen interpretation of red-blooded life in the wilds of the West. It features Jack Gardner, the musical comedy star, who made his first appearance in motion pictures last month in Essanay's "The Night Workers."

"The Range Boss" has to do with the mishaps of a man from New England in the far West. There is included in this party a beautiful girl with ideas of her own, her very proper chaperon and a suitor for her hand, the latter dressed in his Eastern tailor's notion of what should be worn in the West.

The girl has just inherited a ranch and is endeavoring to establish herself at its head. She runs afoul of a vicious plot by former employees on the estate to seize it, in which her erstwhile suitor becomes involved. At a moment when all seems lost and the girl finds even her life and honor threatened by the conspiracies, the cowboy hero enters the play to rescue her.

The manuscript was written by W. S. Van Dyke, who also is producing the picture. Mr. Gardner is an expert horseman and is provided with an open field to perform some stirring feats. Miss Ruth King and the same company, which appeared with the star in "Land of Long Shadows" also will appear in this production.

"The Range Boss" will have a screen time of approximately sixty-five minutes.
M. H. HOFFMAN BUYS "BAR SINISTER" RIGHTS FOR NEW YORK STATE FROM FRANK HALL

M. H. Hoffman of the M. H. Hoffman, Inc., New York City, has purchased the New York state rights to the "Bar Sinister." The rights were purchased from Frank Hall. The production now is being published through the first of the Foursquare exchanges, recently opened on the seventh floor of the Godfrey Building.

The "Bar Sinister," with "Madam Sherry," the "Sin Woman" and "Should She Obey?" will form the nucleus of the exchange product to be distributed under the supervision of H. Gainsburg, who now is installed at the head of the New York Foursquare exchange.

In addition to booking all New York state for "Madam Sherry," M. H. Hoffman, Inc., is selling state rights on this big new picture. An unusual and significant fact to be remembered about "Madam Sherry" is that the noted music score, which is known the world over, is included with the film.

Good paper and other advertising material is being prepared, it is said, by the executive office of the company.

EDGAR LEWIS STARTS WORK ON NEW FILM IN NEW YORK HILLS; STORY BY ANTHONY P. KELLY

With a story by Anthony P. Kelly and accompanied by many of the same players who appeared in "The Barrier" and "The Bar Sinister," Edgar Lewis left Broadway a few days ago and now is making the first scenes of his next special production in Ticonderoga, in New York State.

Before beginning the actual work of the picture Mr. Lewis spent several weeks working upon the script and selecting the cast and locations. At the same time his first success under his own management, "The Bar Sinister," was enjoying an extended run at the Broadway Theater and his time was divided between the launching of "The Bar Sinister" in conjunction with Frank Hall, who controls the world rights, and preliminary work on his next production. He was also forced to allow time for the building of a village street called for by his new script.

No title has been announced for the picture and no hint is being given of the subject.

Our Platform

"There is but one course to take if the exhibitors’ organization is ever to attain its rightful place in the industry: there must be a thorough house-cleaning of men and methods and the old parasitical system of making the league a poaching ground for a few selfish individuals must be forever abandoned."

JACK HAAG WILL QUIT CHICAGO BANDBOX HOUSE AFTER NOTABLE SUCCESS

Made Theater Noted Throughout U. S. and Built One of Best Paying Trades in "Loop" District

Jack Haag, who for the past ten months has managed the Bandbox Theater on Madison street, Chicago, will sever connections with the widely known film house, he announces, and now is considering other business offers which have been made.

JACK HAAG

Mr. Haag has made a big success of the Bandbox Theater, which now is known in important centers from coast to coast. Through persistent effort Mr. Haag has built up business, until the theater is one of the best paying in the Chicago "loop" district. The departing manager was one of the first theater managers in the "loop" to see the advantage of selecting pictures in the open market, and for some length of time has been running features in the Bandbox for one, two and occasionally three weeks.

"Women Only" shows of semi-educational nature, such as "The Unborn" and other films, in the past have been successfully exploited. During the run of "The Unborn," Mr. Haag placed the attraction before the public in such a unique manner that during its run every afternoon and evening a great waiting line, which extended more than a block from the box office, kept the traffic police busy.

As an officer of the Reel Fellows' Club, Mr. Haag has been a big factor in making the organization a success. At present he is working out plans for the club to entertain delegates to the Motion Picture Convention to be held in Chicago from July 14 to 22.

Calgary, Alta.—D. G. Walkley, president of the Film Exchange Managers' Association of Alberta, has announced that the association will fight the proposed Daylight Saving Bill in this territory and has enlisted the aid of exchange associations of Canada for a Dominion-wide campaign of protest against the measure.

The association points out that this system not only shortens the dark hours of the evening, which tends to keep patrons away from shows, but also confuses the time table for shipping the films, and quite often holds up the show.

Halifax, N. S.—Business in Halifax keeps up as good as usual and the raise in prices does not seem to affect exhibitors, other than to prove of benefit. In some cases the theaters have noticed a tendency for the matinees to increase and the evening shows to drop off in attendance, owing to the fact that the extra price of admission is not charged in the afternoon.

Toronto, Ont.—A new film concern has been incorporated here with the capital of $75,000 under the name of Atlas Films of Canada. The concern will handle industrial films and make comedies. The first comedy has been made. It is a two-reel subject.

St. John, N. B.—A number of changes are being made in the film exchanges in this city. The Metro is opening an office under the management of Norman McArthur, who has been in the past number of years manager of the general office here. Mr. Braden, who has aided Mr. McArthur for some considerable time, will step up to take charge of the General Film office. It is also reported that the Globe Film Company will open offices in St. John. Mr. Fenton of Montreal has applied for a license for the Triangle Films in this territory. These films are going to be used in the Imperial Theater, St. John, and Walter H. Golding, manager of the Imperial, will be representative here as far as the Imperial Theater is concerned.

Vancouver, B. C.—P. X. Doyle, formerly of the Regal Film Company, Limited, of Montreal office, has succeeded M. J. Meagher as manager of the General Film Company, Vancouver. Mr. Meagher's future plans have not been announced, although it is understood he is planning to go east.

OUR PLATFORM

"There is but one course to take if the exhibitors' organization is ever to attain its rightful place in the industry: there must be a thorough house-cleaning of men and methods and the old parasitical system of making the league a poaching ground for a few selfish individuals must be forever abandoned."

—From HERALD editorial, May 19, 1917.
Leave it to Ike Van Ronkel, manager of the Bluebird exchange, to aid his exhibitor friends “slip it across.” He has just completed a plan whereby all Bluebird photoplays being shown at the Playhouse Theater will entitle all registered citizen soldiers to free admission, if accompanied by a paid admission—in other words, two for one.

E. A. “Bill” Hamburg, the frame authority, is becoming a regular “knight of the grip.” He has been hitting it up through Michigan, as far north as Grand Rapids, and is coming home after visiting Detroit.

H. G. Miller and “Willie” Hershberg, former auto owners, whose cars were stolen, have another pal with whom to grieve. The big Hudson “Six” left the care of the modest F. J. Flaherty, having come under the guiding hands of some one a total stranger to Frank, although the Police Department is striving to effect an introduction.

N. William Aronson, former head waiter of the College Inn, is surely “gettin' there” in filmdom. He is now a personal representative for F. X. Bushman, H. B. Walthall and Mitchell Lewis.

Freddie McMillan now is flashing a commuter ticket to Duluth, Minn. It’s a whole lot cheaper, says Mr. If he were not in the film game, he’d make a name for himself in Wall street.

One of the “whys” the local film trade is curious about! Why always to New York alone? Roderick Ross is a right good sort of chap and may be able to bring contentment to our troubled minds.

The boys in the Consumers Building are contemplating holding an indignation meeting to see if that Malters Building telegraph office can be removed to 220 South State street with “Big Ed” Olson on the job. Apropos, E. O. looks sad and lonely over there on Wabash avenue.

Karl Laemmle, president of Universal, spent three days in Chicago this week. The Big U chief, who has been visiting the coast studios, is headed for New York.

CHICAGO GIRL
FILM INSPECTORS OUT ON STRIKE

Demand $17.50

An attempt which is being made to organize a union among the girls employed as film inspectors by the various exchanges in Chicago culminated in a strike last Friday, when about thirty-five girls walked out. The trouble, it is said, started when several girls in the Consumers Building left their work at the instigation of the union organizers when an increase in wages was refused. Girls in other exchanges followed the move, but many returned to work on Monday.

L. A. Roselle, manager of the World Film Corporation, Chicago branch, said that he was paying his girls from $12 to $14 a week, which is the average wages paid girls in the Chicago exchanges, and a figure much higher than is being paid elsewhere. The girls demanded $17.50 a week, it is stated.

W. H. Jenner, manager of the K-E-S-E branch, stated that the exchange employed eight inspectors, but that none had quit. None of the girls employed at the Universal exchange in the Consumers Building were absent Monday.

A meeting of the exchange managers was held in the Bluebird Exchange offices Saturday morning and it is understood a proposition will be made to the girls still out on strike. In case they refuse to return to work others will be employed to take their places.

No trouble is expected from the operators or shipping clerks, it is announced.

Montreal, Que.—Mr. Gregoire of the Casino Theater, Sherbrooke, was a visitor in Montreal this week.

Toronto, Ont.—Mr. Mitchell, former assistant manager of the Strand Theater, Toronto, now is treasurer of the Regent Theater here.

Toronto, Ont.—Pathe announces that James A. Davidson of Chicago, formerly with Super-Features Pictures, has broken relationships with this firm and will be connected with Pathe in Canada to assist his brother.

Anderson, Ind.—J. J. Ryan has opened a new motion picture theater at 920 Main street. It has a seating capacity of 250 and is named the “Indiana.”

Union City, Ind.—H. E. Jackson, proprietor of the Star Theater, has inaugurated a special children’s matinee one day each week, and is finding the matinees very successful. Mr. Jackson reports excellent business, and adds children’s plays are proving a good investment, making a good Thursday out of a bad one.

Working on the supposition that a telegraph will always arrest attention and be read, the manager of the Family Theater at Sullivan, Ind., hit upon the idea of advertising his first showing of the Mutual productions by having messenger boys deliver telegrams to each house in Sullivan. The telegrams were in the regular Western Union envelopes and written on the regular telegram blanks.

The announcement read:

“I urge you to attend the showing of the first of the Mutual Star Super-Productions, entitled ‘Youth’s Endearing Charm,’ featuring charming Mary Miles Minter, Thursday, April 19, 1917. Matinee, 2:30. Nights, 6:50. Admission: Children, 5 cents; adults, 10 cents.

“I recommend Mutual Star Super-Productions as representing the best in motion pictures. On each Thursday, starting April 19, I will show one Mutual Star Super-Production, featuring Mary Miles Minter, Margarita Fischer, William Russell, Richard Bennett. Matinee on each.

On Thursday, April 26, Margarita Fischer will be presented in ‘A Pearl of Paradise.’

Hoping to have your patronage on each of these productions and as often as possible on other nights, and thanking you in advance for same, I am

Yours sincerely,

Manager Family Theater.”

Dayton, Ohio.—Building operations on a new theater on North Main street have been started. The theater will be one of the finest in Ohio when completed, it is said, being built along the same lines as the Circle Theater in Indianapolis.

Milwaukee, Wis.—At the recent convention of the Wisconsin branch of the M. P. E. L. of A. a resolution was passed endorsing the universal closing of motion picture theaters for four weeks during the summer.

St. Louis, Mo.—The Goldwyn Pictures Corporation of New York has leased a floor in the Plaza Building and will establish a branch exchange here. Floyd Lewis, formerly connected with the Triangle Film Corporation, has been appointed local manager.

Minneapolis, Minn.—F. A. Wilson used a novel method of advertising “The Deemster” which he showed at the Lyric Theater here recently, by distributing 25,000 circular letters in sealed envelopes addressed: “It’s Yours—Open It,” at every door. He also distributed more than $5,000 in bletters announcing the Hall Caine photoplay the week of June 3. Governor J. A. A. Burnquist was among the notable patrons who came to see the film.

Petoskey, Mich.—John L. A. Galster has purchased the leases on the Alcazar and Temple theaters from Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sorden and Mrs. F. M. Cory and assumed charge of both houses.

Los Angeles, Cal.—"The Garden of Allah," the Selig film which played three weeks at the new Rialto Theater, to capacity houses, has received many favorable press reviews here. The Times said: "Neither Selig nor any other producer has done a finer thing."

Stockton, Cal.—M. Breeden, who has assumed management of the Strand Theater, announces that extensive alterations will be made on the house.

Nashville, Tenn.—Mayor Robert Exum has ordered the Board of Censors to stop the presentation of all war motion pictures in Nashville theaters. A cartoon comedy at the Princess Theater, in which war was the prominent feature, was recently ordered off the screen.

Pig Plays Important Part in "La Salle Comedy Issued June 19"

A little spotted black and white pig plays a very important part in "Tillie of the Nine Lives," the La Salle comedy issued through Mutual June 19. With a note tied to its tail, it seeks out Tillie's sweetheart and gives him the message that Tillie is held captive by a sorceress, so that he arrives just in time to save her life.

There are weird scenes in which an illuminated skeleton, grinning masks, instruments of torture and bottles of poison are prominent. All these things are employed by the sorceress and her gang in an attempt to make Tillie tell them where a treasure is hidden, after they have been told in a vision that she possessed this knowledge.

Motion Picture Studio Secrets

The atmosphere of a motion picture studio enfolds the La Salle comedy, "His Cannibal Wife," which was issued through Mutual recently. There are scenes showing studio life, the scene sets, the taking of pictures and the actors and "extras." The picture reveals the humiliations which Otto has to bear because his wife is star of the company while he is only an "extra," due to the wide class distinction in a studio between the head of the company and the player who just fills in now and then.

Scene from "His Cannibal Wife," a La Salle Comedy

Otto decides to show scoffers that he is somebody, and invents a highly colored story of his bravery on a cannibal island. He immediately becomes important, not because of his described heroism but because he has outlined a splendid scenario for the use of the company.

Frank Hall Sells "Bar Sinister"

Rights in Several Territories

Frank Hall's first announcement regarding the disposition of domestic territorial rights for "The Bar Sinister" is of unusual interest to the many theaters in the several important territories sold and settles many rumors as to whether Edgar Lewis' successful special production would be available for booking in all theaters immediately or would first be booked like a stage production.

New York State for "The Bar Sinister" has been purchased by M. H. Hoffman for the Foursquare Pictures Inc., 729 Seventh Avenue, New York. New Jersey has been bought by the Civilization Film Corp., Strand Theater Building, Newark, N. J. New England went to the American Feature Film Company, 66 Church Street, Boston, Mass., and the California territory, which includes Arizona, Nevada and the Hawaiian Islands, has been purchased by Nat A. Magner for his San Francisco exchange at 288 Golden Gate Avenue.

Negotiations now are pending for several other territories and foreign buyers are showing a keen interest. Australia, New Zealand and the adjacent islands in the Pacific, including Java, have been bought by the Australasian Film Company, while J. R. Nerlein Company, Ltd., of Christiania, Norway, has obtained the rights for Scandinavia.
LONG PICTURES IN THE UNITED KINGDOM

The number of places of amusement in Liverpool where motion pictures are exhibited is 42, 22, or 23. Music halls, 4; theaters and cinemas combined, 4; and buildings in which motion pictures are exclusively shown (locally styled "cinemas"), 54. The total seating capacity of these places of amusement is more than 40,000. The prices of admission to cinema halls in the central part of the city vary from 12 to 48 cents, and in the outskirts of the city from 4 to 24 cents. In addition to these prices, the Government entertainment tax of 2 cents in each 12 cents is collected.

Large Proportion of American Manufacture

Various estimates by those interested agree substantially that 75 per cent of the films exhibited have been of American manufacture, 15 per cent British, and 10 per cent French and Italian. More recently American pictures have gained a stronger hold. Lengths of the films range from 6,000 to 8,000 feet, and their average time is 2 hours. Average prices paid in hiring films for six days for the picture houses are: First-class houses, $291 to $486; second-class houses, $194 to $24; third-class houses, $48 to $145.

A system stated to have been introduced recently into this country of "block booking" American picture is alleged to have been the climax in its effect on the British film industry, and to have made British films "as dear as diamonds" in comparison with American products. This system is alleged to be a kind of blending operation. The good, bad, and indifferent pictures are lumped together for selling, and are offered on a long contract. The statement is made, and is given as showing the extent of the trade, that motion pictures amount to 2,000,000 to 20,000,000 people in this country every week; that the country is paying nearly $4,866,500 a year to import foreign pictures, chiefly American; and nearly $48,665,000 to see them.

Persons interested in the exhibition of films in London invited to make recommendations or suggestions based upon their experience, as applicable to American pictures and accessories. One point was that delay occasionally occurred while the necessary changes were made in American subtitles of films, because of the use of American colloquialisms which would not be appreciated by Liverpool audiences.

BRADFORD, ENGLAND

Charge for License—Amusement Prices

The charge in Bradford for a license for cinematograph exhibitions is £1 ($4.86) per annum, the year ending March 31. The prices of admission range from 2d. (£4.86) to 1s. (24 cents), plus the amusement war tax. The charges in the center of the city are slightly higher than at the theaters in the suburbs. American films penetrate this district.

In the evidence given before the Cinema Commission, sitting in London, one witness spoke of the great possibilities yet undeveloped of an efficient motion picture service for the schools of the country. It was said that whereas 200 to 300 companies furnished more than 5,000 British picture theaters with films, the number of schools to be supplied was probably more than twice as great, and an organization to circulate films among them would have to be almost as great as that supplying the entire trade.

The prices paid for the purchase or rental of films vary considerably and are according to arrangement. During the last two or three years the "exclusive" dramatic film of four, five or six reels has increased in popularity, supplanting to some extent the open film. The market, however, is said to be tiring of these long films which occupy so much time. The patrons demand a greater change in the picture program.

Prices of Various Kinds of Films

An "exclusive" film on publication may command any sum up to £80 ($389) or £100 ($487) for its first week's run, depending on the character, interest, and drawing power. It is likely to have with the public. The more expensive of the exclusive films are shown for six days to make them pay, a change being made after three days in the open films which usually complete the program. An open film may be obtained for £4 ($19.47) or £5 ($24.33) upward, according to its length and interest. Most of the subjects, however, work out at 4d. (8 cents) to 4½d. (9 cents) per foot for the first run, with subsequent reduced charges, so that after a run of fourteen weeks a film is supposed to have paid for itself. Films are also accepted by renters on a commission basis, the rate being dependent on the standing of the firm, the territory covered, the character and prospects of the film, etc. It varies, according to agreement, between 10 and 25 per cent.

SWANSEA, ENGLAND

Demand for Serials of American Manufacture

Thirteen theaters in Swansea give motion picture performances with seating capacities of 300 to 1,200. Three of these can accommodate more than 1,100 persons each. The prices of admission are 6, 12, 18 and 24 cents, according to location of seats. Most of the theaters run a continuous performance from 2:30 in the afternoon to 10:30 at night, the program being repeated at 5 o'clock and again at 7:30. Serials are very popular, especially those of American manufacture. Long films, with well-known legitimate actors in popular modern plays and classical dramas, do not appeal very strongly here. The dramas that are offered must be clean and wholesome.

The majority of the pictures shown in Swansea are of American manufacture. According to the manager of one house, American films are superior to those of all other countries. He suggested, however, that when American manufacturers send films to Great Britain, they should avoid the use of American slang in the descriptive notes thrown on the screen.

Swansea's Theaters Nearly Always Crowded

The popularity of motion picture plays in this district is steadily increasing. Swansea, with a population of only 120,000, has thirteen theaters devoted to motion pictures, and these are practically always crowded.

The average rental paid in Swansea is £10 ($49) to £15 ($73) for five or six reels for three days.
IN KEEPING with the demand for productions of motion pictures that meet the requirements of a taste aroused by critical regard for photography, accuracy in scenic investiture and costuming, as well as a dramatic structure and sequence peculiarly its own, is the desire of the great picture-going public to have the music incidental to the pictorial action in accordance as nearly as possible, with the mood induced by the action. Realizing the necessity for meeting this demand, practically all the large film distributors and some of the producing companies, have trained musicians on their staff—many of them composers of incidental music, and all of them versed in the requirements of dramatic synchronization of music and action—who adapt music and cue it for each star production.

Difficulty in Composing for Films

When the spoken drama was at its zenith, the demand for incidental music gave many composers an opportunity of developing the germ of creative dramatic talent that, in many instances, developed into works of greater scope and more ambitious character. In times past the most eminent composers have given their talent to the enhancing of the works of the dramatists with appropriate music. The composer of today who is called upon to musically dramatize pictures finds himself confronted with difficulties that arise from the peculiar construction of motion pictures. The most confusing of these difficulties is the lack of continuity in action, which makes it practically impossible to continue any certain theme for longer than two or three minutes, at the most, with any consistency. A scene of a musical nature, striving to give her wayward son his free course, be followed by a riotous cafe scene, where said errant boy is disjointing himself to the strains of “Walkin' the Dog”—followed in rapid succession by a tender love scene, or, perhaps, a murder or fight, and each scene may be nothing more than a flash, or will last for half a minute at the most. Obviously, in adapting music to such spasmodic action, it is impossible to follow literally every sequence of action intelligently. The result would be a patchwork of widely contrasting themes, lacking the elements of artistic cohesiveness. Therefore, the adaptor is often compelled to compromise. Short dramatic thematic material may be used with good effect, and music in keeping with the character or action dominating any succession of scenes can sometimes be used entire.

Higher Order Music in Drama

A picture that lends itself to music of an interesting and high order, and of contrasting character, is "The Devil's Assistant," a Mutual film, in which Margarita Fischer plays the role of the innocent victim of an unscrupulous doctor who administers "dope" to bring her under his malignant influence. A church wedding, showing the ceremony and bridal procession, is followed by a scene of "Motherhood" and the pathetic scene of a baby, and that by the introduction of the Mephisto-like character of the doctor occupied in his nefarious practices. The effect of "dope" is not a subject easily pictured by a musical theme, but a rather weird "Song of Insanity" has admirably been adapted to portray the atmosphere induced by the sight of a delirious mind in the first stages of a "dope-fied." Later, when the influence of the drug takes a firm hold of its victim, causing hallucinations and fantastic figures to appear and dance wildly before the drug-crazed "fied," "The Danse Macabre" of Saint-Saëns is effective, and can be used in it entirely, for these phantoms dominate scenes lasting at least five minutes, practically without interruption. When in a delirium the victim imagines she sees Death approaching, and taking her in his bony arms, places her on a chair of repose, and proceeds to "fiddle" what more effective than the "Erl König," as妩美的，as they are seen madly riding through the night?

Must Have Unerring Dramatic Instinct

The adaptor must not only have an unerring instinct for the dramatic elements of music and extensive knowledge of the best in musical literature, but must beware of anarchisms, the unpardonable sin of the still stage. A daisy in a Civil War picture singing a modern coon song is not in keeping with the period, though the elementary characteristic is present; but a fox trot played while an old-fashioned country dauce or minuet is shown is certainly conflicting. Costume plays of the seventeenth century demand something in the rococo style, while the modern drama, with its inevitable happy ending, calls for music of a light character. Inherent in some settings is the demand for a blend of art and sentiment.

Probably the best solution would be to have special music for each picture—an individual score—but this has its drawbacks, for the public wants to hear familiar strains, and the picture-drama seldom endures long enough for the public to assimilate the new music.

The frequent use of the "cut-back," or reversion to prior action, and the "vision" which is used to indicate thoughts passing in the mind of the character, such as reminiscence of a love scene, thoughts of a mother for her lost child, etc., gives the opportunity for the use of themes reminiscently—an old trick and one used with wonderful effect by operatic writers. A striking instance of this is in Puccini's "Butterfly," where he introduces the "Humming Chorus" theme while the "Consul" is attempting to read "Pinkerton's" letter to "Butterfly." The naive simplicity and reminiscence of the theme impress more strongly than any other means could the pathos of the situation. Sometimes such methods can be used in an ironical sense.

Cites Example of Ironical Use

For instance, in "Mrs. Balfame," a Nance O'Neil picture, the brutal drunkard-husband is carousing in a barroom, paying for all the drinks, as "good fellows" always do. For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" can be used in a legitimate way here. But when he has choked his wife almost into insensibility, and staggering into his room, throws himself on the bed in a drunken stupor, "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" played pianissimo, preferably in minor, has an ironical meaning which cannot fail to impress.

The use of a distinct theme for each character is, of course, impracticable and can be made ludicrous by too frequent repetition. A misterso-pizzicato for the entrance of a burglar or detective will become monotonous and wearisome if repeated some twenty or thirty times, or whenever said burglar or detective is seen, even though he be intent on the prosecution of his chosen occupation. Characters cannot be arbitrarily "labeled" with set motifs, but when discretion is used this "leit-motif" scheme is effective. By using a few characteristic themes of contrasting mode, and applying them at tense moments where the subjects of such themes dominate, and by adapting set numbers as it were, it can be determined that continuity of action will permit, a musical setting, in many cases thoroughly adequate, can be obtained, and at least far superior to the usual haphazard manner of "anything that sounds" that prevails. For one thing the music-lovers will arise en masse and "call him blessed" who puts the "shock-absorbents" of intelligent music cues into his production of real pictures, and the philistine himself will eventually be led to better things.

We Abolish Advance Deposit System

NOTICE TO EXHIBITORS

When the system of advance deposits was introduced into our business to guarantee contracts, I announced

1. That these sums would be held in a separate Trust fund, apart from our business bank accounts, and that they would be withdrawn from time to time when earned by film rentals.

2. That a cash discount of six per cent upon the amount deposited would be allowed.

These agreements have been kept. The unearned advance deposits of the K. E. S. E. Service are deposited separate from our business funds in the Harriman National Bank of New York, the Merchants Loan & Trust Company and the Continental Commercial National Bank of Chicago.

Recognizing the justice of the Exhibitors' attitude that the advance deposit works a great hardship upon many whose funds are tied up—one exhibitor tells me that he has on deposit, scattered among various exchanges, without security, the sum of $14,000—and after consultation with the manufacturers associated with me, Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Mr. Selig of the Selig Polyscope Company, and Mr. Spoer of the Essanay Company, I take pleasure in announcing that

K. E. S. E. Will Abolish the System of Advance Deposits

No further collections will be exacted to guarantee rental contracts by Keys Service.

Funds now in our hands will be returned to their owners as soon as adjustments can be made, and current business protected. These adjustments and refunds will be made from the home office through our branches, and will require some time for the labor of accounting, but all will probably be closed out before August 1st.

It is necessary that our rental charges be protected, and I confidently look for the co-operation of exhibitors in asking payment of each rental charge before shipment of the film.

These Are The Things That Goldwyn Knew

FROM the beginning, Goldwyn had little or no trouble shaping and agreeing on the basic policy of this organization. We had certain definite knowledge on which we could work.

1. We knew that the Goldwyn policy must embody those things of which exhibitors approved.
2. We knew that exhibitors desired a staple, same policy of open bookings.
3. We knew that exhibitors demanded improved productions—an increase in the quality of pictures.
4. We knew exhibitors preferred to conduct business with us through our own branches, instead of through regional franchise middlemen.
5. And we also knew that exhibitors desired new refinements, new ideas, new skill, new stories—in fact, an entirely new type of productions.

Knowing all of these things to be desired, Goldwyn has done them. And that is all there was to the shaping of the Goldwyn policy.

Our twenty-five branches are now open in the United States and Canada and our managers are ready to discuss contracts with exhibitors.

Illinois Escapes Censorship

ILLINOIS has escaped the menace of censorship for at least two years. This was accomplished during the final hours of the recent session of the Illinois legislature, which had under consideration a bill legalizing state-wide censorship of motion pictures.

This escape from the proposition of state censorship should cause universal rejoicing throughout the trade. However—and it is a regrettable fact—it will cause disappointment in certain quarters.

The censorship question, although the recent measure has been defeated, is by no means dead in Illinois. The proposition will be revived and the industry will again be called upon to take a stand against it. It is to be hoped sincerely, that the next time the measure is under consideration the motion picture business will present a united front against it. Had this been done recently the prospect of its revival in the near future would not be so bright.

The film trade should realize that no censorship measure, however favorable on its face, is a good thing for the business. Every inch that is yielded will only encourage the proponents of censorship to demand more stringent legislation.

This is the age of the "busy-body": half of the population of America is trying to find out what the other half is doing and then proceeds in an effort to make the "other half" conform to their ideas. The only sane course for the film industry to take is to oppose rigorously all forms of censorship and demand that police regulation alone take care of the iniquitous picture.

In connection with the defeat of the censorship bill the Mutual Film Corporation is entitled to a generous modicum of praise. This company, almost alone among the big companies in the business, set themselves in a thorough, conscientious manner to the task of opposing the advance of official censorship in Illinois. The results in the matter attest to the able manner in which the campaign against the censorship menace was conducted by Mutual.

associates is of signal interest not only to patrons of the "Keys Service," but to the trade at large, for Mr. Kleine is widely known as a thorough and able student of the problem of advance deposits.

Mr. Kleine has made a conscientious study of the entire proposition and at one time considered recommending the European system of "acceptances." He has followed and studied the problem from its very inception and, consequently, the decision he has reached at this time is of great import.

Mr. Kleine fairly and squarely has recognized the injustice to exhibitors—the honest exhibitors who value their credit standing—of the old system of advance deposits and straightaway has eliminated it from his organization. His action is most commendable and should serve as a guiding light to other distributors who cherish the good-will of their patrons and recognize the abstract justice of the matter.

That Explains Everything

W E ALL lose interest at times and just plod along without any enthusiasm in our work," remarks the M. P. World, editorially.

Martin J. Quigley.

Clarence J. Caine, one of the best liked young men in the field of motion picture journalism, died last week at Sierra Madre, Cal.

With the enthusiasm of youth, Clarence Caine responded to the stern exactions of the motion picture trade with the full measure of his health and strength, and, had his life been spared, he undoubtedly would have won an important position in this trade.

After several months of failing health Clarence Caine removed to California last winter, but the struggle to regain his strength proved a losing fight and on June 21, surrounded by a number of close friends from the film world of Los Angeles, the end came. He is survived alone by his mother.

Clarence Caine at various times was on the staff of the "Exhibitors Herald," Motography and the Motion Picture Magazine. He also was with the Selig Polyscope Company in the capacity of film editor.

In the passing of Clarence Caine the film trade has lost a sterling young man who was a credit and a compliment to the trade.
M. P. THEATER OWNERS' ASSOCIATION OF ILLINOIS FORMED

Organization Launched in Chicago With 160 Theaters Represented; to Apply for M. P. E. L. Charter; Schoenstadt and Choynski Made Temporary Officers.

The new Motion Picture Theater Owners' Association of Illinois, with a provisional membership of 160 theaters, was launched in Chicago Friday, June 22.

Twenty-seven members attended the meeting in Fraternity Hall, 19 West Adams street, at which Henry Schoenstadt was made temporary chairman, and Maurice A. Choynski temporary secretary.

Mr. Schoenstadt, in business with his sons, owns and operates a chain of film theaters which span Chicago, while Choynski owns and operates two theaters on the North Side.

Fred Herrington, the national organizer from Pittsburgh, laid the preliminary plans of organization, which were followed successfully despite the fact that Herrington left Chicago before the initial organization step.

Members Donate $380

The twenty-seven members of the new association who were present donated $380 for expenses and organization purposes.

Mr. Choynski states that the association will immediately apply for a state charter in Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America during the coming week after the election of permanent officers. Also, a corporate charter will be secured under the laws of Illinois.

The committee appointed to frame by-laws and draft a constitution follows:

This committee, after being appointed by the twenty-seven theater owners, who represent eighty-three film houses in Chicago, started work on the constitution and by-laws. Just as soon as this work is completed, which will consume the major portion of three days, it is estimated, permanent officers will be elected.

Doubt on M. P. E. L. Charter

The slogan already adopted by the association is: "Open and Above Board—One for All and All for One."

While the association will apply immediately for a state charter as a branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, there is some doubt in the minds of the organizers whether this charter will be granted. However, at the meeting it was emphatically pointed out that if the national body spurns the association's application, that the new organization will operate independently.

Only bona fide theater owners will be admitted to membership in the new association. This move, it was stated at the meeting, will tend to eliminate "politics," which in the past has caused considerable dissension in the ranks of other organizations.

Exhibitors throughout the state of Illinois have signified their intention of joining the new association, which, with a membership composed exclusively of theater owners, is designed for intensive protection of theater men's interests.

Will Present Solid Front

Permissive legislation of state-wide scope, as well as local law-making which will injure business or shackle exhibitors in any way, will hereafter face a solid front of owners of theaters who will fight tenaciously to preserve their business.

One glaring need of a powerful theater owners' organization was brought to the attention of the association in Chicago this week in the form of a new license fee schedule, which was practically neglected because no organization exists at present in Illinois capable of handling the situation.

It is announced that the new association's meetings will be open to trade press representatives regardless of the import of matters under discussion.

GEORGE KLEINE ABOLISHES DEPOSIT SYSTEM; WILL RETURN $150,000 TO EXHIBITORS

Move Will Be Greeted by Theater Men as Another Step to Long-Sought Victory; Producer Follows Plan of Other Big Concerns

The George Kleine Company of Chicago is the latest concern to announce the abolition of the deposit system. In the future exhibitors using the Kleine service can select their films and will not be required to pay a deposit on advance bookings.

Will Return $150,000

The Kleine Company will return approximately $150,000 to exhibitors who have been using its service, which money has been paid by them as advance booking deposits.

This move on the part of Mr. Kleine is in keeping with the open booking plan adopted by Triangle Distributing Corporation a short time ago and the Paramount Pictures Corporation, which will drop the old system August 1.

Step Toward Victory

Mr. Kleine states that he expects within a very short time to secure the cooperation of all manufacturers in abolishing the deposit system. Exhibitors throughout the country have been fighting for some time to bring this about, and no doubt Mr. Kleine's announcement will be greeted as another step toward victory. It is an establishment of the manufacturers' faith in the word of exhibitors.

MARGUERITE CLARK IN "THE AMAZONS" TO START PARAMOUNT OPEN BOOKING AUGUST 5

Change to New Policy by Pioneer Producing Concern Offers Noted Star and Story by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero

When the Famous Players - Lasky Corporation made its announcement that August 5 would mark the inauguration of an open booking policy there was embodied in that announcement a statement to the effect that one of the first productions under this new system was to be an adaptation of Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's "The Amazons," starring Marguerite Clark.

So far-reaching was the effect of the announcement of a revolutionary change in policy by the pioneer producing and distributing concern that the full significance of the news concerning the identity of the first film was for the time being overshadowed.

J. Kaufman Directs

Joseph Kaufman, who has accomplished excellent results as a director of Famous Players productions, and who had the distinction of directing George M. Cohan's first photoplay production, "Broadway Jones," is in charge of Miss Clark's picture.

Though the spirit of the stage version of Pinero's play has been closely adhered to in the adaptation, certain minor changes have been introduced which were considered essential to the conversion of the story.

"The Amazons" concerns the remarkable history of the Marchioness of Castlejordan and her three delightful daughters, each one of whom is both a source of joy and sorrow to the marchioness. Though she loves the daughters, it is a subject of bitter anguish to her that they were girls instead of boys, and it is her obsession to make them as boyish as possible. To that end she endeavors to dress them almost exclusively in boy's clothes to instil into their feminine hearts as much of the masculine as a continued association with mannish sports is capable of accomplishing.

Gymnasium Setting

The gymnasium in the Castlejordan home furnishes the setting for some of the most interesting comic scenes in the original play. For four weeks a portion of the Famous Players studio has been given over to the huge gymnasium setting, where Miss Clark and the other members of the cast have been hard at work upon these comic and near-serious episodes.

The gymnasium incidents represent only a small portion of the comic situations which develop during the course of the story.

The escapades of Tommy (Marguerite Clark) upon her escape to London and her efforts to conceal her feminine self beneath a mannish costume, and her panic when she suddenly plunges into the limelight by an impetuous act, form other interesting episodes in the picture.

CHICAGO M. P. E. L. AND EXHIBITORS FAIL TO FRAME NEW LICENSE FEE SCHEDULE

Maurice Choynski Submits Only Plan, Which Is Called Inadequate—League Side-Stepped Issue, Says City Collector—Sub-body to Act

Lack of concerted action on the part of the theater men of Chicago has placed the matter of increasing the annual license fee entirely up to the sub-committee appointed by the license committee chairman of the Chicago city council.

Alderman James B. Bowler, chairman of the sub-body, held a meeting of his committee in the city hall on June 21, at which a readjustment of the license charges was discussed.

The sub-committee reported to the license committee that only one exhibitor, Maurice A. Choynski, who conducts two theaters on the North Side, had submitted a schedule, and the matter was referred back to Mr. Bowler’s committee with authority to draw up a table of fees to be charged which will be adopted by the license committee and submitted to the council.

Exhibitors’ League Fails

Mr. Choynski’s schedule, while appearing practical from an exhibitor’s standpoint, did not meet the approval of all of the committee men.

The Motion Picture Exhibitors’ League branch of Chicago had representatives at the various meetings in the City Hall and the president spoke at length upon the question, but the League failed to submit a table of fees which would be acceptable to the exhibitors of Chicago, although requested repeatedly to do so.

Because of the inactivity of the Chicago branch of the Exhibitors’ League and the exhibitors in general, the sub-committee now is going ahead and will prepare its own schedule of license fees which will be submitted to the license committee next week.

How Tax May Be Framed

It is intimated that under the sub-committee’s plan theaters with a seating capacity of from 100 to 300 will have to pay a license of $175 per year; those with 300 to 500 seats, $350; from 500 to 1,000 seats, $700; and those with 1,000 to 1,500 seats, $1,400. This will be at the rate of about 70 cents per seat for the larger theaters and for the smaller houses, where the admission charge is less, it will run about 58 cents per seat per year.

When the Chicago city council decided some time ago that the city would raise approximately $30,000 more through licensing the theaters, theater owners were notified that to safeguard their interests and not burden them excessively, open hearings would be held on the subject at which a license fee schedule would be drawn up suitable to all exhibitors.

The Exhibitors League branch was notified and, because it claimed an overwhelming membership of Chicago exhibitors, was requested to submit a schedule which would meet with the approval of its members.

Hopp and League Fail

Joseph Hopp, president of the Chicago branch, with a number of other exhibitors and officers, appeared at some of the initial hearings on the question, and offered ideas for framing the license fee schedule. But this official’s statement that exhibitors were unanimously in accord with this idea on the subject, brought opposition from league members.

At the time, it was declared Hopp’s plan would prove very disadvantageous to the exhibitors operating houses with small seating capacities.

George F. Lohman, deputy city collector, who was to have received schedules which the league and independent exhibitors were asked to submit, states that the league has virtually side-stepped the affair without presenting any schedule. Mr. Choynski, asserts Lohman, has made every effort in the interest of exhibitors to frame a suitable schedule, but has not had sufficient co-operation and support of other exhibitors to frame a measure which would prove adequate.

CITY IN NEW MEXICO SETS LICENSE TAX ON ADMISSION PRICE OF PICTURE THEATERS

Albuquerque, N. M.—At a meeting of the city council held last week an ordinance increasing the city tax on motion picture theaters was introduced and passed first reading. The theaters now pay an annual license of $30.50 a year. Under the new ordinance, No. 592, a graduated tax will be imposed, based on the charge of admission, as follows: Theaters charging as high as 10 cents will pay $100 a year; those charging as high as 15 cents, $200 a year, and those charging more than 15 cents, $300 a year.

GRiffith CANNOT GET BATTLE SCENES ON FRENCH FIRING LINE, HE DECLARES

Word comes from London, England, that D. W. Griffith has returned from the battle front in France, where he has been studying the possibilities of securing actual battle scenes, convinced that it is impracticable to secure the much desired war views. Only isolated incidents, such as have already appeared in news weeklies and official films, can be taken and conditions were against securing a continuous record of events of any battle.

Mr. Griffith says: “To take motion pictures of the struggle of the enemy’s trenches means having your camera in ‘No Man’s Land’ and the Germans are not sufficiently sportsmanlike to leave you alone undisturbed in your work.

“At the best, it is only possible to film snatches of a battle, and these could not be pieced together to give the public a sufficiently comprehensive idea of what a battle is like. As it is, while the camera has achieved wonders, he must remain satisfied rather than with accessories of the battle than the battle itself.

"ROSE O' PARADISE," FIRST BESSIE BARRISCAL FILM FOR PARALTA, RAPIDLY NEARS COMPLETION

Bessie Barriscale's first Paralta production, "Rose o' Paradise," is rapidly nearing completion at the Clune studios at Hollywood, Cal., which were recently acquired by the Paralta plays, Inc.

Howard Hickman, who was originally cast to play the role of Theodore King in support of Miss Barriscale, has been recast, it is announced, and will appear in the part of Lafe Grandoken, the cobbler. Norman Kaiser has been engaged and is now playing the role of Theodore King under the direction of James W. Young.

Filming Battle Scenes

"A Man's Man" is the title of the J. Warren Kerrigan play in which the popular star will appear independently under the Paralta Plays, Inc. The battle scenes of Mr. Kerrigan's play are being photographed near San Diego under the direction of Oscar Apfel.

As yet, the respective lengths of the two plays have not been determined. It is not Paralta's purpose to cut the films to any given length but will use only enough to tell the stories in complete concise form and no more.

Building Special Stage

To meet the requirements of future productions the Paralta Company is building a special indoor stage, measuring 50x200 feet, together with additional dressing room facilities and a large restaurant.

Rather than undergo the expense of leasing two separate establishments Robert T. Kane, vice president of Paralta Plays obtained an option on the Clune studios, at Hollywood, where the Barriscale and Kerrigan companies are working.

NEW ORLEANS SUED FOR $1,000 DAMAGES IN FILM THEATER CASE

Construction Work on New House Started by S. Peritz & Co. Halted After Permit Is Issued

NEW ORLEANS, La.—S. Peritz & Co. began action last week against the city for $1,000 damages and asked an injunction to prevent the city from interfering with the construction of a motion picture theater in Robert street, between St. Charles and Claiborne.

The firm obtained a permit for the erection of the theater May 10 and bought two lots. After the building had begun the council passed an ordinance forbidding the erection of a motion picture house in Robert street. The firm avers the ordinance has not yet been promulgated and its terms do not apply to them. The police, nevertheless, have stopped the work.

PARAMOUNT TO ISSUE ITS FIRST FILM SERIAL NEXT FALL, IN 30 PARTS

Will Be Published in Fifteen Episodes, Enacted by Well Known Screen Players

Paramount Pictures Corporation is the latest to enter the serial field. Announcement is made that the concern will issue a serial of thirty parts, in fifteen episodes, next September.

This is the first serial the Paramount company has issued since its inception. The picture will contain a cast of well known stars, and will be replete with thrills, it is stated.

The serial will be issued to exhibitors through a special department, established at each Paramount exchange. A big advertising and publicity campaign will be launched for the promotion of the feature, to create interest in the production, and every aid will be given exhibitors booking the picture.

OUR PLATFORM

"There is but one course to take if the exhibitors' organization is ever to attain its rightful place in the industry: there must be a thorough housecleaning of men and methods and the old parasitical system of making the league a poaching ground for a few selfish individuals must be forever abandoned."

Why Is Circulation?

A Talk to Advertisers

Circulation has been discussed a great deal during the past few years, and the technical side of circulation analysis has been studied from every angle.

How much, how secured and where located are the big questions which are asked of the publisher by the advertiser, with various subdivisions of the inquiries as modified by individual interest.

The biggest question of all is seldom asked. Why is circulation?

The average space-buyer never stops to consider the one vital fact about circulation—that it is the definite result of a definite creation, editorial quality.

Editorial appeal pulls circulation of which that appeal is the index. The higher the appeal and the stronger its character, the better and more desirable the circulation is going to be.

The value of a trade publication lies in the character of its circulation appeal.

If it has built up a distribution based on specific editorial character, the advertiser who goes into a publication of this kind knows in advance whether the interest is live or passive.

The advertiser who puts quantity first, and who reads circulation statements so closely that he has no time to study the publications themselves, has got away entirely from the fundamental fact back of all circulation, he has forgot to ask himself, "Why?"

A page by page analysis of the "Exhibitors Herald" proves that it has a vital and commanding readers' appeal.
MACK SENNERT OFFICIALLY QUITS TRIANGLE; HART SAYS HE WILL SEVER CONNECTIONS

Western Character Star Will Follow Ince, According to Contract, Is Word; Will Use Fairbanks' Angle; Concern Threatens Legal Battle

Mack Sennett, the producer of hundreds of Keystone comedies published through Triangle, has severed his connection with the Triangle Film Corporation. Papers effecting his release were signed Friday, June 22, and it is thought Mr. Sennett contemplates joining one of the other large companies immediately. The Triangle company will retain the Keystone trade mark, and H. O. Davis, general manager of the corporation, will hereafter handle the Keystone comedies, it is stated.

Hart to Quit Triangle

The releasing of Mr. Sennett was but one of the important developments in Triangle's affairs during the week. It is now rumored that William S. Hart, the noted delineator of western roles, has also served notice on the concern that he will no longer appear in Triangle productions.

H. O. Davis of Triangle asserts, however, that Mr. Hart cannot break his contract with his organization, notwithstanding Mr. Ince's retirement as supervising director. The Triangle company will, it is said, institute legal proceedings should Mr. Hart attempt to produce pictures for other than the Triangle program.

Mr. Hart informed the Triangle heads Wednesday, June 20, that he intended to break with them, following the signing of the papers which released Thomas H. Ince. He states that there are several clauses in his contract, which he signed two months ago, indicating that as soon as Mr. Ince left Culver City as supervising director, he could terminate his contract. Mr. Hart has recently directed his own pictures under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince.

Seen as Fairbanks Parallel

William S. Hart contends that his contract is similar to that of Douglas Fairbanks, who left Triangle to produce for himself, after D. W. Griffith left the organization.

FRANK HALL USES IMPRESSIVE STAGE SET, EXACT COPY OF FILM SCENE, FOR "BAR SINISTER"

Plunged Audiences Into Drama's Atmosphere Before First Scene of Play Is Flashed on Screen; Used in New York and Pittsburgh Theaters

Elaborate stage sets are gradually making their appearance in connection with the showing of special pictures and opera theaters an excellent opportunity to give their patrons something new from time to time in the line of pleasing decoration as a change for the eye. Frank Hall took advantage of scenic effects when he presented "The Bar Sinister" at the Broadway Theater, New York, and also during its run at the Pitt Theater, Pittsburgh. He plunged his audiences into the atmosphere of the drama even before the first scene of the picture was thrown on the screen.

"The Bar Sinister" stage set is an exact copy of scenes from the picture. A large Southern home is in the foreground with a cabin down stage left, up stage right is the turpentine "still" which plays an important part in the story. Colored singers occupy about five minutes between the finishing of the overture and the starting of the picture, and as the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home" die out, the main title is thrown upon the front of the house. The two center pillars of the house are then drawn up into the flies and the screen lowered until it centers in the handsome frame formed by the other two pillars, the porch and the roof of the mansion.

SPECIAL FEATURE STAGE SET FOR "THE BAR SINISTER"

On the other hand, H. O. Davis states a clause in Mr. Hart's contract merely says: "As long as he is supervising director," which clause was inserted to prevent a possibility of one with less ability than Thomas H. Ince directing Hart.

There apparently will be another legal battle as soon as the portrayer of western characters attempts to produce his own pictures, which it is stated he intends to do. Both Ince and Hart have been negotiating with one of the other large producers, it is said, but neither has signed as yet.

It is not known what Mr. Sennett will do, but it is more than likely he will also sign with one of the big producing concerns this week.
“THE LOST EXPRESS,” WITH HELEN HOLMES, NEW SIGNAL, IS IN PRODUCTION

J. P. McGowan Has First Episode of New Photonovel Well Under Way; Will Contain Fifteen Parts with Well-Known Cast

The Helen Holmes Company is well along with its production of the first episode of its new Signal-Mutual serial, “The Lost Express.”

The production is to be made in fifteen two-reel episodes, making it the same length as the three serials already put out by the same company featuring Helen Holmes. Production is going forward under the direction of J. P. McGowan with practically the same cast as that of “The Railroad Raiders” appearing in support of Miss Holmes. Leo D. Maloney, Thomas G. Lingham, William Brunton, Will Chapman, W. A. Behrens and Andrew Waldron remain of those who played important roles in the last chapter play.

F. B. Bennett Is Author

The story from which the films are being made was written by Frederick Balfour Bennett, one of the best-known magazine and newspaper contributors of this country.

Mr. Bennett is a graduate of the University of Christianity, in which city he resided for a number of years. It was there that he met and became the protege of two of Norway’s greatest men of recent years, Ibsen and Grieg. With his combined knowledge of science, travel and the drama stirred into the detailed plot of the present Signal serial, it is predicted that this will be the most unusual serial the company has thus far attempted.

Has Railroad Background

The photonovel has a railroad background, as has been true of all Signal productions, but there is also introduced a touch of mystery which promises to hold the interest of the spectator from the first reel through to the solution in the last half of the fifteenth installment.

The production will be published in fifteen two-reel chapters through the Mutual exchanges. Thus far, however, no date has been set for the appearance of the first of them.

Star Has Novel Role of Scrubwoman Who Becomes Bird of Paradise to Educate Son

“The Love That Lives,” a drama by Scudder Middleton, has been completed by the Famous Players studio with Pauline Frederick in the stellar role, and will be published by Paramount on July 9. The picture, which shows Pauline Frederick in the novel role of a scrubwoman was produced under the direction of Robert G. Vibiana.

In the opening scenes Miss Frederick is nothing more or less than a scrubwoman working in an office building as a common drudge. Later she becomes a bird of paradise in order to give her son an education, and then reverts to the pail and mop in her later years when she is broken down in health and in spirit, and is a white haired old woman struggling to keep body and soul together.
CHICAGO PREMIRE OF “GARDEN OF ALLAH”
AT COLONIAL THEATER SET FOR JULY 22

Selig Film, Considered One of Greatest Artistic Successes, Will Be Presented by Allen Film Corporation on Elaborate Scale

“The Garden of Allah,” considered by many authorities as one of the greatest of motion picture productions, will have its Chicago premiere for two weeks beginning July 22, in the Colonial theater, Chicago. The Edmund M. Allen Film Corporation will present Robert Hichens’ love romance on an elaborate scale.

Not only has the Edmund M. Allen Corporation announced the Chicago premiere of “The Garden of Allah,” but the officers have also announced the acquisition of new territorial rights. This Company, one of the latest concerns in the motion picture field, started with the purchase of Michigan and Illinois rights for “The Garden of Allah.” However, a deal was recently completed with William N. Selig by which the Allen Company acquires rights to “The Garden of Allah” for the states of Michigan, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas.

Elaborate Chicago Premiere

The Company announces that no expense will be spared in making the Chicago premiere of “The Garden of Allah” the very last word in motion picture presentation. Elaborate billing, newspaper advertising and theater decorations will be included in the plans now nearing completion.

It is comedy-drama of the type which made Mr. Washburn so popular in his Skinner pictures. The star is shown as a beloved vagabond, who takes a 1,000 to 1 chance on a fortune left by his eccentric uncle, and wins out. The picture introduces a three-legged dog for some decidedly novel action. It was produced by Arthur Berthelet.

STORY OF BEATING ILLINOIS STATE CENSOR BILL

Motion picture censorship by the state of Illinois was beaten in the closing fifteen minutes of the Fiftieth general assembly at Springfield Sunday morning, June 17, after a sensational fight lasting throughout the previous week, in which various diverse interests were involved, but in which a capable lobby, in which the Mutual Film Corporation was well represented, held the final trump cards.

The censorship bill, introduced by Representative Guy Gurnsey at the behest of the Chicago Political Equality League, represented in the fight before senate and house committees by Mrs. Guy Blanchard and a strong lobby, was passed in the house by a vote of 57 to 48. This was really the beginning of the hard struggle on the part of the film men and Arthur James Pegler, the Mutual representative, who were eventually successful.

The contest for effective representation on the floors of both houses continued throughout Saturday night, June 16, and the final announcement of Speaker Dave Shanahan that the bill had died in the joint conference committee was not made until 7:45 Sunday morning, when a disheveled band of legislators stood up in the house waiting for the final gavel.

Story of Political Intrigue

The story of what happened and how it happened has not been told in the daily press. It is a fascinating story of political intrigue skillfully diverted by the motion picture interests to forestall one of the most vicious measures ever proposed.

The Gurnsey bill as originally passed provided for the establishment of a state censorship board with one head censor as court of last resort, and such sub-censors as he might see fit to appoint, whose business it would be to censor all motion pictures for publication in Illinois.

This did not suit the book of the Funkhouser contingent, representing the Chicago Board of Censors, of which Major M. L. C. Funkhouser is the head. Senator Samuel A. Etleson, Chicago's corporation counsel, was on the job to fight for the Funkhouser regime, and he and his friends rallied to the support of the Chicago administration in both houses. But the question was not to beat the bill which had already passed the house.

Amendments Death Strokes

On the principle that there are more ways of skinning a cat than beginning at the nose, Senators Etleson and Barbour and others had it referred to a subcommittee, where they attacked it from the rear by tacking on a list of amendments.

The amendments were adopted by the committee and later by the senate after a fight on the floor in which Senator Walter Manny of Mt. Sterling made a vigorous speech against all forms of censorship, and found support as well as opposition.

What these amendments meant to the motion picture producer and exhibitor it is easy to realize. To be sure, the Chicago censorship men had gained their objective, which was to save the job of Major Funkhouser, but the result, had the amended bill been adopted, would have been to compel the payment of an additional censorship fee on every film exhibited to scores of censorship boards throughout the state. The terms of the amended bill were prohibitive.

ART DRAMAS RECEIVES
14,000 TRADE MARKS;
ELIMINATE ALL BUT 10

Remaining Designs in Contest May Be Submitted to Trade Paper
Readers to Pick Best

Although more than two weeks have elapsed since the closing of Art Dramas Trade Mark Contest, in which fourteen thousand answers were received, no final decision has yet been arrived at by the committee of judges.

This committee has succeeded in eliminating all but ten of the designs submitted, and these now are in the hands of the board of directors, so it is improbable that the decision will be delayed longer.

There were at least a hundred of the designs which were so good as to be almost equal in merit, and much discussion was held before eliminating any one of them. The others were as a rule quite worthless, and while it was only a slight task to select the best hundred, it has taken two weeks to eliminate ninety of these.

The ten remaining designs are all original, simple and distinctive, and any one of them would make an acceptable trade mark. In case the judges are unable to arrive at the decision within the week, the ten may be submitted to the readers of the trade papers, who will be asked to vote on the matter.

BIGGEST AND BEST MARKET IN HISTORY OF FILM INDUSTRY SEEN BY FRANK HALL

Shares Belief of Many Financial Experts Country Is Entering Era of Unprecedented Prosperity; Condition Reflected in State Rights Trade

That the state rights market is reflecting the beginning of a tremendous business boom is the opinion of Frank Hall, who is closing contracts with buyers of territorial rights for the special Edgar Lewis production, "The Bar Sinister," and the A. H. Jacobs Photoplays, Inc., Jane Grey feature "Her Fighting Chance."

"When the country decided upon conscription" said Mr. Hall in talking over conditions of the market, "a sudden check was noticed in the closing of contracts for territory. A spirit of indecision seemed to be prevalent for a short time, but it was really remarkable how quickly business settled back into its usual channels and buyers became even more active than before the slump.

Sees Big Business

Judging from the live interest now being shown in the disposition of territory for "The Bar Sinister" and "Her Fighting Chance," the independent exchanges of the country are equipped to take care of a large number of new state rights pictures and are preparing for a strenuous midsummer drive for business. While pictures with a special advertising angle seem to appeal to buyers most strongly, producers making all high class features should have little trouble selling them at a fair profit.

"I share the belief of many of our leading financial experts that this country is entering upon an era of unprecedented prosperity and since the show business is one of the first to profit by good times, it is natural that motion picture men should be preparing for a rich harvest about to be reaped.

"With everybody working and a great amount of money in circulation it is a foregone conclusion that the capacity of our theaters will be inadequate to hold the crowds seeking relaxation and amusement. Exchanges will quickly profit by the prosperity of the theaters and the large demand for good pictures will keep the state rights buyers continually on the alert for new ones.

"With this condition in mind, many successful exchange men are preparing for a marked increase in business and are therefore showing an interest in state rights offerings which is exceptional for this season of the year."

SENSEIN FILM FOR 1918, IN SCENARIO, IS DONE BY NELL SHIPMAN

Author-Player Returns to U. S. from West Indies with Big Story Material for Forthcoming Film

Nell Shipman, author and star of a score of screen dramas, has just returned from the West Indies where she has been preparing the manuscript of what will be one of the biggest screen sensations of 1918, it is said.

She is now sojourning in California, but expects to return to New York very shortly to personally direct and supervise her story. It is safe to say that no other woman in the industry has achieved the marked success in such widely divergent fields that she has.

JANE GREY, THE STAR IN "HER FIGHTING CHANCE"

MISS NELL SHIPMAN
(Williamson Brothers)

Following her successful work with Greater Vitagraph, Fox and Lasky productions, she received many offers to continue her work before the camera, but the lure of writing drew her to the West Indies which proved to be a most fertile field for material for book, stage and screen.

Activities do not start upon her big picture until September, when she sails once more for the West Indies.

MUTUAL ISSUES PRESS SHEETS WITH AIDS FOR LATEST FEATURE FILMS

JUNE ELVIDGE MADE WORLD STAR OF FIRST RANK
BY BRADY; LEW FIELDS NOW WORKS ON NEW FILM

Director-General Is Retitling Four Productions Completed and Ready for Publication on Program; Play's Name Seen as Big Factor

June Elvidge, who has been appearing in World-Pictures Brady-made now advances to the front rank of fixed stars in this organization. A new contract between the World Corporation and Miss Elvidge to this effect, covering a term of years, was executed last Tuesday.

The rise of Miss Elvidge as a favorite of the screen has been extremely rapid and steady. It is only a few months since she was a comparatively unknown actress on the Winter Garden stage, where she occupied the position of understudy for Jose Collins, and played her part "on the road."

Lew Fields Again at Work

Another item of interest from the World-Pictures studios is that Lew Fields again is working under the Brady direction, this time in a photoplay the identity of which is not to be disclosed just now. The great success of "The Man Who Stood Still," produced by World, is the working cause for this renewal of relations.

It was in this comedy that Mr. Fields was enabled to demonstrate that he possessed other qualities as an actor than those of a farceur pure and simple, for his characterization of the soft-hearted old jeweler gained for him the appellation, "the David Warfield of the screen." It was Brady foresight that influenced the selection of Fields for the big part in "The Man Who Stood Still" and for this reason the actor is very happy indeed to be back again in the World's fold.

Brady Retitling Films

Just at present Mr. Brady is again demonstrating his firm belief in the proposition that a photoplay well named has more than half won the battle of popularity.

This demonstration has taken the form of changing the titles of four of the completed Brady-mades awaiting publication.

The picture drama formerly called "Partnership" has had its title shifted to "The Iron Ring." Arthur Ashley, Gerda Holmes and Edward Langford are the featured players. The play originally named "The Waster," starring Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge, with Muriel Ostriche a prominent member of the company, is now titled "Youth."

"Dandy Dick," directed in person by Mr. Brady, will reach the public under the final name "The Marriage Market," with a cast composed of Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge, Arthur Ashley and other World-Pictures actors and actresses. Ethel Clayton's picture play produced under the working title, "Chasms," now is known as "Souls Adrift," and the leading male part is played by Milton Sills.

SELIG FEATURE FILM FROM TERHUNE NOVEL SOON WILL BE READY

George Fawcett, Star in Stage Play of "Caleb Conover, Railroader," Has Lead in Screen Version

William N. Selig announces that the feature film taken from Alfred Payson Terhune's novel, "Caleb Conover, Railroader," soon will be ready for presentation. Colin Campbell directed the production and Gilson Willets wrote the film version of the story. George Fawcett, who starred in the play "Caleb Conover," is the star, and others in the cast are: Thomas Santschi, Fritz Brunette, Frank Elliott, William Robert Daly and Goldie Coldwell.

The Selig Company claims that the interior sets for this picture are among the most magnificent seen on the screen the past year. In some of the scenes hundreds of persons are utilized. The scenes of the political convention are said to be exciting and elaborate.

William Robert Daly delineates the character of Billy Shevlin, trusted lieutenant to the "Boss."

H. A. SPANUTH IN N. Y. TO ENGAGE STAFF FOR COMMONWEALTH FILM

H. A. Spanuth, president of the Commonwealth Pictures Corporation of Chicago, left for New York, June 26, where he will engage a director, technical man and camera man. It is also his purpose to fill in part of his cast for the first Commonwealth picture, featuring Elsie Mackay, which will be produced in Chicago.
George Loane Tucker presents

"I BELIEVE"

George Loane Tucker photodrama; eight parts

As a whole: Impressive Story: Praiseworthy Cast: Meritorious
Settings: Suitable
Photography: Fine

To George Loane Tucker, author and director of "I Believe," a wreath of laurels should be presented. The story deals with a gigantic subject—that of God and His subjects. Mr. Tucker tears holes with a vengeance into the theories of such unbelievers as Nietzsche and Haeckel and surely proves to scoffers that they cannot exist without the soul which only God can create. Mr. Tucker further proves his capabilities in handling this weighty subject by adding a lot of comedy touches. His fights, accident scenes, and his characterizations, all are more than commendable.

"THE CAR OF CHANCE"

Bluebird comedy; five parts; published July 9

As a whole: Entertaining
Story: Amusing
Star: Pleading Support: Good Settings: Typical
Photography: Clear

Of that cheerfulness that has become so appealing and delightful to spectators is "The Car of Chance," with which exhibitors should find it a very easy matter to fill their houses.

The story is of the same entertaining type that has been found in previous Farnum productions. The subtitles are clever and amusing, and as a whole the film has been handled in a manner which will soon prove entertaining to any class of audiences.

Supporting Mr. Farnum are Brownie Vernon, Helen Wright, Molly Malone, Mark Fenton, H. J. Bennett, Walter Belasco and Harry De More. The story is by Waldemar Young, William Worthington directed.

The story: John Baird has provided in his will that unless his son Arnold settles down and takes life seriously he shall receive nothing but a touring car and $500, which money shall be used for nothing but gasoline and repairs for the car. Arnold loves Ruth Bennett, the daughter of the president of the traction company, but because of his lack of wealth Bennett will not allow Arnold to call on Ruth.

The street car men strike because Bennett will not increase their salary. As revenge Arnold forms a company providing machines for taking the people to and fro. He makes gains of wealth, while the car company makes nothing. Finally Bennett is willing to compromise and consents to the marriage of Ruth and Arnold.

Valeska Suratt in

"THE SLAVE"

Fox drama; five parts; published June 3

As a whole: A poor feature
Star: Disjointed
Support: Poses in hats and costumes Settings: Fine
Photography: Good

How to live sinless yet happy on $8 per week, is Valeska Suratt's great problem in "The Slave," her latest Fox vehicle. The picture might also be called "The Shopgirl's Dream," as this old, slipshod manner of telling the story is used. Valeska wears many hats and striking costumes, striped ones and spotted, white ones and black, and always a bunch of pure white lilies repose in her corsage. The picture is so jumpy and disconnected it was hard for the audience at the Boston Theater, Chicago, to fathom the plot and many walked away before the film ended. It was directed and written by William Nigh. Good photography abounds, but it is not a story for children.

The story: Caroline (Valeska Suratt) works in a hairdressing parlor. A wealthy citizen, known as Moneybags, falls in love with her, takes her home in his auto and proposes on the curb. Caroline falls asleep and has a most remarkable dream, a regular nightmare in fact, of marrying the man who proves to be very penurious and locks her up in his mansion. He dies finally and Valeska starts out to have a good time on his money. She sees the folly of her ways, however. She wakes up from her dream, turns down the wealthy man's offer of marriage and decides to wait "eight or nine years" for the return of her poor but honest young man from the west.

Antonio Moreno, Belle Bruce in

"A SON OF THE HILLS"

Vitagraph Blue Ribbon drama; five parts; published June 25

As a whole: tiresome
Story: Commonplace Star: Fair Cast: Fair
Settings: Suitable
Photography: Poor

"A Son of the Hills" is a story adapted by Joseph F. Poland from the novel of Harriet T. Comstock. It was directed by Harry Davenport. It is a rural drama with a hackneyed theme, poorly directed and only fairly well acted. Many noble sentiments are palely indicated, but the story proves nothing, offers no lesson, and hardly merits the attempt to entertain. There are too many loose ends to the plot. The cast surrounding Mr. Moreno and Miss Bruce is made up largely of people not suited to the roles in which they are cast.

The story: Sandy Morley runs away from his home in the south, to acquire an education, leaving behind his irate stepmother and his sweetheart, Cynthia Starr. He meets John Markham, a wealthy northerner, in search of a factory site, and goes to work in Markham's factory in the north. The boy works for a year and is sent to college, graduating with honors. He is dispatched south to superintend the building of a modern factory in his home town. In the meantime Cynthia has turned to Lansing Hartford, and while out for a drive, they are caught in a storm and stay all night in a cabin. Fearing the offer of marriage which Lansing convinces her will follow, she consents to marry him. When Sandy learns of their marriage he compels Lansing to promise not to exercise his right as a husband until Cynthia agrees. The sudden appearance of another woman whom Lansing had met during his college days, with a baby, disillusioned Cynthia and she marries Sandy after securing a divorce from her husband.

"THE MAN WHO WAS AFRAID"

Essanay-K-E-S-E drama; five parts; published July 2

As a whole: Good feature
Story: Interesting
Star: Splendid Support: Fine
Settings: Well selected
Photography: Clear

Although there have been many war subjects on the market, "The Man Who Was Afraid" presents a war story from a different angle—one that should please theater patrons.

The story is adapted from one published in the Saturday Evening Post by Mary Brecht Pulver. The direction is by Fred Wright, who has handled the various situations splendidly. The story of the film follows that of the Post tale very closely and Miss Pulver's story, visualized, makes an entertaining feature.

A SITUATION IN "THE MAN WHO WAS AFRAID," FEATURING BRYANT WASHBURN (Essanay-K-E-S-E)

Bryant Washburn's pantomime brilliance is given a wide range and his handling of the role of weakening and slacker who becomes a strong, brave man, is done with finesse. A new lead in the person of Margaret Watts gives Mr. Washburn capable support. Ernest Maupain as a National Guard Colonel is splendid. And Frankie Raymond as the mother who has taught her son to fear war is well cast.

The story: Mrs. Clune has made of her son a weakling by instilling into his mind fear of war. This action has caused Benton to become a slacker and through this he loses the love of Elsie Revere. Tortured by the jeers of the other soldiers, Benton rushes from his mother and joins the troops on their way to the Mexican border. With the enemy advancing on every side, Clune's regiment is about to be driven back. Help must be secured and the only means is for someone to ride around the enemy's lines to another camp. Clune braves the danger and comes out victorious. The enemy is annihilated and Clune becomes the hero of the hour. Through his bravery he again wins the love of Elsie.

A slender story, prefaced with pictures and remarks by John Ruskin, and containing considerable padding is "The Greatest Power." The well known stage star plays but a small part in this romance of a laboratory; William Davison, Harry Northrup and Frank Courier putting most of the action into the piece. It deals with the discovery of a wonderful explosive which a young man desires to publish to all nations, and a gang of well-dressed crooks who plan to steal the formula. It is an old plot, bolstered up with pictures of Becky Sharp and the stars and stripes. In fact, it is a very ordinary feature, depending upon the star's name alone to draw.

The story: Miriam Monroe dabbles in chemistry to discover a cure for cancer. Simultaneously, John Conrad discovers a high explosive, but lacks funds to further his investigations. They are introduced and Miriam gives up the cancer cure to help John. Miriam's father, who is interested in a large factory, and his board of directors back John. They make a test of the explosive by blowing up a village. Miriam wants to give the secret to the United States, but John refuses. Spies attempt to steal the formula, and John becoming incensed, grants Miriam's request to turn it over to the government which assures the latter of complete victory over the enemy.

Olive Thomas' winsome smile won the hearts of Covent Garden (Chicago) audiences, where "Madcap Madge" was shown Sunday, June 24. Not in a long time has a more delightful little farce-comedy been shown on the screen. The vivacious ex-Ziegfeld "Follies" star captivated everybody and the slight story moved along swiftly and joyfully and literally convulsed the audience.

AN AMUSING SCENE FROM "MADCAP MADGE," FEATURING OLIVE THOMAS (Kay Bee-Triangle)

Director Raymond B. West has skilfully handled the excellent company surrounding Miss Thomas, and the many beautiful scenes representing Palm Beach appeal to the eye throughout.

The story: Mrs. Flower is anxious to have her daughter Julia marry a man of wealth and prominence. They go to Palm Beach and commence a diligent search for an Englishman traveling incognito. In the meantime Julia's younger sister, Madge, is expelled from boarding school for several capers, and she goes to Palm Beach, where she is kept in short dresses and very much in the background. How she meets a young man who eventually saves her father from ruin, and how Julia marries another stalwart young American, after ignoring the real Earl of Lardsdale, whom she has set out to capture, make a highly interesting and pleasing story.

Number 7 of the Selig-World Library is an interesting offering. The incidents have been assembled with a view to entertaining as well as educational values.

Topics handled in an interesting manner are the shops of Siam, showing the manufacture of shoes, parasols and lanterns; also the British convict ship Success, which played an important part in the war of 1812, is shown. The various forms of torture used to inflict punishment on prisoners are all shown. Tigers and the like, as well as a fight between a tiger and a hyena and a tiger and a wild boar brings this interesting reel to an end.

“THE GARDEN OF ALLIE”
Follies of the Week-Titan Picture Corporation travesties

Through the Titan Pictures Corporation the American Relief Fund will raise money to purchase tobacco and necessities for the boys at the front. One reel travesties are being produced by the Follies of the Week company under the direction of Rex Weber.

The travesties have been handled in a humorous strain. They are exceedingly clean and should make a fitting addition to any program.

There are many points to these pictures that can be advertised by exhibitors which should tend to interest spectators. The players appearing in these films are all prominent members of speaking stage productions. Earnest Truex, Julia Mills, Charles Grapewinn, Charlotte, the noted skater, and Raynmund Hitchcock are among some of the stars.

Rex Weber is devising the stories as well as directing the pictures. His success can be seen in the first two productions, “The Garden of Allie” featuring Mr. and Mrs. Truex and their two children, and the “Hawaiidiot,” featuring Charles Grapewinn and Gretchen Sherman.

“The Garden of Allie” is a humorous story of how Allie Smithers decides to raise vegetables to overcome the H. C. of L. The only thing he succeeds in raising is one lone bush which he immediately surrounds with a fence and tenderly nurses. His efforts at gardening being unsuccessful, he lays in a store of canned vegetables.

“Hawaiidiot” tells of a man who has the Hawaii craze. His actions, entertainments and foods are all Hawaiian flavored. His wife decides to give him all the Hawaiian atmosphere he can stand, and so has palm trees brought into her home and the floor strewn with sand. She garbs herself in the costume of a Hawaiian maiden and takes ukulele lessons as well as lessons in Hawaiian dancing. The atmosphere proves too much for the “Hawaiidiot” and he decides that America is good enough for him.

This last mentioned production is really better than the first and can stand on its merits. And when one considers that the Truex travesty was made in four and one-half hours, its merits will stand out even better.

The story: Agnes Carlson, because she allows curiosity to govern her life, gets into all sorts of trouble. One day in her ramblings, she ignites some chemical and the explosion blinds her. An operation is the only thing which will save her. Her father, who has gambled away all his money, is driven from the home by the mother. When the mother realizes the awfulness of her child’s blindness, she is about to sell herself to Carlson’s former employer, when Carlson returns with enough money to pay for the child’s operation.

“The Masked Heart” is an interesting feature with a well handled story and should appeal to all audiences. The work of William Russell is especially good. So with a production good as a whole, well directed and a strong star, exhibitors should find this a valuable box office feature.

ONE OF BIG SCENES IN “THE MASKED HEART,” WILLIAM RUSSELL’S LATEST VEHICLE (American-Mutual)

A new vampire in the person of Kathleen Kirkham makes her debut in this Russell production, and she apparently has all the qualifications of a real vampire. She, no doubt, will win the hatred of audiences. Francesca Billington offers Mr. Russell her usual good support. William Conklin and Ashton Dearholt do justice to their roles. Edward Sloman is responsible for the excellent direction.

The story: Philip Greycourt, a bored society man, meets Helene Villiers, the wife of John Villiers, and becomes infatuated with her. At the Villiers country home, Philip visits Mrs. Villiers in her sitting room, and her husband, returning unexpectedly, and seeing their shadows on the window shade, rushes up to the room.

Philip flees into another room with Catherine, the stepdaughter of Helene. When Villiers finds Philip in Catherine’s room he forces him to marry Catherine. Catherine, who has come to love Philip, is delighted and after the marriage is very happy. Before long Philip finds himself forgetting Helene and loving his wife.

John Villiers dies suddenly and Helene comes to visit the Greycourts to awaken the flame of Philip’s infatuation. When she finds that she is not successful, she tells Catherine that Philip merely married her to save her, Helene. Catherine, not wishing to stand between Philip and happiness, leaves. However, Philip follows and they are happily reconciled.

Billy West in "Cupid's Rival"

Lively

The story: Billy is the janitor of a studio apartment. He is ordered by Hyfligher, a rich artist in the building, to bring his breakfast to him. Residing in an adjoining studio is Daub, a poor artist. Daub paints the picture of a bouff for the landlord in lieu of the rent. Daub sees his sweetheart Ethel entering the studio of Hyfligher. He is afraid she may find the room in the apartment and assume he is the head of the rich artist. Daub seizes a painting of Ethel and smashes Hyfligher on the head with it. Hyfligher is distracted, for the day of the exhibition of the painting is near. Meanwhile, Mike, the elevator boy, is having a mouse running through the building and the chase leads him into Daub's studio, where the mouse runs up the side of the elevator car. Mike has a club with which he attempts to hit the mouse, but he misses and hits the portrait, tearing it. He is horrified at what he has done.

Daub enters and is heart-broken. Mike scours the idea of dressing up as the landlord and taking his place in the frame. At the exhibition the people are delighted with the paintings and think that they are real. Billy ends up in the subject of much mystery when it is discovered that his enemies, Mike's sitting in the frame, is dressed himself in a suit and hen the chase begins. The guests finally catch Billy and note out to him a just punishment.

Mysterious Miss Terry," starring is first film for Paramount's new "Star Series"

BILLY BURKE

"The Mysterious Miss Terry," an adaptation of Gelett Burgess' story, starring Billy Burke, has been completed at the Famous Players studio under the direction of J. Searle Dawley and is to be the first of Billie Burke's productions to be issued by Paramount under the new "Star Series" of selective films.

As the title indicates, "The Mysterious Miss Terry" is an adventure story dealing with the experiences of a young society girl who is bored with the circumstances that have surrounded her all her life and decides to take matters into her own hands by dropping out of society and living in a boarding house. She is known merely as Miss Terry and is the subject of much mystery to the other boarders because of her gentle insistance upon keeping her personal affairs to herself despite her keen interest in their fortunes.

One of the first incidents which occurs in the story is the robbing of a deserted city home by this girl of mystery. Her delightful personality arouses the keen interest of three young bachelors at the boarding house whose rivalry for her affection is another source of interest in the story.

When Miss Terry becomes a clerk in a hardware store and is again involved in the robbery of the store, the mystery concerning her identity becomes unfathomable. The cast which has been assembled in support of Miss Burke includes Thomas Meighan, Walter Hiers, Gerald O. Smith, George A. Wright and Bessie Lear.

Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge in

"THE PRICE OF PRIDE"

World drama; five parts; published June 2

A drama that will without doubt appeal to the greater majority of motion picture patrons will be found in "The Price of Pride." Exhibitors should find it a good box office attraction, since it has been well handled and the story is one of marital entanglements which are always more or less interesting.

Carlyle Blackwell, in the dual role of half-brothers, present two distinct characters in the young man who has been well reared and who is a successful mining engineer, and the young train robber who has had no training nor any mother love to guide him. June Elvidge, as the mother of the train robber, does some good work. Other members of the cast, including Frank Mills, Evelyn Greetly, George MacQuarrie, Charles Charles and Pinia Nesbit, are good. The story is by Milton Noble.

The story: Nan Westland loves Jeffrey Black but Jeffrey loves Madge, his wife, and has no thought of Nan. One evening Madge finds Nan kissing Jeffrey and she orders both from her home. Jeffrey goes west and Nan accompanies him. A little son is born and Nan begs Jeffrey to divorce Madge and marry her for the sake of the son, but Jeffrey refuses.

The son of Madge, grown up, becomes a successful mining engineer. The son of Nan, whom Nan deserted to marry a man she learned to love, becomes a train robber. There is a striking resemblance between the two young men and when William holds up the train on which David's sweetheart is en route, Kathleen believes the robber to be David, and when David meets her at the train she will have nothing to do with him.

David is arrested as the train robber, and William, the real culprit endeavors to escape. He is fatally shot and as death draws near, he confesses to the crime. Kathleen begs David's forgiveness.

“Trials and Tribulations” is an entertaining and humorous offering that should please most picture patrons. It will be published on the General Film program.

A SCENE FROM "TRIALS AND TRIBULATIONS," FEATURING VIVIAN REED AND GEORGE FAWCETT

George Fawcett is well cast and should win the approval and admiration of audiences. Vivian Reed offers him good support.

The story: Father does not approve of his daughter marrying the man of her choice, so the young couple decide to elope. Now, father, who is a widower, is also planning to elope with a young woman of whom daughter does not approve. Complications arise when they both arrive at the house of the minister and after much discussion the minister performs a double ceremony.

MASTER DRAMA FEATURES RECEIVES INQUIRIES FOR STATE RIGHTS AFTER SHOWING OF "WHO'S YOUR NEIGHBOR?"

The Master Drama Features, Inc., announces a large number of inquiries from state rights purchasers after the successful private showing of their moral propaganda spectacle, “Who’s Your Neighbor?” last week before an invited audience at the Broadway Theater, New York City.

Arrangements are under way for its presentation in a New York theater, announcement of which will be made in the near future.

“We have felt all along that in presenting a subject such as contained in this production,” said one of the officials, “that we have something that will not only entertain the motion picture patrons, but will also make them think in ‘Who’s Your Neighbor?’ It has been a great pleasure to us to learn of the encouraging manner in which this production has been received by the motion picture critics, most of whom have acknowledged this production of exceptional value, not only for the state rights exhibitor, but also for the moral that it teaches.”

Philadelphia.—The motion picture theater at 425 South street known as the Model has been sold by Max Deutsch to William Cohen.
Leading psychologists and other authorities on the subject are responsible for some astonishing deductions which can be made relative to the motion picture industry, what part it is playing and will play in the educational development of the younger generation.

Prior to the advent of motion pictures into his daily life, the short-trousered youngster was absorbed in story books of fact and fiction, which kept his imagination active and his brain busy. The youngster's liking for books developed him along wholesome lines, and at the age of twenty-one the average boy, or girl, has reached a point of fairly good knowledge of the best authors and their works.

Now, however, the motion picture theater has thoroughly insnared the same youngster, and he or she finds little time to read books. Figures show that a far smaller percentage of boys and girls today possess public library cards than two decades ago, before the motion picture became a staple. Nowadays they unconsciously depend upon the motion picture for development of imagination.

Present Appalling Features

This situation presents appalling features, the greatest of which is the fact that quite a few of motion picture productions today are morbid, risqué and wholly bad for the young idea. Thus we find the youth whose mind and imagination are being developed by motion pictures, becoming enthused over the seductive vampirings of a certain actress, or becoming a lover of the morbid, sensational drama. Rather than developing a liking for the works of a great author, the youth is developing a liking for a certain so-called star.

The logical future of the motion picture is not to be the purveyor of erudite plays for the sophisticated few, nor morbid drama for the lovers of sensationalism, but to be the purveyor of clean, wholesome pictures to that vast army of amusement seekers whose own lives and the lives of their children are tempered by the dictates of decency—those who will not tolerate filth in whatever form it may be presented.

This is entirely in accord with the idea of Wholesome Films. When its pictures appear on the market about September 1, the author of the story, be it Dickens, Stevens, Rex Beach, Clara E. Laughlin or others will be featured instead of the so-called star. It will be the author that will be identified with the story rather than a certain actor or actress.

Will Take Place of Story Books

The advantage of a policy like this can instantly be appreciated. The screen will present the works of good authors whose wholesome stories are and will be the kinds that will develop the minds and imagination of children along the proper lines. Wholesome pictures will adequately take the place of story books of fact and fiction. While the youth is being wholesomely developed he cannot help but acquire a certain literary education which will stand him in good stead throughout his life.

In this way Wholesome Films Corporation is decidedly different from any of the producing companies now engaged in the production of motion pictures. Figures prove that one can teach persons and time to do any considerable amount of reading. The other nine depend upon motion pictures to a great extent, for the stories of love, romance and adventure with which the human mind likes to beguile hours. These figures show that Wholesome Films will fill a long-felt want and that the demand for them among motion picture patrons will be large.

To Use Good Literature

Wholesome Films will bring to the screen, stories that have won literary recognition. It will be presented in such a way that the motion picture audience will gain from the picture, the same impression and cultivation of mind, as though each person in the audience had read the book or the story. The question, "Have you read the book?" can be affirmatively answered by the one who has seen the picture.

Thus it will be possible through the Wholesome idea for a person, young or old, to acquire the same knowledge and impressions in an evening or afternoon at the theater that in reading would take weeks perhaps.

"LIVE WIRE TIP" OF MINISTER LEADS TO HISTORIC FEATURES SHOWING "CHRISTUS" FILM TO "YOUNG AMERICA"

It is not often that a clergyman volunteers a suggestion for the exploitation of a motion picture—and still less often, perhaps, would a clergyman's suggestion class as a "live wire tip" in the picture industry.

It remains, however, for Rev. William Carter, D. D., pastor of the Throop Avenue Presbyterian church in Brooklyn to give Historic Features, Inc., owners of the American rights of "Christus," a suggestion which has appealed strongly to them, both as a means of promoting the picture and of "doing their bit" for Uncle Sam.

Inspired Men at Front

Dr. Carter is a director of the church and the School Social Service Bureau, which is interested in educational and uplift work through motion pictures. A close friend of his was in France, several months ago, when "Christus," playing at one of the largest theaters in Paris, was exhibited, under the auspices of a special committee, just behind the battle lines to soldiers, wounded or on furlough. The effect of the picture as narrated to Dr. Carter was to inspire every man who saw it with a higher patriotism and with fresh courage to face death for a righteous cause.

"Every boy in our army and navy training schools, every boy scout, every lad in military school or high school should see your picture," wrote Dr. Carter to Historic Features. "It will inspire them to fill whatever place may be theirs, now or in the future, in the service of their country as nothing else can."

"Young America" to See Film

As a result of Dr. Carter's recommendation, Historic Features now is arranging for the showing to "Young America" of the photographs which inspired the soldiers of France with a higher sense of patriotism than could, perhaps, have come to them in any other way.
MARY MAC LAREN IN "PLOW WOMAN," A BLUEBIRD PRODUCTION, LEADS UNIVERSAL PROGRAM FOR JULY 2

Mary MacLaren is the star in the Butterfly picture, "The Plow Woman," which heads the Universal program for the week of July 2. "The Plow Woman" is a film version of the novel by Eleanor Gates and was put in scenario form by J. Grubb Alexander and produced under the direction of Charles Swickard.

In the cast supporting the star are Eddie Polo, Kingsley Benedict, Harry De More, L. C. Shumway and others. "The Plow Woman" will be issued Monday, July 2. On the same day will appear the Nestor Comedy, "Poor Peter Pioues," with Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts.

Military Drama July 3

The feature for Tuesday, July 3, is the Gold Seal three part military drama, "A Young Patriot," with Mignon Anderson in the leading role. Supporting Miss Anderson are such well known screen favorites as J. Morris Foster, Charles Mailes and Roy Stewart. The Victor comedy, "Not Too Thin to Fight," starring Eileen Sedgwick, is the other film for this day.

The chief offering for July 4 will be the two-reel L-Ko comedy, "Bombs and Bandits." The regular issue of the Universal Animated Weekly also will appear this day.

"Seeds of Redemption," a two-reel society drama, will be issued under the Rex brand Thursday, July 5. Claire Mersereau, sister of Violet Mersereau, has the leading role in this picture. The Victor comedy, "Daredevil Dan," featuring Ruth Stonehouse, also will appear Thursday.

Lyons and Moran Appear July 6

Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran appear in the principal roles in a two-reel Nestor comedy, "Five Little Widows," which is presented Friday, July 6. The weekly issue of the Universal Screen Magazine also is to be issued this day.

The chief offering for Saturday, July 7, is the Bison two-reel western drama, "The Wrong Man," with Harry Carey in the leading role, supported by Fritzie Ridgeway. This is a story of adventure, written by N. P. Oakes and directed by Fred Kelsey. Other Saturday films are the Joker comedy, "The Twitching Hour," with Gale Henry and Milton Sims, and the Universal special, Universal Current Events.

During the week the second episode of "The Gray Ghost," the mystery serial founded on the Saturday Evening Post story, "Loft," by Arthur Somers Roche, will be published. The title of the second episode is "The Mysterious Message."

"BRAND OF SATAN" IS CURRENT WORLD FILM WHICH STARS MONTAGU LOVE

"The Brand of Satan" is the current World-Picture Bradley, in which Montagu Love stars. The story is laid in Paris, partly in surroundings of luxury and partly in the underground dives which are the resort of criminals of the most degraded kind. The principal personage has inherited a criminal taint from his father, an escaped murderer, and this supplies the singularly strong psychological interest of the drama.

Eldina, Mo.—Pete Campbell of Memphis, Mo., owner of the New Theater in Osceola, Ia., has purchased the Electric Dome Theater and will make alterations.

WM. RUSSELL IN "THE MASKED HEART" IS MUTUAL FEATURE FOR JULY 2

William Russell is the featured star on the Mutual schedule for July 2. Mr. Russell will appear in "The Masked Heart," a story of love and intrigue, in which he is a blase society man who is bored by his easy victories over women and goes in quest of an elusive man.

The other principals in the cast are Francis Billington, Kathleen Kirkham, William Conklin and Ashton Dearholt.

"The Road Wreckers" is the title of the thirteenth chapter of "The Railroad Raiders," featuring Helen Holmes, which also is scheduled for July 2. A spectacular smashup between a passenger train and a freight makes the big thrill of the chapter.

"Mutual Tours Around the World," ready July 3, show Bizerta, Tunis, a French naval port, and Sydney, the capital of New South Wales, Australia.

On this date also comes the La Salle comedy, "The Girl in the Frame," in which Jean Otto is the principal player.

Mutual Weekly, with its many news topics and patriotic features, will be ready for the public July 4.

The Cub comedy of the week, with George Ovey in the lead, is "Jerry's Gentle Nursing," to be issued July 5, in which Jerry takes care of a gouty invalid.

"Reel Life," to be issued July 5, is made up of six subjects—Making Jewelry at Home, Berry Pickers of the South, Toys of Wartime, Making Real Men, The Army System, Animated Drawings from Life—A Saving Grace and Hands Up.

The sixteenth and last chapter of the "Jimmie Dale, Alias the Grey Seal," series comes to the screen on July 6. This is entitled "The Victory" and E. K. Lincoln has the lead.

BEAUTIFUL AND HISTORIC PLACES OF HAVANA, CUBA, ARE IN GAUMONT FILM TO BE PUBLISHED JULY 10

So much appears in newspapers and magazines from time to time about Havana, Cuba, that patrons of motion picture theaters will welcome the views of that city which Gaumont will present through Mutual in "Tours Around the World," No. 38, to be issued July 10. The film will show this lovely city and the tropics, which is the metropolis of the West Indies. The Gaumont cameraman has been thorough in photographing the beautiful and historic places, and Havana is rich in both. On the same reel are pictures of a number of cities along the Nile. These give an excellent idea of life in Egypt as it has been lived for thousands of years.

The second Gaumont film of the week is the Mutual Weekly, which appears July 11. This is No. 132. It will contain latest news caught by the motion picture camera all over the world.

Gaumont's "Reel Life" reaches the screen July 12. This issue, No. 63, will entertain with pictures of America's Civil War submarine. Strictly speaking, this may not be the first submarine, since there were previous attempts that are chronicled as memories of American ingenuity, but certainly this is the first practical submarine to be used in war. It was built early in the war, sunk in the Pacific to escape capture by Admiral Farragut, and raised in 1885. While it itself did no damage, others of the same type were more successful.

On the same reel appear "A Square Deal for the Baby," the story in pictures of how settlement workers teach mothers to take care of their infants; "Whale Meat," "Camp Fire Signal Girls" and two animations from "Life" in the exclusive Gaumont series taken from pictured jokes in this magazine.
MOTION PICTURES IN "NATURAL" COLORS

[To the "Exhibitors Herald"]: The letter on this subject which I sent you March last, and which you kindly published, has elicited some comments on both sides of the Atlantic, to which I will be glad if you will allow me to refer in general terms.

In reply to the question whether I had ever seen a demonstration of Gaumont's Chronochrome process: I was present at a public showing of the pictures at the Thirty-ninth Street Theater, New York, in June, 1913. I saw Mr. Friese Greene's early results at Brighton in 1906; the Urban results in New York, 1909; Priema in New York, 1917. At least one other "natural" color process is imminent and I will not miss seeing the results if they are publicly shown.

The Hochstetter and Pathe pictures have also come under my notice from time to time, and I have been asked during my nine and a half years' residence in New York to pass upon the practicability of at least a dozen processes which only needed capital for their exploitation.

Eastman Gets Gaumont Process

The Gaumont process, I am informed, has been acquired by the Eastman Company. Why is it not being exploited? There are at present no Urban results being shown. Why? Kinematicolor is inactive; so, apparently, is Prizma. Why?

The Pathe and Hochstetter pictures that I have seen always pleased movie audiences. A London critic, is alone, I think, in calling them "horror" and "hideous." Some of the tinted and toned films that are produced are charming. The 11,000 feet of "Cabiria," for which I wrote much publicity, did not have a single foot of plain film. With Mr. Ince's "Civilization," about which I also wrote a great deal, some agreeable effects were produced from sheets of "blue" and "red" gelatine suitably placed in the projection system. And here in New York a few years ago I saw some colored movies, made by simply painting the positive with consecutive bands of "red," "yellow" and "blue" pigments which in my opinion were neither hideous nor horrid.

Physicist Could Define Principles

On a future occasion I hope with your permission to submit some observations on the ideal process, based on principles which do not appear to be obvious to the above named experimentalists. I hinted at these principles in my first letter, which, though frankly provocative, quite failed to elicit a rejoinder from practical color Kinematographers, or scientific authorities of standing. An intelligent modern physicist could, I think, readily define the principles that are essential to success; but so far the problem has only attracted the attention of empires and trial and error workers. For the information of a correspondent: It is impossible to produce stereoscopic effects on the screen without the use of oculars and the latter necessarily cut off so much light that the results if obtained would be intolerable to an audience. This was the case with Anderson's method with still transparencies, shown before the Photographic Society in, I think, 1893.

A great deal of my time in New York since 1908 has been passed in motion picture laboratories. Between the years 1896 and 1905 in London I did practical work in then available movie plants. At the moment of writing I am vitally interested in the production and distribution of motion pictures—a fact which should demolish an apparent impression that hypochondriasis inspired my first letter.

THOMAS BEDDING, 62 West 70th St., New York.

[To the "Exhibitors Herald"]: I believe there has been a government ban placed upon certain films dealing with war or upon war subjects. Will you please write stating whether or not "War Brides" is affected by this ruling? I contracted for this feature some months ago, but want to make no mistake in showing it. Your attention to this request will be greatly appreciated.

W. F. LINDSEY, Idle Hour Theater, Leon, Iowa.

Reply: In reply to your inquiry of 23rd inst., relative to a government ban upon certain films dealing with war and war subjects, the "Herald" is informed by the United States district attorney that the government has taken no action against the showing of war films, further than to publish requests to producers not to exploit pictures which would in any way discourage or retard enlistment. The United States district attorney's office advises us it is a matter that is up to the local authorities in each city or state.

It might be well for you to inquire from the city or state authorities as to whether or not there are any objections to the showing of "War Brides." The "Herald" understands the showing of this picture was restricted in the state of Pennsylvania.

"MAE MARSH DAY" AT CHICAGO EXPO IS SCHEDULED SATURDAY, JULY 14

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation has won the honor of opening the annual exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, to be held in the Coliseum, Chicago, beginning Saturday, July 14.

The first day of the convention will be known and advertised as "Mae Marsh Day." Miss Marsh will arrive in Chicago on the morning of the 14th, accompanied by Samuel Goldfish and other officers of the Goldwyn organization.

Hugo Ballin and William H. Cotton, Goldwyn's artist-specialists, and Herbert Messmore, scenic constructor and technical director, are building and designing special settings for the Goldwyn booths at the Coliseum, and will journey to Chicago to erect them.

A late cable from Mary Garden, now in Paris, brings the information that she may arrive in America a day or two after the Chicago exposition has opened, but she gives the assurance that she, too, will journey to Chicago to appear at the exposition during the following week, as the closing day comes July 22.

F. M. Bröckell, manager of Goldwyn's Chicago offices, will be in active charge of this company's Coliseum exhibit and handle the local arrangements for Miss Marsh’s appearance.
“SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE” WITH GEO. M. COHAN, TO HAVE COLLECTION OF ESTABLISHED PLAYERS

Anna Nilsson, Mrs. De Wolf Hopper, Joseph Hopper, Russell Bassett and Others Support Star in Film Adapted from Stage Success

One of the features of George M. Cohan’s Artcraft picture, “Seven Keys to Baldpate,” adapted from his popular Broadway stage success and now being produced, is the capable supporting cast, which includes many well known artists of the screen and stage. In selecting the members of the cast for the new Cohan subject, Director Hugh Ford took unusual care, with the result that he has assembled a notable collection of established players.

Anna Nilsson in Big Role

Appearing opposite the popular actor-author-producer in his second Artcraft offering is Anna Nilsson, the well known film actress, whose six years before the camera has given her wide experience and popularity. Miss Nilsson’s prominent work in “Shenandoah,” “Regeneration,” the “Who’s Guilty” serial and other successful film subjects will be remembered by many patrons of the screen. In the leading role of the supporting cast Miss Nilsson should appear to particular advantage.

GEO. M. COHAN PRESENTS AMBULANCE DONATED BY HIRAM ABRAMS TO AID RUSSIANS

In the role of Myra Thornhill, another part which attracted wide attention on the stage, is Mrs. De Wolf Hopper, popularly known as Elda Furry. Mrs. Hopper’s work for various big producers has made her a favorite among the film public, her most recent portrayal being featured with that of Wilfred Lucas in “The Food Gamblers.”

Other Well Known Players

Corene Uzell, whose work under the Famous Players, Pathe, Essanay and Mirror trade marks will be well remembered, is entrusted with the part of Mrs. Norton, another feature character. Miss Uzell’s last appearance on the screen in “On Trial” added greatly to her wide prestige as a film artist. Joe Smiley, who appeared in Mr. Cohan’s initial picture, “Broadway Jones,” again plays in support of Cohan in this production.

Other players in this picture are G. Warren Cook, who appeared under the Artcraft banner once before in the Mary Pickford picture, “The Pride of the Clan”; Armand Cortes, who played under practically every prominent management both on the screen and the stage; Carlton Macy, who originated the role in which he appears in the screen version of this story, on the stage; Eric Hudson, whose work with many of the big film producers is well known; Paul Everton, Frank Losee and Purnell Pratt.

HEADQUARTERS FOR CONVENTION MEN IN “LOOP” IS SELECTED

While the Exhibitors’ League Exposition and Convention, scheduled for July 14 to 22, will be held in the Coliseum, in Chicago, the New Morris Hotel on Madison street in the heart of the “loop” district has been selected this year as the central headquarters for delegates and exhibitors.

The big annual banquet, it is announced, will be held in the banquet hall of the hotel Wednesday night, July 18. Preparations already have been made to accommodate 1,500 persons.

In the new ball room, the Reel Fellows’ Club, of Chicago, will hold their ball. The grand march will be led by a noted motion picture actor and a leading lady.

During the convention week a tally-ho drawn by six horses will be placed at the disposal of exhibitors and delegates in which to carry them to and from the Coliseum and “loop” headquarters.

The festivities of the exposition and convention will terminate, it is announced, Friday night, July 21, when the Terrace Garden at the New Morrison Hotel will be reserved entirely for the entertainment of exhibitors and the trade in general.

“THE GARDEN OF ALLAH” RIGHTS SOLD IN NEW TERRITORIES BY SELIG

The Selig Polyscope Company announces additional sales of territorial rights for “The Garden of Allah,” the Selig drama, written by Robert Hichens and featuring Helen Ware supported by Thomas Santschi. The Hy-Art Masterplays Company, Penn avenue, at Twenty-first street, Washington, D. C., recently closed a deal for the rights for Maryland, District of Columbia, Delaware, Virginia and North Carolina.

WARREN AND CLARKE SHOW "DEEMSTER" FILM TO CAPACITY HOUSES IN CHICAGO LA SALLE

Critics Pay Glowing Tributes to Production Termed a Winner, Which Is Offered on State Rights Plan in Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana

Warren and Clarke declare they have selected a winner in "The Deemster" for their entrance to the ranks of state rights feature buyers. Not in many months has a picture received such glowing criticisms by Chicago papers as did this Arrow Film Corporation seven-reel production upon its initial showing at the La Salle Theater in Chicago, and the steadily increasing business during the two weeks the picture has been on view at that house has stamped the opinion of the critics with the approval of the public.

Draws Capacity Houses

Even the warm weather of the first week failed to keep the people away and the few rainy days encountered in the two weeks at the La Salle provided capacity houses.

So excellent has been the business, it is stated, that Warren and Clarke have made an effort to engage the house for another week from the new lesions, Constock and Gest, who will place musical comedies in its following alterations. The effort has failed, so far, however, owing to the desire of the new management of the theater to get it in shape for as early an opening of their speaking productions as possible.

In booking "The Deemster," its owners for the states of Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin are making many departures from the stereotyped policy of "get the money and let the exhibitor do the worrying." They state that their interest in the picture extends further than that and contemplates a service to the exhibitor that will be of material aid to him in popularizing the offering. They expect to take full advantage of the popularity of Hall Caine as an author and from their experience in the Chicago "loop" deduce the belief that this visualization of his greatest and most popular works will introduce many new patrons to the motion picture as a substantial form of entertainment.

DAVID STEWART, NOTED CANADIAN SHOWMAN, GETS ONTARIO THEATER

Toronto Hears Exhibitor Secures Ownership of Red Mill House at Hamilton: Changes Expected

Toronto, Ont.—Latest advice from Hamilton, Ont., state that David Stewart has secured the Red Mill Theater from Mr. Childs. Mr. Stewart took over the business through a reorganization of the company which has just been completed, and by which T. J. Stewart, M. P., disposed of his interest.

Mr. Stewart has a reputation of being one of the most successful showmen in Canada and if the books of his company for the past few years could be seen, it is certain that the dividends secured by him through the Red Mill Theater or his directors, would prove that his reputation is a fact.

The Red Mill Theater has been improved and enlarged during the time that Mr. Stewart has been its manager and now as its owner it is quite certain that further changes will be made for its betterment.

"BELOVED ADVENTURESS" IS NEXT KITTY GORDON FILM LISTED BY WORLD

The World-Pictures Brady-made film to be published next will be Kitty Gordon's "The Beloved Adventuress." The play reveals the story of a young woman who begins in the gay life of musical comedy in New York, undergoes a series of heart-breaking disillusionments, and finally, as a Red Cross nurse on the battlefield in Europe, lays down her life in rescuing a woman who hated her worst. Miss Gordon's acting in the final scenes of this vivid drama is said to be wholly remarkable for its power and expression.

LAST "RAIL RAIDERS" SERIAL CHAPTER IS FINISHED BY MCGOWAN

The Helen Holmes Company under the direction of J. P. McGowan this week completed the last scenes in their production of "The Mystery of the Counterfeit Tickets," the fifteenth and last chapter of the Signal Mutual serial, "The Railroad Raiders."

This ends the third railroad serial which J. P. McGowan has made featuring Helen Holmes since the organization of the Signal corporation, the other two being "The Girl and the Game" and "A Lass of the Lumberlands."

The Signal Company has been in existence barely a year and a half and during that time the McGowan-Holmes Company alone has turned out a grand total of one hundred and twenty-five reels of positive film, of practically one and one-half reels per week.

MICHIGAN EXHIBITORS ELECT NEW OFFICERS AS CONVENTION ENDS

S. A. Moran, of Ann Arbor, Made President; P. J. Schlossman, Treasurer, with C. E. Cody, Secretary

Grand Rapids, Mich.—At the final session of the Michigan State Branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League here, the following officers were chosen: President, S. A. Moran, of Ann Arbor; first vice president, W. A. Mcurell, of Savoy; second vice president, F. G. Ongel, of Hancock; third vice president, M. Jaccobi, of Ionia; secretary, Claude E. Cody, of Lansing; and treasurer, P. J. Schlossman, of Muskegon.

The league met at the Pantlind Hotel and discussed the war tax, Sunday closing as well as many other important matters.

OUR PLATFORM

"There is but one course to take if the exhibitors' organization is ever to attain its rightful place in the industry: there must be a thorough house-cleaning of men and methods and the old parasitical system of making the league a poaching ground for a few selfish individuals must be forever abandoned."

—From HERALD editorial, May 19, 1917.

Montreal, Que.—The following article taken from a Montreal paper looks suspicious: It is said in a confidential report that the Holman Theater is fireproof throughout and there is not a particle of wood in the place, with the exception of the chairs. Possibly, the authorities are looking for velvet, it is said.

That the original plans were not followed, and that the changes made in the interior of the Holman, 295 St. Catherine Street West, one of Montreal's new film theaters, are of such a nature as to require serious consideration on the part of the building inspector's department, were declarations made by Chief Tremblay in a report he has submitted to the board of control.

"By comparing the original plans of the architect," says Chief Tremblay, "with the sketch prepared by Inspector Desmarais, you will readily see that important changes were made during the course of construction. A certain exit required in one place was put elsewhere. A certain aisle was suppressed and replaced by seats, and seats were put in many places where according to the original plans they should not be. In brief, little care was taken to observe the plan upon which the building permit was issued."

The report of Chief Tremblay was transmitted to the city architect for a report.

Toronto, Ont.—A. J. Ruddy, who was acting manager for the General Film Exchange for several months, has severed connections with the General and will shortly identify himself with a well known company doing business out of Toronto.

Kitchener, Ont.—Geo. Reinhardt, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel, is building a new theater in this city, to be completed and in operation by fall. He is using the best materials and is modeling it after one of the large Toronto houses. He has already placed an order for an Acme screen and Simplex machine.

Toronto.—While the Polson Iron Works was launching four mine sweepers in the Toronto harbor, the Tropical Review provided six camera men to shoot the action for leading Canadian theaters.

Toronto.—The Pathoscope are advertising for camera men throughout Ontario. Preparations for launching an "All Canadian News Service" for Canadian exhibitors are being made. They have been taking the news at leading points but intend to cover the country thoroughly.

Toronto, Ont.—W. A. Bach, who has been sales and advertising manager for M. H. Hoffman, Inc., and who recently resigned to join the Universal Film Company to organize publicity service departments in all the branch offices, is on a holiday trip to his old headquarters at Toronto.
EXHIBITORS

“Water! Water!” groaned R. O. Proctor, of the Art Dramas, last Friday night, as he was on the train for New York to make arrangements for the exchange he is about to open in Milwaukee.

B. Rosenthal, manager of the St. Louis Universal branch, was a recent visitor at the local branch. He reports St. L. very hot, business fine. That’s fair enuf, Bennie.

That’s some cute edition of “Fatty” Arbuckle ushering the fair damsels to their seats at the Bryn Mawr Theater. Keep yer eye on him, H. A. Gundling, if you expect to teach him how to manage a film theater. We overlooked quite a bevy of fair ones planning to kidnap him.

Spence Rogers, general eastern representative for W. H. Clune, left the city (June 23) for Los Angeles for a few weeks’ business trip.

Ollie Moore, erstwhile salesman for Paramount films, was reported culling the various specimens of trees in Washington Park last week. There are some great old shade spots out there for the summer, Ollie!

Joe Dickey, of the Star Theater, Aurora, Ill., and Si Grevier recently staged a bowling tournament on one of the local alleys. Joe carefully blamed the alleys. How about it, Si?

J. E. Willis, president and general manager of the American Bioscope Company, is certainly showing some snappy stuff in that ScreeNews edition. You should see the array of fair seals the camera shot for one of their late publications. He caught them all on Chicago’s north shore and they are good enough for the world to gaze upon.

F. A. (“Bill”) Hamburg, the frame export, is with us once again. He arrived home June 24 after an extended business trip through Michigan. He brought a swell flock of noisy Philadelphia—The Palace Theater, which was destroyed by fire last April, is being rebuilt.

Mahanoy City, Pa.—Isaac Refowich has organized a company and will build a theater here. The concern is to be known as the Refowich Theater Company and has a capital of $10,000.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Fred S. Meyer, western district manager of the General Film Company, has been made sales manager of the Chicago office and will take up duties this month. Mr. Meyer came to Minneapolis in 1912 and at that time headed three exchanges. He was later made manager of the Laemmle exchange, the Kriterion and of the General Film Company's offices, and was also president of the Theatrical Mechanics Association.

Mingo, Ohio—The Palace Theater here is being remodeled.

Churubusco, Ind.—J. S. Thompson has purchased the Palace Theater from George Underhill of Fort Wayne.

Paxton, Ill.—E. E. Alger has purchased the Crystal Theater from Mr. and Mrs. Cyphers and Dave Undell.

Findlay, Ohio—Floyd Bergschicker and H. B. Solomon will open a motion picture theater here next month.

Clanon, Mich.—George Smith has taken possession of the Lyric Theater, having purchased it from Dana Bartholomew.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Wirt S. McLane, manager of the Majestic-Colonial Theater at Jackson, was elected first vice president of the M. P. E. L. of Michigan at the ninth annual convention held here. Stephen S. Springett, manager of the Family Theater, and Mr. McLane were named as delegates to the national convention in Chicago, July 14 to 22.

Wabash, 3111—J. H. Ross has made extensive improvements in the Lyric Theater this city and will make extensive improvements.

Nebaska City, Neb.—Frank A. Ewing, of Iowa, has purchased the Empress Theater from Edward Blakeslee.

O'Neil, Neb.—Mr. and Mrs. Alva Plummer have bought the motion picture theater in this city and will open it after improvements are made.

Greene, 1a.—John Hale of Clarksville has purchased the Crystal Theater from Lloyd Gates.

White Hall, III.—John B. Morrow has sold his Royal Theater to Sid Simpson.

Des Moines, 1a.—At a recent meeting of the Iowa Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, called to reorganize the league, a bitter fight was waged between the exhibitors and exchangemen over the admission of exchangemen as members. N. C. Rice, of Algona, represented the exhibitors, while D. B. Lederman, of Des Moines, spoke for the exchangemen. The latter won out and the name of the association was changed to the Iowa Motion Picture Industry League. Several of the defeated members withdrew their names and left the session.

Shelby, Mont.—Ground has been broken for the erection of a motion picture theater here, to be known as the Liberty. Williamson & McClory are the owners.

PHOTOGRAPHY OF "WOMAN IN WHITE,
STARRING FLORENCE LA BADIE, IS LAUDED BY EDWIN THANHOUSER

"Our six-reel film, 'The Woman in White,' is a good story, well acted," says Edwin Thanhouser. "But it also shines in another department—photography. I have been making motion pictures for eight years, but I never have seen a Thanhouser production that surpassed the present one in steady photographic effectiveness. At times this effectiveness reaches the startling plane, and I must publicly commend Director Warde and Cameraman Zollinger on what they have attained in this direction."

Florence La Badie is the star of "The Woman in White," which has been adapted by Lloyd Lonergan from the book by Wilkie Collins. In Miss La Badie's support are Richard R. Neill, Arthur Bower, J. H. Gilmour, Gertrude Dallas, Wayne Arey and Claude Cooper.

"THE LITTLE AMERICAN," WITH MARY PICKFORD, JUST COMPLETED; WILL BE PUBLISHED JULY 2

Story Has Patriotic Touch and Deals with Yankee Girl's Dangers in War Zone; Cecil B. De Mille Directed Production

Mary Pickford has just completed at the Lasky studios in Hollywood, Cal., her newest dramatic production, entitled "The Little American," which will be published by Artcraft July 2.

The story has a patriotic touch and deals with war. Captain I. H. Beith, author of "The First 100,000," and a British army officer, was among those who proved invaluable to Director Cecil B. De Mille, who handled the production.

As Angela Moore, the little American girl who braves the dangers of the war zone, Mary Pickford appears in a part that demands much fine acting, it is said. Among the spectacular scenes in which she appears are those depicting the sinking of the "Veritania" in mid-ocean.

Although the story deals with the war, it is not of the same type as the ordinary war drama, as it deals more with the intimate than with the general. The picture should strike a responsive chord, as it will be in time for July 4 presentation. In keeping with the work of the star is a cast including Hobart Bosworth, Jack Holt, James Neil, Raymond Hatton, Guy Oliver, Edythe Chapman, Lilian Leighton, Walter Long, Dewitt Jennings and Little Bert Alexander.

SUPERPICTURES WITHDRAWS FROM TRIANGLE, SELLING OUT HOLDINGS TO S. A. LYNCH

Superpictures, Inc., has withdrawn from the Triangle Distributing Corporation, having sold its holdings to S. A. Lynch.

Superpictures, Inc. is the holding company for McClure Pictures and until last week was the controlling factor in the Triangle Distributing Corporation. It will sell its new features through two channels. Superpictures, Inc., also will produce for the state rights market and will publish through Triangle.

Such confidence has Frederick L. Collins, president of the Superpictures, Inc., in the Triangle organization that he has arranged for Triangle to produce six features to be sold on the state rights plan and for the distribution of twelve additional pictures a year through the Triangle Distributing Corporation.
MAE MURRAY, KATHLYN WILLIAMS AND WALLACE REID ARE STARS IN TWO PARAMOUNT FEATURES JULY 2

"At First Sight," starring Mae Murray, and "Biz Timber," starring Kathryn Williams and Wallace Reid, are the two features which will be issued by Paramount for the week beginning in this two-storey picture. Paramount will distribute the 73rd edition of the Paramount-Bray Pictorials, the magazine-on-the-screen, the 74th of the weekly trips around the world, personally conducted by Burton Holmes, in which he takes his fellow-travelers to see "How California Harvests Wheat," and a Klever Komedy entitled "Oh, Pop," in which Victor Moore is starred.

"At First Sight" deals with adventures of pretty Justine Gibbs, played by Mae Murray. Justine is a very attractive and highly American type of young woman who rebels against a prearranged marriage and follows the dictates of her heart. It is essentially a comedy, and the story is really based upon the efforts of the young woman to win the heart of a young writer, so absorbed in his work that the heroine must take him by storm. A great deal of the charm of the story lies in the quaint and humorous scenes between the absent-minded young writer and the impetuous heroine.

The writer is at work upon a story which closely follows his own adventures, and it monopolizes his time and attention to such an extent that Justine sees that the only way she can successfully win his heart, or arouse his interest, is by providing material that will satisfactorily finish the story—which she proceeds to do in a wholly unexpected and original manner of her own. The cast supporting Miss Murray includes Sam T. Hardy as Hartly Poole, Jules Rancourt as Paul, Julia Bruns as Nell, W. T. Carlton as Mr. Chaffin, Nellie Lindreth as Mrs. Chaffin, William Butler as sheriff and Edward Sturgis as deputy.

"Biz Timber," in which Kathryn Williams and Wallace Reid are starred, is an adaptation of Bertrand Sinclair's story of the same name by Gardner Hunting. There are many thrilling scenes in the film, among them a real forest fire in the Big Timber of California.

"Biz Timber" is the story of Stella Benton, a young society girl who has lost her beautiful voice through the death of her father, and who goes to live with her brother Charles, the lumber magnate. Charles and Stella have a struggle to make both ends meet, and when his cook quits, he makes his sister do the work for the hundred men in the lumber camp. Jack Fyfe, a neighboring lumber man, meets Stella and gradually falls in love with her, but the love is not reciprocated. Seeing that she is being overworked, Fyfe offers to marry her, in spite of the fact that she does not love him. A child is born of this loveless marriage, and the couple are reasonably happy, until Walter Monahan, a wealthy lumberman, begins to make love to Stella. She gradually becomes tired of her husband, and when the child dies, decides to leave him. Her voice returns, and she makes a substantial success as a concert singer. Monahan, who has professed love for her, becomes indifferent, but she will not return to Fyfe, in spite of his pleadings.

Monahan, jealous of Fyfe's success, sets fire to his holdings and is caught in the act. Friends telephone this fact to Stella, and she immediately returns to the lumber camp, and there, at their home, she finds Jack, heart broken, as his holdings are on fire and there is nothing but a heavy rain which could save them.

She comes to him and offers to use her own money to retrieve his lost fortune, and as she goes into his arms, the heavy downpour of rain comes and they are safe. In the cast supporting Miss Williams and Mr. Reid are Joe King as Walter Monahan, Alfred Paget as Charlie Benton and Helen Bray as Linda Abbey.

"A STRANGE TRANSGRESSOR" OFFERS LOUISE GLAUM IN A NEW ROLE

Louise Glaum, the Ince-Triangle vampire player, soon will be seen in a part distinctly different from the usual vampire roles, when she is presented by Thomas H. Ince in "A Strange Transgressor." This is the story of a woman who becomes the mistress of a man through love—and love alone. Her life, with the exception of this one sin, is without blemish. Then comes the time when the man tires of his playing. He tells her of his desire to marry a good woman, who will exert the proper influence over his son, who is falling into evil ways. The woman begs him to marry her, but he insists that he must not darken his son's future. She then confesses that she, too, has a son, a little boy who is protected in the cloistered surroundings of a religious institution. But even this has no effect. From here the play presents exciting situations.

Miss Glaum, as Lola Montrose, the woman who loved and sinned for love, presents a strong characterization. J. Barney Sherry, who plays the leading masculine character, offers an excellent performance. He is the typical man of the world, living his own life regardless of how he is judged. Others in the supporting cast include Colin Chase, Dorcas Matthews, May Giraci, J. Frank Burke and William H. Bray.

M. F. TOBIAS HAS HAD METEORIC RISE FROM A BOOKKEEPER TO CHIEF OF SUPERLATIVE PICTURES CORP.

From bookkeeper to president in twelve years, every step achieved by his own effort, is the achievement of which Maurice F. Tobias, executive head of Superlative Pictures Corporation, can be justly proud.

Mr. Tobias entered film business as a bookkeeper for the Greater New York and Empire Film Exchanges, then on Fourteenth street, in 1905. He was one of William Fox's first associates when Fox entered the film business, and while with him originated a system of booking that is still in vogue. This system, termed by Mr. Tobias the "lock system," locked a complete show for a period of consecutive days, thereby eliminating any loss of time from one exhibitor to another and avoiding any mistakes in the course of shipments.

Joining Paramount, Mr. Tobias traveled through New York and the rest of the country, as manager of the Mutual New York Western exchange. Mr. Tobias proved his worth. Taking over the office of that organization when it was in a state of chaos, he promptly righted matters, and after four years he resigned.

At the present time Superlative Pictures Corporation, the mother organization of Irving Cummings Pictures, Inc., and Lois Meredith Pictures, Inc., feels that with Maurice F. Tobias as its head its success is assured.

BRITISH COLUMBIA FILM MEN PLAN A STRONG ORGANIZATION

Vancouver, B. C.—There has been a strong and united effort by both exhibitors and exchanges in the past toward organization in British Columbia, but up to the present time very little has been accomplished. The association has taken on new life, however, and the exhibitors and the exchanges hope to be soon able to boast of an organization second to none in Canada.

There is a much better feeling and stronger co-operation among the exhibitors now than ever before. The exchange managers had a general meeting on June 1 and adopted the name of the Film Managers’ Protective Association, and plans for a permanent organization were made. The following officers were elected: C. R. Bippie, Mutual Film Company, president; W. P. DeWees, Triangle Film Company, vice president; N. R. Fewser, Fox and Metro, secretary-treasurer.

The executive committee comprises the three named officers together with two other members to be selected. These early steps for a new association drafted in part from the ideas adopted by the Winnipeg association point strongly to better conditions in the Vancouver field and to the film interests at large. Representatives from the Universal, Famous Players, Mutual, Metro, Fox, Triangle, Pathé, General and Regal exchanges were present at the meeting.

Montreal, Que.—The Majestic Theater Company is advertising preferred stock at $10 a share with a bonus of 15 per cent common stock in the Montreal papers. The money is to be devoted to erecting a new motion picture theater, to be called the Majestic Theater. It will be located in Westmount, a suburb of Montreal.

Toronto, Ont.—The Regal Film Company, with a home office in Toronto, and branches in all the large Canadian cities, are to be the Canadian distributors of Goldwyn productions.

Toronto, Ont. — "The Submarine Eye" now is playing its second week at the Grand Opera House, Toronto, and reports good business.

NEW PICTURE THEATER SEATING 10,000 PERSONS IN NEW YORK, IS PLANNED BY A SYNDICATE

New York city is to have the world's largest motion picture theater, if plans of a syndicate headed by Felix Isman are carried out. The new amusement place will be erected on the site of the New York Railway's car barns, on Eighth avenue between Forty-ninth and Fiftieth streets, and will seat 10,000 persons. The syndicate has secured a long-term lease on the property from the Railway Company. It is reported, on terms involving several millions of dollars. Situated as it is in the heart of New York's densest population, the project should be a money-maker, and it will be easily accessible to elevated trains, subway and surface lines.

Why Is Circulation?

A Talk to Advertisers

CIRCULATION has been discussed a great deal during the past few years, and the technical side of circulation analysis has been studied from every angle.

How much, how secured and where located are the big questions which are asked of the publisher by the advertiser, with various subdivisions of the inquiries as modified by individual interest.

The biggest question of all is seldom asked.

Why is circulation?

The average space-buyer never stops to consider the one vital fact about circulation—that it is the definite result of a definite creation, editorial quality.

Editorial appeal pulls circulation of which that appeal is the index. The higher the appeal and the stronger its character, the better and more desirable the circulation is going to be.

The value of a trade publication lies in the character of its circulation appeal.

If it has built up a distribution based on specific editorial character, the advertiser who goes into a publication of this kind knows in advance whether the interest is live or passive.

The advertiser who puts quantity first, and who reads circulation statements so closely that he has no time to study the publications themselves, has got away entirely from the fundamental fact back of all circulation, he has forgot to ask himself, "Why?"

A page-by-page analysis of the "Exhibitors Herald" proves that it has a vital and commanding readers' appeal.

Goldwyn Pictures will be seen by millions of women and children with enjoyment instead of shame. They are censored in advance of production by clean-minded producers who have never on screen or stage catered to the lower or cheaper tastes.

They are the type of pictures that every organization of watchful men and women guarding against impurities or indecencies on the screen can indorse without a single reservation or exception.

They are stories of love and laughter, of honor and refinement, built to appeal to the mental and internal fineness of the wholesome American people.

Goldwyn has recognized the necessity for screen betterments and staked a fortune upon its ability to gauge intelligently the desires and requirements of an enormous public throughout the world—the kind of a public we are most anxious to serve.

Operation of Censorship

The Chicago Board of Censors has ruled out the newest Mary Pickford picture because it is too "anti-Prussian."

This picture is a too violent indictment of German militarism to be permitted exhibition in the City of Chicago—yet America has consecrated its men and its millions to the task of forever curbing this Prussian militarism.

This is an excellent example of the operation of censorship.

Mary Pickford in "The Little American" did not strike the fancy of Major Metullus Lucullus Cicero Funkhouser, so the citizens of Chicago—temporarily at least—will not be permitted to view this inspiring picture.

It would be unfair to Major Funkhouser to speculate whether Major Funkhouser's Teutonic ancestry, as suggested by his name, did not have a bearing upon prejudicing his mind against this picture. But it is also unfair to ban this production and thereby question the intelligent patriotism of its sponsors.

Censorship of all kinds unofficially subjects those within its scope to the prejudices of those wielding the censor power. Censorship is the rule of a few over the many. This picture may be distasteful to Major Funkhouser and also to a great many other Americans but millions of citizens of this country will rise up to inquire how it would be even humanly possible for any producer to over-emphasize dramatically the castigation which the President himself has inflicted upon the military caste of Germany.

Motion picture censorship continues to convince the public of its utter absurdity.

The future of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America depends upon putting the affairs of the association in order at the coming meeting.

Many questions of paramount importance are to be decided.

administration and of the policy of "A Public Office is for Private Gain," or it will have to depose ignominiously the present incumbent of the office.

Good Stories

A n indication of great hopefulness is the general recognition of the fact that the story is the vital factor of a motion picture.

Until quite recently the opinion was held in various quarters that a prominent star, superior direction or something else could be depended upon solely to make a successful photoplay.

But it has been found time after time with practically every "big star" in motion pictures that without a story of genuine appeal and human interest the result is flat and unprofitable. No star is big enough today to carry a poor story. The public no longer is content merely to see a big star; they want to see the big star enacting a role that is in itself appealing, faithful to life and convincing.

Continued insistence upon the necessity of real stories cannot help but have a most salutary effect upon the motion picture business. A good story enables the producer to escape the huge monetary exaction of a big star in many cases and at the same time obtains a production that is eminently satisfactory to the public.

T HE film salesman is a vital factor in this business—more vital than many realize. He is the intermediary between the distributor and the exhibitor, and as such is greatly responsible either for a relationship of good-will or the reverse.

Frequently we hear of film salesmen who, for the sake of an order, make promises which their company cannot possibly fulfill. This simply creates a distrust in the minds of exhibitors and contributes to a strained relationship which is a burden both to the exhibitor and the distributor.

Salesmen should realize they occupy a most important position in the industry and they should strive to meet the great expectations of that position.

Martin J. Quigley.
For the purpose of discussing the plans for the organization's fall campaign and to perfect other details to be announced soon, the second meeting of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc., was held at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, Thursday, June 28.

At the session, which lasted two days, more than $1,000,000 in cash was paid into the treasury, it was announced, thus placing the company, which was formed in New York City April 25, on a sound financial basis.

Logical Distributing Center

S. L. Rothapfel, president of the circuit, said that Chicago was chosen to hold the meeting for the reason that it is undoubtedly the logical dis-distribution center of the film industry in the United States, and for the convenience of the members coming from St. Louis, Los Angeles, Minneapolis and other cities. Other meetings will be held in the Windy City.

The meeting was a most harmonious one, Manager J. D. Williams announced, and considerable business was transacted. An immense advertising campaign will be launched in August, Mr. Williams stated, and he is negotiating for the services of one of the best-known publicity men in the industry, who will have charge of that end of the Exhibitors' Circuit.

$1,000,000 SUBSCRIBED TO EXHIBITORS' CIRCUIT IN CHICAGO

Funds in Cash for Treasury Secured After Two-Day Session Places Concern on Sound Financial Basis; City Is Logical Distribution Center, Says Rothapfel

When asked whether it was true that the First National Exhibitors' Circuit had secured Charles Chaplin's signature to a contract to produce comedies for them, Mr. Williams would neither confirm nor deny the rumor.

The circuit as it now stands, the manager said, represents $30,000,000 worth of motion picture theaters throughout America; the twenty-seven members controlling it is estimated, more than 400 houses.

The organization, which is chartered under the laws of New York State and has a capitalization of $50,000, full paid and non-assessable, proposes to buy, lease and possibly produce motion pictures for the exclusive use of the circuit. A film once purchased or leased by them becomes their property and is at the disposal of the members. Each exhibitor in the organization controls the rights in his particular territory.

"On Trial" First Film

"On Trial," which is playing to capacity business wherever shown, is the first picture being exploited by the Exhibitors' Circuit. Other productions which will follow will be of the same high standard, it is said.

Those present at the Chicago meeting were: S. L. Rothapfel, manager of the Rialto Theater, New York, president of the new organization; Mr. Tally of Los Angeles, vice-president; Harry O. Schwab of Philadelphia, secretary and treasurer, and Directors Aaron Jones of Chicago, E. H. Hulsey of Dallas, Texas, and Robert Lieber of Indianapolis.

Mr. Gottstein of Seattle, Wash., Mantlebaum of Cleveland, A. J. Gillingham of Detroit, J. H. Kunsky of Detroit, Tom Sax of Milwaukee, John Sax of Milwaukee, Nate Ascher (Ascher Bros.) and Adolph Linick (Jones, Linick & Schaefer) of Chicago also attended the meeting.

$500,000 BLAZE SWEEPS CHICAGO PATHE EXCHANGE, DESTROYING VALUABLE FILMS

Firemen Protect Other Concerns' Reels After Hard Battle; Complaints Lodged Against Suspects; Police Guard Other Cinema Branches

A fire which started from an unknown cause in the vaults of the Chicago Pathe Film Exchange, in the Consumers Building on State street, early Sunday morning, July 1, destroyed about $500,000 worth of valuable film and damaged the building to the extent of $150,000.

Four In Office

At the time the fire occurred only four employees of the Pathe Company were on the floor. It is said four distinct explosions occurred, the doors of the vaults were blown off and the detonations were heard throughout the loop district. Firemen had a hard battle to subdue the flames. However, they prevented the fire from spreading above the sixth floor of the building to the Universal exchange on the fifteenth floor and the Mutual on the eighteenth, where thousands of dollars worth of films are stored in their vaults.

"QUEEN OF SPADES," FIRST RUSSIAN FILM, LAUDED BY AMBASSADOR IN WASHINGTON

Play Unique in Story and Acting Brings Praise from High Diplomat at Special Showing; Shepard & Van Loan Firm Makes Subtitles

Washington—(Special to the "Exhibitors Herald")—The first of the fifty unusual Russian photoplays recently brought to this country by Nathan H. Kaplan was shown in the ball room of the Willard Hotel, on June 27; at a reception given to Ambassador Boris Bakemetieff, the head of the newly appointed Russian Commission. The film which was the feature of the entertainment was "The Queen of Spades" and was unique both in interest of story and excellence of the Russian actors who produced it.

The scenario for the film was written by Pushkin, one of Russia's greatest poets, and the musical accompaniment was taken from Tschaikowsky's opera.

Ambassador Lauds Art

Two special cars from New York city brought about thirty representative film and newspapermen and the orchestra to Washington on the Congressional Limited. They were met at the Union station by busses and taken to the Hotel Willard. At the conclusion of the showing of the film the ambassador expressed his appreciation of the compliment his hosts had given in illustrating so successfully what the Russian people are doing in the way of art.

Besides "The Queen of Spades" Mr. Kaplan has brought fifty other complete photodramas which bear vitally upon the new Russian republic. These will be shown through the United States in the hope of cementing closer relationship between the United States and Russia.

The plays about to be issued, illustrate the work of Russia's greatest actors and actresses and such literary names as Sienkiewicz, Pushkin, Tolstoy, Ostrovsky and others furnish the subject matter. The works of these need no introduction, many of them having long since been read and appreciated in America.

Shepard-Van Loan Subtitles

The firm of Shepard & Van Loan made the subtitles for the Russian art pictures and deserve much credit for their part in the finished product.

Among those who attended the reception from New York were: James Beecroft, "Exhibitors Herald"; Jack Edwards, Billboard; Robert Welch, Motion Picture News; Charles Condon, Photography; H. C. Judson, Moving Picture World; Gerald Duffy, Picture Play Magazine; Wid Gunning, "Wids": Fred Eltonhead, Exhibitors Trade Review; Paul Sweinhart, Clipper; H. H. Van Loan, C. C. Field, Hedwig Laboratories; L. H. Goldsoll and William Barry.

WILSON PICKS BRADY TO MASS FILM INDUSTRY

Washington — President Wilson has commissioned William A. Brady to mobilize the picture industry. Official camera men will accompany United States troops to France; others will aid the food administration. In his letter to Mr. Brady the president says:

It is in my mind not only to bring the motion picture industry into fullest and most effective contact with the nation's needs, but to give some measure of official recognition to an increasingly important factor in the development of our national life. May I ask you to organize the motion picture industry in such a manner as to establish direct and authoritative cooperation with the committee on public information? My knowledge of the patriotic service already rendered by you and your assistants makes me count upon your generous acceptance.

Cordially and sincerely yours,

WOODROW WILSON.

CHICAGO CENSORS CALL "LITTLE AMERICAN" ANTI-GERMAN AND DENY EXHIBITION

Mary Pickford's Latest Film Might Cause Riots, Says Funkhouser; Artcraft Will Fight for Permit in Court; Showing Scheduled at Studebaker, July 1

The Little American," Mary Pickford's latest vehicle, has run against the wind in the sale of the Chicago residence of Bodkin, Williamson & Co., and Chicago's censors will not be able to see the latest Artcraft production until the matter has been settled in court.

The Major's objection to the film is based on the story's anti-German nature and he is afraid, it is said, that it might cause riots if shown in public.

Artcraft's attorney will take the matter into court to compel the second deputy of police to issue a permit for the film.

It was booked to appear at the Studebaker Theater, Chicago, for one week, commencing July 1.

Injunction proceedings against the city of Chicago to restrain it from interfering with the exhibition of "The Little American" have been commenced today by Max Goldstein, the manager of the Chicago branch of Artcraft.

"The picture is pro-American, and every American citizen should see it," said Mr. Goldstein. "We will not stop until we get permission to show it."

Evanston, Ill., Accepts Film
Evanston, Ill.—Mary Pickford's latest picture, "The Little American," was declared by Evanston's censors to be "O.K."

Both Mrs. W. X. Rose and Mrs. Grace Brooks, the "movie autocrats," gave the Pickford film much praise and declared it is not a "sex picture," but merely a patriotic one.

Major Funkhouser, head of the Artcraft board, intimated that the film reflects on Von Hindenburg and the German people, therefore conflicting with the government policy of suppressing racial prejudices.

John P. Bodkin, owner of the Strand Theater here, invited several business men to see the film, and he said they were enthusiastic over it.

Lawhead Sells "Submarine Eye" Rights for Illinois to Central Film Corp.

Chicago Concern Buys Territory After Successful Chicago Run at Studebaker; Exhibitors to Get Spectacle July 9

Rex O. Lawhead, who is handling the interests of the Williamson brothers in the Central States, has sold the Illinois state rights for the exploitation of the undersea spectacle, "The Submarine Eye," to the Central Film Corporation of Chicago, following a successful engagement at the Studebaker Theater.

This is the most recent drama which has been enacted and photographed through the medium of the Vivitar Film Corporation of Chicago, revealing the secret mysteries of under-sea life, a strong romance as been ingeniously woven and cleverly enacted.

The production will first be available to Illinois exhibitors through the central Film Corporation, July 9. The film, it is announced, has proven so popular a attraction throughout the Central States that rights have been sold everywhere except in Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana.

Many bids for the remaining territories have been received during the past fortnight, Mr. Lawhead announces, and during the next week he expects to have disposed of a major portion of the remaining territory.

Drew Big in Chicago

During the showing of the production at the Studebaker in Chicago, the film drew capacity houses by virtue of its novel educational as well as dramatic story-value. The terrific tides of the ocean, the great man-eating monsters of the deep, the wrecks of ships, and the story of the film has been built, drew crowded houses at every performance during the Chicago engagement.

CHAPLIN SIGNED FOR $1,000,000 BY NEW CIRCUIT?

President Rothapfel Silent, but Coast Rumor Says Star Is Engaged

While S. L. Rothapfel, president of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, and J. D. Williams, manager of the organization, would neither confirm nor deny the rumor that Charles Chaplin, the noted comedian, had signed a contract with the circuit, word comes from Los Angeles that such is the case.

It is said the comedian's contract calls for a salary of $1,000,000 and $75,000 bonus, for a series of eight pictures.

Chaplin now is working on his last picture for the Mutual Film Corporation, following which he will take a month's rest, after which he is said he will start work about October 1 on his first picture for the First National Exhibitors' Circuit. It is expected it will be published some time in November.

Mr. Chaplin will deliver negatives only of his pictures, it is stated, and within the figures quoted is to finance the producing of all pictures, including directors' salaries and studio sets. The sum named is probably the highest salary paid any actor in history -- not the highest paid anybody in the world.

Under his Mutual contract the comedian received $87,000 a year, and it is reported that he recently refused renewal of his contract for twelve pictures at a salary of $1,000,000 a year.

AD FILM MAKERS' EXECUTIVE BODY MEETS IN CHICAGO

Will Convene July 16 at Rothacker Mfg. Co. Studio

The executive council of the Advertising Film Producers' Association will meet in Chicago, July 16, at the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company's studios.

This association is the official motion picture department of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World and the holding of their meeting during the Motion Picture Convention brings to Chicago another group of men who are vitally interested in the film industry.
SHERMAN PICTURES CORP. FORMED IN N. Y. TO EXPLOIT FILMS IN STATE RIGHTS FIELD

Popular Pictures Corporation and Sun Photoplay Company Taken Over; Concern Is Capitalized to Handle Biggest Productions

One of the biggest and most important combinations in the motion picture industry was formed this week when a group of men, headed by Harry A. Sherman, formed a company which will be known as the Sherman Pictures Corporation.

Mr. Sherman was formerly head of the Sherman-Elliott Company of Minneapolis, and is considered one of the big men in the state rights market.

Mr. Sherman has taken over the Popular Pictures Corporation of 218 West 42nd street, the Sun Photoplay Company and the building now occupied by these two organizations, and after it has been thoroughly renovated and altered to suit his requirements, it will be known as the Sherman Pictures Building.

Associates Are Named

The new combine will be conducted under the firm name of Sherman Pictures Corporation, and its destinies will be guided by Mr. Sherman as president. Associated with him are the following men, well known to the film world: Harris P. Wolfberg of Pittsburgh, who owns and operates "The Crisis" in Ohio, Pennsylvania and other territories; A. J. Bimberg of New York, formerly treasurer of the Popular Pictures Corporation, who now is the treasurer of the Sherman Pictures Corporation; Hilton H. Goldsmith of New York, of the law firm of Goldsmith & Rosenthal; Col. Fred Levy, a well known theatrical man of Louisville, Ky., and Oscar Lynch, of the Otis Lithographing Company.

The company is sufficiently capitalized to handle productions of the largest size, and this, coupled with its affiliations, gives every promise that the new combine will be one of the strongest film publishing corporations handling state right pictures exclusively.

Object Outlined

The object of the Sherman Pictures Corporation is to assure producers a ready market and a cash profit for their productions instead of monthly statements and percentage arrangements. By assuring profits to manufacturers, a long step is made toward stabilizing the entire industry.

Without good attractions picture houses cannot exist and it is realized in order to assure that the manufacturer also must have a square deal.

To establish this desirable condition the Sherman Pictures Corporation has been formed.

The company will purchase outright the world's rights to good state rights productions, and will exploit the world's rights for state rights productions for the manufacturer, assuming all the expense of marketing and exploitation.

Also the concern will advance any responsible producer the cash to make or complete a satisfactory production. The corporation will exercise its option in the next few days for several productions, announcements of which will be made later.

F. J. HERRINGTON CANDIDATE FOR OCHS' OFFICE

Several States Back Former M. P. E. L. Head in Race for Chair

Philadelphia—Fred J. Herrington, the National Organizer for the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America, announced while attending the M. P. E. L. convention here, June 25 to 27, that he would be a candidate for the office of national president of the league at the coming convention in Chicago, July 14 to 22.

Several states have urged Mr. Herrington to become a candidate and have stated they would present his name at the convention.

Mr. Herrington, who gave up the presidency to Ochs last year in Chicago, has worked earnestly for the betterment of the league since its inception and has a glowing reputation as a hard working, conscientious officer of the National League.

INCE TO PRODUCE FOR ARTCRAFT-PARAMOUNT COMBINATION FROM STUDIOS AT COAST

As published exclusively in the "Exhibitors Herald" June 23, Thos. H. Ince will hereafter publish his productions through Paramount and Arctraft.

Mr. Ince resigned from the Triangle Film Corporation about two weeks ago and has been negotiating with Adolph Zukor, Hiram Abrams and Walter E. Green, of the Famous Players-Lasky-Paramount-Arctraft combination ever since.

By the terms of his contract Mr. Ince is to preserve his own organization and will produce feature films exclusively for the Arctraft-Paramount distributing companies.

Thus Mr. Ince joins David Wark Griffith and Cecil B. De Mille as individual directors. He will continue to make his headquarters on the Pacific coast.

"My association with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation comes as the result of careful deliberation and of a painstaking study of motion picture conditions. I have kept much more closely in touch with market conditions than is the case with the average producer and I therefore speak with impartial authority when I say that the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation has evolved a distribution plan which is for the interests of producer, star and exhibitor," declared Mr. Ince in discussing his new affiliation.

"Furthermore, my own inquiries of exhibitors, made while negotiations with the concern were pending and after my resignation from Triangle, convinced me that Paramount and Arctraft had given the exhibitors just the method of distribution which they most desire. Frankly, I surveyed the field very deliberately before making any new alliance as I was in no hurry to make new connections. I have reached a point where a few dollars more or less do not mean as much to me as happiness in my business relations, and to know that my efforts for the industry are in sympathy with the most progressive and lasting policies.

"I therefore stood off in the corner, as it were, and surveyed the motion picture business from a birdseye view, for the purpose of forming the most impartial opinion possible. When we are actually engaged in a business we cannot always judge it quite so clearly as a complete outsider. It was the outsider's viewpoint which I sought, plus that of the enlightened exhibitor. The result of my observation gave me no choice but to ally myself with Famous Players-Lasky."

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG TO PRODUCE OWN FILMS; OPENS OFFICES AT FORT LEE, N. J.

First Picture Will Be Published About August 15; Eight Features a Year Planned; Silent on Selznick Suit

Clara Kimball Young announces the formation of her own company, which will begin producing her own plays, under her own directors and in her own studio as soon as she returns from a tour of the principal cities of the West, South and East where she has been closing contracts for the handling of her output.

Offices of the new film company have been opened at Fort Lee, N. J., and the first picture will be published, it is said, about August 15. She proposes to produce at least eight features a year, from stories of well known writers, and under a director who has achieved an enviable reputation in the motion picture field.

Contracts for Studio

A studio near New York has been contracted for and Miss Young will personally select the cast to support her in her initial production. Announcement will be made of the members of the cast, as well as the name of the star's first play upon her return to New York.

According to an interview in Chicago, Miss Young will no longer produce "sex" plays or any pictures likely to run afoul of censor boards. She is to have liberties in working out her screen destiny which have hitherto not been enjoyed by a motion picture star, and practically the entire direction, selection and production of her photoplays as well as their distribution is being left to her decision.

Trip Proves a Success

Miss Young's trip through the South and West proved very successful, she states. Exchangemen, exhibitors and the public in general gave her a warm reception which augurs well, she feels, for the success of her new organization.

With regard to the suit recently brought by Lewis J. Selznick, Miss Young has nothing to say, preferring to leave that matter up to the court, she says.

FAIRBANKS WORKING ON "THE OPTIMIST," HIS THIRD ARTCRAFT PLAY

Mountain Country Picked to Get Effect of Alps; Eileen Percy Plays Opposite Star

Douglas Fairbanks and his company in charge of Director John Emerson have left for the mountains on the west coast to begin the production of "The Optimist," an original story written by the popular star. The mountainous country where production is being carried on was picked to get the effect of the Alps.

Opposite Douglas Fairbanks in his third starring vehicle appears Eileen Percy, who recently joined the Fairbanks organization.

THREE GOLDWYN STARS IN FORTHCOMING PRODUCTIONS

Colored Films Destroyed

"Many of the reels destroyed," said C. W. Bunn, manager of the Chicago Pathe exchange, "were of colored pictures and cannot be duplicated. In order to take care of orders we have asked our branch offices in Minneapolis, Milwaukee and Detroit to rush films to Chicago so that our service will not be crippled."

As the result of the fire a rigid investigation is being conducted by the state's attorney, the police and the city fire attorney. A conference was held in the city hall Sunday afternoon at which representatives of the various film exchanges lodged complaints against suspects and their aids and Sunday night policemen were stationed at the offices of sixteen film companies, to guard against possible attacks.

OUR PLATFORM

"There is but one course to take if the exhibitors' organization is ever to attain its rightful place in the industry; there must be a thorough house-cleaning of men and methods and the old parasitical system of making the league a poaching ground for a few selfish individuals must be forever abandoned."

—From HERALD editorial, May 19, 1917.
CHICAGO THEATER OWNERS FACE $200 YEARLY LICENSE FEE; FAIL TO FRAME NEW SCHEDULE

Readjustment Held Over Until Next Fall Because Exhibitors Could Not Submit Table Equitable to All

Chicago theater owners will continue to pay the $200-a-year license, at least for the present, the question of a readjustment of the license fees, which has been in the hands of a sub-body of the license committee of the Chicago city council, having been held over until next fall.

Lacked Co-operation

Alderman James B. Bowler's committee was instructed to prepare a schedule to submit to the Chicago city license committee, which body was to report to the council before summer adjournment, but, through lack of co-operation on the part of the Chicago exhibitors, Deputy City Collector George F. Lohan informed a "Herald" representative they were unable to draft a measure which would meet the approval of those most vitally interested.

Meetings have been held from time to time in the city hall, and expressions from exhibitors, both large and small, were heard. Several tables were prepared by Alderman Bowler's sub-committee and placed in the hands of exhibitors, but none, it appears, met the demands of the situation.

Attempts Futile

After several futile attempts to get the Exhibitors' League and independent exhibitors to submit tables of license fees, some of which would be found equitable, the sub-body reported to the license committee that it was unable to draft a new ordinance table for passage at this time.

GEORGE BACKER STARTS FIRST FOURSQUARE STATE RIGHTS FEATURE FOR HOFFMAN, INC.

With Array of Talent and Strong Story Material Forthcoming Play Seen as One of Greatest of Year

George Backer, president of the George Backer Film Corporation, is starting on his first Foursquare state rights picture, which will be published through M. H. Hoffman, Inc. This will be one of the great photoplays of the year, it is said.

Has a Big Story

First, Mr. Backer secured a big story. It has an absorbing theme, suspense, drama, contrast, and several situations that grip. Finally, this story has a climax that comes from splendid cumulative development. The outcome is in doubt almost up to the climax itself. Pierre V. R. Key is the author of this story.

Second, Mr. Backer has secured for the cast of this Foursquare photoplay an array of talent that, in its entirety, is one of the strongest which any state rights picture has had so far, it is announced. Ruth Roland and Milton Sills are the featured players. Other nationally known stage and screen stars in the cast are Leah Baird, J. Herbert Frank, Ollie Kirkby and George Larkin.

Makes Film Like Buildings

Third, Mr. Backer has made the production as he makes buildings—and as a builder he is pronounced one of the greatest in New York. The settings and furnishings will reflect the Backer ideal—the Backer taste of simplicity in art. The direction is to be done by Robert Ellis, who, while one of the youngest in the profession, was trained in the school that developed Marshall Neilan, who was a director colleague of Mr. Ellis until recently.

The new Backer super-feature is being made in the Norma Talmadge studios, in west Forty-eighth Street, and will be ready for publication in September. It is said to contain one novelty which has not yet been offered the public.

ILLOIS PASSES BILL HITTING FILM AGAINST THE NEGRO

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—(Special to the "Exhibitors Herald")—Among the bills that became laws at the close of the fiftieth general assembly June 29 was the Jackson "Birth of a Nation" bill. This measure, drafted by a negro representative from Chicago, was primarily aimed to prevent the exhibition of films in which negroes were shown in an unfavorable light.

The bill as finally passed, however, is amended greatly from the form in which it was vetoed earlier in the session, and while it becomes a law is declared to be perfectly harmless.

NEW CORPORATIONS

New York—The Great Picture Corporation has secured a charter to engage in the motion picture business. The organizers are Carle E. Carlton, Sidney Sonnenschein and Mary Kegley. The company is capitalized at $50,000.

Adolph Jean Menjou will appear in support of Norma Talmadge in her next production, "The Moth." Mr. Menjou previously appeared on the screen in support of Margaret Clark in "The Valentine Girl" and in "Ti Amazons."

W. E. Lusk has been appointed manager of the Cleveland exchange of the Mutual Film Corporation. Mr. Lusk was formerly a member of the sales department of the home office.

Mildred Rayly, formerly with Metro, has been engaged by Lois Meredith Pictures, Inc., to play the part of Isabelle in that company's next production for publication through Sperling Pictures Corporation.

OUR PLATFORM

"There is but one course to take if the exhibitors' organization is ever to attain its rightful place in the industry: there must be a thorough house-cleaning of men and methods and the old parasitical system of making the league a poaching ground for a few selfish individuals must be forever abandoned."

—From HERALD editorial, May 19, 1917.
Lew Fields is at work in the Peerless studio, Fort Lee, upon the second of the series of photoplays in which he is to appear for World-Pictures Brady-made. This is a screen version of "The Corner Grocer," which is said to have had the longest New York run as a stage comedy-drama.

"The Corner Grocer" was written and produced by Adolph Phillip at the German Theater in New York, where its career continued for 1,007 performances, outdistancing "The Old Homestead," which held the record up to that time. This achievement was the more remarkable for the reason that the piece was played in a foreign tongue and could not appeal to anything like the entire populace.

To see this Serio-Comic
The story is of the kind sometimes described as serio-comic—which is to say it is mainly humorous, but carries a vein of serious material. Thus "The Corner Grocer" comes well within the acting gifts of Mr. Fields, whose skilful blending of fun and pathos in "The Man Who Stood Still" is well remembered.

From the offices of the World Corporation also comes word that "When True Love Dawns," the last of the series of French photoplays purchased by the Brady International Service for the World-Pictures program, is about to be published. Susan Grandais, called "the sweetest girl in Europe," is the star of this play, and the cast also includes Albert Signer, whose acting attracted much attention in Sarah Bernhardt's "Mothers of France" and Regina Badet's "Atonement."

Contains Unique Features
"When True Love Dawns" is said by its American sponsors to contain certain unique features, among them a set of characters and a story without evil. In spite of this the play carries a remarkably strong and interesting plot. This screen drama was directed by Louis Mercanton, whose artistry has been praised in a most emphatic manner by the reviewers.

Miss Grandais is expected to come to America in person under consignment to World-Pictures Brady-made as soon as she finishes the play upon which she is working with Mr. Mercanton at present "somewhere in France." The uncertainties of ocean travel are such at this time that the date of her coming cannot be stated positively, but it is believed that she will be here before the end of August.

Brady Provides Scenarios
Director General Brady has already provided several scenarios for the use of Miss Grandais. These are all on American topics, and the present plan provides that they shall be produced one after the other, with no waste of time between plays.

Regina Badet, "the Vampire of France," who has been seen in this country in "Atonement" and "The Golden Lotus," will not join the forces of World-Pictures for three or four months.

NEW EDGAR LEWIS PICTURE, UNDER WAY, SOON WILL BE READY FOR PUBLICATION

Anthony P. Kelly Is Author of Story Which Producer Now Is Making Independently; Hint of Plot Withheld

With the announcement of the opening by Frank Hall of Edgar Lewis' special production, "The Bar Sinister," at the Pitt Theater, Pittsburgh, for a summer run, come rumors of big preparations well under way for a new Edgar Lewis picture which promises to be ready for publication in a few weeks.

Edgar Lewis' new picture is by Anthony P. Kelly, author of "The Bar Sinister," but no hint has yet been given as to the nature of the story or the importance of the subject treated. It is natural, however, that unusual interest should be shown in the next production of this prominent director who, aside from the success achieved by his former efforts, which include "The Nigger," "The Bondman" and "The Barrier," is backing his own pictures and operating as an independent producer.

FORT LEE SUNDAY PRODUCING HIT BY CITY'S MAYOR

Rules Concerns in N. J. Town Must Work in Studios on Sabbath

An order, which will have a far-reaching effect upon the motion picture concerns with studios in Fort Lee, N. J., was issued this week by Edward A. White, mayor of the New Jersey city, when he ruled that henceforth no motion picture companies will be allowed to photograph exteriors or do other work "on the lot" on Sunday.

The Fort Lee executive at the same time declared there would be no objection to picture producing on the Sabbath if it is conducted within the studios. The laws of New Jersey vest him with discretionary powers in the matter.

Mayor White's new measure regulating the manufacture of film was set forth after he had ordered a cancellation of Sunday picture-taking on the third Mac Marsh Goldwyn production, and other concerns' activities.

NEXT CHAPLIN COMEDY TO BE BURLESQUE ON TYPICAL WESTERN "MOVIE"

Charlie Chaplin is at work on his next comedy for Mutual. While he has not made known definitely the character of the production he has hinted that it will be a "western." If the idea is worked out, it will probably be a burlesque on the typical western "movie."

Mutual's $670,000 a year comedian is back at the Lone Star studio at Los Angeles after a five day trip to San Francisco with his brother. Syd. When "The Immigrant" was completed, Chaplin declared a vacation for all hands and started for northern California with his brother. He showed the strain of the strenuous work on "The Immigrant" and returned after his rest, full of energy and enthusiasm for his forthcoming production.

Edna Purviance, Chaplin's leading woman, hurried to the old home town, Lovelock, Nev., where she spent the time between pictures.

AMERICAN COMPLETES WATER SCENES FOR JULIETTE DAY FILM

Water scenes in and out Los Angeles harbor were completed this week for "Betty and the Buccaneers," a future American Film feature, Juliette Day's cinema introduction.
BIDS FROM BUYERS ON "WHO'S YOUR NEIGHBOR?" ARE BRISK, IS REPORT OF MASTER DRAMA

Interest Manifested by Purchasers in State Rights Market Exceedes Concern's Expectation, Says General Manager Becker

Following the private showing last week of "Who's Your Neighbor?" the seven-reel sociological cinema spectacle to exhibitors, state rights buyers and trade newspaper critics, the offices of the Master Drama Features, Inc., 1493 Broadway, New York, have received many bids from buyers for this screen drama.

Is Propaganda Film

"The interest manifested by state rights buyers and exhibitors in this, our first screen production, has exceeded our fondest expectations," said General Manager Herman Becker. "All along, even while this picture was in process of production, we have felt that in it we had the ideal propaganda photoplay. It has been generally accepted by critics everywhere as the most powerful argument of its kind ever presented upon the screen. Virile and full of dramatic tension, it offers a solution for a troublesome problem. "In our desire to produce a photoplay that should stand out above anything of its kind, we have spared no expense. Written by Willard Mack, author of 'Kick In,' one of the greatest melodramatic successes ever seen in New York, and many other successful plays. 'Who's Your Neighbor?' was directed by S. Rankin Drew."

Cast Carefully Picked

The cast, including such well known favorites as Christine Mayo, Evelyn Patinoff, Ethel Desmond, Euredia Morgan and William Sherwood, was chosen carefully with a view to complete harmony of all the characters. The Overland Film Company, Samuel Krellberg, general manager, has been apointed selling agents and will operate from the offices of the Master Drama Features, Inc., 1493 Broadway, New York.

STANLEY V. MASTBAUM, PHILADELPHIA EXHIBITOR WITH THEATER CHAIN, SIGNS FOR GOLDWYN FILMS

Entire Year's Output of New Producing Concern's Products Will Be Shown in America's Third Largest Premier Showplace

Stanley V. Mastbaum, who controls a large chain of film theaters, has signed for the entire first year's output of twenty-six Goldwyn pictures for his Stanley Theater, Philadelphia.

Is Called Achievement

Thus does Goldwyn enter America's third largest city in the premier showplace of the community; an achievement as distinctive as its signing of the Strand Theater, New York. The booking of the Goldwyn productions by Mr. Mastbaum may be taken to mean that Goldwyn Pictures will be presented in the hundred or more theaters under the direct control of this Pennsylvania exhibitor.

Goldwyn's managers in its nineteen American branches, as well as the managers of its six Canadian offices, have been on duty since June 11 and announcement is about to be made of the signing of important exhibitors in most of the large American and Canadian centers.

Branch Showings in July

In other announcements this week Goldwyn gives the street addresses and locations of all of its branches in North America, and presents a solid front with no branch vacancies to be filled. While the formation of this distributing organization has been accomplished in sixty days the work of preparation for it has extended over a period of ten months.

Trade showings will be held in all of the branches in July, thus making good the promises of Goldwyn Pictures Corporation given to exhibitors last January.

EDWARD WARREN BUSY ON HIS SECOND FILM WITH ALL-STAR CAST

Edward Warren is busy at work on his second big production under his own banner. It promises to excel even the settings of "The Warfare of the Flesh," and an all-star cast is being used. A number of well-known actors have been secured from the stage as well as from the motion picture ranks, and they are being supported by a big cast.

The exact nature of the new play is not disclosed, but it is understood that it is going to be an all-pleasing heart story of the present day.

SHERRILL TRAINING WITH FIGHTER FOR ROLE IN NEW FILM

"Live in the atmosphere of the character to be played" evidently has become the motto of Jack Sherrill, the popular Frohman Amusement Corporation juvenile star. For the past three weeks, since the completion of his enacting the leading juvenile role in the Authors' Film Corporation production of Otto Hauerbach's Broadway play "The Silent Witness," young Sherrill has been hard at work under the tutelage of a prominent ex-lightweight champion of the padded ring, putting himself in shape for the lead which he will play in a coming Frohman production.

The part to be played by Jack Sherrill calls for some athletic stunts. It is, however, for the success of the prize-fighting scenes in the new play that young Sherrill is now priming himself, and consequently each morning finds him bounding the lanes about the outskirts of the city with his trainer and associate (each night finds him in close attention at some ringside), and it is rumored that the mysterious "Dixie Dandy" whose shifty left put one "Battling" Dunn along the knockout route a night or two since "somewhere in Jersey" was none other than the selfsame Jack Sherrill.

OLOMA PHOTOPLAY CO. IS FORMED AT TERRE HAUTE

Terre Haute, Ind.—A new motion picture company, to be known as the Oloma Photoplay Company, has been formed here and will commence work in a new studio on the outskirts of Cleveland as soon as the building is completed.

The Cleveland Chamber of Commerce furnished the site. The incorporators are: Al Weston of Terr-Haute, Ind.; Mabel Stone of Bicknell Ind.; Jane Darnell of the World Film Corporation, and it is announced the probably G. M. (Broncho Billy) Anderson will be among the owners.

Plans for the building of a modern studio are being drawn by Louie Walker, and the contract will be let to Edward Sunday. One of the chief features of the new concern will be the fact that every actor and actress in the company will be counted among the stockholders, as it will be formed on a co-operative basis.
BESSIE BARRISCALE AND KERRIGAN FILMS FOR PARALTA WILL BE FINISHED IN AUGUST

Big Sets Being Built for Features in Making; Lucille K. Younge and Edith Chapman in "Rose o' Paradise" Cast

Work is progressing rapidly on "Rose o' Paradise," the first Bessie Barriscale film under the direction of James Young, and also on the J. Warren Kerrigan production "A Man's Man," to be issued by Paralta Plays, Inc. Both of these features will be finished and ready for publication in August, it is expected.

Building Big Set
A massive outdoor scene is being constructed by Richard Holmes Paul, art director, for "A Man's Man," representing a cantina presided over by "Moth Jenks" in Sobrante, Central America. It is here many of the important scenes take place between John Stewart Webster, played by Mr. Kerrigan, and other leading characters of the story.

Another big set being built by Mr. Paul and his assistants represents a street in a small town in Virginia. This scene will be utilized in Miss Barriscale's production of Grace Miller White's story. Clyde De Vinna, Bessie Barriscale's cameraman, is introducing some original photographic effects in this production of "Rose o' Paradise."

Miss Younge Supports Star
Lucille Younge is playing the part of Miss Merriweather in support of Miss Barriscale. Edith Chapman has another important role in this play. Both these players are widely known. Both have been identified with several of the most important productions made on the screen.

Beside the new indoor studio and other improvements at the Paralta studios at Hollywood, a new property storage house is being built, dimensions 100 by 125, and a new light diffusing system is being installed, laid out on original lines devised by Robert Brunton. At least two months more work will be required to make all the changes and erect the new structures planned by Vice President Kane to bring the studios up to the standard of efficiency set by him.

MARCUS LOEW AND T. L. TALLY, BIG EXHIBITORS OF EAST AND WEST, MEET ON GOLDWYN "LOT"

T. L. Tally of the West and Marcus Loew of the East met at the Goldwyn studios in Fort Lee, N. J., last week and were photographed with Samuel Goldfish, president of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, and Alfred Weiss, vice president of the Goldwyn Distributing Corporation, out "on the lot" where a pretentious circus spectacle in Mac Marsh's third play was being photographed.

Mr. Tally owns and conducts a big motion picture house in Los Angeles, while Marcus Loew controls many theaters in New York City.

Varied Reports of Former Ruler’s Final End Hold Up Completion of Herbert Brenon’s Picture; Now Is Without Ending

So much is happening in Russia at present, and so varied are the accounts of the present mode of living and occupation of the czar and the royal family, that Herbert Brenon, who is working day and night to complete his picture “The Fall of the Romanoffs,” is unable to tell from day to day how his picture will end. At first he had planned to close his picture with the czar receiving the news of his overthrow at the railroad station.

Varied News Stalls Film

The news was cabled to this country that the czar and his whole family were devoting their energies and spare time to digging potatoes in one of their palaces just outside of Petrograd, and that in the garb of simple peasants, they had joined the back-to-the-soil movement.

Later came information that death had brought an end to the life of the ill-fated ruler of Russia. Still later Mr. Brenon was informed that the czar was still alive but had been thrown into prison.

Mr. Brenon is watching the dispatches with intense interest from day to day, hoping to glean the truth from the garbled dispatches, and to be able to get an ending for his picture.

Picture Without Ending

As it stands at present it is a picture without an ending and the only solution for the problem is for the Russian people to decide just exactly what will be the permanent fate of their former ruler.

“The Fall of the Romanoffs” is nearing completion. A few more weeks and the last scenes will be taken, that is, should circumstances permit.

ROTHACKER CO. GETS FIRST TRAVELOG FILMS FROM CAMERAMAN WORKING IN ORIENT

Will Send Staffs to National Parks for Scenic Series; Work on Other Features in Plant Now Under Way

The Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company of Chicago announces receipt of the first consignment of exposed negative from Charles Hugo, a cameraman who is in the Orient securing motion pictures of the life, industries and scenes of Japan, China, Sumatra, Java, Borneo and India.

Other activities at the Rothacker plant, Chicago, include the making of a five-reel Polish feature, entitled “His Peasant Wife,” the story of which was written by W. Zadora Szwalski; the finishing of a one-reel novelty subject typical of a day at Riverview park, and 1,000 feet of film showing every detail of the life of a soldier at the training camp at Port Sheridan, from the time he reports there until his training is finished.

To Film Big Parks

Two camera crews from the Rothacker studios will leave Chicago on July 12 to secure a series of scenic pictures of Yellowstone Park, Glacier National Park, the Jackson Hole district, Grand Canyon of the Colorado and other western territory, while another crew, under T. H. Miller, now is in New York State getting special industrial subjects.

GERALDINE FARRAR TO START ARTCRAFT FILM AT COAST NEXT WEEK

Cecil B. De Mille Will Direct Noted Diva at Lasky Studio; Film Not Named

Geraldine Farrar, who will soon make her debut as an Artcraft star under the direction of Cecil B. De Mille, is at present making a motor trip with her husband, Lou-Tellegen. The couple are touring the northern part of California and are expected back at the Lasky studio next week.

Cecil B. De Mille has set the machinery of the Lasky studio at work preparing for the forthcoming production, so that when the famous diva returns she will be able to commence work immediately. Upon completion of her first Artcraft picture, the title of which has not as yet been announced, Miss Farrar will take a two weeks’ rest before starting her second film.

GENERAL WILL OPEN THREE NEW EXCHANGES

Branches to Be Located in Cities Not Used as Distributing Centers

As the result of the expansion inaugurated by General Manager Harold Bolster in the General Film Company’s volume of product, the order has gone out for the opening of three exchanges in as many different cities as not used as distributing centers.

The three new exchanges will be announced soon. It was found necessary to provide them to relieve other exchanges of pressure of business arising out of the larger product being handled.

General Sales Manager S. R. Kent is at present engaged in organizing the staffs of the new exchanges and arranging quarters.

CRITERION THEATER AT ATLANTIC CITY LEASED BY FRANK HALL FOR THE SUMMER SEASON

New Jersey Exhibitor and State Rights Operator to Operate Big Boardwalk House with Feature Attractions; "The Whip" Used for Opening

The Criterion Theater, one of Atlantic City’s leading photoplay houses, situated on the boardwalk in the heart of the amusement district, has been leased for the summer by Frank Hall, the New Jersey exhibitor and state rights operator, who recently widened the scope of his activities by purchasing outright from Edgar Lewis his latest production, “The Bar Sinister.”

Mr. Hall opened the seashore theater June 23 with “The Whip” as the chief attraction, and this will be followed by “Enlighten Thy Daughter,” “The Bar Sinister,” “On Trial,” “Joan the Woman,” “Civilization,” “The Garden of Allah,” and “Beware of Strangers.” Mr. Hall controls the New Jersey rights to all of these films. The productions are distributed in that territory through the Civilization Film Corporation, with executive offices in Newark.

Contrary to the policy of most theatrical men, Mr. Hall does not believe in curtailing his activities in the summer. Not only will he keep all of his picture theaters open during the hot months, but he has increased the size of his programs, and with the aid of a special publicity campaign has launched a drive for summer business that already has brought excellent results.

Despite the recent hot weather, business in Atlantic City and other coast resorts has been splendid. “The Whip” played to big business on the occasion of its initial presentation at the Criterion, and throughout the week the house was filled.

CHICAGO COMPELLED TO ALLOW SHOWING OF “BIRTH CONTROL” FILM

Judge Joseph David and Jury Find Nothing Immoral in Margaret Sanger Photoplay

Chicago will be allowed to see Margaret Sanger in the photoplay “Birth Control.” Judge Joseph David and a jury so decided June 25, when a petition for a writ of mandamus compelling the city officials to issue a permit for the exhibition of the play was allowed.

The judge and jury attended a private showing of the film and failed to find anything immoral in the entire play. The picture portrays Margaret Sanger giving information on methods of birth control to women in the slums of New York.

$16,100 Suit Brought Against Kalem by Director J. W. Horne

Seeks $5,100 in Salary and $10,000 in Commissions Claimed to Be Due

Los Angeles, Cal.—Claiming a violation of contract, James W. Horne, a motion picture director, has filed a suit in the Superior Court to recover $16,100 from the Kalem Company.

Horne alleges he was to receive $200 a week and 2 per cent commission on pictures issued for one year from January 1, 1917, but that on June 18 he was discharged. The suit includes $5,100 salary claimed to be due, $10,000 on commissions and $1,000 for the use of his automobile.

REEL FELLOWS' CLUB OF CHICAGO HOLDS A SMOKER AND LUNCHEON

Film Shown for Entertainment of Members and Guests; Trade Well Represented

The Reel Fellows’ Club of Chicago held an old-fashioned smoker and lunch party at the clubrooms, Wa-bash avenue and Adams street, Friday night, June 29.

A pleasing feature of the evening was the showing of a film for the entertainment of the guests, and many men prominent in motion picture circles in the Midwest attended the open session.
FAIRBANKS ENGAGES TWO NOTED DIRECTORS TO MEET DEMAND FOR MORE FILM PLAYS

J. W. McDermott and Joseph Henaberry to Work Under Personal Supervision of Director-General John Emerson in Speeding Up Production

As a result of the unusual hits scored by Douglas Fairbanks' first two Arcafrict films, "In Again—Out Again" and "Wild and Woolly," and at the repeated requests of exhibitors all over the country, Arcafrict Pictures has notified the popular actor-producer that more pictures than originally called for are demanded. Never in the history of its existence have more remarkable reports of record-breaking business on a production been received by Arcafrict than were displayed last week soon after "Wild and Woolly" made its first public appearance throughout the country. At the Rialto Theater, New York, despite the hot weather, Manager Rothplet experienced his usual "Fairbanks business."

Thus, closely following the announcement from the Douglas Fairbanks office in California of its consideration of a means of speeding up productions, or rather the elimination of lost time between pictures, Arcafrict announces that Mr. Fairbanks has added two directors to his staff in the persons of John W. McDermott and Joseph Henaberry, who will work under the personal supervision of John Emerson. Mr. Emerson will hereafter be known as director general of the Fairbanks organization, and as a result of the assistance of McDermott and Henaberry will be able to overcome the loss of time as outlined recently in the new working plan of this producing unit.

Both Mr. McDermott and Mr. Henaberry have had considerable experience as directors, the former having been on the Morose directorial staff, while the latter is a graduate of the D. W. Griffith school and is responsible for many Fine Arts successes.

FOOD TRUST METHODS TO SQUEEZE BUYER AND PRODUCER EXPOSED IN "PUBLIC BE DAMNED"

Five-Part Feature Produced by Human Rights Film Corporation Approved by Herbert Hoover, United States Food Administrator; Will Arouse Public, He Says

Showing both the methods used by the food trust in squeezing the consumer and the producer, the Human Rights Film Corporation has produced a five-part film, entitled "The Public Be Damned," starring Charles Richman and Mary Fuller. The picture also shows the solution of the problem of defeating the men responsible for the high cost of food.

Herbert Hoover, former head of the Belgian Relief Commission and newly appointed Food Administrator of the United States, was recently given a special showing of "The Public Be Damned," and he heartily endorsed the production, declaring that it was especially timely and would arouse the public to a realization that something must and can be done to check the food barons who are robbing the public.

The picture will be presented at the Strand Theater, New York, this week.

The story concerns John Black, the head of a powerful food trust, and Marion and Bob Merritt, who own a small farm. The trust secures control of all food channels and strangulates the farmer, who cannot find a market for his products. Marion attempts to sell produce to a mission, but Black, who is behind it, blocks her plan. The farmers band together to fight the trust. Black gives Bob a check for $10,000 to cover the farm's output for three years, and Bob is denounced by the other farmers. Bill Garvin, a politician, professing friendship for the farmers, introduces a bill to control foodstuffs, and Marion works for its passage. Seeing the distress caused by the food trust, Bob helps to save the bill passed, taking it away from the gangster, and he is reinstated in the good graces of Marion, whose love he had lost.

KING-BEE MOVES TO BAYONNE, N. J.; STARTS SEVENTH COMEDY

Production of Billy West Features Will Be Carried on at New Plant During Summer

The King-Bee Comedy Company this week moved into large studios at Bayonne, New Jersey, and proposes to remain there during the summer months where production of comedies will be carried on. The Bayonne Studio has for some time been under the tenancy of Charles Urban, who has sublet the major part of it to the King-Bee Company.

Production of the seventh comedy of the series has started. Billy West, Babe Hardy, Leo White and Bud Ross are in the cast. The story is one of domestic strife. Billy and Babe and their wives occupy adjoining flats, and confusion arises when husbands and wives find themselves at war through mistaking one another's residences.

FAIRBANKS TO MAKE SERIES OF FIVE-REEL FILMS ON WORLD TOUR

Accompanied by Director Emerson and Prominent Players, Star May Start Trip Next Summer

Douglas Fairbanks is entertaining the thought of touring around the world next summer, providing war conditions do not interfere with his present plans. It is his intention to do a series of five-reel plays for publication through the Arcafrict, dealing with an American touring abroad, whose romance takes him to the various foreign countries. He will be accompanied on this trip by Director John Emerson and four prominent players, who will play important parts in the supporting cast. Director John Emerson has purchased a theme upon which will be based these European films.

Adapted by J. Grubb Alexander from the novel of Eleanor Gates and produced under the direction of Charles Swickard, "The Plow Woman" presents a vivid story of the days of 1871, in which a hard-hearted old Scot, Indians on the warpath, burning stockades and frontier soldiers play an important part.

Mary MacLaren portrays the part of Mary MacTavish the plow woman, in a most pleasing manner, and is accorded excellent support by a large cast of players, including H. C. De More, Marie Hazelton, L. C. Shunnway, Kingsley Benedict, Hector Sarno, Frank McQuarrie, Tommy Burns, George Hupp and a delightful little child, Clara Horton.

"The Beloved Adventuress" is a story of a sister's love for a younger sister and a desire to have the younger sister lead a better life. The film should prove to be a highly interesting and entertaining offering. The inauguration of Wilson, the parade of the West Point cadets and other features of the inaugural day celebration are injected into the story. And as the picture draws to a close the battle-scarred fields of France are shown with bombs exploding and trenches being blown up.

Kitty Gordon interprets with certain finesse the role of older sister while Lilian Cook's work as the younger sister registers very well. Other members of the cast are Madge Evans, Jack Drumier, Inez Shannon, Robert Forsyth, Edward Elkas, R. Payton Gibbs, Frederick Truesdell, William Sherwood, Finna Nesbitt and Katherine Johnston. The direction was done by George Cowl.

The story: At the death of their father, Francine Nicholson goes to live with her sister, Juliette La Monde, a former musical comedy favorite. Francine has been kept in ignorance of her sister's mode of living until Amy Barker, a member of the young smart set, tells her. When Francine learns her sister's past she will take no dictation from Juliette, who is trying to bring Francine up in a wholesome atmosphere.

Dying, Morgan writes a letter exonerating Juliette. After Francine is married to a man who has always loved her, Juliette goes to France where, as a nurse to the wounded soldiers, she meets her death.

SELIG-WORLD LIBRARY

No doubt by now exhibitors who have shown the Selig World Library have discovered its popularity with their patrons, and little need be said regarding its merits.

That the subjects have been assembled with a view to educational as well as entertaining qualities is evident. And those patrons who are desirous of seeing points of historic value as well as locations and industries which they perhaps would not see otherwise should find the World Library interesting.

In publication No. 8 are found scenes of historic and romantic New Orleans and its mint; the St. Louis Cathedral, which was built in 1775 and which is said to contain a corpse under each block forming the ancient cathedral; the St. Roch's Chapel, which was built in 1871 by Father Thevis; many interesting facts regarding the lion, king of beasts, and the making of lumber from the time the huge trees are chopped until it comes out smooth, flat boards.

"ALADDIN'S OTHER LAMP"

Metro comedy-drama; five parts; published June 25

As a whole: Amusing
Story: Interesting
Star: Good
Support: Punny Settings: Fair
Photography: Good

The patrons of motion picture theaters who take life more seriously and enjoy only the dramatic in picture productions doubtless will proclaim "Aladdin's Other Lamp" silly trash. The story is utterly improbable, being based on the Aladdin stories.

But the motion picture patron who goes to the theater with a view to seeing something that is of an entertaining nature, whether it be probable or improbable, will no doubt find entertainment in the working out of the story. And Viola Dana will be enjoyed by such audiences.

The story: Through the purchase of an Aladdin lamp, Patricia Smith, the drudge at Mrs. Duff's boarding house, is able to locate her mother. Mrs. Smith is wealthy and loses track of her daughter through separating from her husband. Harry Hardy, who always had been Patsey's friend, becomes a rising lawyer, and prospects for a happy future for Patsey and Harry are brought about.

"IN THE AFRICAN JUNGLE"

Selig drama; two parts; published July 1

As a whole: Good Story: Jungle life Star: Pleasing
Support: Punny
Settings: Faithful
Photography: Satisfying

As a general rule an animal picture means a picture that will please most audiences. "In the African Jungle" should prove a pleasing offering. The scenes represent the African jungles, and the various wild animals have been introduced into the story in an interesting manner.

The production is a reissue from the days when Kathryn Williams won popularity in animal pictures. Outside the fact that the clothes worn by Miss Williams are out of date, there is little in the direction and photography which would give away the age of the film.

Miss Williams is supported by Edwin Wallock and William Stowell.

The story: Robert Wayne is lost in the African jungle. His daughter Edith is anxious to locate him, and when she meets Captain Jones, a hunter, and learns of a wild man who inhabits the African jungle she becomes interested. She goes into the jungle accompanied by Captain Jones, and when the wild man sees his daughter his memory comes back to him and they are happily reunited.

"HATER OF MEN"

Kay-Bee Triangle comedy-drama; five parts; published July

As a whole: Mildly interesting Story: Fair
Support: Kind
Settings: Adequate
Photography: Idea

C. Gardner Sullivan's tale, "Hater of Men" might make good reading as a story, but as a screen play—that's another thing. This latest Triangle production is mostly subtitles, with a few pictures of Bessie Barriscale as a reporter, sitting in a Japanese tea room, mingling with Bohemians in their native haunts—i.e. studios—and preparing a meal for a "drawing room philosopher." Admirers of the dainty Miss Barriscale will like the little star's work, but the piece is devoid of action and possesses very little plot.

The story: Janice Salisbury is engaged to a young reporter, Billy Williams, who is covering court news on one of the city dailies. Becoming disgusted with the details of a divorce case, the story of which she is writing for her "solo" column, she breaks her engagement with Billy and becomes "a hater of men" and a cynic with regard to marriage. She becomes chummy with a crowd of men, who meet in her apartment, over the punch bowl, and finally finds herself eloped by her friends. She is saved from herself by a bachelor known as "the drawing room philosopher" and she renews her engagement with Billy.

"A BIT O' HEAVEN"

Frieder Film Corporation comedy-drama; five parts; published state rights

As a whole: Clean entertainment
Story: Pathetic
Cast: Very good
Settings: Adequate
Photography: Clear

Kate Douglas Wiggins' well known story "The Birds' Christmas Carol" has been made into an acceptable five-reel film by the Frieder Film Corporation, and is offered to exhibitors on the state rights basis.

It is a pathetic story, enacted by juvenile players for the most part, and should appeal to lovers of Mrs. Wiggins' books particularly. The severest censor board could not take exception to the screen play and the touch of comedy supplied by the child actors is delightful. Little Mary Louise, who is Carol Bird, portrays the little invalid in a manner most charming, while the nine Raggedy Ruggles' antics furnish innumerable funny situations.

The cast includes Mary Louise, Harold Skinner, Ella Gilbert, Madaline Eastin, Carl Miller, Mary Talbot, Donald Watkins and nine children. Miss Talbot is excellent as Mrs. Ruggles. The picture was directed by Lure Warren.

The story: Carol Bird, the child of wealthy parents, is a confirmed invalid. Her playmates shower her with gifts but she takes most pleasure in watching the nine Raggedy Ruggles children play at their games under her window. As Christmas approaches and her Uncle Jack is about to return from African jungles, she plans a big Christmas dinner, to which she invites the Ruggles. Mrs. Ruggles has a hard time dressing her offspring and making them presentable "in society" as she expresses it, but finally they appear hatless at Carol's bedside, enjoy the feast and go home laden down with holiday gifts. Carol whispers in her mother's ear as the children depart: "I do think we have kept Christ's birthday this time as He wanted it done."

"Big Timber" is an interesting story, laid in the timber regions. Kathryn Williams does some good work, as does Wallace Reid, and no doubt this will prove a popular offering.

Many phases of work in the timber regions are brought into the story in an entertaining manner, a forest re has been well handled, and the typical and beautiful settings should prove a delight to spectators. Exhibitors will undoubtedly find this a successful offering.

Miss Williams as Stella Benton and Wallace Reid as Jack Fyfe make an excellent team. They are supported by Joe King as Walter Monahan, Alfred Paget as Charlie Benton, Stella's brother, and Helen Grey as Linda Abbey.

The story: The death of their father leaves Stella Benton without a home and she goes to the timber regions to live with her brother. The roughness of her surroundings proves a burden to Stella, and when Jack Fyfe, who loves Stella, asks her to marry him, Stella accepts, although she does not love Jack.

Jack tries to win Stella's love, but without avail. Finally Stella goes to the city and tries to forget her unhappy married life. She becomes infatuated with Walter Monahan, but when she sees him at a cafe with another woman she realizes his fickleness, and then love for Jack returns to the surface. She returns to the timber region, where she is happily received by her husband.

This production has been made by people who know how to make pictures the feeling and experiences in viewing “Light in Darkness.” The photography and tinting are of the masterful Edison brand, and exhibitors should really find this a strong subject.

The story: On their way to the state penitentiary Hilary Kenyon and Ramsay Latham first meet, and there is mutual attraction. Their sentence is for ten years, but both are paroled after serving five years. After their parole they meet, and because Hilary has no friends Ramsay marries her. "Gentleman Harry," who was Ramsay's partner, learns of his marriage, and since it is against the rules for paroled prisoners to marry until after the expiration of their term, Harry endeavors to extort blackmail from Ramsay. However, Ramsay refuses to pay him, and Harry reports Ramsay's marriage to the parole board.

Sheriff Milligan, who has become a friend of Ramsay, goes to the governor to plead for his cause, and after much persuasion the governor strikes out the clause which says that the marriage of paroled prisoners is illegal until the expiration of their terms.

“THE GRAY GHOST”
Universal serial; fifteen parts; two reels published each week

As a whole: Exciting
Story: Excellent
Stars: Well cast

What will undoubtedly develop into a thrilling and exciting, as well as a deeply interesting serial, is "The Gray Ghost," produced by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company in fifteen chapters.

The story is adapted from "Loft," which ran serially in the Saturday Evening Post. The main action centers around a master-mind crook, known as the Gray Ghost. Once he gets a man in his power it is useless for the man to make a getaway.

The first three chapters have been handled in a fine manner. There is enough excitement provided in the ending of each chapter to make the spectator desire to see the next.

In addition to an interesting story, with each chapter having an ending that should bring patrons back, the picture has a large and strong supporting cast. Harry Carter, Emory Johnson and Priscilla Dean play important parts. Others appearing are Eddie Pottoe, J. Foster Morris, Lou Short, John Cook, T. D. Crittendon, Gertrude Astor, Dick La Reno and Wilton Taylor. The scenario and direction are the works of Stuart Paton.

The story of the first three chapters deals with the workings of the Gray Ghost to secure a two million dollar check in the possession of Wade Hildreth of London. "Hildreth has been sent to purchase a two million dollar necklace. It is the intention of the Gray Ghost to also secure possession of the necklace.

Hirelings of the Gray Ghost, representing themselves as employees of Arabin, the jeweler, meet Hildreth at the dock and secure rooms for him at the hotel. Hildreth follows them first by refusing to ride in their machine and second by taking a different suite.

The Gray Ghost then plans that his men get Hildreth at the theater, but through the efforts of Morn Light, the musical comedy star, their plans are again foiled.

The close of the third chapter finds Hildreth in Bishop's restaurant with instructions from Morn Light not to return to his hotel, and the Gray Ghost issuing instructions to his hirelings to "get" Hildreth.

“OUR NAVY”
Zenith Motion Picture Company patriotic feature; one reel

Jack Harlow who had charge of the camera corps which filmed the activities of the sailor boys in the embassy at the Lake Bluff (Ill.) Naval Training Station is to be commended for the modeling in film form the interesting scenes of life in the war, the life of the men who take up their duties aboard the great, gray man-o'-wars.

Captain Moffett, straight in stature, grim-visaged, stern but patient appearing, is brought before the audience at the Castle Theater, Chicago, where the picture is being shown this week. The flower of American youth, the picture has been carefully attended to. The photography is clear, while the subtitles are well written.

This short subject should be welcomed by any exhibitor. It will afford diversion from heavy drama, and besides being educational, should entertain and even enthuse any typically American audience.

"The Road Between," smacks of the melodramatic, where the villain tries to get the beautiful maiden to sign away her rights to a tract of land which contains valuable coal deposits. There are a few clever subplots and some very pretty little scenes, but the picture fails to hold the attention and falls far below the standard of the present day requirements. Miss Swayne's handling of the part of Polly is the only redeeming feature.

Others in the cast are: Bradley Barker, Armand Cortes, Gladys Fairbanks, Frank Andrews and Kirk Brown. The picture was produced by Joseph Levering.

The story: Polly's father becomes very rich through an important scientific discovery, and her step-mother who longs for society persuades him to give up the farm and go to live in the city. Polly's father deeds to her a tract of land on which to pasture her pet calf.

In the city they meet a group of social parasites who succeed in getting all the father's money. He then signs over to them all the land he owns. But they discover that the deed to the tract of land they want most, is not among the other deeds, and they ask Abbott about it. He tells them that the land belongs to his daughter. Polly overhears the conversation and decides for the sake of her father to sign her portion of the land over to the parasites. She receives a letter from Davey, her sweetheart back at the farm, telling her that her land is rich with coal.

The men have arrived to await her signature to the deed at the time that Polly receives the letter from Davey. She refuses to sign the deed and shows her father the letter. He orders the men out of the house, and then takes his daughter in his arms. Later, back at the farm, she meets Davey and they wed.

Replete with beautiful snow scenes, this story of the North country moves along swiftly, one climax following another, forming a gripping, interesting story.

The clever star wins the sympathy of her audience from the start, and the star cast supporting Miss Gonzalez embraces such well-known names as Gretchen Led-er, Lawrence Peyton, G. M. Rickerts, George Hernandez, Jack Curtis, Jean Hersholt and Maud Emory. It is a beautiful production, well acted and carefully directed.

The story: Barbara Benson, upon the death of her mother, finds it difficult to control her young, wild brother Jimmy, and when he decides to go to the Klondike to seek his fortune she gives him her last cent. Falling in with a tough gang, he loses his money, becomes involved in a fight and is shot by Leberge, who is in love with "Seattle Sue," when the latter tries to shield Jimmy. Where Fannie Ward is a favorite "Her Strange Wedding" will no doubt receive a warm welcome, since it is practically all Fannie Ward. However, the story is weak and at times drags, until the last five hundred feet when some action is injected into the picture.

The story tells of two young men who love the same woman. One brother is an honest young man while the younger brother is fleeing the law. The younger brother wins the girl and when he sees his brother talking to his wife, they get into a fight, the latter winning out.

Jack Dean, Tom Forman and Billy Elmer support Miss Ward. Charles Maigne wrote the scenario and George Melford directed it.

The story: Dr. Max Brownell loves Coralie Grayson, but when Coralie meets Lee, the doctor's brother, it is a case of love at first sight and a short time after they are married.

Lee has taken money from his former employer and is fleeing the law. For the honeymoon the young people go to Honolulu. Max, disappointed over the turn of affairs, also goes to Honolulu to be alone. He meets Lee and Coralie on the steamer and Lee becomes jealous of Max.

Lee is the victim of a weak heart and in one of his moments of rage at Max he becomes ill. They arrive at Honolulu and while convalescing Lee notices the attention Max pays Coralie and decides to shoot him. On the beach the two brothers engage in a fight and Max is victorious. Coralie realizes her mistake and also realizes that she has always loved Max.

"A RAG BABY"
Selig-K-E-S-E comedy; two parts; published July 9

The third of the Hoyt comedies for publication on the K-E-S-E program is entitled "A Rag Baby." There are many humorous situations in this comedy, and no doubt patrons of picture theaters will find this film a very entertaining subject.

The kidnapping of a baby, the humorous operation of a drug store by a man who does not know one chemist from another, and the throwing of a bomb by blackhanders are among the thrilling and humorous episodes in the picture.

In the cast are William Fables, James Harries, Edward Allen, Amy Dennis, Tony West and Jim West.

Mo-Toy Comedies Seen as Summer Program Aid

Films Have Wide Appeal to All Classes, Giving Novel and Clean Entertainment, Says H. C. Allen, Peter Pan Film Corporation President

Kennon of perception, sound judgment and unbounded enthusiasm are the characteristics that make for success in any field of endeavor and those qualities are extolled in H. C. Allen, president of the Peter Pan Film Corporation.

In expressing his opinion upon the industry in general and the Mo-Toy Comedies, he said: "All that has been accomplished in the 'movies' dwarfs before the tremendous future that lies in proper film interpretation of the work of masters in thought and literature. Not 'high brow' stuff, which has only an academic appeal to the w, but the great big human appeal expressed, if I may in a phrase, in the 'mental vernacular of the people.'

Cites Beban Film as Example

"The productions of George Beban, for instance, are delightful portrayals of life; there is nothing trashy about them and they represent a type of picture we want more of. Humanity, like individuals, is interested in itself; the very fact that one half of the world does not know how the other half lives creates a lively interest in any accurate, artistic portrayal of life with which one half of it is not familiar.

"It does the opinion you express find amplification in Mo-Toy Comedies to which you are just now giving our attention? "Mo-Toy Comedies, of course, are in harmony with the opinion I have expressed inasmuch as they are perfectly wholesome, but on other grounds they have a wide-open appeal to all classes of people. Remember, the child is the father of the man and any man or woman who has lost interest in children or has lost contact with the delightful other world in which the child mind lives, is lost—almost hopelessly lost.

Appeal in Mo-Toy Comedies

"Mo-Toy Comedies appeal to all right thinking people and draw desirable audiences: they have a universal appeal by virtue of their fascinating interest and the ingenuity of their production. It pays a compliment to an audience to assume that they have a lively interest in things that pertain to child life. Only recently an experience in a well known suburban theater proved this. At an afternoon show, fostered by the women of the community, the exhibitor, either through an error of judgment or bad taste, put on a reel that soon developed a dance hall scene with a barroom and all its activities. Some of the ladies in the audience began at once to gather their children preparatory to an immediate departure. The picture was snapped off instantly and a Mo-Toy comedy was put on; the delights of the audience both adult and juvenile was audible expressed in no unmistakable manner.

Zoological Series an Example

"The success that attended the Zoological series of Ditmar further instances a point of popular appeal along right lines.

"Then the reception that already has attended Mo-Toy Comedies inspires you to further adventures along this line.

"Without a shadow of doubt, the success of Mo-Toy Comedies lies in the fact that they get quite away from similarity to anything else in the motion picture field. The dolls are well selected; animation is carefully done and the pictures are not long enough to tire. They are refreshing.

"And this is a matter that exhibitors should bear care-fully in mind with the approach of the hot summer months. They will be well advised to go more into the open market and avoid booking long features at high prices. Good class stuff with a wide appeal and not long, drawn out, will keep the theaters well filled in the hottest weather. Fans are too occupied with the problems of their own fatigue and inconvenience from the heat to add the complicated problems of certain feature films to their own troubles.

Mothers Approve Comedies

"The key to the summer situation is the ability of the exhibitor to interest, to amuse and to elevate without labored or palatable effort.

"For an absolutely impartial opinion of the value of our work witness the enthusiasm and delight of the National Congress of Mothers' and the Parent-Teacher Associations in Chicago, before whom Mo-Toy Comedies have been shown. This is a gratifying endorsement of the pulling power and desirability of the series.'

George Fawcett Stars in New Selig Film from "Caleb Conover"

Tale by Albert Payson Terhune

George Fawcett, the stage and screen star, perhaps does his finest motion picture acting in the forthcoming Selig drama founded on the book and play, "Caleb Conover," written by Albert Payson Terhune. The story was produced in motion pictures by Colin Campbell from the scenario by Gilson Willets.

In the drama Mr. Fawcett has many opportunities for artistic character delineation and it is said he takes full advantage of them all. In the beginning he is seen as a section boss on a railroad. Later he becomes the leader in his ward. How Caleb earns his first million dollars and how he wins a bride are also presented in an interesting manner. Then there comes a time when the masterful boss can no longer govern events. His slogan, "What I want I take," proves misguided. His son, his daughter, the woman he trusted, all prove disappointments, and he meets a tragic end.

Those who have seen preliminary showings of the drama pronounce it excellent. There is said to be a very capable cast in the support of Mr. Fawcett, including Thomas Santschi, Fritz Brunette, Frank Clark, Eugene Besserer and others. The scenic effects are also declared to be out of the ordinary, particularly the scenes in the Caleb Conover home, which, it is stated, are unsurpassed for neatness, beauty and depth. A number of unusual lighting effects are also introduced during the course of the action.

Mr. Fawcett won success both in Europe and America in the character part of Caleb Conover, which was very popular on the stage.

"John Ermine of Yellowstone," with Francis Ford, is New Universal Film

Francis Ford has secured thrilling battle scenes for the Universal eight-reel special feature "John Ermine of Yellowstone," a screen adaptation of the novel by Louis Evan Shipman. Mr. Ford plays the leading role in the picture, supported by Mae Gattson and Duke Worne.
"MARY MORELAND," ADAPTED FROM NOVEL, STARING MARJORIE RAMBEAU, LEADS MUTUAL PROGRAM FOR JULY 9 WEEK

"Mary Moreland," a picture dramatization of Marie Van Vorst's popular novel with Marjorie Rambeau in the title role, leads Mutual's schedule for the week of July 9. "Mary Moreland" is the sixth of Miss Rambeau's productions for Mutual. This film follows "The Dazzling Miss Davison," "The Mirror," "The Debt," "Motherhood" and "The Greater Woman," a series in which exhibitors have found box office value.

"Mary Moreland" is the story of a very ordinary girl from a very ordinary suburban home, who, in her career as a stenographer, became a most extraordinary young woman. She won the love of a rich man. How she resists the temptation of love and wins is the story the picture tells.

Marjorie Rambeau is well cast in "Mary Moreland." The character provides wide opportunity for the display of her emotional talent. The supporting cast includes Robert Elliott, who has played opposite Miss Rambeau in her Powell-Mutual productions and who formerly supported Margaret Hlington, Gene LaMoth, Augusta Buremster, Fraser Tarbut and Edna M. Holland. The picture was produced under the direction of Frank Powell at the studios of the Frank Powell Producing Corporation, College Point, L. I.

FOURTEENTH OF "RAILROAD RAIDERS"

"The Trap" is the title of the fourteenth installment of "The Railroad Raiders." Mutual-Signal Photo novel, for July 9. Helen Holmes, playing the leading role, makes a daring leap from a moving train, crossing a viaduct, into a river and rescues the hero. Miss Holmes' exploits in the "The Railroad Raiders" have been the most sensational of her screen career.

George Ovey's Horsley-Mutual one-reel comedy, "Jerry at the Waldorf," is scheduled for publication, July 12. Jerry beats his board bill and gets into a fashionable hotel, where his experiences in hunting a bathroom create wild commotion and eventually land Jerry in jail.

Hawaiian atmosphere has been introduced into the La Salle comedy, "When Lulu Danced the Hula," on the Mutual for July 13. Barrymore boggled Hawaiian girls take a conspicuous part in this film.

"STRICTLY BUSINESS," FROM O. HENRY

TALE, OFFERED EXHIBITORS BY GENERAL

All the subtle humor of which O. Henry could boast is centered in the latest of his stories to be issued through General Film in its series of twenty-two-reel Broadway Star Features by this noted author. In "Strictly Business," the platonic relations of a pair of vaudeville artists, who travel together in a successful sketch, but who appear off stage on purely formal terms, is made the background for a dramatic climax, followed by a comedy anti-climax which O. Henry uses with effect in his short stories.

Alice Brady, who stars the girl in "No Story," another recent O. Henry success, is seen as the vaudeville actress. J. Frank Glendon reappears in this Broadway Star Feature after his former work in "The Marionettes," "Friends in San Rosario," etc.

TRIANGLE ISSUES POLICY STATEMENT TO EXHIBITORS

Will Issue Two Films Each Week, with Noted Stars; Intensive Co-operation in Service and Advertising to Be Rendered Theater Owner

The following statement was issued from the offices of the Triangle Distributing Corporation, Thursday, June 29, to all exhibitors:

During the past few weeks there have been carried in trade papers and motion picture journals many rumors about the future of Triangle. At first we felt that it could be best not to comment on these one way or the other, but after due consideration we feel that the exhibitors are entitled to know the true status of conditions.

For this reason we take great pleasure in announcing that the future of Triangle was never more assuring than it is at present. A complete reorganization and consolidation of the producing plants has made possible to bring the production of a picture down to a scientific business basis. All waste is eliminated, making possible to spend a specified amount of money for each picture, wherein the entire value goes into the production of the picture itself, a plan that has heretofore not been attempted.

System of Direction and Criticism

The direction of all Triangle productions will be in the hands of the best directors that can possibly be secured—the plan of organization making it possible for three directors to work almost as one on the production of any picture. In this way full advantage is given to the exhibitor of every dollar spent upon each production.

After productions have been made by the Triangle Film Company they will undergo the most rigid criticisms by people capable of passing on the merits of a production, and when any picture falls below the Triangle standard it will not be released on the Triangle program, but another will be substituted in its place, assuring you and every exhibitor of a consistent program of the highest quality at all times.

Star, Production, Service

Our policy of two productions per week makes it possible for us to render the most efficient service of any organization releasing pictures. There will be stars on the future Triangle productions, such as have been on Triangle productions in the past, but it will be the intent of the Triangle Company to help the exhibitor advertise Triangle pictures and Triangle service at the same time that he is advertising such stars.

In other words, we want each picture to have such value that the exhibitor can advertise from three different angles, namely: the star, his production itself and the service which it represents. By this means we will not place you in such position that it some future date you will have to pay an exorbitant price for the star that you yourself have helped to make.

The Triangle program must be sold at equitable prices and each picture so made that this program will be a valuable asset to any house. We are not coming out with any big story as to how we intend taking care of the exhibitor regardless of all other things, and how unfair others have been to him since the beginning of the picture industry, because we believe that most all exhibitors are fully developed business men able to take care of themselves and understand any proposition through a fair business proposition when it is submitted.

Willng to Submit Business Policies

We are perfectly willing to submit our future business policies to the business men in the exhibiting end and we do not think that we will suffer by the final analysis.

Our service will not be excelled by any distributing organization today. It will be our desire to co-operate and help the exhibitor to make the Triangle program an asset to his house. Our pictures will be made from well known plays that carry an advertising value at all times.

“MRS. RAFFLE’S CAREER” IS VEHICLE IN WHICH JULIAN ELTINGE WILL MAKE FILM BOW THROUGH PARAMOUNT

Following the announcement that Julian Eltinge, the noted feminine impersonator, is to make his motion picture debut as a member of the Famous Players-Lasky stellar forces, Jesse L. Lasky, vice president of the corporation, announces that the first production in which Mr. Eltinge will star upon the screen will be “Mrs. Raffle’s Career.”

This story, which is a combination of comedy, mystery and thrills, was written for Mr. Eltinge by Gillett Burgess and Carolyn Wells in collaboration. It will be staged at the Lasky studio in Hollywood, and Mr. Eltinge, who has just closed a successful season in “Cousin Lucy,” will shortly go to the Lasky studio in Hollywood, where the script of this story has already been forwarded, in order that preparation for the staging of the production can be begun.

“Mrs. Raffle’s Career” is the second production which Mr. Burgess has written for Famous Players-Lasky, Billie Burke being now actively engaged at the company’s eastern studio upon an adaptation of Mr. Burgess’ story “The Mysterious Miss Terry,” which was chosen as a vehicle for Miss Burke’s first appearance in Paramount pictures.

TOPICS FROM FRANCE, ITALY AND SAHARA ARE IN GAUMONT REELS SCHEDULED THE WEEK OF JULY 15

It is an interesting program of single-reels which comes from Gaumont through Mutual the week of July 15. The first film of the week is “Tours Around the World” No. 37, to be issued July 17. First in importance upon this reel is Avignon, France. This ancient city is known to all the Roman Catholic world as the home of the popes during the fourteenth century, and for this reason will excite a great deal of interest among those of this faith. The city is picturesque in the extreme, and the views of it are comprehensive. On the same reel are pictures of Timbuktu, the city situated on the edge of the Desert of Sahara within a few miles of the River Niger. A third section shows the ruined palace of Tiberius upon the Island of Capri, Italy.

The second film of the week is Gaumont’s Mutual Weekly No. 133, July 18. This contains the latest news of the world obtainable for motion pictures. The war pictures, sent from the Societe des Establisements Gaumont in Paris, are the first always to reach this shore.

“Reel Life” No. 64 is to be issued July 19. “Incandescant Mantles” tells in pictures just how these aids to illumination are manufactured. “The Boy Scout Signal Corps” shows the youth of the nation being trained for war, and may well fit in the war schedule for the future time. “The Cocoaanut” gives views at various periods of growth and also some grotesque carvings of the rind of the fruit. Other sections of the reel are “A Novel Bicycle Race” and “Leaves from ‘Life.’”
REMBUSCH LAUDS KLEINE FOR ABOLISHING DEPOSITS

Indiana M. P. E. L. President Predicts Sounder Commercial Basis and Commands Move by Veteran Producer in Correspondence

The following correspondence, which will be of interest to exhibitors, passed between George Kleine, the veteran producer, and Frank J. Rembusch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of Indiana, anent the abolition of the deposit system:

Mr. F. J. Rembusch, Exhibitor's Protective Association, Shelbyville, Ind.

My Dear Mr. Rembusch:
I have held before me our correspondence of February 6th, 21st and 22nd last, in connection with advance deposits. Our advertisements in this week's trade papers is my final answer. I have abandoned the system and will refund all deposits in our hands to the method outlined in the second paragraph of your letter of February 6th, namely, that all film rentals be paid before the film leaves the exchange. If my action will be of any use to exhibitors in forcing other distributors to follow suit in the interest of the exhibitor, I shall be pleased.

With kind regards, I remain
Very truly yours,
(Signed) GRO. KLEINE.

Predicts Sound Commercial Basis

Mr. Geo. Kleine,
Motion Pictures, 63 East Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

My Dear Mr. Kleine:
Answering your letter of June 26th, I am certain that your decision to eliminate the advance deposit system will benefit every exhibitor in the United States. This is a great step forward in the right direction, and if your action is followed by other film producers and exchanges it will have the effect that the entire film industry will soon return to a sound commercial basis.

The advance deposit system was never right and never will be.

The advance deposit system more than anything else caused the present high salaries of stars and the unreasonable advance in film service during the last three or four years.

It was this system that allowed the producers and manufacturers an opportunity to finance themselves by the exhibitors' money and thereby cause unwarranted extravaganzas in the cost of production and the bloating up of salaries.

The advance deposit system makes it necessary in order to pay these high salaries to produce footage and not pictures.

We boast that motion pictures are a great art. But why do producers always make a picture a mile long? Is art measured by a tape line? Why is almost every program a five-reeler as a general thing? Would not the public generally rather see two reels of a great star and two reels of another great star, especially during this hot weather? Why can't programs be made more flexible so that the exhibitors can cater to the wants of the public and not have to pay to the picture fan: "Unless you spend an hour and a half or two hours you can't see a whole show."

Wants Shorter Programs

Our next move should be shorter programs. I believe that 90 per cent of the people spend rather an hour's program than an hour and a half or two hours.

It is the advance deposit that stands in the way. A film manufacturer who needs the advance deposit should not be patronized.

Exhibitors should realize that there is something wrong with the producers who insist on having their money weeks, months and years in advance.

I am glad to see your stand. Evidently you have the means and the courage to carry on your business upon its merits and I hope it will have the effect of forcing every other producer to follow your initiative. But with the elimination of this system we should go on a strictly cash rental basis. It should be a set rule that no producer nor exchange allow a film to leave the exchange to any exhibitor no matter how great may be his financial standing without the film being paid for before it leaves the exchange. Let both the exhibitor and manufacturer do business on a strictly cash basis. This question is so important that it should receive the attention of the National Association of the Moving Picture Industry so that a standard system of trade be established between the exhibitors and producers at once.

On behalf of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of Indiana

I desire to thank you for the stand you have taken on the advance deposit system and wish you the greatest of success.

Very cordially yours,

FRANK J. REMBUSCH,
President, M. P. E. L. of Indiana.

Mr. Rembusch for a number of years has fought for the elimination of the deposit system and at the last M. P. E. L. convention in Chicago brought it before exhibitor delegates.

"MAGIC OF MOTIVE POWER" FROM TIME OF COLUMBUS' LANDING SHOWN IN SELIG FILM ON GENERAL, JULY 9

"The Magic of Motive Power" is the title of the Selig feature film issued by General Film service, July 9. This production is said to be highly interesting, presenting as it does the evolution of transportation from the coming of Columbus to the time of the deadly submarine. Exact replicas of Columbus' fleet is shown approaching the new continent. Then comes the drag-pole used in travel by the American Indian. The old days of the prairie schooner are rehearsed, the days of the sailing vessels, the steamboat, the stage coach, the steam locomotive, the trolley cars, elevated systems and finally the hydroplane and the submarine.

STARS ON ARTCRAFT PROGRAM ARE BUSY IN EAST AND WEST STUDIOS

As his third Arctraft picture, Douglas Fairbanks will appear in an original story written by himself, the temporary title of which is "The Optimist." This subject will offer a typical Fairbanks photoplay staged by John Emerson, Eileen Percy, who has just signed a year's contract to appear opposite Fairbanks, will head the supporting cast. The new Fairbanks story is now being prepared for screening by Anita Loos.

George M. Cohan's next picture for Arctraft, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," now is being produced at the Famous Players New York studio. This film story is an adaptation from Cohan's popular stage success.

At the Famous Players-Lasky studio in Fort Lee Elsie Ferguson will start her initial photoplay, "Barbary Sheep." Maurice Tourneur will direct Miss Ferguson.

Geraldine Farrar, who arrived in Los Angeles recently to appear in a series of photodramas for Arctraft under the direction of Cecil B. De Mille, has contracted a severe case of tonsillitis, which has delayed her activities at the Lasky studio.

Cleveland, O.—James Steele, former treasurer of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, has been made district manager of the Middle West for the distribution of Paramount and Arctraft pictures, and will open an exchange on the third floor of the Standard Theater building on Prospect Avenue. E. T. Gerrish has been appointed sales manager.

Danville, Ill.—Ogle & Davidson Company have bought the motion picture theater at Oaklawn. This firm also operates the Central Theater here.
POOR DONATES "MAN WHO WAS AFRAID" FILM WITH WASHBURN TO STIMULATE ARMY RECRUITING IN CHICAGO

George K. Spoer, president of Essanay, donated a copy of Bryant Washburn's latest feature, "The Man Who Was Afraid," to the First Illinois regiment to be used for recruiting purposes. The soldiers secured the use of one of the big downtown Chicago theaters and inhabited the picture there amid a military demonstration. The entire regiment paraded the loop district, adding their voices to the regimental band. Banners were displayed advertising the showing of the picture, admission to the theater being free. Recruiting agents on every corner, opping men and asking them to enlist, advised all who passed to "Go see 'The Man Who Was Afraid.'"

From 11 a.m. until 11 p.m., the theater was packed, officers of the regiment addressed the crowds between each showing, urging them to join and fight for their country. Recruiting booths had been erected in the lobby and here officers received the applications. The play was adapted from Mary Brecht Pulver's story in the Saturday Evening Post.

"The Man Who Was Afraid" presents an appeal for patriotic action of the type enforced by the officers' rousing speeches and the martial music of the regimental band, caused hundreds of spectators to enlist as they left the theater. The regiment was enabled by this one coup to bring its ranks almost up to war footing.

K.E.S.E Service, which concerns issued the film, is repairing to aid exhibitors in other towns in getting the cooperation of recruiting officers for their showings of this production.

UNE ELVIDGE, CARLYLE BLACKWELL AND A. ASHLEY IN NEW WORLD FILM

"The Marriage Market," a September playphotography for World-Pictures Brady-made, is a screen version of the widely read story "Dandy Dick." Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge and Arthur Ashley are the featured players.

ART DRAMAS, WITH FILMS READY MONTH IN ADVANCE, ANNOUNCES STUDIOS WORK ON FUTURE PLAYS

With productions completed more than a month in advance of their issue dates, and with others for summer issuance in work, the four studios contributing to Art Dramas program are working at full capacity.

At the Apollo studio "When You and I Were Young" is practically completed, although it is not due for publication until the middle of July. This week work will be begun on the next Apollo, which has as its working title "Behind the Mask." This was written by Charles E. Dazev, author of "Manhattan Madness" and "Wolf Lowry," Triangle successes. This last production is dated for publication for the last week of August.

At the Van Dyke studio "Miss Deception," from the story by Joseph Franklin Poland, is being put into shape by Eugene Nowland, who was recently engaged to direct Jean Sothern in this picture. In this film Miss Sothern has a new kind of role which suits her well.

Two pictures are in work at the Eubograph studio. These are "The Road Between," which is being made by Joseph Levering with Mary Wayne in leading role, and "The Millstone," from the story by Albert Payson Terhune, which Ben M. Goetz is directing. One of these is nearly finished, while the latter has just been started.

The U.S. Amusement studios are occupied principally with the production of "The Peddler," which Herbert Blache is directing, with Joe Welch in the title role.

"JOAN OF THE CATTLE LAND," STARRING HARRY CAREY, UNDER WAY AT COAST

An exciting story of the West, entitled "Joan of the Cattle Land," is being filmed by Director Jack Ford at Universal City. Harry Carey, as Fort Augustus, the bad man, and Molly Malone has the principal feminine part. The story, a five-reeler, was written by George Hively.

CARL LAEMMLE ISSUES STATEMENT TO TRADE ON SUIT FOR DAMAGES BROUGHT BY MRS. GRACE HUMISTON

The following statement is made by Carl Laemmle, president of Universal Film Manufacturing Company, relative to a suit which Mrs. Grace Humiston, a New York lawyer, has instituted in the Supreme Court:

To the Press:

This company is placed in a bad light in the stories published about Mrs. Grace Humiston's suit for alleged damages due to our displaying motion pictures of her in our "Animated Weekly." While we will, of course, answer to the proper legal manner through the courts, still we do not feel that we should stand accused in the meantime of holding Mrs. Humiston or any other woman up to ridicule and contempt, as she alleges in her complaint.

In common with all other appreciative citizens, we realize the great good that Mrs. Humiston has accomplished for the community in the Ruth Gruyer case, and it was because we believed in her movement worthy of national as well as local recognition that we took a motion picture of her while she was in a public street in front of Cochit's shop.

Picture Reflection of Praise

The very title of the picture ("The Woman Who Succeeded Where the Police Failed") was but a reflection of the praise that had been given her by the newspapers—the same newspapers which had published pictures of Mrs. Humiston without being sued for damages or being accused of holding her up to contempt or ridicule.

The purpose of this statement is to explain that Mrs. Humiston must have been willing to be photographed, for she smiles and waves into the bulky battery of cameras which was leveled at Mrs. Humiston, as she must recall, but it so happened that ours was the only motion picture camera on the spot. How she can seek to make a distinction between a photograph taken with an ordinary camera and a succession of pictures taken by a motion picture camera, or how the one holds her up to public ridicule any more or any less than the other we cannot see.

As for the public, the fact that it applauded most vigorously when Mrs. Humiston's picture was flashed upon the screen at the Broadway Theater night after night seems to prove that the people viewed it with the exact opposite of ridicule or contempt.

Fighting for Liberty of Screen

We cannot afford to withdraw the picture and drop the case, because it is vital to establish once for all the right of a motion picture newspaper or magazine to publish pictures of current events and all persons who figure therein and who are, therefore, the subject of public interest. It is necessary to obtain judicial recognition of the right of a motion picture newspaper or magazine to publish actual and true photographs of events of the daily news and of the persons who participate in the events which are a part of the daily news. We believe the screen is hedged about with the same safeguards that the constitution of the United States throws around the press, and that to abridge one would be to abridge the other. The Universal has fought many a hard fight for the freedom of the screen and in the present instance is forced to join issue with Mrs. Humiston. We do so with sincere motives and with all respect for Mrs. Humiston.

CARL LAEMMLE,
President, Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

This statement from the company's head explains the concern's side of the matter and exemplifies how easily a film company can be accused of giving offense where no offense was intended.
JUNK PAPER INJURES BUSINESS ON BIG PICTURES, SAYS SPITZER,
GENERAL MANAGER OF KING-BEE

“What’s the paper like?” is one of the first questions the state rights buyer asks of the man who wants him to take his pictures. Let us suppose it to be a $100,000 feature with a Broadway star. “What’s the paper like?” Or a comedy. The same question. The state rights buyer knows that the measure of the impression made by the paper on an exhibitor is the measure of the picture’s pulling power, or at any rate largely so. It is chiefly the paper which gets an audience together for the first time.

Spitzer of Contrary Opinion

Does the exhibitor attach the same absolute and relative importance to the paper as the state rights buyer? Most persons would say that he does, but Nat H. Spitzer, vice president and general manager of the King-Bee Films Corporation, is of a contrary opinion.

“The exhibitor,” says Mr. Spitzer, “too frequently allows his word to be misled in this important matter. He slurs over the question of the paper. He does not put out fresh, bright paper with every picture he books.

“Undoubtedly, mounted paper, for that is where the trouble originates, is not essential; it is not even advisable! You see, it gets dirtier and dirtier with each booking. Dirty paper prejudices a picture, because it repels the public. Mounted paper is a great convenience if it is kept clean and shown clean. But it rarely is, unfortunately, except on first runs.

Duty Should Oblige Clean Paper

“His duty to the public should oblige the exhibitor to assure that the paper is always clean and fresh and has not before been publicly exhibited. He should exert as much care in the selection of his paper as of his films and the interior equipment of his theater. Small town exhibitors are peculiarly careless in this respect and it is to them I am mainly addressing this warning.

“If a paper is mistracted so as to unfavorably affect the attitude of the public towards the picture it should not be used at all. In recent years the paper for motion pictures has become artistic as well as striking and it seems to me a pity that it should so frequently he shown in a dirty and delapidated state. It is bad business for the picture.”

BEAUTIFUL CALIFORNIA SCENERY IS USED TO REPRESENT GARDEN OF EDEN
IN CORONA’S “CURSE OF EVE” FILM

Scenic places of southern California, particularly in the canyons of the Sierra Madre Mountains and on Santa Cruz Island, were the locations for the pictorially beautiful prologue which introduces the story of “The Curse of Eve,” the multiple-reel picture now under production by the Corona Cinema Company of Los Angeles.

The prologue, which depicts the creation of the world and the incidents of the Garden of Eden, taken from the biblical narrative, is but a minor portion of the film.

The makers of the picture spent nearly as much time in producing this introductory part of the film as they did on the picture itself, which features Enid Markey as the modern Eve, the girl of the story.

In order to secure the locations which would best represent the beauties of the Garden of Eden, the Corona Company, including General Manager Keerl, Director Frank Beal and the cameraman, William C. Thompson, made trips through a great deal of the mountainous region of the southern part of the state, as well as visiting most of the islands in the channel group off the coast of southern California.

NORMA TALMADGE PICKS NOTABLE
CAST TO SUPPORT HER IN NEW FILM PRODUCTION, “THE MOTH”

Norma Talmadge has selected a notable cast to support her in her newest film, “The Moth,” a play said to rival “Poppy,” her most recent success.

Opposite her in her forthcoming production will appear Eugene O’Brien, who has won success on the stage in support of Margaret Illington, Ethel Barrymore, Kyle Bellew, Irene Fenwick, Frances Starr and Elsie Janis, and in the films has played with Clara Kimball Young and Olga Petrova as well as with Miss Talmadge.

Donald Hall is another member of the “Poppy” cast who will appear in “The Moth.” Mr. Hall has appeared in a number of Vitagraph pictures and also upon the speaking stage in musical comedy.

Among the feminine members of Miss Talmadge’s staff are Maud Allen and Virginia Dare, both from the speaking stage, Miss Allen having appeared with Marjorie Rambeau in “Cheating Cheaters” and with William Gillette, George Cohan and Irene Fenwick.

Hassard Short has been cast in the role of the profligate husband, and this is his first appearance upon the screen. He appeared with Laurette Taylor in “Peg o’ My Heart” during its long run, and has appeared with Henry Miller, Sir Herbert Beecroft, Tree, Mary Manning and William H. Crane. Adolph Menjou, a Cleveland boy, is another member of Miss Talmadge’s company, while Frank Kingdon will portray the Moth’s father and Robert Vivian will appear as her tutor.

Two youthful players who will also play an important part in the production are Kenneth Worms and Aida Armand.

SENG ISSUES TWENTY-PAGE AD BOOK AND WILL DISTRIBUTE HOUSE ORGAN TO AID EXPLOITATION OF “PARENTAGE”

What is considered an innovation for state rights distributors in the way of advertising is being distributed by Frank J. Seng, in conjunction with his exhibitors’ campaign on Hobart Henley’s thought film based on real life, “Parentage.”

Besides getting out a 20-page ad book, to be used by exhibitors for their local advertising and publicity, Mr. Seng has in preparation a house organ which will be issued every two weeks. The house organ is designed to benefit the exhibitor in bringing to his attention new ideas of different exhibitors along with news, views and money-making ideas which will be of real service to him in presentation.

While in the past it has been the custom as soon as territory was sold to forget the state rights buyer and exhibitor, Mr. Seng’s idea is to aid in exploiting films after he has placed them.

Another phase of Mr. Seng’s campaign, which will greatly aid exhibitors, will be aid in conjunction with the openings at the Rialto Theater, New York, on July 8 and the Colonial Theater, Chicago, July 15, where the billboard campaign will continue for some time after the close of the showings in these cities, and be supplemented by a full quota of advertising to keep the picture alive for the future showings.

“SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE,” COHAN’S SECOND FILM FOR ARTCRAFT, NEARING COMPLETION

Expect Play to Be Entirely Filmed in Course of Week; Two Eastern Studios Now Being Used for Big Scenes

In order to save time in the production of George M. Cohan's second Artcraft offering, “Seven Keys to Baldpate,” adapted from his former stage success of the same name, both of the Famous Players-Lasky studios in the East are being used. A series of big scenes have already been staged at the Fifty-sixth street studio in New York, where Mr. Cohan has been appearing before the camera during the past three weeks.

At the Fort Lee studio a big exterior hotel set was recently filmed, and other scenes now are being taken, while at the New York studio new sets are being built so that Mr. Cohan and his company may lose no time between scenes. In speaking of the production of this film Director Ford said:

“The wonderful progress we have been able to make on Mr. Cohan’s new picture has indeed been most gratifying to me. The work on this film has gone ahead rapidly and without a hitch. Mr. Cohan is working day and night in an effort to get this film out as soon as possible, as a result of the demand from exhibitors for another Cohan film in the near future.”

It is expected that the play will be entirely filmed in the course of another week, as far as the star is concerned, and after taking a series of other scenes in which he does not appear the film will be ready for cutting and assembling. The publication date has not yet been announced by Artcraft.

UNUSUAL IN PICTURES ATTAINED IN A. B. C. SCREENNEWS MAGAZINE

Seeks National Leadership Over Other Films of Class; Carries Out Ziegfeld “Follies” Idea

The Screen News Magazine, who outgrew itself and forced American Bioscope to reissue each week a supplement to this picture now looks as if it will become the leading national screen magazine of the country, it is announced.

The Screen News Magazine has attained the greater part of its popularity through its divertissement. Some doubts were held by a few that policy of this one-reel subject could not be maintained—that of making a magazine entirely different from any other pictorial, current or topical in their policy of the market. Fortunately, however, the seeming impossibility has been attained.

One of the most sensational departments installed is the “Follies” section, under which heading comes such pictures as “Beach Beauties” and “Beach Nuts”—amusement seeks and public in general, and special entertainers engaged for the occasion have worked remarkable results in the way of ultra-unusual pictures, sports, bathing fashions and farce pictures.

A great deal of the popularity of Flo Ziegfeld’s stage follies was due the fact that Ziegfeld proved to be the best doctor for the tired business man. His perscription was femininity, beauty and fashions. The Screen News Magazine does not claim any originality as far as this prescription goes but it has attained the adaptation of it so accurately and pleasingly that it comes in for its share of credit in adapting the policy for the screen to what is wanted by picture patrons.

In addition to the first magazine reel, which is a supplement, 7 Screen News Magazine also is one of the very few subjects which has been universally received with welcome competitive exhibitors. In Chicago, there are three theaters within a radius of four blocks running this magazine on its publication date.

LYDA BORELLI, EUROPEAN TRAGEDIENNE, TO BE SEEN ON AMERICAN SCREEN IN "ROBESPIERRE"

Export and Import Film Company's Seven-Reel State Rights Drama Has Powerful Story with Foremost Continental Player and All-Star Cast

Lyda Borelli, said to be the foremost tragedienne of Europe, heads the cast of the Export & Import Film Company's seven-reel state rights spectacle, "Robespierre." The charming actress is the chief luminary in a company of stars of international repute, including Novelli and Raoul Fabiani.

Reveal Name on Queries
It was the intention of the Export & Import Company to issue "Robespierre" without special reference to the cast, preferring to let the public recognize the famous actress, but inquiries from those who viewed the film asking whether it is the same Borelli whom they had seen in Cines productions compelled them to announce the fact.

Lyda Borelli appears as the Marchioness de Fontenay in "Robespierre," whose love affair with the mysterious "Unseizable" eventually brings about the overthrow of the dictator Robespierre. In a series of scenes she first plays the noblewoman who leads the idle society folk on their careless way to destruction at the hands of the mob, and then comes a change in her life that transforms her into an intriguing factor in the momentous affairs of the French national crisis. To save her lover she plays her woman's wit against the brains of the keenest men in the government.

Plans to Popularize Star
Ben Blumenthal, head of the Export & Import Film Company, announces that he has plans with regard to Lyda Borelli's future before the American public which will place her on the same footing here that she has already attained in Europe with picture patrons.

HELEN HOLMES COMPANY MAKES FIRST EPISODE OF NEW RAIL SERIAL
The Helen Holmes company under the direction of J. P. McGowan, this week completed the first episode of the latest Signal Serial, "The Lost Express," and began the production of "The Destroyed Document," second of the chapters of the photo novel.
As in the preceding installment, Miss Holmes is supported in this by a cast including Leo D. Maloney, Thomas G. Lingham, William Brunton, W. A. Behrens, Edward Hearn, Andrew Waldron and a number of other well known photoplayers now with the Signal.

The story hinges about the mysterious destruction of a document which is vital to the success of operations of a crowd of men. They sit around a table in a compartment of a train. On the table lies the paper. As they are discussing it, they suddenly realize that it has been mysteriously destroyed. No one has entered the compartment, the window is closed and there is nobody near enough to have reached the paper. Yet it lies there totally destroyed save for a few tiny bits that have fluttered to the floor.

HORSLEY TO PUBLISH CRANE WILBUR FILM FEATURES ON ART DRAMAS, INC., PROGRAM

"Eye of Evil," "Third Generation" and "Unto the End" Are First Pictures Scheduled to Be Issued Soon; Picked Concern for Its Fairness

After long and careful consideration of all the film distributing organizations in the field, David Horsley has selected the Art Dramas, Inc., program as the medium for publishing his Crane Wilbur special features.

The Crane Wilbur features, several of which are already completed, will be placed on the Art Dramas program in the near future. The initial pictures of the series are entitled "Eye of Evil," "Third Generation," and "Unto the End." These were directed by Lorimer Johnson, a producer of comprehensive experience. The Crane Wilbur features are all of the standard five-reel length.

Date to Be Given Soon
The exact date on which Crane Wilbur will make his debut on the Art Dramas program will be announced shortly.

It is also announced that a series of western dramas starring this popular player is in preparation. These will be of a new kind and aimed to satisfy a good demand, for western productions have been so scarce of late as to be something of a novelty.

Mr. Horsley, in a statement to the papers, thus expressed his reasons for selecting Art Dramas program as the most desirable distributing medium for his Crane Wilbur productions.

"After exhaustive study of issuing conditions and policies, I have selected the Art Dramas program to handle my Crane Wilbur features, because the principles on which that organization is founded are the fairest to both producer and exhibitor. Art Dramas, Inc., has been successful because its contributing producers have practiced intensive production methods, and through a centralization of effort have achieved highly satisfactory results for manufacturer, distributor, and exhibitor alike.

Policy of Fairness
"This policy of fairness to both producer and exhibitor has brought Art Dramas a wide following all over the United States, and I doubt if there is another organization in existence which is so advantageous to all concerned.

"I have been watching the Art Dramas program very keenly since it was founded six months ago, as I was interested in seeing whether or not the policies it advocated were working policies. Time has proven that they are, and exhibitors have flocked to endorse them. There is now, of course, no question of the program's success."

Horsley a Film Veteran
Mr. Horsley is a veteran in the motion picture industry, having been one of the first successful independent producers. His studios in Los Angeles now are among the largest in the country. He has been active in every movement to better conditions in the industry, and is one of the recognized leaders of the business. He was one of the strongest opponents of the Patents Company and fought the so-called "trust." It is due largely to his efforts that motion pictures as an industry have attained their present prosperity.

That he has selected the Dramas program as his issuing medium is considered by Harry Ras, president of the company, to be final and convincing proof of the rightness of the ideals on which organization is built.

EXPENSES CAUSE CANADIAN COMPAN TO SUSPEND WO

National Features at Trent Ont., Uses Up Capital in Payroll

Toronto, Ont.—The Canadian National Features has discontinued operation in its studio at Trenton, according to a recent announcement. The company started work on its first picture in March and was unable to obtain the services of Marga Snow, Holbrook Blinn, Barry O’ and other stars. Production was along smoothly until the payroll operating expenses consumed the capital of the company. One by one the actors and employees packed their bags and left Trenton. It is understood, however, that plans are under way for reorganization of the company on a firmer foundation.

FOREIGN EXHIBITIONS AND MARKETS
Interesting Data About Film Trade Conditions Abroad—Opportunities for Distributors—Types of Pictures and Manner of Presentation

HUDDERSFIELD, ENGLAND
Control by Local Watch Committee
The Borough of Huddersfield at the last census had a population of about 110,000, and with the suburbs added the number is probably about 200,000, within a radius of eight or nine miles. In this section are twenty licensed motion picture establishments—eleven in the borough and nine in the suburbs. As all picture houses employ some form of musical accompaniment, it is obligatory for each of them to obtain a license from the borough justices, which has to be renewed annually.

If on any occasion the management should act in defiance of the expressed wishes of the local watch committee in connection with the display of a film the license would be refused renewal for the ensuing year.

New House Equipped on Modern Lines
A new cinema hall has been completed during the past twelve months in this district, and it is equipped on modern lines. The building is oblong in shape and has a seating capacity of about 1,000. The popular adult charges for admission to the picture houses are 3d., 4d., 6d., and 9d., in addition to the amusement tax. They are open daily, and provide a continuous performance between 2:30 and 10:30 p.m. Those in the suburbs are open evenings between 8 and 10 p.m., and also give a Saturday matinee for children.

The average charge for rental of a film with a good reputation, containing 4,000 feet, is $31.02, and a higher rate would be levied for one which had not previously been released. The dramatic picture based on some popular novel always receives recognition, and comedy selections are thoroughly appreciated. The serials are also in great demand at present. One manager states that there is a scarcity of the Wild West Indian types, which are always considered attractive.

British Films Becoming More Attractive
British film companies are making every endeavor to advance their products in this market, and undoubtedly these efforts have met with some degree of success. It is stated that their pictures are assuming a more attractive and modern character—qualities which were lacking formerly. The French film, the Pathé, is also displayed here. American pictures, however, claim a good proportion of the patronage in this district, and if there is no deterioration in quality and the price is reasonable the connections probably will be retained. There are no imports of films into this district.

BIRMINGHAM, ENGLAND
Women Inspectors Make Censorship Rigid
There are sixty motion picture theaters in Birmingham, and twenty-six in the city's suburbs. The seating capacity varies from 3,000 to 4,000, and the prices of admission range from 2 cents to 24 cents, not including the tax that the government has levied on all amusements for the past eight months. The general character of the films varies, but they must be absolutely clean. The censorship in England has recently become very strict and this is attributed to the fact that women inspectors now are employed.

The amounts paid for film hire vary from $487 per week to $12. This includes all the films shown. The widely advertised picture of the “Tanks in Action,” in the battle of the Ancre, cost each house $292 for the week, and all houses in the country had to show the film the same week. The only recommendation offered by renting agents as to any improvements desired in American films is a request for “less of the sexual p[...]

SHEFFIELD, ENGLAND
Houses Commodious; Business Increasing
Sheffield has thirty-eight licensed houses doing exclusively to picture shows, and four large which give occasional performances. The box office seems to be steadily increasing. The houses are large and commodious.

The two leading theaters give daily continu-ous performances from 2 to 10:30 p.m. Some give daily, and two evening performances, and still others weekly matinees and two evening performances usually occupy two hours and none on Sunday. Prices of admission vary from 4 to 6 cents for adults, while children are admitted at half rate.

Topical Productions Most Popular
It is the invariable rule that each performance contain one of the “topical” productions, which are doubtless the most popular pictures of the day. We show important events of recent occurrence in life, and are not confined to any particular series of events. Natural history films showing animal life in the wild state are much appreciated as a part of educational qualities.

The Sheffield picture houses hire their film agencies in London. Eight of these are American, French, and one British. The nationality of the films shown is probably in proportion to that of the film agencies. The usual practice is to rent picture three-day exhibitions, and it is only in exceptional cases that they run for a full week. Films of 2,000 feet are rented for $10.00 to $30.00, and smaller ones for $2.50 to $1.50.

Topical films, usually 300 feet, cost about $10.00 for three days. Some of the film agencies may also deal in accessories, and when supplies of these are required by the local houses they are usually taken from these sources.

SOUTHWARK, ENGLAND
New Amusement Fields Opened
In the Southwark district picture houses are most numerous throughout the district, especially in Portsmouth, Bournemouth, Weymouth, and Jersey and Guernsey, in the Channel Islands. Places are well established in such cities as Salisbury, the Aldershot Camps, Andover and Romsey, and about twenty or more other cities in which theatrical performances were formerly given are now afforded entertainment in the means of film exhibitions. Twelve picture theaters are operated in Southwark. Of these numbers are in new buildings with average dimensions of 70 feet, and accommodations for 600 persons.

Prices of admission are from 5 to 7 cents in small picture theaters of the district. Of those shown, 80 per cent are of American production, and 90 per cent of the humorous films are American.

Censor Condemns Numerous Films
The censorship of films recently has been taken up by a prominent public man appointed for the purpose. His preliminary report condemns numerous films, and an attitude may cause some American work not to be shown in England, especially that which relates to the genres of American films. The romantic “cowboy” business also has been losing its place in public esteem.
COME THROUGH!" UNIVERSAL’S STATE RIGHTS FILM, TO ESCAPE CENSORING, PREDICTION

After Two Weeks’ Run at Broadway Theater in New York Big Success for Play Seen in Open Market; Territory Already Sold

"Come Through!" Georgepronson howard’s big screen drama, which has just closed its two weeks’ run at the broadway theater in New York is expected to develop into one of the most popular state rights features that the universal has ever issued.

The distinct that the picture began to run, stanley V. mastbaum purchased exclusive rights for eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey with the declaration that he expected to make a record business with the howard story. The officials of the universal film manufacturing company are also considering propositions from other well known operators in this country and abroad. Special showings have been arranged for these buyers, following the Broadway engagement.

The reviews and press notices of "Come Through!" have been so generous in their praise that widespread interest has been aroused among exhibitors without any special effort being made to attract them with the usual selling stunts. The critics, it is pointed out, are in almost total agreement in the opinion that howard’s latest film is the best that has come from his pen. Suspense, the one absolutely essential ingredient of the successful melodrama, is employed throughout the story with material effect, and despite the fact that much of the action transpires on the threshold of the underworld, with many types of crooks and political adventurers filling important roles, the bounds of good taste have not been overstepped, and it has not been found necessary to eliminate a single scene out of deference to the censors. In this connection members of the national board of review have declared that the feature will get by every local board of censorship in the country without difficulty.

OUR PICTURES MUST BE SALABLE," SPOOR’S ORDER FOR FUTURE ESSANAY POLICY

Rule Is Made Following Investigation of Exhibitors in Every Part of United States; Concern Producing at Capacity

"Our pictures must be salable," is the order which has gone forth from the Essanay plant following an extensive investigation into the requirements of exhibitors in every part of the country. This does not apply so directly from the standpoint of selling to the exhibitor as to the public. Every subject will be selected and produced with the idea of ultimately suiting the audience before which it is shown.

Outgrowth of Probe

This policy is the outgrowth of the discovery that hundreds of subjects are being produced without the requirements of the distributing and exhibiting ends of the industry being taken into consideration. Accordingly, Mr. Spoor, president of the Essanay company, installed an investigation department. The object of this department was to discover not only what the sales organizations and theater managers desired, but to keep a record of critics’ reviews and secure all available information from the public direct.

As soon as this mass of material had been collected and condensed, a series of weekly conferences was started in which members of every department were asked to take part. Talks were delivered by exhibitors and members of the distributing companies handling Essanay products with the result that every member of the force now employed at this plant knows just what is expected of the department in which he works in order to produce motion pictures which will have the strongest appeal.

Show Greater Returns

With two or three companies on the floor all of the time and the west studio working at top speed, Essanay is as busy as at any time in its history and President Spoor reports that the films of the past six months have shown greater returns from the distributing companies than any other subjects in the same length of time.

BIG CONVENTION IN PHILADELPHIA CLOSES A SUCCESS

300 Pennsylvania Exhibitors Attend; Elect O’Donnell President

Philadelphia—Special to the "Exhibitors Herald."—More than 500 ardent film fans packed the Parkway Auditorium to see the galaxy of film stars on Wednesday, June 27, the closing day of the annual convention and exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of Pennsylvania. The convention was one of the most successful ever held and more than 300 exhibitors from different parts of the state as well as many prominent film men attended.

Judge John O'Donnell was elected president of the M. P. E. L. of Pennsylvania and the other officers chosen were: C. O. Baird, first vice president; Charles H. Goodwin, secretary; A. H. Nace, second vice president; H. C. Kiehun, treasurer; and W. W. Salzer, national vice president.

A discussion arose between National Organizer Fred J. Herrington and President O'Donnell over sending delegates to the national convention in Chicago. Mr. Herrington favored sending nine delegates, whose expenses should be paid by the locals, but Mr. O'Donnell suggested that three delegates be appointed, their expenses to be met by the Philadelphia local, as the state organization was without funds. This motion was carried and John O'Donnell, C. H. Goodwin and M. Feitler were elected.

THEATERS MAY AID RED CROSS, GIVING ENTIRE DAY'S RECEIPTS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Plans are under way to hold a national Red Cross day some time in October in practically every theater in the country. Special performances will be run and the entire receipts of the various theaters will be donated to the Red Cross war fund. All the actors in the various theaters will give their salaries for the day and motion picture houses throughout the United States will give the day's receipts, if the plan goes through.

London, Ont.—The Grand Opera House here has just recently been redecorated and refurnished for motion pictures. A special feature will be the music by one of the finest motion picture theater orchestras in the province. The theater will show Metro, Fox, L-No, Linder and Chaplin films.

Montreal, Que.—The Universal office presented to Miss Brunet, cashier in the Montreal Universal office, a sil ver service on the eve of her departure to be married.

Winnipeg, Man.—The following out-of-town visitors attended a luncheon given here by the Manitoba Exchange Managers Association: Bert

Lubin, representative of the General Film Company in Western Canada; Barney Allen, Paramount Service, and Mr. Osinaire of the Specialty Film Import Company.

Winnipeg, Man.—The following are the four serials which have just been published in Winnipeg: “Gray cations are that each serial will have splendid bookings.

Montreal, Que.—Mr. Franklin, of Halifax, was a recent visitor at the Universal Film Company’s Montreal office. Mr. Franklin booked the “Gray Ghost” serial.

Toronto, Ont.—A. A. Huttlemyer, proprietor of the Queen’s Theater, Niagara Falls, spent a few days in Toronto on business the week of June 25. Mr. Huttlemyer says that business in Niagara Falls has been splendid. This is apparently due to the fact that Canadian residents of Niagara Falls are finding it more difficult to pass back and forth in the evenings to the American side.

St. John, N. B.—The Opera House in Wolfville is to be run under the management of A. J. Mason. Mr.

Mason took charge on June 25. He has been connected with the Imperial Theater in St. John since it was opened and previous to that time was connected with the Old Nickel Theater which was burned. Both of these houses were owned by the Kent terests. Mr. Mason’s capacity at the Imperial was that of chief operator electrician, he was also connected with the Westinghouse Electric Company for a number of years and so has a thorough knowledge of this branch of work. Universal service will be used in his theater exclusively.

Toronto, Ont.—G. A. Margetts of the St. John office of the Universal Film Company succeeded in booking the “Gray Ghost” at the Strand Theater in Halifax and has received a number of inquiries already from exhibitors in the province manifesting their interest in this serial.

St. John, N. B.—The Imperial Theater here has changed policy and has discontinued Paramount and will run

Arctraft and other pictures.

St. John, N. B.—The Vogue Theater in Woodstock has changed its policy and will run four days instead of six.

St. John, N. B.—Among the exhibitors in this city now arranging their summer schedule of services are Messrs. McAfee and Corkery of the Vogue Theater, Woodstock; C. J. Galgher of the Prince Edward Theater, Charlottetown, P. E. I., and Mrs.

E. H. Davidson, Dreamland Theater, Moncton.

St. John, N. B.—A. E. Wall, the censor of Nova Scotia, is taking up the matter of bad films and is going to cleanse, if possible, the practice of exhibitors using machines which continually damage films. He has threatened to cancel the machine license for any house which is reported to be out of order and continually damaging film. He has also placed a restriction on the exchanges that if they continue to send film which are in bad condition into a territory that he will cancel the license. He also will cancel a license of any operator who continues to destroy film. In this way

Wall hopes to protect the film changes as well as the exhibitors the matter of giving the public best projection that is possible a help to eliminate as far as possible the wholesale damage which has been done to film by bad machines, a poor operator. The management straighten out the matter as far as the exchanges are concerned in careless handling of films and see that they are properly revised. It should prove a distinct advantage.

St. John, N. B.—The one cent tax which has been placed on theaters in Nova Scotia seems to be working out quite satisfactorily as no complaints have been registrated now that it has got into work-der.

Toronto, Ont.—Harry Pomer, former ly manager of the Belin Theater here and one of the best known showmen in Eastern Ontario, has assumed the management of the Photodrome Theater on Queen St.

and immediately began lining things up by means of special advertising, lobby displays and other ideas. The result has been the attendance the Photodrome has increased dramatically. His latest display "The End of Trail" in particular has been a source of much observation, the crowds surrounding the feature to watch the snow falling on the leg-ner of the picture in a like scene in the north country. Whole design is incased in a glass-in-a very simple manner but unique idea attracts and holds the attention of every passerby. Mr. Peroy, it is safe to predict, will be as good success with his new house as with the others in the past.

YACHT BURNS TO WATER'S

EDGE IN WORLD FILM

WITH ETHEL CLAYTON

A millionaire’s magnificent yacht burning to the water line at last is one of the big pictorial effects in

tion of World-Film. Ethel Clayton is the star of this story, nearly all of which occurs upon an island in the tropics, on the shore of which the heroine is cast with a man who loves her but whom she scorns. The story is written and portrays the man. In the end it is a girl weakens, but this better improvement is a long time arriving, and its approach moreover is strenuous.

A FOREWORD

My next production, which will be completed early in August, bears the title of "THE FALL OF THE ROMANOFFS." It is a story dealing with the incidents which led up to the abdication of Nicholas, Czar of Russia. Primarily, however, it shows the power of one individual over the destiny of a nation, proving once more that genius directed toward evil will, in the end, bring forth but evil.

Rasputin, the peasant power behind the throne, was directly responsible by his misdeeds for his own death and the fall of the Romanoff Dynasty.

Iliodor, a Priest of the Greek Catholic Church, has recited to the world his version of the intrigues of the Russian court in which Rasputin played the principal role.

This strange, young Priest set himself up against Rasputin in an effort to overthrow him and gain for himself the high place at court which the peasant held. Rasputin, however, was far the greater genius of the two, and Iliodor found himself entangled in a web of circumstances which ended in his being unfrocked by the Greek Catholic Church and exiled to America. Iliodor will play himself in this actual reproduction of recent Russian history.

It is hard to believe that such a disgraceful condition of affairs as we are picturing could exist in any government of today; but that the main facts in "THE FALL OF THE ROMANOFFS" are true can be verified by reading the recent books of the historians, who have set down the incidents leading up to the Russian Revolution and the formation of the present Republic.

Austin Strong and George Edwards Hall have dramatized this remarkable story into a photoplay and, following the example of Alexander Dumas and Sir Walter Scott, blended fact with fiction. As a result I am now producing the most extraordinary photodrama of my career.

Mr. Branson is personally directing this production by special arrangement with Mr. Lewis J. Selznick and the Herbert Branson Film Company.

WHAT IS YOUR VERDICT?

The expected announcement of Mr. Lee A. Ochs' desire for re-election as national president of the exhibitors' league has arrived.

Those who had hoped that Mr. Ochs would withdraw and no longer imperil the league with complete disruption must abandon the hope; for Mr. Ochs again gives evidence that personal grandizement is his ruling passion.

In the face of the turmoil and dissension which the national president has created during the time of his administration it was not unreasonable to expect that for the sake of the future of the exhibitors' organization he would withdraw and make room for someone without the faculty of keeping the ranks of the exhibitors in a condition of perpetual chaos.

But those who held this opinion did not reckon with that little mountain of ruthless ambition called Lee A. Ochs.

Mr. Ochs does not intend to withdraw for the good of the league or for any cause whatsoever; he has a plan of personal domination of the various ramifications of this business which he is determined to put over at any cost.

The fact that the exhibitors' league today is more broken and fragmentary than ever before in its history does not deter him. That his administration practically from its start has created distrust, suspicion and secession is interpreted by him as an indication of his power and influence in the trade.

Mr. Ochs has given eloquent proof during the twelve months of his administration that under his rule the organization is crumbling to pieces and is, in certain localities, on the verge of disintegration. In Chicago the old league is opposed by a new organization which contains the names of the majority of the leading exhibitors of the community—Lubliner, Ascher, Trinz, Schoenstadt and others.

In New York rival factions of the league have devoted so much attention to combating each other that they have had no time for the constructive work for which the league exists.

Everywhere throughout the country exhibitors during the past twelve months have been at the mercy of political schemers and the industry has been shackled and manacled by censorship, unwarranted taxation and unjust regulation. And meanwhile Mr. Ochs—the responsible head for directing the activities of the exhibitors' organization, ignoring his responsibilities, has gone about strengthening his political machine, issuing Nero-like dictates to all who crossed his path and ever seeking to make secure his ambition of dictator to the film trade.

"I have earned," says Mr. Ochs, "the venomous hatred of rival publications, not because I started a new enterprise; but because I made it succeed where others failed."

No, Mr. Ochs, that is not true: The hatred of which you boast—such of it as actually exists—is due to the world-old hatred of one who accepts a responsibility and then, in the face of temptation, completely abandons it and goes over to the enemy.

Immediately when you obtained the coveted position of league president you started your publication, and your position as president enabled you to represent this publication as "the exhibitors' paper," even printing upon its front cover the emblem of the national league.

But, Mr. Ochs, there are not many in the trade who do not know that you have used the league merely as a catspaw in connection with your publishing venture; who do not know that the exhibitors' league has no voice in the operation or management of your paper; who do not know that only a small part of the possible profits was ever even agreed to be devoted to the treasury of the league.

Lee A. Ochs as president of the exhibitors' league has ravished the trust placed in him.

He has given exhibitor organization a setback of a dozen years.

He has proven himself a calamity to the league.

And, gentlemen of the 1917 convention, there are a number of capable exhibitors, men without entangling alliances, whose records merit consideration and confidence, who are willing to accept the responsibility of the league's presidency.

What is your verdict?

Martin J. Quigley.
Big Fight to Be Made to Defeat Re-Election; Many Strong Candidates in Field Pledging Elimination of Petty Politics and Adoption of "Foursquare" Platform.

Petty politics, clique intrigue, graft, assension and a nation-wide feeling of uncertainty among exhibitors, which has prevailed during the recent term of Lee A. Ochs as president of Exhibitors League of America, will completely be wiped off the pages of the organization's history of the last year by the defeat of the present incumbent, is the promise of certain exhibitors for the chair, one of whom seeks to be elected at the big convention in Chicago from July 14 to 18.

This convention, following the division and trouble in the organization during the past year, will go down in the annals of league history as the bitterest ever held.

Candidates Have Axes to Grind

The candidates for president, outside of Ochs, will be backed by large delegations from the various states where the organization is strongest. Each candidate has an axe to grind, and there will be many factions, which, it is pointed out, makes the selection of the new president more uncertain than at any previous election.

The candidates for president, who will loom up as big factors in the race, are:

Fred J. Herrington, national organizer.
Frank J. Rembusch, president of Indiana Exhibitors League.
D. G. Rogers, of Minneapolis.
Lee A. Ochs, New York.
Samuel H. Trigger, president of Manhattan Local, No. 1, New York, his communication to "Exhibitors Herald," denounces Ochs, and declares that if exhibitors do not band against the present president now holding office, that the league will plunge further into the mire of petty politics, graft and intrigue.

Save the League, Is Cry

This cry this week to "save the league" was far-reaching, and was echoed in scores of letters and communications between the various branches which will come for a fight to defeat the selfish aims of certain men and cliques who are making capital of the organization.

The situation in the Northwest is not one of many of the candidates except Ochs, according to advices from Minneapolis. It is stated there that D. G. Rogers, while a candidate for office, is aligned with Ochs and Thomas Furniss.

It is said in Minneapolis exhibitors and exchange circles that Mr. Furniss "has the exhibitors of the Northwest in his vest pocket." Also, it is stated that he is close to Ochs, and Rogers is to be foisted upon convention delegates providing Ochs faces defeat.

Illinois Wider Split

The wide split in Illinois, which was brought about through political domination, charges of graft, ousting of members from the Chicago local, and absolute rule over meetings by Ochs, has weakened his chance in one of the most powerful exhibition centers in America.

From the political mail-train in Chicago during the past year has grown a new organization known as the Illinois Theater Owners' Association. This new organization has taken in a score of Chicago's most representative exhibitors, who left the Chicago branch because its members are not bona fide exhibitors.

The association, through Maurice Choyinski, has announced to the trade that it is not opposed to the league, but is opposed to its membership, which is well augmented by theater managers, and men who play politics and work hand in hand with the exchanges and manufacturers, neglecting the vital interests of exhibitors.

Would Violate By-laws

Maurice Choyinski declares that Ochs recently sent word to the local and state organizations throughout the country to the effect that they should recommend to him the names of members suitable for the various credential committees. He then was to appoint those to the committees he thought would "best serve the purpose."

This, it is pointed out, is a direct violation of the league constitution and by-laws, which places this matter wholly in the hands of the locals and state organizations.

One of the main objections which Illinois exhibitors are making is that the Chicago local is sending to the convention floor twenty-one delegates and twenty-one alternates, whereas it is entitled to but thirteen of each.

This, it is declared by Chicago exhibitors who will play important parts in the convention election, will be fought strenuously on the floor.

Proxy Votes Feared

One of the fears of the opponents of Ochs is that the convention will be rife with attempts to vote for the president by proxy. Whether or not this can be successfully carried out is a matter of conjecture. During the course of elections at the various local branches throughout the country the proxy vote played an important part in certain elections—the result of which tore locals asunder.

Sessions were held during the entire week respectively by both the Chicago Exhibitors League branch and the Motion Picture Theater Owners' Association, members laying plans for the inevitable battle on the floor of the convention hall.

A Leading Figure in the Presidential Race

The combined force opposing Ochs in his second attempt to regain the chair, is composed of Louis Levine, of Brooklyn; Sam Bullock, of Cleveland; Maurice Choyinski, an exhibitor-director of the National Association, an officer of the Illinois Theater Owners' Association, and technically still a member of the Chicago Branch of Exhibitors League; Frank J. Rembusch, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of Indiana; and a score of powerful exhibitors.

Split in Solid Body

These are only a few of the more important exhibitors who, it is widely reported, will present a solid front to bring about the defeat of Ochs.

However, this faction will be split to a certain extent by H. B. Varner of North Carolina. Mr. Varner is a new figure in league affairs, and while he is said to have a great deal of influence and a fairly strong backing from Southern exhibitors, it is not likely that he will succeed this year unless it is an unexpected bolt in the ranks of the independents.

The Northwestern exhibitors apparently are back of the Rogers-Furniss-Ochs legs.

New York is divided in its choice, with Levine and Trigger leading the opposition against Ochs.

Pennsylvania, from all reports, favors Herrington, the National Organizer and former president.

Indiana is divided, according to reports this week, between Ochs and Rembusch. Many Indiana exhibitors hope to make the president of the state organization national president, but neither Rembusch's campaign plans nor a list of Indiana delegates and alternates have so far been given out.

Illinois is divided, with a majority of the most representative exhibitors against the re-election of Ochs. Henry Schoenstadt, Maurice Choyinski and other representative exhibitors operating chains of theaters in Chicago and throughout the surrounding states are back of this opposition.

Ochs Made Campaign Trip

Early in the spring Ochs made a campaign tour visiting the league branches throughout the United States, which was offset by the campaigns of others. Despite his work in the various centers to get the favor of exhibitors for the purpose of re-election, it was common gossip from coast to coast that there is too much rumbling of scandal in the organization.

The various branch organizations during the past two months have made no attempt to conceal the fact that delegates would come to the convention "instructed." Moreover, it has become common gossip that salvoes of burning questions will be asked which will stir the convention.

Clean Up League, Is Word

A certain faction, which plans to elect a new president in place of Ochs, has lined up a big force of delegates from coast to coast—and this, it is asserted, is outside of the forces already lined up and instructed to "go and clean-up the league."

Nobody this week would divulge plans of great import which have been framed during the past two months, but there is an air of certainty and outspoken confidence that before the greatest convention of exhibitors ends in Chicago, the prospects for brighter conditions in the organization for the coming year will not be overshadowed with doubt and fear of high-handed ruling by chucques and factions.

Delegates to the convention officially named are as follows:

Nebraska

Wisconsin
J. Grauman, George Fischer, Henry Trinz of Milwaukee, Thomas A. Lee of Fond du Lac, H. Rhode of Kenosha.

Ohio
Samuel Ballock of Cleveland, B. J. Sawyer, Dave Schumann and Samuel Auble.

EXHIBITORS MUST OUST OCHS IN ORDER THAT LEAGUE MAY SURVIVE, SAYS TRIGGER

Samuel H. Trigger, president of the Manhattan local in New York of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America, is opposed to the re-election of Lee Ochs as National President of Exhibitors League.

Mr. Trigger advises the choosing of a man "for the betterment of the league," and warns exhibitors to "consider the candidates carefully" and when voting "vote for the man who is clean cut and not involved in any petty league politics."

[Editor of "Exhibitors Herald":

Have received numerous letters as to my position on the presidential election at the coming convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America. Can only reiterate my statement made in the trade journals two months ago: "For president of this organization we must have a clean cut man who is not involved in any petty league politics." He must remember that the organization is permanent, and it does not exist solely for the good of the individual. He must have qualifications for leadership that require strength, stability, and be a man of vision, one that can lead by the confidence of rightness. This is a time when great things are to be done and we want a man to do them. There are several such exhibitors who will be at the convention in Chicago. I would advise, for the betterment of the league, to consider the candidates carefully and when voting, cast the vote for the man with the above qualifications.

At the present time we are suffering from too much regulation. Those that are in the field for presidency are Fred Herrington, Pittsburgh; H. E. Varner, North Carolina; Lee A. Ochs, New York; Rogers, Minnesota; Frank J. Rembusch, Indiana, and one or two others.

Fellow exhibitors, kindly choose the man that is vigorous, generous in instincts, one that can get his heels in the ground and march forward to a solid position at the head of a bigger and better organization; and I ask the young exhibitors to help, and by self sacrifice, to take up the management of the local, State and National League, for under no other condition will our organization survive.

My personal opinion is that if we can secure a man from the West, or South to fill the responsible office of president, it would be most advisable to do so, as the present incumbent has proven himself to be anything but the man required to make the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America the power for usefulness to the exhibitors of the country that it should be.

(Signed) SAM H. TRIGGER,
President Manhattan Local, No.

At this meeting the candidates who have been nominated by the various branches of the organization are to be elected as members of the board of directors to serve for the ensuing year.

Each of the other four branches above named nominates five directors, and President Brady has announced that it is his purpose to apply through the regular channel for an increase in the number of directors from ten to fourteen and from the other branches from five to seven.

“QUEEN OF SPADES,” WITH NOTED STAR, WILL BE FIRST RUSSIAN ART FILM ISSUED

Production Selected from Among Fifty Others Introduces to United States Public Literary Genius on Screen of Famous Author

The debut of the Moscow National Dramatic Theater Company in the recent Washington pictorial presentation of Theodore Pushkin’s “The Queen of Spades,” with Mozjunkhin the featured artist, officially introduced to America picture from the fifty odd productions brought here under the direction of N. S. Kaplan was to show the great literary genius of Pushkin and high standards set in these Russian art works.

In “The Queen of Spades” the artistic standards are of the highest. Scenic effects, costumes, local coloring and character detail are replete in their exactitude. The effective radical departure in this highly entertaining picture is the dramatic screen art of the actors and actresses depicting the characters. Mozjunkhin, the greatest living exponent of the historic art in Russia today, enacts the lead role of Herman, the young officer. His tense acting and dramatic facial expressions in the tragic scenes are remarkable, it is said.

“Queen of Spades” First

“The Queen of Spades” will be one of the first pictures which will shortly be issued by the Russian A Film Corporation and will be rapidly followed by other productions from the works of Tolstoy, Sienkiewicz, Ostrovski, Andreef, Turgenieff, Dostoevski and Pushkin.

Incidentally a report that the Mutual Film Corporation was to remove its home offices from Chicago, returning to New York, was officially denied.

BRENNON'S "LONE WOLF" WILL BE SHOWN IN TEN CITIES SIMULTANEOUSLY
To Be Offered in Early August as Pre-publication Film: Big Feature Scenes in Play

The success achieved by Herbert Brennon's latest production of Selznick Pictures, "The Lone Wolf," which now is playing to big business at both the Broadway Theater, New York, and the Studebaker Theater, Chicago, has resulted in the formation of plans to open this feature in ten cities early in August as a pre-publication showing.

With three distinct features in the burning of the Hotel Troyon, an automobile falling from a raised jackknife bridge and a battle between airplanes in midair, this picture will undoubtedly prove to be one of the biggest money-getters of the year.

A feature of the Broadway opening was the showing of important scenes in "The Fall of the Romanoffs," the Russian picture Mr. Brennon is directing, with Hodor, the "Mad Monk" of Russia, himself playing the leading role.

UNIVERSAL'S "GRAY GHOST" SERIAL, ADAPTED FROM POST STORY, STARTS WITH A RUSH
First Two Parts of Photonovel in Fifteen Episodes of Two Reels Each Are Launched Successfully; Noted Stars Featured in Initial Chapters

"The Gray Ghost," Universal's new mystery serial, was successfully presented in various parts of the country outside of Greater New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts, beginning June 25.

The story started off with a rush in the first two episodes, "The Bank Mystery" and "The Mysterious Message," with Harry Carter, Priscilla Dean, Emory Johnson, Eddie Polo, Richard La Reno and Gypsy Hart in leading roles.

An Engrossing Story
Hildreth, a young English lawyer, has come to America with his secretary, Jean Marco, as the accredited agent of an English millionaire to purchase a world-famous diamond necklace for his fiancée. The attorney has been given a certified check for $200,000.

Meanwhile, on this side of the Atlantic, The Gray Ghost, a criminal of unusual cunning and powerful connections, is shown at work. He directs the robbery of one of the great New York banks, and during the course of this dark night's work the president of the bank is ostensibly murdered, with the son, who has stolen the institution's funds to make good a gambling debt to The Gray Ghost, spirited away by a stranger disguised as a policeman, after the agents of the master criminal have perfected every arrangement to "frame" him as author of the robbery and murder.

A Battle of Wits
Morn Light, a beautiful young actress, played by Priscilla Dean, bears a mysterious relationship to The Gray Ghost. She tries to protect the banker's son from harm, and when Hildreth arrives from England does all in her power to prevent the plans by the supercrook from working out to the injury of Hildreth. This leads to a three-cornered battle of wits that heightens the suspense of the story dramatically.

"The Gray Ghost" will be published in fifteen episodes of two reels each. Based upon the Saturday Evening Post's widely read serial novel "Loot," by Arthur Somers Roche, the story was adapted to the screen and directed by Stuart Paton, famous creator of Universal's "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." The camera work is by Eugene Gaudio.

ATTEMPT MADE TO ASSASSINATE ILIODOR, THE RUSS MONK, STAR IN BRENON’S FILM

Studio Men in Auto Face Fusillade in New York Street Meant for Star in “Fall of the Romanoffs” Picture, Fired by Men Seeking Revenge

An attempt to assassinate Iliodor, the Russian “Mad Monk,” who is acting the principal role in Herbert Brenon’s latest production, “The Fall of the Romanoffs,” was revealed last week by employees of the Herbert Brenon Film Corporation at the Brenon studio in Palisade, N. J.

For some time there have been vague hints dropped that the picture would never be completed and that certain persons representing the Russian officials whom Iliodor denounced and thereby brought about their downfall would seek revenge on the famous monk.

Fire on Studio Men

Nobody took these hints seriously until last Tuesday, when an automobile containing George Hall, Brenon’s scenario chief, and Roy Hunt, his photographer, was subjected to a fusillade of revolver shots at the corner of Tenth Avenue and Forty-second Street in New York at about 2 o’clock in the morning. The studio men were returning to New Jersey after taking some night scenes on location and had just taken Iliodor to his home in New York.

When Iliodor was told of the affair he revealed an amazing plot by certain Russians to have him done away with. Iliodor’s revelations of the intrigues of Rasputin, the religious charlatan who attempted to betray Russia to the German kaiser, brought about the downfall of the Romanoffs. He was exiled to America on this account.

Surrounded by Guard

Herbert Brenon is taking extraordinary precautions to assure Iliodor’s safety. An armed bodyguard now accompanies him constantly and he is taken to and from the studio in Mr. Brenon’s private car, with one or two of the huskiest employees in addition to the bodyguard.

(P. S.—It is recommended that an armed bodyguard also accompany Monk Iliodor’s press representative.)

KING-BEE COMEDIES ARE PROVING POPULAR, DECLARES L. L. HILLER

Big Demand in U. S. and Foreign Fields, Pointed out by “State Rights Wizard”

L. L. Hiller, treasurer of the King-Bee Films Corporation of New York announces that the company’s comedies, which feature Billy West, are proving popular in American and foreign territories where they so far have been exploited. That the comedies are in big demand in foreign fields, Mr. Hiller points out, was recently proven at a trade showing held for foreign buyers in London.

Mr. Hiller, who has earned the appellation of “State Rights Wizard,” since his entry into the film field, has made an enviable reputation for himself by reason of his keen foresight and business acumen.

Since the formation of the concern of Hiller & Wilk that company has successfully exploited a number of big features, among them being “The Mormon Maid,” “The Battle of Gettysburg” and “The Wrath of the Gods.”

The King-Bee comedies are being shown in theaters throughout this country and Canada with success beyond the expectations of the company, it is announced.

MUSIC CUES AND AIDS FOR “MARY MORELAND” FILM GIVEN IN MUTUAL SHEET

Music cues for the presentation of “Mary Moreland,” the Powell-Mutua production featuring Marjorie Rambeau, are contained in a press sheet being sent out by the Mutual Film Corporation, as well as pithy paragraphs for exhibitor’s use in exploiting the film in the newspapers.
PROGRAM GAINING—NOT DYING, SAYS WILLIAM A. BRADY, IN ANSWER TO REPORTS

Demand for World Pictures on Established Plan Is Greater Than Ever Before, Producer Asserts; Is Amused by Contrary Statements

"I derive considerable amusement," said William A. Brady, director general of World-Pictures, "from reading a statement that finds its way into print at rather regular intervals to the effect that the program system is slowly but surely dying off and that there is no hope for the future excepting through the specials. But for these, we are assured every month or so, the whole motion picture industry would be cast up on the rocks and dashed to splinters.

"As the manufacturing and distributing corporation with which I am connected is the only concern in this country adhering absolutely to the program in principle and action, I suppose its members are in a better position than other persons to know just how the situation stands. I am therefore able to say positively that the program, so far as the business of World-Pictures may be regarded as an indication, is vastly better off than at any time since the first animated photograph was taken.

Says Program Gains

"Instead of being in a forward state of decomposition, as the disciples of the specials would have us believe, the program is gaining strength and momentum every minute. It is in no spirit of boastfulness whatsoever, but merely as a matter of actual record that I say the demand for the World-Pictures program is enormously greater at this time than ever before.

"This is important not only in the personal sense (for it is but natural that we should be very much gratified at the existence of such a condition for our own sakes), but as justifying our stand for the program in the face of constantly arising opportunities to 'wildcat' for large immediate profits. I have said before now that our principle is not a matter of philanthropy or benevolence, but a plan to build up a structure which will stand the test of time.

"We are out for business that will be here next year and ten years hence, instead of trying to grab everything at once and let the future take care of itself.

Predicts Glutted Market

"Meanwhile a careful survey of the conditions surrounding the specials will indicate that the time is rapidly approaching when the market must inevitably be glutted. The public, quite obviously, is growing more and more exacting as the promises of the producers increase in glowing terms and emphasis and the number of these productions expands.

"Nobody can go on selling plated jewelry as solid gold to the same customers indefinitely. A forced run on Broadway no longer means anything to the motion picture fan, and it long ago ceased to impress the exhibitor. The point has been reached where the special has got to make good on its advertising. In other words, if the merit is not there the public finds out about it in an amazingly short time.

Always Healthy Demand

"The recurring publications of the impending dissolution of the program really mean nothing. There will always be a healthy, solid demand for dependable pictures, which are an insurance beforehand to the exhibitor that he will make a profit, and to the public that it will not be disappointed.

"I should like to be as certain of everything in life as I am of the steadily and permanently increasing volume of demand for World-Pictures Brady-made, which are as true to the program principle as the magnetic needle is to the North pole."

MARION DAVIES, STAGE PLAYER, NOW WORKING IN ARDSLEY CORP. FILM

George W. Lederer Wins Star Away from Footlights; Now in "Runaway Romany"

Miss Marion Davies, one of the principals of the "Oh, Boy" company, the stage production which ran for some time at the Princess Theater, New York, has left the company and will appear soon under the Ardsley Art Film Corporation banner.

Miss Davies was won away from the footlights by George W. Lederer of the Ardsley Art Film Corporation, and now is at work at the old Biograph studio in The Bronx on her own play, entitled "Runaway Romany."
"REDEMPTION" FILM, WITH EVELYN NESBIT AND LITTLE RUSSELL THAW, DRAWS CAPACITY HOUSES

State Rights Picture Plays to Big Business in Chicago and New York, Despite Weather; Story on Screen of Star's History a Lure

Even in the heat of midsummer, when the thoughts of theater-goers turn to the seashore and the mountains and theaters are temporarily forgotten, "Redemption," with Evelyn Nesbit and her son Russell Thaw, is proving a big attraction. The fact that the picture is playing to big business in every theater where shown, without exception, even at unusual prices for a photoplay attraction, proves its value. From the time that it stayed five weeks at the George M. Cohan Theater in New York, when only scheduled for two, until the present, when it is doing as well in Newark, Chicago, New York and various other cities, it has never failed as an attraction.

In the Broad Street Theater, Newark, where big stage attractions are presented during winter season, all records for the house were broken with "Redemption," and it is still very popular. At Keith's Alhambra Theater in New York, even after its run at the Cohan, it played to big business for two weeks. In the Colonial, Chicago, it ran as a feature attraction to unusual business, even for the summer time. It will open in various other big theaters in the fall and later in the summer.

This picture has already proved its value as a state rights proposition by never failing to draw, and to please whoever sees it. The biggest men in the film world have already bought state rights, and invariably have already contracted for enough bookings to insure their profit, without tapping the full resources of their territory.

The magic of the name of Evelyn Nesbit and her tragic story is still interesting and theater-goers want to see the story she tells from the screen. David Bernstein, 1493 Broadway, is handling the state rights sale of this feature.

ENID MARKEY LEADS AN ALL-STAR CAST IN NEW CORONA FILM, "THE CURSE OF EVE"

Company Adopts Policy of "The Story First" with Representative Group of Players as Opposed to Featuring a Single Star

The Corona Cinema Company, producers of "The Curse of Eve," in stating their policy of production, have lined up with other motion picture producers who have come out in favor of the system of making the story, with an all-star cast, the primary consideration in picture making as opposed to the practice of featuring a single star and choosing roles to suit the talents of a particular player.

Enid Markey in Lead

With this aim in mind the cast for "The Curse of Eve," which is the initial production of this company, was chosen with the idea of getting as many first rate players as possible to handle the various roles. The feminine lead in the production is played by Enid Markey, former Triangle leading woman. Miss Markey enacts the role of the modern Eve in the tense drama which is appropriately introduced by a biblical prologue. Opposite her is Ed Coxen, another well known player, who in this picture appears as the young hero.

The heavy man of the picture is Jack Standing, one of the celebrated family of actors of that name.

All Established Players

Together with these three in the leading roles are Clarissa Selwyn, who appears as the feminine heavy; Eugenie Besserer, Marion Warner, Elsie Greeson, William Quinn, Arthur Allardt, G. Raymond Nye, Jack Lott and George Kuwa, the last named being a Japanese actor of known ability. Nearly all of these players have done commendable work in other productions before "The Curse of Eve."

HELEN HAYES BROWN IS EDWARD WARREN'S "FIND" FOR NEXT PHOTOPLAY

Edward Warren claims to have discovered a new star for the motion pictures, and he predicts a great future for her. Her name is Helen Hayes Brown and she will appear in Mr. Warren's next production now being rapidly completed at his elaborate studios in Grantwood.

WILBUR BATES, NOTED NEWSPAPER MAN, MADE PARALTA PUBLICITY CHIEF

Takes Up Work with New Concern After Wide Experience on Big Publications

Wilbur Bates, general publicity man for the Paralta Plays, Inc., and the Bessie Barriscale and J. Warren Kerrigan productions, has had a most interesting career as a newspaper and theatrical advertising man.

Mr. Bates is a native of Boston. He ran away from home at the age of 13 and secured employment in a Boston detective agency's office and at 16 became connected with the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, on their detective staff.

WILBUR BATES
General Publicity Man for Paralta Plays, Inc.

A year later he secured a position as reporter on the Boston Herald, where he remained three years and then joined the reportorial staff of the New York World.

Mr. Bates left newspaper work to take up pressagenting for "The Devil's Auction" and three years later joined the Leibler & Company forces, doing the newspaper work for "The Royal Box."

In 1899 Mr. Bates joined Klaw & Erlanger as general press representative for "Ben Hur" and other productions, remaining nearly ten years with that firm.

In May, 1908, he abandoned theatrical work and was special correspondent for Prof. Mechnikoff and his discoveries until he joined D. W. Griffith in exploiting "Intolerance."
“WHO’S YOUR NEIGHBOR?” FILM APPROVED BY N. Y. ORGANIZATIONS AS A GREAT LESSON

Such a big impression has “Who’s Your Neighbor?” the seven-reel sociological cinema spectacle written by Willard Mack, directed by S. Rankin Drew and sponsored by Master Dramas Features, Inc., 1493 Broadway, New York, created that several quasi-official organizations investigating social conditions in New York City have put themselves on record as approving and being in sympathy with this motion picture, and calling it a powerful lesson.

Shows Actual Conditions

"It is a powerful argument, tremendous and far-reaching in its influence for good," said R. W. Hebberd, executive secretary of the Committee of Twelve. "It is absolute in its fidelity to actual conditions, and it depicts an existing evil which would be minimized considerably if we took more interest in our neighbors and found out for ourselves just who and what they are."

In the New York Evening Journal, June 30, Mrs. Grace Humiston, who solved the mystery of Ruth Cruger’s disappearance, said, under her signature: "The congestion of population, the fact that a family living in a flat might not have any means of knowing the character of the nearest neighbor . . . . have all conduced to taking from the girlhood of the city the guarding influences that are essential for the proper safeguarding of the young. ‘Who’s Your Neighbor?’ offers a practical solution to this problem.”

Ad Aids Are Offered

Further announcement is made by General Manager Herman Becker that “Who’s Your Neighbor?” will have the most complete assortment of advertising accessories ever put out with a feature. There will be four kinds of one-sheet, three-sheet, six-sheet and 24-sheet lithographs, newspaper cuts, slides, window cards, banners, heralds, throw aways, and many other novelties never before seen.

Several deals have already been consummated and within a few days proper announcement will be made as to what territories have been sold. Inquiries are continuing to come daily from interested buyers all over the country.

NEW OUT-DOOR STAGE BEING USED BY WORLD

A new outdoor stage for World-Pictures Brady-made has been erected alongside the Peerless studio in Fort Lee. This is said to be the largest fresco stage in the East, with dimensions equaling 65 by 125 feet. In these summer days four directors are constantly producing within this area, and with the players, cameramen and other employees, hail as a godsend their liberation from temperatures under glass.

A BIG SCENE FROM “WHO’S YOUR NEIGHBOR?”

THANHouser TELLS SOME OF THINGS NOT IN NEW PHOTOPLAY

Edwin Thanhouser says “It Happened to Adele,” his Pathé-Gold Rooster play, which stars Gladys Leslie, is a new sort of story of the stage.

He states:

It is a story of a chorus girl but—

There are no stage door Johnnies who hunt innocent little girls.

There are no unscrupulous managers who offer stardom at the price of—

The heroine hasn’t a single chance to say “I would rather be virtuous than rich” or “I’d rather be unknown in the chorus than notorious in the electric lights.”

There isn’t even a vampire stage woman who tries to show the heroine the easiest way.

Certainly, Mr. Thanhouser admits, this is not a play for aspiring dramatists to see.

SALES MANAGER KENT OF GENERAL STARTS TOUR OF EXCHANGES

Will Visit Southern and Western Offices for Purpose of Extending Activities of Branches

For the purpose of inspection and extension of the activities of branches, General Film’s sales manager, Sidney R. Kent, has started on a tour of Southern and Western offices. His trip will require a month, during which a number of important matters are to be taken up with exhibitors as well as with exchange managers.

The tour is necessary because of the increase in the bulk of General Film’s product and the increase in the proportion of sales. The application of General’s new merchandising policies is to be completed during this trip. One aim is the improvement of the contact of branch officers with the exhibitor.

Mr. Kent will make these cities before he returns to New York in the following order: Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Chicago, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis, Dallas, New Orleans, Atlanta, Washington, Philadelphia.

TRIANGLE TO DISTRIBUTE PARALTA FILMS ON LATTER CONCERN’S ESTABLISHED PLAN

Important Deal Completed by S. A. Lynch and Carl Anderson Leaves Each Company Intact; Kerrigan and Barriscale Plays First to Be Issued

Within the past week one of the most important deals yet made was brought to completion by S. A. Lynch, president of the Triangle Distributing Corporation, and Carl Anderson, president of Paralta Plays, Inc., by which Triangle becomes distributor of Paralta Plays under the Paralta plan.

This deal possesses great potentialities and will have a far-reaching influence in the motion picture industry. It brings into co-relation in interests a powerful distributing organization and producing corporations backed by immense financial resources.

While the Triangle distributing and producing interests are well known all over the world, Paralta Plays, Inc., has been in existence only since March last.

Paralta Growth Rapid

In but fifteen weeks Paralta has brought together one of the greatest producing staffs in this country, has established two subsidiary producing corporations—The Bessie Barriscale and J. Warren Kerrigan Feature Corporations, operating in one of the largest studios in America—and now has completed two great special photodramas which will be ready for publication in August and sold by Triangle under the Paralta plan.

One of these productions is Bessie Barriscale in Grace Miller White’s love story, “Rose o’ Paradise,” and the other is J. Warren Kerrigan in a screen version of Peter B. Kyne’s romantic novel, “A Man’s Man.” It is believed that “Rose o’ Paradise” will prove even a greater success than Mrs. White’s previous screen success, “Tess of the Storm Country.”

Paralta Plays, Inc., is founded on an idea based on equity, stability, certainty and permanence in contracts and the principle of protecting exhibitors by granting them exclusive, defined, non-competitive exhibiting districts for a specified time.

Success Founded on Policy

The slogan on which Paralta Plays, Inc., has built up a remarkable prestige in the industry in less than three months has been the Paralta plan—to eliminate waste and wasteful methods by establishing certainty in the duration of contracts and rental charges, to increase exhibitors’ profits by granting longer runs and to develop the full exhibiting possibilities of special photodramatic productions not now done under the existing system. Fully 65 to 70 per cent of the exhibiting possibilities of big special feature pictures are wasted under the system which now governs their distribution and exhibition—they are not run long enough in 90 per cent of theaters to give all the people a chance to see them who would so do had they the opportunity.

Outline of Plan

Contracts have been signed which identifies the relation of interests between the Triangle Distributing Corporation and Paralta Plays, Inc.

Under these contracts Paralta Plays, Inc., and the J. Warren Kerrigan and the Bessie Barriscale Feature Corporations in no way lose their identity and they are in no way amalgamated, absorbed or taken over by the Triangle Distributing Corporation.

The Triangle Distributing Company’s relations with the Paralta corporations are simply and solely that of distributor of their productions on a special defined policy of distribution, which will prove very advantageous to every exhibitor showing Paralta Plays.

No changes will be made in Paralta’s production plans. Eight big photodramas a year will be produced by both Mr. Kerrigan and Miss Barriscale, making sixteen a year to be sold under the Paralta plan, which gives an exhibitor full control of the exhibition of Paralta pictures in his exclusive exhibiting district for one year.

FRED C. AIKIN MADE GENERAL MANAGER OF ALLEN FILM CORP., CHICAGO

Will Divide Time Between Work with Selig and Exploitation of “Garden of Allah”

Fred C. Aikin, one of the most popular men in the motion picture industry, has been elected general manager of the Edmund M. Allen Film Corporation of Chicago. Despite the fact that Mr. Aikin is busily engaged in the state rights field for the Selig Company, he plans to spend a portion of every working day in the Allen offices, 29 South La Salle street, where, in association with Edmund M. Allen, Harry J. Ridings, Joseph Harris and other officers of the Allen Company, a pretentious campaign for “The Garden of Allah” will be formulated and launched.

Mr. Aikin’s years of experience in the film industry, and his personal acquaintanceship with all those who are influential in the motion picture world, points to him as one man in a thousand to be chosen to assist in starting the new company on a prosperous career. The company is planning an elaborate booking and publicity campaign in eight states for “The Garden of Allah,” which is considered as one of the most promising film productions of 1917.

"The Trail of the Shadow" is one of those Diamond Dick stories dressed up in modern garb. Emmy Wehlen does very well as the persecuted maiden of the piece, which is chased through the five reels by a heavily bearded "Shadow," who wishes to wreak vengeance upon her because of "her pride." The hero enters upon a fine steed in the last reel, shoots the despicable villain and marries the girl. The reviewer doubts if the film will please the average audience. It was presented in Chicago under a "for sale" sign.

The story: Sylvia Mason's father is robbed by his secretary, Leslie, who agrees to restore the fortune if he is allowed to marry Sylvia. A fight follows and Mason is killed. Sylvia goes West and makes headwork baskets for a living. Leslie comes to her cabin while seeking refuge from pursuing mountain police, compels her to hide him and thereafter holds her in his power. She falls in love with Henry Hilliard, an Easterner, whose proud mother wishes to break the engagement. She spurns the proffered check book, but later agrees to let Henry go, and when summoned to Leslie's cabin falls into the clutches of Leslie, "the shadow," again. A very light repast is "Patsy." The Fox Company should put these plays up in bunches and let exhibitors pick out the rotten ones, and thus avoid disappointing audiences. One has a feeling of having wasted the hour after sitting through five reels of this stuff.

It is not sufficient to have a fair-haired screen star romp through 5,000 feet of celluloid with a good-looking hero to hold motion picture audiences nowadays. There should be a story. In the present instance the plot is about as thick as skimmed milk on a plate and about as nourishing. The photography is excellent.

The story: Patsy's father realizes that Patsy is growing into womanhood and decides to send her to the city to his friend Richard Hewitt, to acquire an education. Hewitt, however, unknown to Patsy's father, had died and left his fortune to his son, who is going a rather fast pace. While "in his cups" he has married an adventuress. Patsy's arrival upsets his household. Patsy falls in love with her handsome benefactor and learns courtship from a hausmaid's handbook. The butler finally exposes the adventuress as his runaway wife, and the wedding of Patsy and Hewitt follows.

"Come Through" is a play with a real punch. It is a screen story that grips and one that is on a par with the very best dramatic productions.

George Bronson Howard wrote it, and a thoroughly capable cast of players interpreted the parts. That finished actor Herbert Rawlinson heads the cast, and able support is given him by Alice Lake, George Webb, Jean Hathaway, Roy Stewart, Margaret Whistler, William Dyer and Charles Hill Mailes. Jack Conway's direction of the piece is faultless and the photography is of the best.

The reviewer recommends this feature to exhibitors who are looking for a play that will grip audiences. It is a big story, well done and will hold spectators in their seats to the very end.

The story: Buck Linsay becomes engaged to Velma Gay, although Velma is in love with another. Upon Buck's discovery of this love affair he forces Velma to marry a cracksmith, who enters the house, thinking it is her lover. Velma accompanies the crook to the city and Linsay soon discovers his mistake. Through Velma's influence, James Harrington, the crook, reforms. They become professional dancers in a cafe, where Linsay finds them. He determines to take Velma back and employs a politician to "frame-up" Courts. A gang of detectives hound Courts until he is almost ready to give in to the politicians. A political boss, McGinnis, offers to save him if he will steal some papers from a safe. Courts refuses to do this and McGinnis beats Courts into insensibility in his office. Courts is rescued by Linsay and Velma, who arrive with the police. It is then Velma realizes she loves Courts. The picture was presented at the Playhouse, Chicago, the week of July 8.

Mary Pickford is here again, in "The Little American." With such people as Jeanie McPherson, author; Cecil B. De Mille, director, and Wilfred Buckland, art director and Miss Pickford's cameraman, it is no wonder that the picture is a great production. To persons who still are asking, "Why is America in this war?" "The Little American" is a forceful reply, as well as a satisfactory one. The battle line furnishes the settings for most of the scenes. The horrors, devastation and dastardly crimes thus far committed are so well portrayed that it will make every man, woman and child realize that the Prussian system cannot be held in check, but must be entirely eradicated. The film, with its many situations, offers many opportunities for "Little Mary" to make audiences smile. The lighting of the battle scenes taking place at night and the sinking of the Lusitania—which ship in this picture is called the “Veritania”—are two of the most marvelous scenes ever photographed. With its fundamental purpose embodied in a delightful romantic story, it is a production whose mission will be fulfilled without any gruesome after effects. Mary is living up to and exceeding the reputation she attained in her last Artcraft picture as a new “Mary.” She rises superbly to the big, dramatic situations. Jack Holt, the hero, gives an excellent performance. Each artist is worthy of separate mention. The cast includes Hobart Bosworth, James Neill, Guy Oliver, Edythe Chapman, Lilian Leighton, Ben Alexander, De Witt Jennings, Walter Long and Raynouard Hatton.

A DRAMATIC MOMENT FROM “THE LITTLE AMERICAN,” FEATURING MARY PICKFORD (Artcraft)

The story: Carl Von Austreim is in love with Angela Moore (Mary). So is Count Jules De Destin, but he is destined to wear bachelor buttons for Angela returns Carl’s love. It is the Fourth of July and Angela’s birthday, when a mysterious visitor summons Carl to leave America. Shortly afterwards Angela’s father receives a note from his sister asking that Angela be sent to France to cheer her in her lonely old age. Angela embarks on the Veritania, which is sunk by the submarine U-21. Miraculously, Angela is saved. Carl, at the front, is forced to drink to the health of the captain of the submarine, although he knows that his beloved was on the ill-fated liner.

Angela arrives at Vangy in the midst of a German bombardment, but refuses to leave the place. She stays to take care of the wounded, turning her home (her aunt has died and she now is mistress) into an impromptu hospital. Vangy is taken by the Germans and Angela’s chateau is ransacked and her maid servants mistreated. She herself is chased through her own home. In pursuit of her is a fine example of Prussian militarism. In the struggle that ensues she is thrown against the electric button and in the light that floods the room she discovers her attacker to be none other than Carl. She begs him to redeem his manhood and save the women, and he informs her that he cannot give orders to his superiors. She begs the officer to save her women and his reply is that she will be placed with them unless she takes off his boots. Carl has to stand seeing the woman he loves degraded by service to these boots. Angela, by a hidden wire, informs the French of the position of the German guns and a successful bombardment begins.

Angela’s wire is discovered and, when she refuses to send false positions, she is condemned to be shot. That she is an American makes no difference. Carl sees an officer take Angela by the hair and he declares his loathing of the emperor and “damnable” system, and he is condemned to be shot for treason. Fate intervenes and they are both saved and because of Angela’s service to France she is granted a passport for her beloved Carl.

Mary McAlister in “WHERE IS MY MOTHER?”
Essanay-K-E-S-E drama; S. T. 25 minutes; published July 11

Especially strong in its appeal to the feminine audience will “Where Is My Mother?” a unit of the “Do Children Count?” series, prove itself. The story is touching, dealing with the pleadings of a little girl for the return of her mother, who has been driven from the house by her irate husband.

Little Mary McAlister does some brilliant work and the way she puts herself into her roles is very commendable. There is no doubt but what she will immediately win her audiences in “Where Is My Mother?”

The story: John Burdock goes away on a business trip and asks his friend Robert Wilkins to entertain his wife. Wilkins is in love with Mrs. Burdock and one evening on their return from the opera he takes her into his arms. Just at this moment John enters and drives both Wilkins and Mrs. Burdock from the house. Little Nina, their daughter, continually asks for her mother and after the husband’s anger has passed he too longs for the return of his wife.

"When True Love Dawns," the fourth and last of the Brady-International pictures, is such a good one that it seems regrettable that there are to be no more like it. Louis Mercanton, the director of these program features, through them has gained a reputation for carelessness, artistry and perfection of detail. The story contains all the charms of the old novelists such as Bulwer Lytton, Sir Walter Scott and George Eliot. It is the type of tale that never fails to hold the attention. The clever sub-titles, elaborate settings and splendid cast, with fine interpretations of the various roles, make the picture worth looking and repeating.

ONE OF THE BIG MOMENTS IN "WHEN TRUE LOVE DAWNS" (Brady-International Service)

Susan Grandaise, who is known as "the sweetest girl in Europe," heads the cast with an appealing and convincing performance of a difficult role. Others in the cast are Brenton Marchville, Albert Signer, Paul Guide, Marie Jalabert. Paris furnishes the atmosphere.

The story: Susan lives with her grandmother, the Duchess of Breville. George Destray, a millionaire financier, in love with Susan, is a frequent visitor at their home. Robert, Susan's brother, leads a gay life in Paris, while Paul Laney, his friend, earns a meager living in Paris as an artist. Robert gambles his fortune away. Paul, who is in love with Susan, hesitates to speak because of her wealth, but when her money is gone he tells her of his love. Under the inspiration Paul paints a wonderful picture. To cover Robert's debts the duchess sells the estate. Destray buys it back and gives it to the duchess as a present. Susan has refused Destray's proposal of marriage, but when she sees that it necessitates her grandmother's refusal of Breville, she consents to marry him. He strives to make her happy, and gives her brother Robert charge of his estate. But Paul, after a successful painting has been hung, comes back to renew his suit with Susan. She resists for a time, but finally she agrees to go away with him. Her husband hears the plans and arranges to sacrifice himself. There is to be a big blasting in his quarries the next morning, and while the household sleeps he arranges an extra wire. Susan suspects something from his peculiar attitude and rides with speed to the quarries. She reaches her husband's side and he is panisterken when he sees her in danger. He picks her up in the nick of time, and when she realizes what he was about to do for her sake, real love awakens. She begs her husband's forgiveness, and he, loving her and knowing now that she loves him, folds her tenderly in his arms.

"Good for the kiddies and grown-ups, too," is how "At First Sight" might best be described. The story is new and refreshing and the production contains five reels of cheerful entertainment.

Miss Murray gives a delightful interpretation of a romantic heiress and she is ably supported by Sam T. Hardy, Jules Rancourt, Julia Bruns, W. R. Carlton, Nellie Lindreth, William Butler and Edward Sturgis. The story was written by George Middleton. Robert Leonard directed.

Mr. Hardy's interpretation of a young author who is always grasping at people's ideas for material for stories, is very well done. He brings much humor into the production by producing a pencil and paper and jotting down remarks made by his heroine just when the romantic miss expected he would take her in his arms or make some fuss over her. The stamp of New York's Rialto will probably help exhibitors in their decision regarding this picture.

The story: Justine Gibs is a wealthy heiress and her guardians have decided that she must marry Paul. But Justine has ideas of her own. She is verymuch infatuated with the works of Harty Poole, a noted author, and after she has met him she decides to win his love. Harty has settled in the village that he might write a successful novel. His ideas have entirely given out and his acquaintance with Justine gives him new material.

His novel proves to be a great success and as the story succeeds and grows so does love. And at the close of the picture Harty loves Justine just as much as his hero of the story loves the heroine.

William Desmond carries off the honors in this crook play, and the audience at the Covent Garden Theater, Chicago, thoroughly enjoyed it. The Chicago censors gong out three or four big scenes and substituted some subtitles of their own, which did not add to the picture's strength; but exhibitors will find it a strong attraction nevertheless.

It has been produced with the usual Triangle finesse, and Mr. Desmond is surrounded by a very capable company. Mildred Harris, Gloria Hope, Robert McKim, Rowland Lee and Milton Ross take part. The photography is clear and the direction perfect.

The story: "Silver Jim" Farrell and his partner, Crabbe, both crooks, are living quietly outside of New York. The arrival of Farrell's sister from a convent compels the two to go straight. However, a request comes to "spring" a friend who has been arrested, and they resolve to make one more robbery to raise money to free their friend. They steal a valuable necklace from a jewelry store. Farrell's sister is about to marry a young South American, and the jeweler's son is asked to be best man. Here he recognizes Farrell as the thief, but upon Farrell's promise to return the necklace the following day, does not expose him. Farrell's sister sails on her wedding journey. Farrell returns the necklace and discovers that the head of the jewelry store is his former partner who stole a fortune from him. To avoid exposure the merchant gives Farrell a check in settlement and the two crooks, Crabbe and Farrell, sail to a foreign country to start life anew.

As is usual with screen stories written to fit the needs of the occasion, "The Two Little Imps" falls down hard. The antics of the two Lee kiddies, while most interesting at times, pull upon one when strung out into a five-reel subject. In this latest Fox production they are not natural. The piece is slow-moving—especially laughable is a struggle between Uncle Billy and two burglars, which lacks punch and conviction. An elaborate interior picturing of a hotel ballroom and lobby is used in the production. Considerable footage is consumed following two burglars in and out of rooms, and the end is a welcome relief.

The story: Uncle Billy is left in charge of Jane and Katherine by their mother. While Billy tries to make love to a young lady the two children, dressed in make-shift Hawaiian attire, give a hula-hula dance at the head of the stairs. A slippery rug carries one into the midst of the assembled guests, and Uncle Billy whips Jane annihilates her to bed. Burglars break into the hotel, and Uncle Billy is almost overcome by them when Jan knocks one of them senseless with a flatiron.

A detective story that will doubtless interest many patrons is well told in "The Reed Case," directed by Allen Holubar and starring Mr. Holubar and Louise Lily. The story has been cleverly handled, and the many tense situations have been well wrought into a film production that exhibitors should have little difficulty in putting over.

The story deals with a young detective who is sent to the mountains to rest after a strenuous fight to capture the notorious crooks.

At his mountain lodge he is attacked by men from bush and goes forth to find the hiding place of these men. Coming upon a log house hidden in the shrubbery, he goes inside and finds a beautiful young girl who has been made captive. She is being held for ransom that the men might secure sufficient funds to fight the case; the crooks arrested by the detective.

The young detective, after a hard fight, is successful in uniting the entire gang and winning the love of the young lady detective.

There is little doubt that picture patrons will enjoy "The Range Boss," Jack Gardner's latest starring vehicle, made by Essanay. The story is laid in the West, and Jack Gardner is cast as a cowboy. The production is interspersed with enjoyable comedy. There is some swift riding, and at times the situations become tense.

The story: Ruth Harkness, accompanied by her aunt and uncle and her nance, Willard Masten, go to the West to live on a ranch left Ruth by a relative. Rex Randerson, a ranger on Ruth's ranch, learns of a plot by some of the men to steal her inheritance. Rex falls in love with Ruth. Masten is enraged at the attentions Rex pays Ruth and plots with the men to kill Randerson when taking the ranch. Ruth and Rex are trapped in a shack by the men. Rex puts up a strong fight and succeeds in subduing the men and saving Ruth's property.

RITA JOLIVET WILL STAR IN FILM
WRITTEN AROUND LUSITANIA SINKING

Rita Jolivet, the leading lady of many New York stage successes, has commenced work upon a new production, to be published under the Selznick-Pictures banner, written around the Lusitania disaster.

It will be recalled Miss Jolivet stood on the deck of the ill-fated ship with Charles Frohman when it was torpedoed by the Germans, and from Miss Jolivet's impressions a scenario has been worked out which will be presented upon the screen.

"CORRUPTION"
Super-Arts drama; six parts; published by Popular Pictures Corporation; state rights
As a whole: Interesting Story: Entertaining
Stars: Very good
Support: Excellent
Settings: Suitable
Photography: Excellent

In "Corruption," Helen Marten, who plays the lead, handles the part of the ruined girl with so much delicacy that it should not give offense to the most critical. Henry J. Sedley, who plays opposite Miss Marten, does excellent work as the son of the rich and indulgent father.

Jack Gorman, who wrote and directed this piece, deserves praise for the really superior work which he has done. John J. Dunn, as the doctor, also portrays the part with such truly artistic ability that he is worthy of mention. Florence Hackett, Arthur J. Pickens, Lucile Dorrington and Marion Stephenson also deserve much credit. Altogether this will make a good state rights picture.

The story: The girl (Helen Marten) is betrayed by the rich man's son (Henry J. Sedley) and is taken by her mother to the doctor (John J. Dunn), who is a mal-practitioner. The mother (Miss Marion Stephenson) does not know the girl's condition and is sent into the reception room with the wife of the doctor (Florence Hackett) while the doctor consults with the girl. While talking with the mother of the girl, the doctor's wife hands out a note that it is her daughter whom she left in the care of the supposed mother when she deserted her husband. The doctor's wife is broken-hearted when she learns that it is her daughter who is in that condition.

Meanwhile the doctor calls up the rich man's son and tells him about the girl. He makes an arrangement with the doctor whereby he can get out of marrying the girl. He leaves the doctor in receipt of a check for five thousand dollars. But that does not get him away, for the real mother confronts the son in the presence of his father (Arthur J. Pickens). The father, enraged, forces the youth to marry the girl and then commands him to leave the house. He does so, and takes his wife to the doctor and asks for his money back. Upon receiving a refusal he informs the police department of the nature of the doctor's business. When they go to arrest him he swallows poison.

In a parlor over the baby clothes the husband knocks the girl over a table and when she falls unconscious to the floor he thinks that she is dead, and flees.

Later she is convalescing but her memory has gone. She cannot be brought to remember anything that happened. The husband, finding out that his wife is not dead, is ashamed of himself and returns. It needs only the sight of him to bring to her mind what has occurred, and loving him, she is folded in his arms and is happy. The real mother then surprises the girl by disclosing her identity and there is a happy reunion.

One reel; published July 11

Historical subjects of interest are well presented in issue No. 9 of the Selig World Library, published on the General Film program. St. John's Church in Washington, D. C., built in 1816, which contains one pew retained for the president, is shown. Views of Ford's Theatre, in which Abraham Lincoln was shot, and the house in which he died, now a Lincoln museum, are also shown. The old James Creek lock house and the old colonial dwelling used as the Theater. Marie Rambeau is an interesting cast and leaves. Harry Howland has been seen in various roles. Marie's credits are numerous, and she has been a popular star in many dramas. The story of "A Little Boy Scout" is a patriotic one, and it is appropriate that it should be produced during this time of war. The play is a success, and the production is well directed by Charles Sarver. It is a moving story, and it is sure to please the audience. The acting is excellent, and the set pieces are well done. It is a credit to the whole production team. The play opens at the Orpheum Theater on July 28. It is a must-see for anyone interested in the art of theater.
JACKIE SAUNDERS IN "BETTY BE GOOD," A FIVE-REEL COMEDY-DRAMA, LEADS MUTUAL PROGRAM JULY 16 WEEK

Jackie Saunders, star in a series of successful products for Mutual, leads Mutual's schedule for the week of July 16 in "Betty Be Good," a five-reel comedy-drama. "Betty Be Good" was produced by E. D. Horkheimer. It marks the return to the screen of Captain Leslie T. Macocke, veteran motion picture writer and actor. He plays one of the leading roles in the production.

"Betty Be Good" is a story of love and politics. It provides another "tomboy" role for Miss Saunders, a part in which she is supposed to be a dignified little miss in which she is even more the harum-seurum girl that is created a demand for her plays from the picture public.

Big Blast Scene in Rain Raiders

"The Mystery of the Counterfeit Tickets," the fifteenth and final chapter of "The Railroad Raiders," Mutual's serial signal novel, is scheduled for publication July 16. Helen Holmes, heroine of the serial and the secret service agent of the K. & W. Railway, runs down the raiders, and Helen's father, convicted for the crimes of the gang, is freed from prison. The shack in which the gang has made headquarters and secreted its printing equipment is burned and blown away. This is one of the spectacular scenes of the episode.

There are two comedies on the week's schedule: Jerry's Star Bout," a one-reel Cub, featuring George Vey, and "The Kissing Butterfly," a one-reel La Salle. The Kissing Butterfly is to be issued Tuesday, July 17, and "Jerry's Star Bout" is on the schedule for Thursday, July 19.

Mutual Tours Hold Interest

"Mutual Tours Around the World," Guinont's reel of travel, shows Avignon, a beautiful and historic city in southeastern France; also the ruined palace of Tiberius, and the motion picture audience to the mysterious imbulku and to a city of the Sudan. Real Life, the weekly film magazine, to be issued July 9, initiates the spectator into the mysteries of construction of the incandescent lamp, shows a novel bicycle race and the raising of coconuts, pictures the Boy Scout signal corps and contains animated cartoons from Life.

Mutual Weekly No. 133, for July 18, will contain pictures of the latest news. The weekly is made up two days prior to its publication date, and its contents are determined by incidents of news importance which occur in the few days preceding publication. The weekly contains a wide range of subjects. No. 131, for July 2, shows the arrival of the American ambulance corps on the French front, the arrival of Italy's war envoys, the attack on suffragettes at Washington, the arrival of American army surgeons at Blackpool, England, and the breading-line in Rome, Italy.

SEVERAL STRONG TABLOID DRAMAS AND BRIGHT COMEDIES ON UNIVERSAL
PROGRAM FOR WEEK OF JULY 16

Universal films for the week of July 16 include several strong tabloid dramas and some of the brightest comedies that have been offered for several weeks.

"Six Shooter Justice," a three-reel film with the scenes laid in the Mohave Desert, features Harry Carey and Claire Du Brey. The story tells of the almost tragic complications that arise when a young girl traveling across the desert with her father undertakes to rate two men by appearances only. Quite naturally, she puts her faith in a goodlooking adventurer, ignoring the unkempt hero who risks his life in the climax of events to prevent her from meeting the fate that her lack of judgment had made possible. This offering is offered under the Gold Seal brand.

The Nestor comedy for Tuesday, July 17, is a rollicking tale of the misadventures that befall a pretty girl with a fad for Oriental mysticism. The story is by Jack Cunningham and F. A. Palmer, directed by L. W. Chaud, and the featured players are Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts.

Universal Weekly July 18

The eighty-first issue of the Universal Animated Weekly, devoted to pictorial stories of the big news events of the day, is scheduled for Wednesday, July 18. For the same day will be issued "A Surf Scandal," a two-reel L-Ko comedy, in which Dan Russell and Gladys Varden are carried through an unusual and rather startling series of events by the seaside. Noel Smith and J. G. Blystone are responsible for the production.

Cleo Madison in "The Web," a two-reel Star Featurette, will be starred on Thursday, July 19. The plot of this film, touching life's lower stratum, deals with the complications that confront a beautiful but unscrupulous woman who is forced to choose between love and the spoils of a robbery that she has been relying on to make her comfortable for life. Events take an unexpected turn, bringing her latent womanhood to the surface, and a satisfactory solution of the problem is reached. In this rapidly moving film Cleo Madison has given one of the best characterizations of her career, it is said. "Some Nurse," a Joker comedy, featuring Gale Henry and Milton Simmons, will be shown the same day.

Comedy and Screen Magazine July 20

The twenty-eighth issue of the Universal Screen Magazine will appear Friday, July 20, together with a new Victor comedy, entitled "One Bride Too Many," written by Cyril Bentinek and produced by Matt Moore. This rib-tickler details the many strange events that occur at a farewell bachelor dinner given by a bridegroom-elect prior to his marriage to an heiress. Matt Moore, Howard Crampton and Jane Gail have the featured roles.

Another Joker comedy, "He Had 'Em Buffaloo," featuring the comedian, William Franey, will appear Saturday, July 21, together with the tenth issue of Universal Current Events. Franey's vehicle is a burlesque of the land of the longhorns and alkali.

The fourth episode of "The Gray Ghost," Universal's new mystery serial, will be published during the week. This will be known as "The Fight," featuring Eddie Polo, Priscilla Dean, Enory Johnson and Harry Carter.
EXHIBITORS

RITA JOLIVET TO APPEAR IN FILM ON LUSITANIA SINKING WHICH WILL BE ISSUED BY LOUIS J. SELZNICK

Under the Selznick-Picture banner, Rita Jolivet will begin work this week upon a unique production.

Miss Jolivet, it will be recalled, was the young woman to whom Charles Frohman spoke his immortal last words—"Why Fear Death? It is the great adventure."

For a long time after the Lusitania disaster, which proved to be the first step in a series of atrocities which brought on the war with Germany, Miss Jolivet was unable to talk about it. Now, however, she has come to the conclusion that the events immediately concerned with the sinking of the great ship are of such vast moment that they should be recorded in permanent form.

Obviously the limitations of the spoken drama are too narrow to make it possible to stage such a story as this, and so Miss Jolivet has made a contract with Lewis J. Selznick to produce the ideas in a picture. It will not be mere history—there will be a story in it as well. As Miss Jolivet is one of the few persons available who can subscribe in a practical manner the scenes on the Lusitania, the scenario will be worked out largely from her instructions.

Miss Jolivet is much better known for her stage work than for her motion picture appearances. In New York, London and Paris, she has appeared in a great variety of roles. She has had the leading feminine roles in "Kismet," "What It Means to a Woman," "The Wedding of Mrs. Bliss," "A Thousand Years Ago," "Mrs. Boltoy's Daughters" and others. Her debut was in London as Beatrice in "Much Ado About Nothing." She has played a number of other Shakespearean roles as well. In Paris, she has appeared at the Comedie Francaise, in comedies with Galipaux and in other notable productions. Her most important moving picture experience has been in Italy, with the famous Ambrosio.

TWO NEW SELIG FILMS ANNOUNCED

"A Daughter of the Southland" is the title of a two-reel Selig production which contains a romance of the Southland during the days of the Civil War, to be published on General program July 16. It is said that the drama carries a number of spectacular scenes of battle, not the least of which is the battle between the Monitor and the Merrimac.

"The L. X. Clew" is the title of the Selig one-reel drama to be issued by General on Saturday, July 21. It is a detective story. How the chalk mark L. X. on the sole of a boot proved the clew that ultimately led to the apprehension of a clever thief and the return of a diamond necklace is said to be a clever study in the science of deduction.

WALLACE REID AND ANITA KING CO-STAR IN "THE SQUAW MAN'S SON" ON PARAMOUNT PROGRAM JULY 26

Wallace Reid and Anita King are the co-stars in "The Squaw Man's Son," an adaptation of the sequel to Edwin Milton Royle's "The Squaw Man," scheduled for publication by Paramount July 26.

The cast includes such well known players as Dorothy Davenport, Donald Bowles, C. H. Geldert, Frank Lanning, Ernest Joy, Lucien Littlefield, Mabel Van Buren and Raymond Hatton.

"The Squaw Man," which proved a big success both on the stage and screen, it will be remembered told the story of an Englishman of high birth who left England to protect a brother in trouble, took up a ranch on the western plains and married an American Indian woman.

"The Squaw Man's Son" relates the history of the son, Hal. He returns to England, marries an English woman, becomes addicted to the use of drugs, and later comes to America to investigate his father's estate. He exposes David Ladd, an Indian agent, who is planning to steal property from the Indians, and later befriends Wah-Na-Gi, a Carlisle graduate who has lost her position as school teacher through Ladd. Hal places the Indian girl in the care of a local preacher and returns to England, where his wife is reported seriously ill. In love with the Indian maiden, he tells her before he goes of his wife in England. Hal is called to America to testify in the land case and participates in an exposure of a crime that takes place while a Christmas festival, prepared for Wah-Na-Gi is in progress. A messenger brings news of the death of Hal's wife and he goes in search of the heart-breaker Indian girl and finds her at the tombstone of his mother.

A DANGEROUS EAGLE HUNT AND MANY SUBJECTS OF TRAVEL IN HISTORIC CITIES IN GAUMONT REELS JULY 2

The first Gaumont film for the week of July 22 through Mutual is the entertaining single-reel "Tours Around the World," No. 38. It reaches the screen July 24. Pru- gonia, is the leading section of this reel. The city one of the quaintest in Europe and spectators will enjoy the views of churches, public buildings and bridge. The bridge over the Moldau was built in 1275. Kair- wan, the sacred city of Tunisia, is another interesting place shown on this reel. In a mosque here are the hairs of Mahomet buried in the tomb of one of the Prophets companions. The reel is completed with pictures of The Dauphin, France, that section of southeastern Europe which runs into the Alps.

The second film of the week is the Mutual Weekly No. 134. This contains news of the world which can be seen in pictures. Because of its world wide Gaumont connections pictures are secured for publication in America at the earliest possible date. It often happens that the pictures of the opening of a great offensive on the western front are issued by Gaumont before the delay has come to a halt. Mutual Weekly, No. 134, is issued July 25.

On July 26 "Reel Life," No. 65, will reach the set. It shows the new National Sylvan Theater at Washington D. C., the first government-owned theater in America's dangerous eagle hunting is pictured; then follow views of the poultry farm of Mrs. Schumann-Heink, and then in turn are succeeded by pictures of children at work at a polytechnic school. There are the customary "Lea from 'Life' also."
PRODUCER SHOULD CONSULT AUTHOR, SAYS MAIBELLE HEIKES JUSTICE

Miss Maibelle Heikes Justice has returned to New York to resume her literary work after several weeks in Chicago, where she has been in conference with the Selig Polyscope Company. Before she left the city Miss Justice spoke interestingly of her work. She said:

"There is a feeling of satisfaction and pride on the part of an author in viewing a finished production after having had co-operation in the work of both producer and director. The making of 'Who Shall Take My Life?' has been a pleasure to me rather than a work from its very beginning I have watched and worked with the production step by step.

Says Author Should Be Consulted

"Under the personal supervision of William N. Selig and the fine production of Colin Campbell the picture was brought to a point where the author was called in, and after several weeks of co-operation in cutting and assembling the picture now is ready for publication.

"Many of the final and important decisions in assembling the film were left entirely to the judgment of the author. This courtesy on the part of the Selig Polyscope Company is one that should be accorded every earnest working photodramatist by every film company. By such cooperation there must unquestionably be the production of greater stories and better films.

"The usual plan of taking a photodrama from the hands of the author and not giving him a glimpse of his brain-child again until it has been pruned and often distorted by everybody else down the line and becomes to the originator an unrecognizable screen product is all wrong.

Author Summoned to Front Ranks

"All directors, no matter how conscientious, might not interpret an author the same. A manufacturer should consult with both the former and obtain their best ideas. The day has been here for some time when the author, by long experience in fiction writing, has been summoned to the front ranks of screen portrayers. On the author—and he must learn to be a photodramatist able to write the whole drama—must rest the future of the original screen story. Give him encouragement and the privilege of working on his own production, and I grant that before long, in wealth of real story material, the screen will be speaking a new language. The author will not lay aside his pen with disappointment and heartbreak and turn to other things if his rather hard work is cheered by the light of appreciation.

"Who Shall Take My Life?" was written for an object—the abolition of capital punishment on circumstantial evidence. But with no attempt at propaganda, the story itself was left to teach the lesson. And now since the film has been completed and exhibited at private showings to many great prison reformers it has been a great pleasure to the author to sit back and watch the impression of the story on these men and law-makers who would no longer tolerate capital punishment.

Story Convincing, Says T. M. Osborne

"The Hon. Thomas Mott Osborne, former warden of Sing Sing and the great prison reformer who never himself witness an execution, was one of the latter who viewed the film with me. At the close he said:

"'Here is a story whose argument is absolutely convincing. Such a thing could happen to any man; that he be charged with crime, tried, convicted and executed, notwithstanding his innocence. While warden of Sing Sing it was my duty to arrange for the death of several men I believed innocent. But I left the prison during their execution, because no law could force me to see them die.'

EDWARD NELSON, NEW PRESIDENT OF SHERMAN-ELLIOTT CO. OF MINNEAPOLIS, ADDS ANOTHER BANKER TO INDUSTRY

Announcement was made some time ago of the change of officers in the Sherman-Elliott Company of Minneapolis, which is handling William N. Selig's film, "The Crisis," the picturization of Winston Churchill's book story of that name.

Edward Nelson, the new president, makes another attorney to enter the motion picture field. Mr. Nelson has made a thorough study of the motion picture business and has had considerable practical experiences with the buying and marketing of feature films.

David H. Breecher, vice-president, is an investment banker and heavily interested in many North Dakota banks. F. H. Peterson, the treasurer, is president of the Union State Bank of Minneapolis. Both of the last named men have for some time been interested financially in the great films of the past years.

Last fall the company purchased from The Selig Polyscope Company the rights for the United States and Canada for "The Crisis." To date all the United States territory east of the Mississippi has been disposed of, including Missouri, California, Arizona and Nevada, together with the right for Canada. The rich middle western territories are still open and buyers should communicate at once with the president of the company at 854 McKnight Building, Minneapolis, Minn.

Long and successful runs of this film have been achieved in many of the larger cities of the country and the play has proven itself a great box office attraction.

VIVIAN MARTIN HAS STELLAR ROLE IN "A KISS FOR SUSIE," SCHEDULED ON PARAMOUNT FOR AUGUST 2

"A Kiss for Susie," which has been scheduled for publication by Paramount August 2 with Vivian Martin in the stellar role, is notable for its simplicity. The story, which was written by Paul West, centers around such a homely and everyday occurrence as the construction of a building and the people who play the most important parts in the story are the commonplace members of a bricklayer's household. It is a romance such as might occur in any house in any community and is therefore of especial interest and calculated to entertain wherever it is shown.

The play has been arranged for the screen from Mr. West's story by Harvey Thew and was directed by Robert Thornby. Among the important members of the cast are Tom Forman, who plays opposite Miss Martin; John Burton, who has played so many characterizations in recent Paramount pictures, Chris Lynton, Jack Nelson and Pauline Perry. Vivian Martin is Susie Nolan, the daughter of one of the best bricklayers in the union.
M. H. HOFFMAN SECURES "SILENT WITNESS" FILM FOR FOUR SQUARE; IS THIRD SUPERFEATURE

Picture Adapted from Noted Stage Play of New York Success, Said to Eclipse Original Drama; Has Powerful Story

"The Silent Witness," the film version of the play of the same name by Otto Hauerbach, which had a long and successful run in New York, has been acquired by M. H. Hoffman, Inc., for the world, from Sanger & Jordan.

This is the third superfeature secured for Four Square publication by this organization, the other two being "The Sin Woman" and "Madame Sherry." The cast, headed by Gertrude McCoy in the stellar role, is said to be of splendid balance and strong in dramatic quality.

Called Convincing Drama

According to New York newspaper reviewers of the drama, "The Silent Witness" was declared the most convincing dramatic triumph since "Madame X." "The Silent Witness" moves steadily to a climax which thrills its audience. In its photoplay form it is pronounced even more interesting than when offered originally as a stage attraction.

Mr. Hauerbach based the underlying motive of his story upon a subject which, strangely enough, formed the pre-election platform of New York's district attorney, Swan—that the prosecutor is attorney for all the people, the prisoner as well as the state.

In a prologue and three acts, "The Silent Witness" has for its central theme the obstacles imposed upon a boy working his way through college and who is competing against sons of wealthy men. One of these scions, casting aspersions upon the poor boy's mother, is brought to account.

In the fight which ensues Bud Morgan, the penniless youth, kills—as he fancies—his adversary.

Strong Plot Material

Young Morgan is held for murder, and in the capacity of district attorney his father (unaware at the time of his relationship to the prisoner) is confronted with the task of learning the facts. The ingenious manner in which the author brings together the boy's mother and father at the end, and the parts played by other important characters in the photoplay, form elements altogether worth while.

"It is a Four Square picture in the best sense," says M. H. Hoffman. "The play and the players, with our Four Square policy, make the product a superfeature which we can offer with confidence that it will give the utmost satisfaction to exhibitors and the public."

The words are "mystery," "romance," "adventure" and "sentiment."

"MELISSA OF THE HILLS," MARY MILES MINTER'S NEW VEHICLE, TO BE PUBLISHED JULY 23

Story with Dramatic Action of Tennessee Feuds and Big Romance Shows Star as Devoted Daughter of Minister; Magnificent Backgrounds Are Seen in the Film

Mary Miles Minter, in the stellar role of "Melissa of the Hills," an American film to be distributed to the theaters July 23 and thereafter, has the role of a daughter of a kindly minister of the gospel.

As Melissa she is beloved of all the rude backwoodsmen and smart city attorney, but all except the young attorney are ignored utterly that her time may be given to comforting her father.

Miss Minter's leading man is Alan Forrest, and Spottiswoode Aiken plays the role of the father in the picture. Another featured player is George Periolat as a skinflint with a soft heart.

From the oilskins and maddening clothes of "Periwinkle" Mary shifts to overalls, army shirt and hunting boots in this new story of Tennessee feuds and old-time filial devotion, and the mountain fashions become her as strikingly as do those of the sea.

Samuel S. Hutchinson, in presenting the picture, calls attention to the magnificent backgrounds in the play. These were taken in the big-timber regions of California. The scenes revel in the atmosphere of the Southland, and the story, by Mabel Heikes Justice, contains much dramatic action.

LOIS WEBER WILL PRODUCE "K" STORY, BEST WORK FROM PEN OF MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Will Be Second of Productions Published Under New Arrangement with Universal; Star Is Lauded by Author

Upon completion of "The Whim," which is nearing its final scenes, Lois Weber will begin a screen version of Mary Roberts Rinehart's novel, "K," which created a big impression when published a season or two ago.

"K" will be the second of the Lois Weber productions published under the new arrangement with Universal, film rights to the story having been secured from Mrs. Rinehart during the past week.

Author Compliments Star

Herself one of the most popular authors now writing English, Mrs. Rinehart paid a generous tribute to Lois Weber when closing the deal for the presentation of "K" in motion pictures.

"I have refused other offers for 'K,'" she said, "because I have been loath to see my pet novel interpreted with out companies who might wish to rework the story according to their own notions. But when I learned that Lois Weber wished to put it on the screen I just shouted with joy, because I knew that 'K' would receive the most artistic and truthful presentation possible at her hands.

Calls Miss Weber an Artist

"For several years past I have admired the work of this unusual woman. I consider her one of the great feminine personalities at work in this country. She is a thinker and an artist, every atom of her. I would rather have Lois Weber film my book than anybody else, because I know that she will bring out every salient point in the character of 'K' with sympathy and vivid pictorial effect."

SOL LESSER HEADS STATE RIGHTS BUYERS' ORGANIZATION; N. Y. TO BE FIRST MEETING PLACE

Since the recent announcement of his plans for the launching of a national organization of state rights buyers, which aroused considerable conjecture in the trade, Sol L. Lesser has been continually occupied with the development of his project, and it now is authentically announced that members of the organization will convene in New York City on August 7.

The organization, which is the result of a careful and prolonged study of general conditions, is in a position to purchase the rights to feature productions outright for the entire United States and Canada, and proposals will be considered at the time of the convention.

Practically all of the United States and Canada is covered, and the members identified with the enterprise are those whose keen judgment and financial success in the film industry determine unquestionably their desirability as members of the organization.

SHERMAN WILL LEND FINANCIAL AID TO PRODUCERS WITH SUITABLE UNFINISHED FILMS

President of Newest Company Not Only to Buy and Sell Films for State Rights, but Will Offer
Cash to Complete Plays

With the coming of the Sherman Pictures Corporation the industry has the first big company organized for the purpose of opening up the state right market, for this company makes one of the most liberal offers, ever made by any manufacturer in that it comes into the field to not only purchase and sell state rights productions, but it will take any picture which has not been completed owing to the fact that the producer has not the necessary funds to finish it, and, providing it is a good story and up to the Sherman standard, this company will advance the producer the money needed

Is Newest Trade Idea

No such offer has ever been made by any state rights buyer or distributor since the motion picture industry came into being. In the future a producer who has a good picture for sale need not worry about how to dispose of it. Provided it is up to the Sherman standard, a ready market is asserted—for it can be sold promptly and for spot cash.

Harry Sherman, president of the Sherman Pictures Corporation, has created this new standard for quick action. Following the news of his recent purchase of the distribution rights for "I Believe" comes the innovation that the precedent established will be maintained. This enterprising distributor, who has jumped into activities in New York, should prove a valuable acquisition in the interests of the state rights market to which his personal attention, seconded by an efficient staff, will be specially directed.

Already Commeneced Work

The Sherman Pictures Corporation has already commenced its work in the Sherman Pictures Building, at 210
West Forty-second street.

"A square deal at all times for the state rights buyer and sympathetic appreciation of the difficulties that every exhibitor will meet," is the mesage of this energetic distributor.

Mr. Sherman says he will co-operate with state, rights buyers and the co-operation should prove of great value in exploiting the product.

NEWLY FORMED CIVILIZATION-PIONEER CO.
WILL HANDLE BIG STATE RIGHTS FEATURE

Nathan Hirsh Is Made President of New Concern with Ope Booking Policy; "Redemption," with Evelyn Nesbit, Is Initial Offering

The consolidation of the Civilization Feature Company and the Pioneer Features Film Corporation, formerly located on West Forty-sixth street, New York, brings another strong organization into the field.

Nathan Hirsh, who was president of the Pioneer, has been made president of the new firm, which will be known as the Civilization-Pioneer Feature Film Company, Inc.

To Handle State Rights

The new company now is seeking offices in the Times Square district,
New York, and it is the purpose of the concern to buy state rights for New York and northern New Jersey for the most meritorious productions available.

"Only stories of strong interest," says Mr. Hirsh, "with stars of the first magnitude and pretentious productions, which will be of commercial value to the exhibitor, will be exhibited."

The new concern will adopt an open booking policy and no exhibitors will be compelled to enter into a contact to take all of their features.

First Film Is "Redemption"
The first film of the new organization will be Julius Steger's "Redention," featuring Evelyn Nesbit, who planned to capacity houses at the George M. Cohan Theater, New York, and proved an excellent box office attraction in Chicago recently.

Associated with Mr. Hirsh are Messrs. Louis Hass and Morris Ross, formerly with the Civilization Picture Company.

CHICAGO TRADE EVENTS

By "MAC"

Well it's here at last! Don't forget the expo and convention, July 14-22.

George West, manager of the Lang Theater, was one of the first to ask the Billie West comedies from Art Films exchange. George was big things for them. He should know—Billie's his brother, you know. That's getting 'inside info,' we main.

They tell us Tom Phillips, the slade on, developed a new one at the recent Rotary Club Convention held "somewhere" in the sunny South. Yea, it's near the official film director and cinemographer for the bunch. His alibi—got over 2,000 feet of marvelous pictures, but somebody fed it so well, his fingers were quicker than my optics. All right, Tom, I'll let it go at that.

Gene Duffy has been a real busy bee for the past week or so, greeting many exhibitor friends. He is on the job for the Mutual Film Corporation.

Professor N. W. Barnes of the University of Chicago, accompanied by a student of the Department of Commerce, visited the plant of the Patterson R. Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, July 9. As the tests of Mr. Rothacker the students were given their first peek into the mysteries of film advertising.

Cheer up, Smithy, old top. Thank you, you will never be troubled with my notices to appear in the "Speed's Court," Pal C. E. Smith, master of Metro Pictures Service, so heear, is piloting an Overland speed man, a sister ship to Joe Skirboll's.

A gentle hint to busy film salesmen: "Jack" Miller, of the Phizlance heater now can be found chasing the merry and elusive pill about most of the nearby golf links. He recently made the eighteen holes on the Jackson Park links somewhere between 130 or thereabouts.

Lillian Walker, she of the girlish milks and dimples, stepped off for a brief visit, July 6, on her way East from Utah. Miss Walker, assured hose in charge she would return for the exposition July 16, the day set side for this charming miss, who now is associated with the Ogden Pictures Corporation.

Everything now is in readiness at the Reel Fellows Club, to make this delightful place a regular "bee-hive" for the many visiting delegates to the convention and exposition. Note: A collar and chain now is a part of the club's equipment, so have a care, some of you "noisy boys."

Special wire from "Automobile Row."—The boys have up to date demonstrated the riding qualities of the Ford, Mercier, Stutz, Bear-Cat, and Crane Simplex. Their have asked that this be slipped to M. J. Mintz, of the Unity Photoplays Corporation. We have just received a large flock of Ford's "cans," vintage of 1915, bring cash and take your pick.

R. E. Seery, resigned as manager of the local exchange of the Triangle Distributing Corporation, being succeeded by J. S. Woody, recently associated with Paramount Pictures in this territory.

BERNSTEIN FILMS WILL BE REPRESENTED WORLD-WIDE BY SHEPARD & VAN LOAN

New York Concern Also to Market All Productions on State Rights Basis; Sherman May Take Over Bernstein Plant to Make Pictures

Before leaving for the Pacific Coast last week Isadore Bernstein announced that he had made arrangements with Shepard & Van Loan whereby this company, which was incorporated for the purpose of handling the advertising, publicity and exploitation for all organizations, will act as the world representatives of Bernstein Film Productions.

In addition to looking after his advertising and publicity, this concern will handle the marketing of all the Bernstein productions and will be responsible for these pictures from the moment they leave the studio in their finished state until they are disposed of either on a state rights basis or through various exchanges.

Work on Fourth Film

The Bernstein studios are at present working on a fourth production, called "Justice." The first picture made by this company was entitled "Who Knows," and following this came "Humility," which Mr. Bernstein had intended to be the first of a series of pictures to be known as "The Seven Cardinal Virtues." The second of this series was completed a few days ago and is called "Loyalty." A wire from Bernstein, who arrived in Los Angeles this week, says it is a fine production. He has now started work on "Justice," with Betty Brice playing the leading role.

Whether Mr. Bernstein will publish the series as first intended, under "The Seven Cardinal Virtues," has not yet been decided. It is possible that each picture will be put out as a big feature. This could be easily done, as each story is complete in itself.

Confers with Sherman

While he was in New York Mr. Bernstein had several conferences with Harry Sherman, who organized the Sherman Pictures Corporation last week, and it was rumored in various quarters that Sherman was considering taking over the Bernstein plant, which is said to be one of the finest in the country. Mr. Sherman would neither deny nor verify this rumor. However, it is known that he is seriously considering the question of producing pictures himself or entering into an arrangement with some studio whereby he can finish the scripts and have the productions made to his order.

Sherman is now preparing to leave for the coast within the next few days with some of the members of his newly formed company.

If this is accomplished it will be largely due to the agency of Shepard & Van Loan, who brought these two men together when Bernstein was in New York.

CASINO THEATER TO BE SCENE OF NEW YORK SCREEN CLUB AFFAIR

The Casino Theater, New York, will be the scene of the first annual Screen Club entertainment, to be known as the "First Reel" on July 29.

An elaborate program, including the personal appearance of many of the screen's celebrated stars, is being arranged and it is expected the annual attraction will add considerable to the club's exchequer.

The entertainment will be followed by a reception, cabaret and dance tendered by the artists, patrons and patronesses, at the clubhouse.
EXHIBITORS

Winnipeg, Man.—Owing to the splendid business which the Strand Theater of Winnipeg did on "The Voice on the Wire" the management deemed it advisable to contract for its successor "The Gray Ghost" which is booked to them for three days each week.

Toronto, Ont.—The Bijou Theater of Preston, Ont., has changed ownership. It is understood that Mr. Harris, of Waterloo, is the new owner.

Ottawa, Ont.—Both the Dominion and the Flower Theaters in Ottawa are dark, having closed for the summer.

Toronto, Ont.—A peculiar condition and one which is certainly pleasing to exhibitors on border points in Canada has developed. Owing to the strict immigration regulations, it is now very difficult for Canadians to cross through the border towns of Sault Ste. Marie, Niagara Falls and Windsor, Ont.

This edit of the Dominion authorities in having people at home has made a marked increase in the motion picture business at the points named. A. A. Huttelmayer, proprietor of the Queens Theater, Niagara Falls, in conversation with the column, said: "I have noted a marked increase to the motion picture business at Niagara Falls, Ont., and it can be directly traced to the fact that Canadians are staying at home and patronizing local theaters in the evening instead of going across to the American side and leaving their money there." Reports from other Canadian points bear out Mr. Huttelmayer's statement.

Toronto, Ont.—The Canadian Universal Film Company, Ltd., has again been given the contract to supply comedies for the open air theaters at Scarborough Beach for the summer months. The Alice Howell comedies will be featured and practically every street car in Toronto will carry a half-sheet on these comedies.

Toronto, Ont.—B. J. Rogers, Toronto manager for the Fox-Film Company, and Maurice Went, the Montreal manager, are in New York attending the third annual Fox convention. L. Ramey is acting manager for the Toronto office during Mr. Rogers' absence.

Toronto, Ont.—The new $20,000 Sunset Theater of Estuary, Sask., was opened recently. C. Schneider is the manager and Arthur Pelletier has been secured as operator. The new theater will use Pathé, Mutual and Universal.

Montreal, Que.—L. E. O'Calllet, general manager of the Film Import Company, has returned to Montreal from a trip of inspection to cover his branch offices in Toronto, Winnipeg and Calgary and reports that business in general throughout the Canadian West is very good for this season.

Toronto, Ont.—Following close upon the announcement that early this fall Paramount open booking or star series plan would go into effect, J. J. and Jay Allen who hold Paramount franchise of Canada have commenced reorganizing their company.

ALICE BRADY CAST IN UNIQUE ROLE IN JULY FILM, "SELF-MADE WIDOW"

Will Be Seen as Country Girl Lured to City, Where She Outwits the Young Man

Alice Brady is a supernaturally wise little country girl in "A Self-Made Widow," her next play for World Pictures, due late in July. A city chap hires her to New York, where she finds him and then starts out by herself, posing as the widow of a rich young fellow she has never seen. Two or three years later, when the young fellow comes back and finds this clever and pretty girl "blowing" his fortune and wearing mourning for him, he marries her.

OUR PLATFORM

"There is but one course to take if the exhibitors' organization is ever to attain its rightful place in the industry; there must be a thorough house-cleaning of men and methods and the old parasitical system of making the league a poaching ground for a few selfish individuals must be forever abandoned."

Newark, N. J.—Although the original booking for "od's Man," the Frohman Amusement Corporation's production, was for four days, the Goodwin Theater ran it for the days and endeavored to secure an extension of one week on account of the picture's unusual appeal and box office value.

New York.—The Foursquare exchange has started business with a rush in the Godfrey Building, 729 Seventh Ave. Under the management of Hy Gainsborg, Foursquare products are being handled in a Foursquare manner. The following superphotoplays are available for rent bookings:

Each of these features is distinctive of its class and different from any of the others. Combined, the product is one that indicates that Foursquare methods are being applied to the exchange bearing this unique but pertinent name.

Among the bookings made by Foursquare during the past week were "The Bar Sinister" and "The Sin Woman" for the Palace Theater, Washington Heights, the Hamilton Theater, Yonkers' and Keeney's Theater, Brooklyn, as well as Fox, Keith and Proctor houses.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—A ten part film version of Robert ichens' romance of the Sahara, "The Garden of Allah," as broken all records in the Pitt Theater here. Originally scheduled for two weeks only, the engagement of the picture was extended to the third week, and capacity houses have been the rule ever since the opening.

Two most popular features of the production of "The Garden of Allah," which have been made under the personal supervision of William Moore Patch, managing director of the Pitt Theater, are, first, the musical score, which is most atmospheric and appropriate; and secondly, massive stage setting revealing a vast stretch of desert, with a herd of live camels imported from the New York hippodrome. A mixed chorus of thirty voices is also utilized. The Pittsburgh Festival Orchestra of forty men under the direction of Carl Bernrthaler, plays at all afternoons and evening performances.

The Pitt Theater is the only playhouse in Pittsburgh that contains an ice plant similar to the one installed in the New Amsterdam Theater in New York City. The house is draped in snow white in summer and this gives a very cool and comfortable appearance.

Following "The Garden of Allah" will come "The Bar Sinister," which has just closed a three weeks' run at the Broadway Theater in New York. The production of "The Bar Sinister" will be no less elaborate than "The Garden of Allah."

New York.—Foursquare exchange bookings for the past week would seem to prove the truth of the M. H. Hoffman contention that big pictures are in demand in summer, as well as in winter. Manager Hy Gainsborg and his staff report splendid prospects among progressive exhibitors.

One of the many week-stand bookings made by the Foursquare exchange is the Avon Theater in Rochester, N. Y. The management of this house is using "The Bar Sinister" for the week of July 8 and "Madame Sherry" for the week of the 15th.

Among a few of the many progressive theaters in Greater New York that have booked "The Bar Sinister" and "The Sin Woman" during the month of July are: Olympia Theater, Broadway, city; Bushman Theater, Harlem; Regent Theater, Harlem; Empire Theater, Bronx; Cecil Spooner Theater, Bronx; Rialto Theater, Linden Theater, all of Brooklyn; and Garden Theater, Richmond Hill, and Marathon Theater, Brooklyn.

Findlay, Ohio.—The Marvin Theater has been leased by F. H. Bergschicker to H. B. Solomon of Bellefontaine.

Busco, Ind.—J. S. Thompson, proprietor of the Busy Bee Theater, has purchased the Palace Theater from George Underhill.

Eureka, Ill.—Bert Norton has purchased the Kozy Theater from Mansfield Brothers and taken possession.

Shenandoah, Wis.—The Empress Theater is to be remodeled and the seating capacity increased at a cost of $5,000.

Painesville, Ohio.—The Utopia Theater here is having an $8,000 pipe organ installed.

Cleveland, Ohio.—Three big downtown, first-run theaters have showed Mutual productions for a solid week here recently. Mary Miles Minter appeared in "Annie for Spite" at Stillman's beautiful theater. Gail Kane was booked at the Strand in "Whose Wife?" and "Heroic France" was at the Hippodrome. Everywhere, almost, Chaplin was booked in "The Immigrant."

Chicago.—E. Stary, manager of the Overland Theater, states that his receipts amounted to $25 more than any previous day in the history of the house upon the presentation of "Annie for Spite," the Mary Miles Minter feature.

Saginaw, Mich.—Charles Q. Carlisle, manager of the Mecca Theater, constructed a novel set for his lobby while presenting "The Railroad Raiders." The lobby resembled a miniature switching terminal, with railroad lanterns and hand cars.
GEORGE M. COHAN AND DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS STAR IN ARTCRAFT FEATURES FOR AUGUST

"Seven Keys to Baldpate" with Musical Comedy Star, and "The Optimist" with Athletic Screen Favorite, Are Announced by Walter E. Greene

At the New York headquarters of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation Walter E. Greene, president of the big distributing organization, this week announced his company's offerings for the month of August, presenting Douglas Fairbanks and George M. Cohan in new productions.

"For early August release," said Mr. Greene, "we will present George M. Cohan in a screen adaptation of his stage hit, 'Seven Keys to Baldpate.' This photoplay was finished last week and offers to the screen something absolutely novel in the way of a 'mystery farce,' as Mr. Cohan terms this extraordinary play, which attracted such wide attention on the stage.

Will Be Notable Film

"We confidently feel that this production will prove one of the most notable releases of the year, not only because of the fact that it shows the inimitable George M. Cohan in a characterization that is new to both the screen and stage patrons, but also because of the story presented by this photoplay, the like of which has never been seen in motion pictures. Those who are familiar with Earl Derr Biggers' story, on which Mr. Cohan's play was founded, will readily appreciate what an ideal film subject it is. Staged under the direction of Hugh Ford, producer of many Famous Players successes, and disclosing an exceptional supporting cast headed by Anna Q. Nilsson, this picture of mystery, thrills and surprises, we feel, will present a revelation in film plays.

"Douglas Fairbanks will also give another big box office attraction to the screen in August in 'The Optimist,' an extremely funny subject presented in his own particular style.

New Play Nears Completion

"The new Fairbanks picture is rapidly nearing completion at the Lasky studios in Hollywood, Cal., and not only does it present the popular Douglas as an actor, but as an author as well, for the story is from the pen of the versatile actor-producer himself, scenarized by clever Anita Loos. Director Emerson reports that this production will be finished within the course of a week, giving plenty of time for its final preparation for August release."

JULES COWLES SIGNED BY VITAGRAPH CO. FOR ROLE IN CHAMBERS FILM

Another young actor who is coming rapidly to the front in picturdom is Jules Cowles. Mr. Cowles made a pronounced hit as Buck Moe in Edgar Lewis' "The Bar Sinister" and, as a result of his work in that production has been signed by the Vitagraph Company to portray the role of the Forester, in Robert W. Chambers' story "Who Goes There?" Work on the Vitagraph feature will start this week.

CHICAGO OPERA CO. SIGNS MUTUAL ARTISTS TO DESIGN POSTERS

Francis Cugat, chief poster artist for the Mutual Film Corporation, signed a contract with the Chicago Opera Association whereby Cugat's services in the designing of opera posters will be held exclusively by the Chicago association. He will continue to make posters for the Mutual Film Corporation.

designed by Francis Cugat

Chief Poster Artist for Mutual Film Corporation

The contract was signed between Cleofonte Campanini, director general of the Chicago company, and J. Cugat upon the insistence of Campanini that Mr. Cugat design posters for no other opera companies.

Mr. Cugat is a native of Spain, received his art education in Be Art, Paris. He has traveled extensively in Europe and South America as well as North America.

BUTTERFLY AND BLUEBIRD TO HAVE EXPO BOOTHS; NOVEL STUNTS PLANNED

The Bluebird Photoplays and Butterfly productions will both have booths at the exposition in Chicago starting July 14.

It is announced by the Blue of that the booth is to be turned over to the navy. The decorations will be red, white and blue and the booth will be used as a recruiting station.

The Butterfly booth will contain a studio set as well as a dressing room scene. In this scene, it is announced, five young ladies will demonstrate the art of screen making.

The Chicago office of Bluebird Photoplays announces that Victor Mersereau will arrive in Chicago Sunday, July 15, and will probably remain for four or five days.

BIG THEATER OWNERS IN CHICAGO, DETROIT AND COLUMBUS SIGN FOR GOLDWYN FILMS

Representative Exhibitors in Illinois, Michigan and Ohio Will Offer Patrons Year's Output of Concern's Twenty-Six Productions Featuring Noted Stars

In rapid succession the big first-run motion picture theaters throughout America are being linked by contract with Goldwyn Pictures Corporation for the entire first year's output of the new organization owned and operated by Samuel Goldfish, Edgar and Archibald Selwyn, Arthur Hopkins and their associates. The list of productions features some of the most noted stars.

Jones, Linick & Schaefer, owners of a Chicago chain of theaters, including the largest screen houses within the downtown "loop" district, have signed for all of the Goldwyn productions which will be exhibited first at the Colonial Theater, in the very heart of the city.

Detroit Exhibitor Signed

Another important contract signed by Goldwyn this week is with John H. Kunsky for the first run rights for Goldwyn productions in Detroit. Mr. Kunsky will play Goldwyn pictures at the finest of his houses, the Madison Theater, and later they will also be seen at his nine other theaters in Michigan's great industrial center.

Of the big motion picture men, who were first to demand cleanliness and quality in the dramas shown at their houses, John H. Kunsky has been in the forefront. When the standards of the industry had not reached their present status Mr. Kunsky was one who sought the cleanest films for his theater. He laid a tradition for his Detroit theaters that has been followed out to the letter and will be perpetuated in his latest contract calling for twenty-six Goldwyn pictures during the first year of the new company's production.

Columbus House Gets Service

W. J. and J. W. Dusenbury, owners of the Grand Theater, Columbus, Ohio, one of the largest and best known houses in the state, have signed for all twenty-six Goldwyn pictures for the next year. This contract was closed through Goldwyn's Cleveland office.

Changes of the Week

Harry Tighe, the vaudeville artist, has joined the Vitagraph forces, and under the direction of Archer Mc-Mackin will appear in a series of comedies.

W. A. Coughlin, manager of the Mutual Film Corporation's branch at Butte, Mont., has resigned, owing to ill health, and W. G. Seib of Salt Lake City has been appointed in his place.

J. B. Lowe, formerly with the Fox exchange, Dallas, Tex., now is connected with the Kansas City office of V-L-S-E. He will cover Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Joseph C. Freibusch and Arthur E. Silverman have been added to the staff of the Four-square exchange, New York, and will be in charge of the sales for Queens and Westchester counties, N. Y.

Max Asher, who forsook the motion picture field two years ago for a vaudeville engagement, has returned to Universal City and will appear in a series of one-reel comedies under the Joker trade mark.

Theodore F. Holland has been made branch manager of the General Film Company's Indianapolis exchange.

Progress and the Films

A STRIKING testimonial to the stability and permanence of the motion picture as an art and an industry is evidenced in the convention assemblage in Chicago this week.

When consideration is given to the amount invested capital represented at this meeting convincing proof is given of the important financial position occupied by the motion picture business.

Probably no human endeavor save only a old strike has created as great an amount of wealth as this business in the same length of time. And a very hopeful indication is that this vast amount of wealth has not fallen into the hands of but a few individuals, but is distributed broadcast throughout the industry.

While there has been several very large fortunes created out of the motion picture business, there has been no few tremendously large accumulations as in the case of several other quickly created businesses. The wealth which his business has accumulated has received a very general distribution—players, producers, distributors and exhibitors, all have participated.

The future of the motion picture has not been dimmed, artistically or commercially, and is gradual progress toward a greater uniformity and stability gives promise of a greater realization than even the most enthusiastic dared expect.

Banish "Movies"!

DEFINITE indication of the increasing recognition of the motion picture business as the fifth industry of the United States was to be had on every side during the week of the convention in Chicago. The newspapers generally devoted generous space to accounts of the convention and exposition activities.

One greatly regrettable feature of practically all the newspapers' articles was the constant reiteration of the term "movies." "Give a dog a bad name . . ." runs the old proverb, and it certainly holds a great warning for the motion picture trade. This term "movies" is doing more than a great many may believe in withholding the recognition which the business is entitled to.

It is the duty of this industry to make a concerted effort to eliminate the term "movies." This elimination can gradually be brought about if in all printed matter, advertisements, etc., the various companies make a determined effort to do away with the objectionable word.

We understand thoroughly that "movies" is

The Cost of the Expo.

The utter futility of this exposition thing is again grossly apparent. Much money, effort and time have again been spent for a show and it is as difficult as ever to figure out just where the trade at large has benefited; that is, considering the huge sum which in the aggregate has been spent upon the proposition.

An annual convention is a necessary and a vital thing because it affords an opportunity for a general interchange of ideas and views. It serves as a general audit of the year’s progress and as such is greatly beneficial to all concerned.

But the exposition can be abolished at a great saving and without sacrifice of any real benefits.

Scientific Advance

The Society of Motion Picture Engineers, a progressive organization of scientific men, met in Chicago this week, held a successful meeting, and all without the aid of a brass band. This organization, while attracting very little attention, managed to concentrate on the work before it and doubtless much of vital interest to the motion picture business was accomplished.

In the hands of these scientific men lie many of the greatest possibilities of advancing the motion picture to the coveted goal of the dominating form of expression. Without question the great scientific advances which the motion picture has accomplished to date will be at least duplicated in the years to come.

And a generous modicum of the credit for this will have to be bestowed upon this Society of Motion Picture Engineers.

CONVENTION OPENS IN ROW OVER ELIGIBLE DELEGATES

Motion to Rule Out State Bodies Who Had Not Paid Per Capita Tax Defeated in Close Vote After Wrangling; Tugwell Squelches Joseph Hopp and D. G. Rogers

Ominous rumors of coercion of delegates, of the introduction of a rule and a trading off of candidates for the office of president, with an eye on the future, when, is reported, some big jobs will be handed from Washington, kept the delegates at the evening session of the M. P. E. L. of A. at Coliseum on the qui vive.

The fact that several states that are disfranchised at the first session were admitted at the evening session, having paid their per capita tax, lent strength to the coercion rumors.

What promises to be one of the test fights staged in the annals of Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America started promptly at 20 Monday afternoon, in the Coliseum, Chicago.

Mr. Ochs, president of the league, was in the chair, and the meeting after being in session about 15 minutes was adjourned until 11 p.m. to allow the credentials of delegates to be examined.

Ochs Appoints Committee

Mr. Ochs' first official act was to appoint a committee to examine all delegates holding seats on the floor. This committee did not expel any delegates or alternates.

Mr. Ochs then delivered his opening address in which he admonished exhibitors that there must be harmony. He stated he was pleased with the large showing, the largest that had ever attended a Motion Picture League of America convention.

"Forget personalities," said Mr. Ochs, "and let us stand by the man who is elected president, regardless of who he is."

Nine States Stand Good

Secretary William J. Sweeney then read the names of the states who are entitled to recognition at this time, according to the by-laws. They have paid per capita tax of $1 thirty days prior to the meeting.

Judge Tugwell took exception to his ruling and read Section 3, Article 3 of the by-laws on fees and dues. According to the secretary the states in good standing were Illinois, Michigan, Massachusetts, Wisconsin, Mississippi, Vermont, Maine, New Hampshire, and Washington.

This eliminated quite a number of states represented who have come since June 15.

Judge Tugwell's point raised a storm of protest from the states that would be barred and they called for a ruling appealing from President Ochs' decision and interpretation of the by-laws. Judge Tugwell took the chair upon the motion being carried.

Rogers and Hopp Squelched

D. G. Rogers, of Minneapolis, said, as a candidate for the office of president, and a delegate from a state in good standing, he didn't want to be elected on a technicality. The judge said he had not called for any nomination speeches and asked Mr. Rogers to sit down. He also reminded Joseph Hopp, the irrepressible president of the Chicago branch, to hold his peace.

When a vote was taken there were eighty-seven voted "no" and eighty-one "yes," it was found. A hitch came, however, when Samuel Trigger sitting with the New York delegation voted New York's thirty votes against Lee Ochs' ruling on the by-laws, and the New York delegation had not arrived and a question as to their standing on the convention floor was raised.

Consultation of the books by Secretary Sweeney showed that New York had paid no per capita tax since July 11, 1916. Mr. Ochs is a member of the New York body.

Bush Whispers to Ochs

Mr. Rogers then moved that all states with proper credentials be admitted. This motion was carried. At this juncture W. Stephen Bush leaned over and suggested to Mr. Ochs that he call a recess. Immediately President Ochs announced that the meeting would adjourn until 8:30 Monday night.

Trigger Makes Objection

The first business of the evening was the introduction of a motion by Mr. Clark of Mississippi, moving that Section 1 of Article 4 of the by-laws be suspended and the chairman appoint a committee of seven to pass upon the credentials of delegates to the convention. During the taking of a vote on this, Samuel Trigger of New York objected to the alleged eighteen votes for the motion from his state. He said he was a component part of the delegation and that the votes mentioned did not represent the sentiment of the delegation. He was ignored by the chairman.

Judge Tugwell, at the conclusion of the vote, which stood 192 in favor of the motion and 8 against, with Virginia and California not voting, asked if California had any chance there. It looked as though the coast state had not; nothing was heard further from it.

Indiana Threatens Bolt

Charles Pettijohn of Indiana delivered an impassioned address, calling the attention of President Ochs to the fact that his followers were talking of leaving the convention.

He quoted from the president's opening speech asking for "peace and harmony" and praying that they do not indulge in personalities. He said if Mr. Ochs was re-elected president of the association on the level, the Indiana candidates would support him. However, if gag rule should become prevalent, Indiana would not support him. He spoke of the necessity for cooperation with the United States government and asked the exhibitors to work to that end.

"We can't stand for a split here," added Mr. Pettijohn. "And for God's sake let us be American patriots; let us play ball on the level!"

The speech was followed by loud applause from all but the New York delegation, who sat as quiet as clams.

Mr. Clark replied to Mr. Pettijohn's address and said Mississippi was just as patriotic as Indiana, and that it was not his intention to gag anybody; that he did not deal in personalities.

Hears of Gag Rule

Mr. Morelock from Missouri started the assembly then by taking the floor and remarking that he had heard it said that gag rule had started at the convention; he had heard it at the foot of the stairs while entering the convention.

Lee Ochs then administered a mild rebuke to the gentleman from Indiana, adding that the state of New York had just as good American citizens as any state represented. He said that there was no gag rule at all; that it was not the first time that Mr. Pettijohn had said there was going to be politics.

The appointment of the credentials committee was made by means of lots of Thomas Furniss, Minnesota; E. H. Horseman, Massachusetts; John Frundt, Illinois; Ed Fisher, Wisconsin; H. Charles Hespe, New Jersey; D. W. Chamberland, North Carolina, and L. H. O'Donnell, Indiana.
INDIANA GIVES EXHIBITORS BONDING SERVICE, THEATER, HOUSE AND FURNITURE INSURANCE

L. H. O'Donnell Works Out Plan for League Whereby Ten Biggest Risk Companies in U. S. Back Plan, and Payment of Film Service Is Guaranteed

Since the Indiana branch of Exhibitors' League, of which Frank J. Rembusch is president, has inaugurated a strictly business policy, an Indiana Exhibitors' Mutual Insurance Company, as well as a bonding company, has been formed, which has completely abolished the old "deposit system" and given the exhibitor insurance protection on his theater, home and毛病家具。The insurance, says L. H. O'Donnell, is underwritten by ten of the strongest companies in America.

The bonding company, which has been organized, guarantees exchange payments for film service rendered all members of the organization. This bonding organization charges exhibitors a very nominal fee and thus eliminates the old system on the part of exchanges of exacting deposits.

Started by O'Donnell

This idea was originally worked out by L. H. O'Donnell, owner of the Grand Opera House, Washington, Ind. Mr. O'Donnell declines that he got the basis for this idea from the Hardware Dealers' Association and the Lumbermen's Association, of which organizations he is a member.

The guarantee to the exchanges of payment for film service rendered by the state organization is backed by five other reliable bonding houses. The guarantee covers thirty days of service.

"When I gave an annual report on the outcome of the bonding plan at a recent meeting of the Indiana League, Ochs, who was present, called me to one side and declared: 'That is the best proposition for exhibitors of which I have ever heard,' " says Mr. O'Donnell.

Does Away with Deposits

"The purpose of it is to do away with deposits, and it has completely silenced the exchange throughout Indiana, who have always doubted the honesty of exhibitors in making payments, and therefore before this new system went into effect collected deposits.

"The idea of the Indiana organization is to give its members something which will benefit them in a business way. We hold no functions and play no politics, but we have a business association in every sense."

CARL LAEMMLE ARRIVES IN CHICAGO FOR CONVENTION; HAS MESSAGE FOR EXHIBITORS

Well Known Chicago Members of Trade with Producer; Will Address Theater Owners; Cochrane and Powers to Be Present

Universal will be represented at the Chicago convention by practically its entire quota of executives.

At the opening of the convention, Mr. Laemmle is expected to deliver a personal message of much interest to the exhibitors. Chicago, it will be remembered, is the city in which Mr. Laemmle opened his first motion picture theater about ten years ago, and he naturally has a host of friends in the Windy City who will turn out en masse to greet him.

R. H. Cochrane and P. A. Powers will also be present at the beginning of festivities. Joe Brandt will give the glad hand to his friends in the industry, while exchange managers will be entertained by E. H. Goldstein, and friends of the Universal Animated Weekly will find Jack Cohn on the job to explain just how the "Pershing scoop" was put over.

HART WILL START FIRST ARTCRAFT FILM IN WEEK

The first official announcement from William S. Hart regarding his future activities was given out at the head quarters of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation in New York this week. Hart Producing Company to publish its product through Artcraft, adding another big film celebrity to its roster, which includes Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Geraldine Farrar, Elsie Ferguson, D. BRASS BANDS BLARE AS 1917 CHICAGO EXPO DOORS SWING OUT TO MEET PUBLIC THRONS

Thousands Crush Way Into Coliseum to See Stars and Big Displays of Allied Trade; Goldwyn and Simplex Have Most Striking Booths

Amidst a blare of brass bands and orchestral strains the Seventh Annual Exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors and Distributors Mutual Ofﬁce got under way on Saturday, July 14, at the coliseum, Chicago.

Thousands of persons thronged the building to meet the popular screen stars and get a “close-up” of how motion pictures are made. The aisles were ﬁlled and the crowd overﬂowed into the booths and occupied part of the immense balcony.

Booths Tastily Decorated

The booths of gold and white are tastily decorated with artiﬁcial ﬂowers and many are draped with American ﬂags. Most of the booths are furnished with wicker chairs. While the doors were thrown open at 11 a.m. Saturday, the exposition was not formally opened until 8 p.m., when Managing Director F. W. Baer read a telegram from the Pathé Company, announcing Pearl White, Sheldon Lewis and other luminaries would be present Sunday.

Frank O. Lowden, governor of Illinois, who was scheduled to make the opening address, was unable to be present. Mr. Schindler presented Miss Rose Capley as the hostess of the occasion and Miss Tapley thanked the throng from the platform where she stood. Mr. Schindler next introduced Violet Mersereau and Carl Laemmle of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

Mae Marsh Introduced

The Goldwyn star, Mae Marsh, in whose home the opening day was held, was next introduced. Miss Marsh retired to the Goldwyn booth where she handed out carnations to a thousand that passed. Then came Marguerite Clayton, the Essanay star, Josephine Huddleston, the “free lance” camera girl, Dick Javens, the Sunshine Film Corporation’s star, and Bryant Washburn, he Essanay leading man.

Striking Electric Sign

As one enters the hall the immense electric sign of the Artcraft-Harmon Pictures Corporation greets the eye. The sign extends from the roof to within a few feet of the b o o t and contains thousands of electric lights outlining the various stars.

Rathen Shows Film Making

At the north end of the Coliseum is the golden Rathen Music Manufacturing Company’s display, showing unquestionably the most pictures while artists of Cooper-Hewitts cast their light on the screen while a director and cameraman work on the side lines. A free selection of stills and photographs follows each performance upon the stage.

The two most striking booths on the exposition floor are the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation and the Simplex display. The latter is a

RUSSELL STARS IN "GREAT STANLEY SECRET," TWO-PART MUTUAL DRAMA FOR JULY 25

Highly Dramatic Production in Eight Reels to Be Issued in Two Episodes; Charlotte Burton Plays Opposite Husband

William Russell appears in a powerful role in "The Great Stanley Secret," a two-chapter drama, the first episode of which, "The Gypsy's Trust," will be published by the Mutual Film Corporation July 23. The episodes will be in four reels each. "The Great Stanley Secret" is a highly dramatic production in eight reels and is said to contain many thrills. The first chapter opens with a railroad wreck scene.

Produced by American
The picture was produced by the American Film Company, Inc., under the direction of Edward S. Sloman, who has supervised a series of highly successful pictures in which William Russell has been starred.

Playing opposite Mr. Russell in "The Great Stanley Secret" is Charlotte Burton, now Mrs. Russell.

Story of Family Jewel
The story deals with the battle for possession of the Stanley family jewel, a gem of great intrinsic value as well as being a symbol of right to the earldom.

William T. Emmons plays the role of Quabba, the gypsy chieftain, to whom the protection of the little heir to the Stanley fortune and title is entrusted.

The wreck scene has been pronounced one of the most artistic and realistic bits of photography in the history of photography.

FAIRBANKS TO MAKE FOUR DIFFERENT TYPES OF FILMS ON NEWLY PLANNED SCHEDULE

Will Star in Farce, Light Comedy, an Essay and Romantic Comedy-Drama, Giving Public Variety at Spaced Intervals

Douglas Fairbanks gives considerable thought to what is commonly termed "the pulse of the public." He believes by combining a good story with a striking characterization it will be more to the advantage of the Douglas Fairbanks Pictures Corporation than simply exploiting his personality and sacrificing the story and production.

As the result of months of patient investigation he, with Director General John Emerson, has decided on a production schedule which includes four distinct types of screen plays. It is his intention to start with a farce of the "In Again—Out Again" variety, followed by a light comedy, an essay and a romantic comedy-drama. In this manner, according to Douglas, the public will not have a chance to tire of any one of his selected kinds of stories, because each film will be different and spaced at such intervals that they should prove extra popular.

Joseph Henaberry is to alternate with John Emerson in the staging of the Fairbanks-Artcraft plays.

VIRGINIA PEARSON TO QUIT FOX AND HEAD CO.

Since it became generally known that Virginia Pearson's contract with William Fox is about to expire the popular star has received several flattering offers from well-known producers who are seeking her services for pretentious film productions.

Although Miss Pearson would neither deny nor affirm it, the rumor that she is considering an offer which will place her at the head of her own producing organization, published through one of the big distributing concerns, appears to be well founded.

Miss Pearson has been appearing under the Fox banner more than one year and has become one of the most popular box office attractions in the industry. Prior to her affiliation with Fox Miss Pearson appeared under a Vitagraph brand, coming to that studio after a successful stage career during which time she attracted wide attention as the creator of the famous vampire role in "A Fool There Was"

GERALDINE FARRAR ENGAGED TO STAR IN GOLDWYN FILM

The Goldwyn Pictures Corporation has made its biggest "capture"—the signing of the famous Geraldine Farrar.

This information came over wire from Los Angeles this week. While no official announcement of the signing of Miss Farrar has issued from the Goldwyn headquarters, authoritatively learned by "Herald" that hereafter Miss Farrar will appear in Goldwyn pictures.
HENRY SCHEINSTADT ELECTED PRESIDENT OF NEW ORGANIZATION REPRESENTING IN MEMBERSHIP $10,000,000 IN FILM HOUSE INTERESTS; OTHER OFFICERS PICKED, WITH DELEGATES AND ALTERNATES

Born Out of League

The organization was born out of conditions which existed in the ranks of the Chicago branch of the Exhibitors League a year ago. All of the officers of the new association were members of the league branch until city politics, graft charges and constitution violations caused the resignations of their memberships, and some of them were ousted because of their strenuous objections in meetings to the way league affairs were being handled by officers and committees elected through "the reigning clique" under the indorsement of the national president for political reasons.

The platform of the association is: "Open and Above Board—One for All and All for One," is the announcement of President Schoenstadt.

Declaring that the membership of the Motion Picture Theater Owners' Association of Illinois is composed of exhibitors who control the biggest film theater interests in Chicago, and therefore must be shown the greatest consideration in exhibitors' affairs of national scope, the association has elected thirteen delegates and an equal number of alternates to appear in the floor and have a voice in the convention.

Convention Delegates Picked

The delegates are: Adolph Powell, chairman; Joseph Trinz and Harry Lubliner, of the firm of Lubliner & Trinz; Nathan Ascher, of Ascher Brothers Theatrical Enterprises; Maurice Chojnowski, Louis H. Frank, E. Thomas Beatty, August Zilligen, Jacob Cooper, G. P. Morris and Mrs. Anna M. Kesner.

The alternates are: Henry Schoenstadt, Arthur Schoenstadt, Phil. Banowitz, A. J. Krug, Henry Lutz, L. Kahn, Charles Deutsch, H. Treulich, W. H. Bolton, Max Cooper, Mrs. Emma Koblik and two others to be selected.

Despite the fact that the national officers of the Exhibitors League have refused to grant the association a charter in the state of Illinois, and while the new organization is independent, a protest will be made for a hearing, and simultaneously another protest will be made against the delegates and alternates who will be sent by the Chicago Exhibitors League branch.

Charge Delegations Swelled

It is pointed out that the league branch intends to send twenty-one delegates and twenty-one alternates, which is in violation of the by-laws, when only thirteen of each should appear on the convention floor. By this act, it is said, the president of the national organization expects to fill the convention with enough of his forces to "steam-roller" his way over the stiff opposition which he plans to make against his defeat for re-election.

Moreover, President Schoenstadt declares that the members of the Chicago branch delegations will be protested against on grounds that the major portion are not bona fide theater owners. He declares that most of the twenty-one members of both

HENRY SCHEINSTADT PROMISES TO UPHOLD PLATFORM OF NEW THEATER OWNERS' ASSOCIATION AS FIRST PRESIDENT

As the first president of the Theater Owners' Association of Illinois, whose membership is composed solely of bona fide theater owners, and who represent $10,000,000 in theaters, I will carry out the adopted platform of "one for all—and all for one" to the extent of the power vested in me by members.

While I am president I will adhere strictly to the constitution and by-laws, which provide that all meetings shall be open to the trade press, and the books also will be open for examination at all times. Theater managers, men identified with exchanges in any way, and manufacturers shall have no voice or place in the ranks of the association.

At all times will matters of financial and legal importance, wherein a member of the association is concerned, be taken care of in the interest of the theater owner involved. All adverse legislation, enacted or proposed, which will hurt or burden the business of theater owners will be attacked and fought with intense determination for the preservation of theater owners' business.

This association is not opposed to the Exhibitors' League of America as an exhibitors' organization, but is opposed to clique rule and petty politics carried on within the league by members who are not bona fide exhibitors. Therefore the association has applied for a separate national league state charter for Illinois, under which to operate until such time as exchange men and theater managers are eliminated from affairs.

bodies are theater managers only—not owners—and many are connected with Chicago exchanges.

According to this statement a majority of the twenty-one alternates and delegates have no right under any consideration to have a voice in an exhibitors' organization.

Are Not Real Exhibitors

"Easily a half of the present membership of the Chicago branch of the league is composed of theater managers and men identified with exchanges," says Henry Schoenstadt.

"These men have not worked in the interest of theater owners, and are guilty of gag rule and causing dissent by politics. The real theater owners who are members of the branch have had little voice in the affairs which vitally concern them."

As a result of this situation, Joseph Trinz, Harry Lubliner, Nathan Ascher, Maurice Choyinks, Louis H. Frank, Mrs. Kesner and many others who actually own and operate big theaters in Chicago and the outlying districts have resigned from the league, and left the managers exchange attaches, and a few exhibitors who are seeking personal gain to rule as they please.

For Theater Owners Only

"This new association, of which I have been made president, is founded on what might be well termed a theater-owners-only membership. Any bona fide theater owner in the state of Illinois can join, and be assured that his interests will be thoroughly looked after, and that he will have an equal voice in all affairs.

"All troubles concerning legal and financial matters will be handled for exhibitors by the association. No theater owner will be neglected in any respect, nor will the association neglect fighting adverse legislation which may come up at any time and imperil theater men's interests."

The association is founded on a solid rock foundation and formed only for bona fide theater owners, and there will be no political upheavals, graft or dissension to upset it.

A wide chasm of difference in conducting meetings and other important matters is planned to divide the association from present league systems in that all meetings will be open to the trade press, and the books of the organization will be open for inspection to press representatives at all times, is announced.

Another Association Writes

The following letter has been received by the president of the Theater Owners' Association of Illinois from Henry L. Kincaide, president of the newly formed Motion Picture Theater Owners' Association of New England, with headquarters in Quincy, Massachusetts:

"Motion Picture Theater Owners' Association of New England
Mr. Henry Schoenstadt,
Chicago, Ill.
My Dear Sir:

We are organizing in New England at the present time a Motion Picture Theater Association on lines very similar to those adopted by your recent organization. I am enclosing herewith a card which we use in signing up our members in order that you may know exactly who is permitted in our association.

We have at the present time about one hundred members and hope to increase this number very largely as time goes on.

For some time many of us have felt dissatisfied with the exhibitors' league of the state, in view of the fact that it contained more film concerns and their representatives than it did legitimate theater owners, consequently our interests as theater producers were not represented where film exchanges were represented.

Believing that the subject of your organization and our own appear to be identical, we have felt it might be wise to send you this letter assuring you that if we can in any way work together we shall in New England be glad to co-operate with you.

HENRY L. KINCAIDE,
President New England Association.
Quincy, Mass.

With these organizations, composed exclusively of theater owners, bending their energies in the interest of member owners, it is predicted the movement should grow into a national power in the exhibition branch of the trade.

CHICAGO TO SEE PICKFORD FILM, JURY DECREES

After a fight in Chicago extending over three weeks, which finally ended in Judge Sabath's court, a jury beat Major Funkhouser's decree on Thursday, July 14, by declaring that "The Little American," Mary Pickford's latest film, should be shown in Chicago.

The verdict directs that the city shall issue a permit and states further that "the screen story is not of a character to arouse race hatred of any class of law-abiding citizens." It is said Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Etelson is preparing to take an appeal from the jury's verdict.

CENSOR RULE UPHOLD

The producers of "Birth" were refused a permit to show the film in Chicago a few weeks ago, and upon appealing the case were refused a new trial last week before Judge Sullivan in the Superior Court. The attorney representing the producers appealed the case after a jury trial in which the jury upheld Major Funkhouser's refusal of a permit. They decided the film was obscene and should not be shown in the city.

Toronto, Ont.—Robert C. Newman, inspector of motion picture matters for the province of Ontario, died suddenly July 9 at Piqua, Ohio, where he had gone to attend the annual convention of the Theatrical Mechanics' Association, of which he was grand secretary. Mr. Newman died shortly after he had addressed the convention, having suffered a stroke of apoplexy.

"Sherman Was Right"

"The Esoteric Affinity of Kindred Spirits" met in solemn conclave at the Hotel McAlpin on July 9. This association was formed under the direction of Shepard and Van Loan for the purpose of raising the astral body of Harry Sherman into the state rights firmament (not ferment) and at the finish of the manifestations, all who were able, pronounced the seance a great success. About forty scribes and Pharisæes, with tongues at half mast, gathered around the board and partook of Harry Sherman's hospitality. "Sherman was right" and at the finish of the dinner, the country was compelled to go bone dry.

HUTCHINSON, IN 5,000 MILE AUTO TRIP, FINDS FILM TRADE IN FINE CONDITION

Makes Personal Investigation from Maryland to Maine, Finding Pictures Piling Up Box Office Admissions; Will Start West Soon

Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Company, Inc., accompanied by Mrs. Hutchinson, arrived in Chicago this week, completing a 5,000-mile motor drive to and from the East.

Personal investigation from Maryland to Maine and through the states this side leads Mr. Hutchinson to believe that the film business is in splendid condition. He found feature pictures booking readily, extensively and steadily, and box offices piling up admissions.

Finds Stars Competing

"I found 'Billy' Russell giving William Hart stiff competition in some quarters, while in others Douglas Fairbanks was looking to his laurels," says Mr. Hutchinson. "I believe the greatest gains in popularity may be credited to our features starring Mr. Russell."

"Mary Miles Minter, of course, is keeping her pace and even gaining a bit, but of the women stars Gail Kane at the moment should have the honors of winning most business. Miss Kane is very popular in the East. Where she is well known from her past stage and screen performances, and her friends are all coming over to the American side in booking.

American's Interests Booming

"There is a very satisfactory outlook for the forthcoming Juliette Day subjects. Miss Day has a great following in this section, and the public is curious about her screen advent. All along the line our interests are booming, and gratifying are the results obtained and looked for."

Mr. Hutchinson will depart in a few days to inspect his large picture holdings in Santa Barbara and Los Angeles.

Taylor Holmes, the stage star, will make his debut as a screen star September 3. His initial picture, "Efficiency Edgar's Courtship," which is a film version of a story of the same title by Clarence Buddington Kelland, is nearly completed. It is a humorous presentation of the application of efficiency methods, as they are used in modern business, to lovemaking. The comedy-drama will have a screen time of approximately 68 minutes. K-E-S-E will handle the film.

Immediately "Efficiency Edgar's Courtship" is completed he will be launched into another production at the Essanay studios.

TERRETY NEARLY ALL SOLD FOR "REDEMPTION" IN U. S. AND CANADA

All Loew and Proctor Theaters to Show Film Featuring Evelyn Nesbit and Son

Convincing proof of the big impression created by "Redemption," featuring Evelyn Nesbit and her son, Russell Thaw, and produced by Julius Steger and John A. Golden, lies in the fact that very little territory remains unsold for the United States and Canada.

No play produced in years has met with such universal acclaim as marks "Redemption," it is said.

Contracts were signed this week for the showing of the film in all the Loew theaters, also the Proctor houses in New York at an early date. Shea's Theater, Buffalo, will run it commencing July 23.

Four scenes from the new Essanay release, "Efficiency Edgar's Courtship," are shown. The story is that of a story of the same title by Clarence Buddington Kelland.

The picture was made in Chicago and will be released through the K-E-S-E company.
Kitty Gordon, Whose Films for World Prove Big Hit, Signs to Finish Year with Brady

Success of Three Pictures, "Forget-Me-Not," "Beloved Adventurers" and "Divine Sacrifice," Causes Producer to Hold Noted Star

Kitty Gordon has signed a new contract with World-Pictures Brady-made covering a full year from the present. The present arrangement was made under an option held by the World Corporation when Miss Gordon was engaged six months ago for three pictures to be completed within that space of time.

In that document was a clause giving the company the privilege of calling upon the actress for her services for twelve months longer at a specified salary, and it is this proviso that has been taken up. The three picture plays already completed with Miss Gordon as star are "Forget-Me-Not," "The Beloved Adventurers" and "The Divine Sacrifice," the one last mentioned not having been published as yet.

Says Star Improved

Director General William A. Brady, in referring to the renewal of business associations with Miss Gordon, says:

"The improvement of this actress in her role upon the screen is one of the most astonishing examples of artistic development I have seen in all my experience as a producing manager in the speaking theater and the silent drama. To tell the plain truth, I was not prepared beforehand to look for any specially vivid acting gifts on the part of Miss Gordon."

"In the first place, the greater part of her stage reputation had been gained in musical comedy, which rarely uncovers brilliant acting talent among its women players. In the second place, the critics had raved far more about Kitty Gordon's beauty and grace than her histrionic powers, and so I was inclined to rely almost exclusively upon her physical qualities to win popularity in the film drama."

Her Films Big Success

"While speaking of Kitty Gordon, let me record the fact that her two pictures already published have met with highly extraordinary success, due primarily to the widespread personal popularity of the star. This is demonstrated, first, by the great volume of newspaper attention bestowed upon the plays in which she appears, including a notable advance demand; and second, by the swarm of requests for her indorsement of various articles: perfumes, powders, cosmetics, and the like."

Paralta Makes Big Advance in 14 Weeks of Existence, and Completes Two Features

The recent announcement of the affiliation of Paralta Plays, Inc., and the Triangle Distributing Corporation under which the latter becomes the sole distributor of the big special productions made by the Paralta interest, starring Bessie Barriscale and J. Warren Kerrigan, recalls the advancement made by Paralta during its short existence of but fourteen weeks.

Work Is Outlined

In fourteen weeks, Paralta has been organized as a corporation, has itself organized two producing corporations with Bessie Barriscale at the head of one and J. Warren Kerrigan the other, to make big feature pictures to be sold on the Paralta plan, has established one of the largest studios and producing staffs in the country at Hollywood, which has already turned out two big star feature pictures, and has affiliated itself with one of the largest distributing interests without in any way militating against its standing as an independent corporation.

The two big Paralta pictures finished are J. Warren Kerrigan in Peter B Kyne's war and love story, "A Man's Man," and Bessie Barriscale in George Miller White's love romance, "Rose o'Paradise." Both these productions now are in the hands of an editing board and cutters, and will be published through Triangle in a short time. In the meantime Mr. Kerrigan and Miss Barriscale are at work on new productions.

Soon to Explain Plan

The "Paralta Plan" has not yet been made known to the trade in detail, but in a very short time a complete explanation of its principles and workings will be published in the form of a little book called "The Paralta Plan."

The Paralta Plan will be followed by Triangle in the distribution or sale of Paralta Plays. This plan gives to an exhibitor exclusive control of a specific exhibiting district and other advantages which will have a very material influence in the increase of its profits.

FIRST EPISODE OF "LOST EXPRESS" SERIAL, STARRING HELEN HOLMES, IS COMPLETED

Cast of Stellar Players to Support Star in New Production, First Chapter of Which Will Be Published in September

The entire first episode of the new Signal Film Corporation serial, "The Lost Express," to be published thru Mutual exchanges, has been completed. The cast surrounding Helen Holmes in this new and bigger serial undertaking is superior to any that has appeared with her in the past. J. P. McGowan has selected to support the star Leo Maloney, Thomas Lingham, William Brunton, Will Chapman, W. A. Behrens and Andrew Waldbaum, all of whom appeared with Miss Holmes in the past, and in addition has Al Smith, who is noted for his character delineations, and Edward Hearn, who has played leads in Universal productions for the past two years.

Has Baffling Mystery
The first episode of the story lays before the public a baffling mystery of the disappearance of the entire express train while passing from one station to the next on a single-track line, with no switches or cut-offs en route. The express train, loaded with a collection of the world's greatest inventions, pulls out of one station and fails to arrive at the next, but eight miles distant. The most careful kind of search fails to disclose any trace of the lost express. It vanishes without any clue as to its whereabouts. Exhibitors may be sure that any patron who beholds this first chapter of the new serial will be curious while awaiting the next following installment of the story.

To Be Issued in September
The exact publication date of Chapter I of "The Lost Express" has not yet been set, but it will be some time in September, and announcement will be made in the near future as to the day and date when the initial episode will be available.

SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE” WITH GEO. M. COHAN, FOR AUGUST, OFFERS A NEW TYPE OF FILM

Publication Date Moved Up to Early Next Month Because of Requests for Appearance of Popular Star; Is Unique Play, Says Greene

Artcraft promises something entirely new in the way of photoplay stories in its George M. Cohan production “Seven Keys to Baldpate,” as completed under the direction of Hugh Ford. On the stage this play, hailed by Cohan as a “mystery tree,” offered a distinct novelty to be theater and should prove to be the same in its screen presentation.

“Those who have read the book by Earl Derr Biggers, or who have seen the play by George M. Cohan, would appreciate the unique qualities of this tale, which defied all critics and in the face of this fact won the unstinted praise,” said Walter Greene in discussing the new picture. “The originality of George M. Cohan and his wonderful ability to play upon the human side of nature were never more definitely displayed than in this offering. In speaking of the production one of our studio executives perhaps most effectively expressed the idea of the subject when he said: ‘It is a photoplay within a photoplay, with characters in each separate photoplay laughing at those in the others.’”

Although the new Cohan picture was originally scheduled for later publication, as a result of the many requests for another production presenting this popular actor-author-producer, it will be shown publicly commencing early in August.

ALBERT CAPPELLANI DIRECTS ANN MURDOCK, NOT JULIA SANDBERSON, FOR EMPIRE CORP.

An error was made by the publicity department of the Empire All-Star Corporation in announcing that Director Albert Capellani was engaged in directing the productions in which Julia Sanderson is being starred. From the studios of the Empire Corporation it is announced that Mr. Capellani is directing Ann Murdock and not Julia Sanderson.

Dell Henderson is supervising the Julia Sanderson pictures, and Mr. Capellani is devoting his time to directing the offerings in which Miss Murdock is at work. Both directors are staging their respective pictures in the Glendale studios of the Empire All-Star Corporation, and both the Murdock and Sanderson features, based on Charles Frohman successes, will be published through Mutual exchanges.

The big studios of the Empire Corporation are working at full capacity these days, as plays featuring Ann Murdock, Julia Sanderson and Olive Tell are in course of production on the stages of the Glendale plant. "SKINNER'S BABY" NEXT WASHBURN FEATURE, SCHEDULED AUGUST 6

Hazel Daly Again Appears in Support of Star, Who Calls This His Best Play

It is seldom, if ever, that a motion picture star acts the same on the screen as he does in everyday life, and yet that is the claim made by Bryant Washburn in "Skinner's Baby."

In this picture, which was produced by Essanay as a sequel to the famous "Skinner's Dress Suit," Mr. Washburn portrays the role of an exceedingly proud father. He is a father in actual life and it is said that he acted just the same with his real baby as he does with his real one.

The picture is a comedy-drama of the type of subtle, homely humor which has made its star famous.

Hazel Daly, creator of the role of Honey in "Skinner's Dress Suit," again appears in that role. Harry Beaumont wrote the story and directed its screening. The production, which has a screen time of 65 minutes, will be published through K-E-S-E August 6. Trade showings are now in progress at all branch offices of this organization.

CRANE WILBUR ADOPTS NEW PRODUCTION PLAN

Pauline Frederick in "THE LOVE THAT LIVES"
Famous Players-Paramount drama; five parts; published July 9

As a whole: Melodramatic Story: Human Star: Great
Support: Very good
Settings: Splendid
Photography: Good

Seudder Middleton has taken a very ordinary subject—a scrubwoman’s life—and made an intensely human, albeit melodramatic, screen play. The story of Molly McGill is not a pleasant one, telling as it does of the tragic death of her husband and baby girl, her struggle to educate her boy and a final end in a burning building, but in the hands of Pauline Frederick the part grips one and carries one along even to the unhappy ending. Miss Frederick is wonderful in character makeup and shows what a real artist can do with a difficult part. John Painpolis is an excellent Harvey Brooks, the villain of the piece, while Pat O’Mally ably interprets the role of Molly’s son, Jimmy McGill. Violet Palmer as Dora Palmer, in love with Jimmy, is winsome, and the two children, Frank Evans and Eldeen Stewart, are well cast. Robert G. Vignola directed the film.

The story: Molly McGill’s life has been a hard struggle from birth, and upon the death of her husband in a barroom brawl and her baby daughter in an accident, she offers herself to Harvey Brooks, a broker, to provide money with which to educate her son Jimmy.

She keeps her life a secret from her boy. He grows to manhood, secures a position in the city’s fire department and becomes engaged to Dora Palmer. Molly breaks with Brooks and sinks to the slums’ lowest level. One day when passing the engine house she sees her son talking to his sweetheart. Securing employment as a scrubwoman, she saves Dora from the clutches of Brooks in his office by stabbing him. The office building catches fire and Jimmy rescues Dora, but is too late to save the poor scrubwoman.

BIG SITUATIONS FROM THREE PARAMOUNT PRODUCTIONS

Alice Brady in
"A SELF-MADE WIDOW"
World comedy-drama; five parts; published July 23

As a whole: Entertaining
Story: Enjoyable
Star: Amusing
Support: Ample
Settings: Painless
Photography: Clear

"A Self-Made Widow" is a bit of screen humor that should be enjoyed by patrons. The story has been handled in an enjoyable and amusing manner. Alice Brady as the self-made widow makes the most of her role, and the subject gives pleasing entertainment. The story is by Henry Albert Phillips.

Travers Vale is responsible for the direction. The supporting cast includes John Bowers, Curtis Cooksey, Justine Cutting, Richard Clarke, Alexandrea Carewe, Henrietta Simpson, Herbert Barrington and Lila Chester. The settings have been well selected and the photography is clear.

The story: Sylvia Smith of Lone Meadows goes to New York City, and in order to secure his inheritance becomes the widow of Fitzhugh Castleton, who has left a letter saying that he has committed suicide. After an absence of a year Castleton returns home and is surprised to see Sylvia. Not wishing to compromise her, he serves in the capacity of gardener and falls in love with Sylvia. The appearance of a crook who demands money from Sylvia brings out explanations, and so Sylvia becomes the wife of Castleton.

Dorothy Phillips in
"THE RESCUE"
Bluebird drama; five parts; published July 23

As a whole: Splendid Story: Excellent
Star: Very good Support: Beautiful
Settings: Clear

"The Rescue" is a screen adaptation of the magazine story written by Hugh Kahler, and offers an excellent vehicle for talented Dorothy Phillips and William Stowell. The screen version was prepared and directed by Ida

May Park and shows the cleverness of an experienced writer.

Miss Phillips is cast in the difficult role of a divorced wife who wins back the love of her husband with the help of a younger sister. The story is given a novel twist and with its pleasing settings, excellent photography and fine acting should meet with the hearty approval of film audiences.

The supporting cast includes Gretchen Lederer as Nell Jerrold, Molly Malone as Betty, Claire Du Brey as Henrietta, Gertrude Astor as Mrs. Hendricks, Lon Chaney as Thomas Holland, and William Stowell as Kent Wetherall.

GRETCHEN LEDERER, DOROTHY PHILLIPS (CENTER) AND MOLLY MALONE IN SCENE FROM "THE RESCUE" (Bluebird)

The story: Ann Wetherall returns to the stage when the court grants her a divorce. She is summoned home, however, when informed that her younger sister is throwing herself away upon Kent Wetherall, her divorced husband. Her fight to win the man away from Betty ends in a justice-of-the-peace's court where she remarries Kent and later finds out that Betty's affair was only a hoax to assure Ann's happiness. A houseboat sanitarium, where Kent had been taking treatments, visits to which had aroused Ann's jealousy, figures in the development of this unusual story.

Mary Miles Minter in "MELISSA OF THE HILLS"
American Mutual drama; five parts; published July 23

Mary Miles Minter's work in "Melissa of the Hills" is splendid. The story is a wholesome one and should hold the interest of any audience from the first reel to the last. The settings in the production are great and the good lighting effects and the splendid photography do them full justice. Miss Minter goes through the production without the assistance of frills, and her charm and personality lend a great deal to the excellence of the production.

Miss Minter is given ample support in Allan Forrest, Spottiswoode Aitken, George Periolat, Perry Baiks, Harvey Clark, Frank Thompson, John Gough, Gertrude LeBrandt, Emma Cluge and Ann Schaefer. James Kirkwood did the directing.

The story: There is continual strife between the Watts and Allison clans. Jethro Stark, circuit rider, and his daughter Melissa endeavor at all times to avoid the outbreaks and teach Christianity, but when the Starks side in with the Watts the latter and the Allisons have a big fight when the Watts try to arrest Clark for alleged forgery. Clark interferes and is killed. Melissa, left alone, marries Tom, a young lawyer.

Bryant Washburn in "THE GOLDEN IDIOT"
Essanay-K-E-S-E comedy-drama; five parts; published July 23

AN AMUSING SCENE FROM "THE GOLDEN IDIOT," FEATURING BRYANT WASHBURN (Essanay)

Bryant Washburn in his role of Barry Owen, the golden idiot, is at all times clever and capable. He is given ample support in Virginia Valli, Arthur Metcalfe and Julian Barton. The novel handling of some of the subtitles as well as the humor contained in them is worthy of commend. The settings are splendid and the photography is good.

The story: Barry Owen, a copy reader, loses his position and becomes a vagabond. In his wanderings he meets Faith Fanshawe, the daughter of a millionaire, and falls in love with her. Because of his poverty he decides that he cannot marry Faith and so decides to forget her. Then he is notified that his uncle has died leaving him his fortune. With this wealth back of him Barry proposes to Faith and is accepted.

At the Orpheum Theater in Chicago, where "Peggy the Will o' the Wisp" was shown, the music furnished by the organist was the best part of the production. Many persons in the audience even left the house after the second reel.

Mary McAlister does her usual good work in "The Season of Childhood." The production should prove interesting, having the good qualities of preceding "Do Children Count?" units.

In the cast are John Cossar, Alice Craig, Ellis Paul and Ernest Maupain.

The story: The Holdens do not agree on the way children should be reared. John Holden believes they should be punished every time they disobey. Florence Holden believes differently. They quarrel and John leaves, taking with him Charlie, their little son, and leaving Tessie with the mother. "A Strange Transgressor," Louise Glaum's latest starring vehicle, is only a fair production. The old, hackneyed theme of the woman who has cast aside her honor in luxury seeking to avenge herself through her ramour's son is used to exploit the Triangle's star.

Supporting Miss Glaum are J. Barney Sherry, Colin化, Dorcas Matthews, May Girardi, J. Frank Burke and William H. Bray. Direction and photography are fine.

The story: Lola Montrose, upon the death of her husband, puts her child in a Catholic institution while she lives upon the charity of a great surgeon. She finally sees her and falls in love with an estimable young woman, the former fiancée of his son. The final break comes between Lola and the doctor, and she attempts to destroy the son in a marriage to avenge her wrongs. "Forbidden Paths" will please its viewers more from a pictorial standpoint than for its story. Vivian Martin and her Japanese co-star, Sessue Hayakawa, do excellent work in the emotional roles, but the story is one that has often been repeated upon the screen, presenting the triangle of two men in love with the same girl. The work of Tom Forman is rather disappointing (or, rather, the role in which he is cast), and he wins little sympathy by reason of his weakness of character as Harry Maxwell.

The scenario is by Eve Unsell and the picture was carefully directed by Robert Thornby. Besides Sessue Hayakawa and Vivian Martin, Carmen Phillips, Tom Forman, James Neill and others appear in the cast.

The story: Sato becomes a half owner in the Japanese art store of James Thornton, and upon the latter's death he promises to look after the orphan daughter Mildred. The Jap calls her "Little Cherry Blossom" when she celebrates her fete day dressed in the costume of her native land. Harry Maxwell, her school chum, goes to Mexico, is there ensnared into a wedding with a notorious woman, and upon his return finds himself in love with Mildred and she with him. Faithful Sato also is in love with the little American, but his nationality becomes a racial barrier, and to secure her happiness he abducts the adventures who has come between Mildred's and Harry's happiness and sacrifices himself by sinking the launch in which he and the Mexican woman have taken a long trip.

FIRST GEORGE BACKER FILM FOR M. H. HOFFMAN, INC., WILL BE ONE OF YEAR’S “HITS,” IT IS PREDICTED

Work on the first George Backer Film Corporation Foursquare picture, which is to be published through M. H. Hoffman, Inc., is progressing rapidly. The featured stars, Ruth Roland and Milton Sills, and the associate artists in the cast are co-operating in an effort to make this feature one of the most important of the year. Such stage and screen stars of national note as Leah Baird, J. Herbert Frank, Ollie Kirkby and George Larkin, who are appearing in strong roles in this George Backer-Foursquare picture, declare they never have found an organization more complete than this, which is being directed by Robert Ellis.

Miss Roland and Mr. Sills are co-starred. These two artists are playing opposite roles in the same picture for the first time in their careers.

The story, which Pierre V. R. Key wrote, is said to be one of the most virile ever screened, and has to do with an issue which is especially pertinent at this time. M. H. Hoffman, who is watching the making of this super Foursquare, George Backer-made, is of the opinion that it will be one of the “hits” of the year.

BETTER TITLES AND FILMS FOR EXHIBITORS, IS ESSANAY’S PLAN

Since establishing its department for the investigation of exhibitors’ needs, the Essanay Company has gained an intimate knowledge of the improvements which are demanded. One of the chief causes for complaint has been the lack of appropriate titles for features. In many instances they mean absolutely nothing to the passerby. Oftentimes they not only fail to give a key to the story, but they have none of that appeal which is especially necessary where a theater manager depends on the name of the star and the title of the subject to draw his people.

At the very inception of this investigation several months ago the fact that this trouble had to be remedied became so apparent that immediate steps were taken by this company. A glance at the list of recent feature films shows how consistently Essanay now is adhering to this constructive criticism.

“Do Children Count?” the Mary McAlister series, could not be amplified upon by an explanatory paragraph. Bryant Washburn’s lesson to slackers, “The Man Who Was Afraid,” and his recent comedies, “Filling His Own Shoes” and the three “skinner” subjects, all give an insight into the character of the plot to any person who even glances at a poster. A similar understanding will be gained from Jack Gardner’s northern drama, “Land of Long Shadows,” and his virile Western romance, “The Range Boss.” In this connection the first Taylor Holmes feature, “Efficiency Edgar’s Courtship,” might also be mentioned.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Jumbo Theater, at Front and Girard avenue, is having plans prepared by the Hoffman Company for extensive repairs.

EIGHTEEN REELS OF COMEDY, DRAMA AND CURRENT EVENTS SCHEDULED FOR UNIVERSAL PROGRAM JULY 2

In addition to “The Double Standard,” a Butterfly picture, published July 23, Universal will issue eighteen reel of combined comedy, drama and current events including the latest episode of “The Gray Ghost,” the mystery serial.

“A Soldier of the Legion,” a Gold Seal film with an interesting comedy setting, will be issued Tuesday, July 24. The story was written by Maude Springer Nelson and F. J. Clason and directed by Ruth Ann Baldwin. To date no less of two seekers after literary fame give them the idea of putting Celeste, the maid-of-all-work about their lodgings, into a work of fiction designed to bring princely royalties. Algiers is chosen as an appropriate setting, and Celeste is transformed forthwith in a houri of the desert. One of the authors impersonates the hero, his pal does the heavy part, while Jones, a crooked neighbor, is pressed into service as an orderly the type of Kipling’s Mulvaney. The result is an exciting tale, which reaches a more surprising conclusion than the authors had intended.

Comedy for Same Day

The same double—“Seeing Things,” a Nestor come written by Fred Palmer and directed by Roy Clemen will be issued, featuring Lee Moran and Edith Rober. Taking a presumably haunted house as a setting, a diving tangle has been worked out to the accomplishment many laughs.

“The Sign of the Cucumber,” an L-Ko in two reels is the offering for Wednesday, July 25. Tom Deur Bob McKenzie and Eva Novak are featured.

The eighty-second issue of the Animated Weekly will also be issued the same day, showing new curts in pictorial form.

Mary Fuller will be starred in “The Beautiful Postman,” to be issued Thursday, July 26. This is a telly drama. Miss Fuller is capably supported by Cleo Bevers, Nellie Slattery and John Walker.

A Joker comedy, entitled “Canning the Cannibal Kid” and featuring William Franey, will be shown on the same date with the Mary comedy feature. Lilian Peachock, Zelma Fras and Milburn Morgan assist William Franey intracting all the humor out of the strange domestic situation in which they feature.

Neva Gerber in a Drama

Herbert Rawlinson and Neva Gerber are the featured players in “Caucelt in the Act,” a Victor comedy-drama scheduled for issuance Friday, July 27.

A unique issue of the Universal Screen Magazine will appear on the same day with “Caucelt in the Act,” deals with a variety of subjects, including pictures of only tea farm in the United States and a recent effort to reduce the cost of footwear by utilizing snake skins in the manufacture of shoes.

The eleventh number of Universal Current Events, be published Saturday, June 28, together with a Pictorial educational and a Powers comedy cartoon. “The Contre,” a Joker comedy featuring Gale Henry and Mr. Sims, completes the week’s offerings.

NEW BERNSTEIN DEVICE PROTECTS OUTDOOR STUDIOS IN STORMS

Turn of Electric Power Lever Instantly Covers Scenes, Suppling Artificial Lighting, Both Overhead and in Flooring of Stage; Represents Five Years' Work.

The problem of safeguarding the production of motion pictures in open-air, sunlighted studios against sudden wind, wind or darkness has been solved by Isadore Bernstein, head of the Bernstein Film Productions, Los Angeles, and builder of Universal City, who has perfected a set of ingenious devices by which an outdoor studio may be practically instantaneously changed by the turn of a power lever into a wind and rain proof enclosure, thoroughly equipped with artificial lighting both overhead and in the flooring of the stage.

The completion of Mr. Bernstein's plans, which he has given great study and many practical tests, places in his grasp the means of saving thousands of dollars to producers who arrange to film their subjects by the light of the sun. The value of Mr. Bernstein's mechanism will be understood when it is taken into consideration that the great sums are expended for the arrangements of productions and it becomes necessary because of cloudy, rainy or darkness to discontinue action and move the scenery from the exposed floor great loss is often suffered.

Complete Protects

Additional sums frequently have to be spent to replace the scenery, and it is very difficult to get everything packed again as it was before the interruption.

But in a studio such as Mr. Bernstein has designed, should the weather conditions suddenly change or darkness come upon the studio while work is in progress, it is only necessary to start an electric current which carries instantaneously into place a telescopic arrangement of sliding windows on the top and sides of the structure, that at once shuts out any danger from the elements.

The electric dynamo moves in either direction a set of cables which open and fold the windows like the segments of a collapsible drinking cup or a telescope.

The operation of this mechanism does not interfere with the slightest with the settings of the stages, which may be arranged very close to the sides of the building without interference by the closing or shutting of the windows.

Mr. Bernstein's plans include a system of adjustable light diffusing adapted to regulate the lighting effects thereby the natural light of the sun can be varied or artificial light modified. In addition, the diffusers prevent the supports of the collapsible roof from throwing shadows upon scenes or the studio floor.

Roof Operation Explained

A series of roof-forming window sashes are hinged in grooved guides running parallel. The electrically driven engine either draws the sash closed or telescope the other until the groove is filled or folds them back again when the light is to be used. The same operation of the cables raise or lowers the side sashes in the walls of the structure.

Co-operating with the roof sashes is a light-diffusing system made up of a series of sliding shades which travel on wires. The shades, usually of comparatively thin oods suitable for the purpose, may be drawn out of the way when not needed or may be extended the full length of the overstructure when it is necessary to close out completely or partially the rays of the sunlight from the scenes.

The artificial lighting system consists of roof and floor lights. Lamp sockets are inserted at many points above the flooring in different parts of the studio, with covers that lie flush with the surface of the floor when the lights are not being used. Light may thus be thrown from the floor upon any set or scene placed on the studio floor.

Five Years to Perfect

For the past five years Bernstein has been working on this invention, which will no doubt be immediately recognized as one of the most important and most needed ever created in connection with the industry of motion pictures. Every producer will quickly appreciate the tremendous saving to be derived from a studio of this design and there is little doubt that the "Bernstein studio" will receive a warm welcome from manufacturers and be used exclusively by producers in the future.

MONTAGU LOVE HAS A REFORMED BURGLAR ROLE IN "THE GUARDIAN"

SEILIG SERIES SHOWING GREAT ATHLETES CONDITIONING THEMSELVES IS ENDORSED BY MANY WOMEN

The Selig Athletic Series, published by K-E-S-E service, consists of ten one-reel features. According to reports, this series is consistently increasing in popularity. The series presents all the leading athletes in action, including Packey McFarland, Mike Gibbons, Willie Ritchie, Bennie Leonard, Freddie Weeks, Joe Stecher, Frank Gotch and others. Not only are boxers and wrestlers presented, but the leading college athletes in actual competition. Each one of the ten reels of the Selig Athletic Series is complete in itself.

The K-E-S-E exchanges report that the films are endorsed by a surprisingly large number of women, who desire that their boys and girls see the methods pursued by the leading athletes in placing themselves in a physically healthful condition.

STANDARD FILM CORP. TAKES OVER CHICAGO ART DRAMAS SERVICE; TO START $30,000 AD CAMPAIGN

With the taking over of the Art Dramas Service, 207 South Wabash avenue, Chicago, by the Standard Film Corporation of Kansas City, Mo., the latter company is preparing to launch a $30,000 advertising campaign in sixty or more papers in the Middle West to exploit the King-Bees comedies, starring Billy West.

R. C. Cropper, president of the Standard Film Corporation, who is in Chicago at present, announces that R. O. Proctor will remain in charge of the Art Dramas Service. Mr. Cropper also announces that their advertising and sales manager, P. L. Ryan, is preparing an elaborate campaign book containing valuable aids to exhibitors booking the Billy West comedies. It is printed in four colors and contains reproductions of posters, photographs, cut-outs and lists of novelties furnished by the company. These are arranged at convenience, it is said.

Mr. Cropper plans to distribute something original in the way of novelties at the convention this week, and exhibitors will be supplied with cut-outs of Billy West prepared by Mr. Ryan from the Art Dramas Service offices at 207 South Wabash avenue, Chicago.
MARQUETTE PIANO CO. OF CHICAGO
FURNISHES MUSICAL INSTRUMENT FOR THE EXPOSITION AT COLISEUM

The Marquette Piano Company of Chicago, is furnishing the musical instrument for the M. P. E. L. Exposition at the Coliseum this week.

The instrument installed is a style "G" duplex roll system, with an additional set of heavy 16-foot bourbon pipes, giving the necessary foundation required in organ music, and is attracting considerable attention by reason of the sweetness and volume of its music.

Is Completely Equipped

The organ contains a set of bourdon, diapason, flute, violin, cello, vox humana bass, vox humana treble, a set of twenty-five cathedral chimes, xylophone, and all the necessary traps and effects.

The instrument is designed to play the regular 88-note player rolls on one tracker bar, and the 134-note reproducing solo roll on the other, which permits instantaneous change.

This is a great advancement in automatic interpretation of organ and orchestra music. Absolute control of the tempo, organ combinations and orchestrations without the services of an operator are assured.

Has Required Expression Range

The improved tremulant, with the aid of the heavy tone shutters, gives the organ all the range of expression desired. The tempo control of the 88-note spool box enables one with a musical taste to follow the picture with all the rhythm and feeling necessary to bring out the best results.

C. C. Cot, manager of sales, will have charge of the display booth in the Exposition hall, and extends an invitation to all exhibitors to call on him and arrange for a visit to the concern's modern factory and display rooms a few blocks west of the convention hall.

“HIS WEDDING NIGHT,” NEW COMEDY WITH “FATTY” ARBUCKLE, NEARING FINISH FOR PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

Roscoe (“Fatty”) Arbuckle's newest comedy, "His Wedding Night," is nearing completion. Within the next few weeks it will be ready for publication on the Paramount program.

In this new story the comedian is disguised as the man who puts bubbles in summer beverages. From his vantage point behind the soda fountain and vanilla extract bottles "Fatty" carries on his violent love scenes with the beautiful cashier, who, according to the plot, is also the daughter of the proprietor.

But "Fatty" is not the only suitor required by the scenario. Al St. John of film cop fame, now the drug clerk, also has spent many unhappy hours because of the soda clerk's fondness for the cashier. "Fatty" has carried on his lovemaking via the change carrier, and proposes one day over ice cream soda while father and Al St. John are otherwise engaged. He is accepted on the spot and produces an engagement ring. St. John discovers the deception during their honeymoon, and on the plea of getting change for a customer rushes into the dental parlor where father is extracting teeth and breaks the unwelcome news of "Fatty"'s victory.

Father confronts the lovers, but the girl shows her ring, and St. John gets into an argument, so that finally father fires the drug clerk and accepts "Fatty," also placing him in charge of his business. Before leaving, St. John gets into a fight with "Fatty." They scatter ice cream and bottles in all directions and demolish the place, but "Fatty" emerges victorious. This is followed by a kidnapping scene, which ends in comical disaster for the kidnappers.

ARTCRAFT, POTENT FACTOR IN TRADE, CELEBRATES FIRST BIRTHDAY; KEEPS “BIGGEST AND BEST” POLICY

The Artcraft Pictures Corporation has rounded out one year of successful film exploitation and is celebrating its first birthday. Since its inception Artcraft has become a potent factor in the industry, and through its affiliation with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation it has added to its own great force as a big figure in the film world.

Has Kept Its Promises

From the start Artcraft made it possible for exhibitors to show the best in motion pictures, and has kept its promises of the "biggest and best," commencing with the presentation of Mary Pickford subjects. The new year promises even greater things from Artcraft, with D. W. Griffith, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Thomas H. Ince, Elsie Ferguson, Geraldine Farrar, Cecil B. De Mille and George M. Cohan forming the coalition for its coming productions.

Especially valuable to the small exhibitors is the Artcraft offer of "special attractions" at nominal cost, which act as a stimulant to their business.

Thomas H. Ince Added

As to the future plans of Artcraft, it announces it will continue along the lines already established. It will use the star series selective booking policy.

Mary Pickford, at the head of her own company, will continue to be an Artcraft offering. The most recent affiliation, consummated a few weeks ago, was with Thomas H. Ince, who will direct many forthcoming Artcraft pictures.

PLACE WHERE MONKS MADE LIQUEUR IN FRANCE FOR MANY CENTURIES. SHOWN IN GAUMONT FOR JULY 2

The place where the jolly old monks made their Chartreuse liqueur to warm the cockles of the heart for many centuries is pictured in the first Gaumont film through Mutual, the week of July 29. This is in “Tour Around the World” No. 39, for July 31. La Grande Chartreuse, lying in the Alps of Southeastern France, is a picturesque spot, aside from the interest of spectators in the occupation carried on by the monks. Of the same reel are pictures of Marken, Holland, the island lying in the Zuider Zee, and Majorca, the largest of Spain's Balearic Islands in the Mediterranean. These islands have a quaint individuality which makes them very interesting upon the screen.

The second Gaumont film of the week is the Gaumont-Mutual Weekly No. 135, August 1. This will contain the latest news of the world, special attention being paid to pictures from the front, secured in Europe by cameramen of the Societe des Etablissements Gaumont. August 2, Gaumont will issue "Reel Life" No. 66. This is the Mutual Magazine in Film, containing a diversification of subjects. "Making Machine Guns" is the leading subject, a subject of vital importance at the present time. "Beads of Rose Petals" discloses a quaint California industry, and "Saving a Wrecked Steamship" shows how marine engineers are saving a vessel by an unusual method. "Keeping the Boys Home" is in story to pictures of the enjoyment secured through a home board table. The reel concludes with animated drawings of a humorous nature, founded upon illustrations. "Life," the humorous publication.

HARRY LEONHARDT QUITS FOX TO BECOME WESTERN EXECUTIVE FOR GOLDFWN

Harry Leonhardt, who since the formation of the Fox Film Corporation has been one of the powerful and able executives of that company, has joined Goldwyn Distributing Corporation as general western manager, and next week assumes jurisdiction over all of the Goldwyn branches and business in the West, beginning with Denver and including the Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles offices.

In signing Mr. Leonhardt, Goldwyn brings into its organization one of the strongest personalities identified with motion picture business in the entire industry.
He leaves the position of general western representative for William Fox to take up larger duties with this newer organization and starts at once on a tour of inspection of the territories under his direction.
Goldwyn’s branches in the four zones of the western division are:

Denver. W. S. Rand, manager;
Los Angeles. G. C. Parsons, manger; San Francisco. C. M. Simmons, manager, and Seattle, C. F.
Hill, manager.

In the four years Harry Leonhardt has become one of the best-known men in the sales side of motion pictures. For twenty-five years he has been identified with the most progressive phase of amusements and has covered the entire range of managerial effort, from Shakespearean drama to tableaux vivants, and modern vaudeville with both the Keith and Proctor interests. His only motion picture connection until now has been with the Fox organization.

His first stop on his trip through his territory will be in Denver.

HARRY LEONHARDT
General Manager of Goldwyn's Western Forces

“I have entered the splendid organization that Goldwyn is building,” says Mr. Leonhardt, “because Goldwyn represents a new era or a new cycle in motion picture production.”
Edward Nelson, president of Sherman-Elliott, Inc., together with David Beecher, well known banker, came from Minneapolis, Minn., last week and spent several days in Chicago on business. Both are enthusiastic over the campaign to dispose of the remaining territorial rights of William N. Selig's film, "The Crisis."

"We consider the states yet unsold as among the choicest territory for this great American drama," said Mr. Nelson. "It was finally decided to offer the territory for sale because exhibitors and others were asking for the pictures and objecting because 'The Crisis' was caging in for theaters in adjacent states. Realizing the justice of these complaints President Nelson decided to relinquish certain plans concerning the reserved territory and to offer the territory for sale. The states include Wisconsin, Iowa, Arkansas, Montana, New Mexico, Minnesota, Nebraska, Texas, Idaho, North Dakota, Kansas, Oregon, Colorado, South Dakota, Oklahoma, Washington, Utah and Wyoming."

"Receives Many Inquiries"

He announces that since the territory was offered for sale that a very large number of inquiries has been received from state rights buyers and others. According to reports, "The Crisis" has been cashing in wherever presented. The American story, written by Winston Churchill, has a direct appeal to patriotism. There is a representative cast of players, including George Fawcett, Besie Eton, Thomas Santschi, Marshall Neilan, Eugene Besserer, Frank Ward, Matt B. Snyder and others. The film carefully presents the history and atmosphere of the ante-bellum days and the days of '61-'65. The entire National Guard of Mississippi participated in the filming of scenes in and around Vicksburg. The battles were staged on the historic ground where the engagements were fought during the war between the states. Fort Sumter was also visited for necessary local color.

Realistic Lincoln Appears

One of the greatest of the details of "The Crisis" is the very human Lincoln. William N. Selig has on file a number of letters from Civil War veterans and others who knew Lincoln and they all attest to the excellent characterization of Abraham Lincoln in "The Crisis." The role was enacted by the late Sam Drane, who had made a life-long study of Lincoln. Even the little whims of the martyred President are perfectly reproduced. The role is enacted with life-like care. Drane's "Lincoln" is the only one that has ever merited a close-up.

The battle scenes in "The Crisis" also are true to historic data. Even the old fortifications and entrenchments used in the siege and battle of Vicksburg are shown and were used by the troops in the pictureplay.

FRANK J. SENG SEES "PARENTAGE" FILM BIG MONEY-MAKER; SETS RECORD IN NEW YORK

New York and Chicago film theater patrons have endorsed "Parentage," the thought film produced by Hobart Henley and presented by Frank J. Seng on the state rights market. This production had its premiere at the Rialto Theater, New York, July 8 and played to more people than any feature attraction has ever drawn into that motion picture theater.

Exhibitors and film buyers are familiar with Mr. Seng's declaration that "Parentage" is not a $2 picture, also with his reasons for selecting the Rialto Theater of New York in preference to exploiting Hobart Henley's film in a dark stage house. If the results of the Rialto at box office prices ranging up to 50 cents be taken as a criterion, "Parentage" should find an excellent box office attraction.

Mr. Seng, while in New York 4 weeks, said: "The success of our opening vindicates absolutely my faith in such a picture as 'Parentage'—pictures that are clean, that entertain and at the same time drive home a splendid moral lesson. I know that every exhibitor (and I am one, you know) who makes money with 'Parentage' when it reaches them through the state rights buyer."

FILM EXPORT FROM U.S. SHOWS STEADY GAIN IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES THROUGHOUT THE WORLD

Reports on markets for motion picture films in districts of the various countries throughout the world show steady gains have been made by the United States during the past five years toward the leadership in this industry and literrally made it possible for the whole world to "see America" on a large scale.

Export Trade Is Big

The exports of exposed films from manufacturers in the United States increased from 5,192,018 feet in the fiscal year 1913 to 158,751,786 feet in the fiscal year 1916, and their value increased from $2,276,400 in the year ended June 30, 1913, to $6,757,658 in the year ended June 30, 1916. Exports to Europe were 17,762,429 feet, valued at $1,317,531, in 1913, and 126,749,563 feet, valued at $4,851,578, in 1916; to North American countries, 10,544,822 feet, valued at $759,544, in 1913, and 17,603,193 feet, valued at $1,070,823, in 1916; to South America, 811,293 feet, valued at $39,629, in 1913, and 2,638,328 feet, valued at $126,077, in 1916; to Asia, 770,418 feet, valued at $33,065, in 1913, and 3,336,997 feet, valued at $119,189, in 1916; to China, 1,922,000 feet, valued at $192,000, in 1913, and 8,380,999 feet, valued at $892,054, in 1916; and to Africa, 9,090 feet, valued at $651, in 1913, and 427,000 feet, valued at $6,719, in 1916.

Imports of Raw Material

Official figures reveal the fact that the producers of this country have been gradually turning the import trade in films from the "manufactured class" to the "raw material." Notwithstanding the immense growth in the scope of such entertainments in the United States, imports of the finished product have been dwindling for several years; but, on the other hand, our imports of sensitized but not exposed films have shown substantial increase in quantities. Imports of such raw material amounted to 47,717,323 feet, valued at $889,560, in 1914, and to 58,400,756 feet, valued at $750,023, in 1916. The reduction in total value gives this class of goods a unique distinction in an era of high prices.

Decrease in Negative Value

Imports of motion picture "positives" reached the lowest mark of recent years in 1916, when the amount was 674,998 feet, valued at $256,332, compared with 14,274,788 feet, valued at $825,983, in 1912, and 20,057,144 feet, valued at $1,109,490, in 1914. Negatives have largely decreased in value, with an annual loss since the fiscal year 1913. American art is being spread broadcast throughout the world, while other countries assist in supplying the foundation upon which that art is expressed.

The extent of this campaign to back up the local exhibitors of Gold-upon the Goldwyn stars will be understood better by stating that extensive postings will be made in every

A remarkable twenty-four sheet,

GERALDINE FARRAR STARTS NEW FILM AT
LASKY STUDIOS UNDER CECIL B. DE MILLE

At the headquarters of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation in New York it is announced this week that Geraldine Farrar has started work on her initial production for this organization at the Lasky studio in Hollywood, Cal.

Cecil B. De Mille, it is announced, is giving his personal attention to the direction of the new Farrar-Artaulf offering, and all efforts are being made to present in this cinema the greatest achievement of not only the star but of the producer as well.

Although the nature of the story as well as its title has not yet been announced, it is said that in this production the noted diva will have even a stronger and more thrilling role than that of Joan, her recent sensational success.

Supporting Miss Farrar is an exceptional cast, selected with particular care by Mr. De Mille. Many of the players appeared with the star in "Joan the Woman," including Wallace Reid, who again plays opposite the noted actress in her newest film play. Several of the largest scenes ever staged at the new Lasky plant have already been completed for Miss Farrar, who has started on her new film with great enthusiasm.

BIG SOCIETY BALL SCENE IN EDWARD WARREN'S
NEW FILM IS STAGED ON BIG SCALE IN OPEN

One of the big attractions of Edward Warren's new production now being rapidly completed is a society ball, some of the scenes of which are laid in the open.

To secure the proper atmosphere for this Mr. Warren personally inspected a number of the most exclusive homes around New York before he found what he wanted. With the natural beauties of the garden and the decorations and lights furnished by the studio it promises to be one of the most elaborate outdoor scenes ever attempted.

Other scenes from the ball will be laid indoors and the decorators have been busy at the studio for the last week endeavoring to outdo even the beauties of the garden scenes. More than three hundred people will be used in these scenes.

PETER PAN FILM CORP.
TAKES OVER MO-TOYS; STUDIO MOVED TO N. Y.

With the return of H. C. Allen president of the Peter Pan Film Corporation, from Chicago, where he had been for the past week, the announcement is made that the Mo-Toy comedies have been taken over by the Peter Pan Film Corporation, while the studio will move the studio from Chicago to New York, where the comedies will be made in the future.

Ever since these amusing doll pictures made their appearance on the market they have been produced by Chicago manufacturers, who have isisued them through the Peter Pan Fil-Corporation. The demand for the bunnies has been such that President Allen finally decided it would be most vantageous to take over the entire producing plant from the Mo-Toy Company and move the entire organiization to New York City.

In addition to publishing the M'o-Toys the new consolidation is going to introduce a single-reel novel which will contain surprises for the city public, it is said, and they will be in the market for pictures of 200 in length and upwards.

JOHN DREW BENNETT STARS ON K-E-S-E IN "ONE TOUCH OF NATURE"

Manager John McGraw of New York Giants appears in Supporting Cast: Is from Post Story

JOHN DREW BENNETT is featured in "One Touch of Nature," an Edison production scheduled for publication through George Kleine's K-E-S-E organization July 30.

Manager John McGraw of the Giants is in the cast supporting Mr. Bennett in "One Touch of Nature," and has quite a prominent part in this forthcoming playpiece.

Violet Cain has the opposite lead- ing part to Mr. Bennett. She will be best remembered as having scored successfully in "Daddy Longlegs," in portraying Youth in "Every Woman," acting the role of Dora in "The Mar- riage Market" and Lucy in "The Girl of My Dream."

Peter B. Kyne wrote "One Touch of Nature" for the Saturday Evening Post, and it created more than ordi- nary interest. There is a very pretty romance interwoven with a story having to do with national sports. It should appeal to both- sexes.

The star, John Drew Bennett, will be remembered by motion picture theater patrons as having played op- posite Lilian Walker in "The Blue Envelope Mystery."
Toronto, Ont.—Reports have reached the Toronto office of the Mutual Film Company that a young man has been traveling throughout Ontario posing as a representative of that company and playing upon the credulity of the young women in the smaller Ontario towns and cities who have the "movie bug."

The young man claims that he is looking for "screen material" among the young ladies and states that the Mutual Film Company is sending him throughout the province to choose a location for a motion picture studio.

The New York office of the Mutual has notified its Toronto office to get in touch with all the police officials immediately in the towns visited by the young man, and has gone so far as to offer a reward for his apprehension.

According to reports this man has been extracting money from the young women of the various towns and cities visited on the strength of his statement to secure for them positions as actresses with the Mutual when that company had established a Canadian studio. He claims that the money which is given him is just an evidence of their good faith in holding the young ladies to their part of the agreement. It has cost young women $25 each for their "prospective position" as coming stars.

The Mutual Film Company has no intention of opening a Canadian studio and would like every Canadian exhibitor to be on the lookout for the swindling young man.

Toronto, Ont.—The announcement of the death of Mitchell Granby, which occurred in New York recently, cast a gloom over motion picture circles in Toronto and vicinity. Mr. Granby was very well known throughout Canada through his connection with the Fox Film Company, for which he was manager, with headquarters here.

Toronto, Ont.—Toronto at last has a dancing palace and picture show combined which has been put on a paying basis. C. E. Hulsten, treasurer of the Arena, is the man who is responsible for the success of the idea. Montreal, Que.—At the invitation of the Khaki League of Montreal there was a notable gathering at the Holman Theater last week to see the Universal Animated Special "With Pershing in France." The new company has some elaborate plans under way for the betterment of this theater. The Strand Theater is located on Toronto's main thoroughfare near its busiest corner, King and Yonge streets.

Toronto, Ont.—The Regent Theater here played to capacity business the entire week of July 9, and Manager Roland Roberts declares that it was one of the heaviest weeks since the theater was opened. "SUBMARINE EYE" FILM MAKING GOOD PROFITS FOR WILLIAMSON BROS.

Estimate Dividends Will Pass $200,000
Mark on Remaining Unsold Territory

The Williamson Brothers and members of their Submarine Film Corporation are celebrating the fact that their first independent picture, "The Submarine Eye," has successfully passed the expense point and now is making good profits.

With less than 20 per cent of U. S. and foreign territory disposed of, 80 per cent remains from which to declare dividends which now are estimated to surpass the sum of $200,000.

Ernest Shipman, manager for the Williamson Brothers, says that the best tonic for success is to "Keep plugging and never worry." Shipman is summersing at Oak Island Beach on the South Shore of Long Island.

SUPERPICTURES WILL BUY FILMS AND SELL DIRECT TO EXHIBITORS IN DISTRICTS ON STATE RIGHTS PLAN

Frederick L. Collins, president of Superpictures, Inc., announces this week that the $9,000,000 corporation which he heads has adopted a policy absolutely unique in motion pictures, and that Superpictures immediately will proceed to buy the biggest pictures produced and sell them direct to the important exhibitors in different territories.

It is an entirely new angle to the state rights plan. It eliminates the exchange and cuts the cost of distribution. Overhead expense in maintaining exchanges oftentimes equals 25 per cent of the cost of production. By doing away with much of this expense Superpictures is determined to place itself in a position whereby it can sell at a reasonable price the best photoplays made.

NEW MUTT AND JEFF SERIES BY BUD FISHER MEETING WITH SUCCESS—FILMS BOOKING FAST, IS WORD

The new Mutt and Jeff series by Bud Fisher is meeting with success, it is announced at the office of the Bud Fisher Film Corporation.

Starting with the first of the series, "The Submarine Chaser," these pictures will be shown at the Strand Theater in New York every day during the coming year, and it is very probable that before the end of another week the Rialto Theater will also be showing them. If so, it will be the first time that a picture has been shown in both of the leading theaters in the country at the same time—enough to encourage the vanity of a producer of features.

These are the first pictures to be published under the direct supervision of Bud Fisher and territories are selling fast, with the probability that the entire country will be sold before the second of the series is published.

One of the first big territories to be sold was the entire south, which was purchased during the past week by William Oldknow, of Atlanta, Georgia, who is the general manager of the Consolidated Film and Supply Company, and is going to exploit them in a big way throughout the South.

VOICE OF THE TRADE

[To the “Exhibitors Herald”]:

Probably a great many of the exhibitors who will be present at the Chicago Convention will be interested in seeing how motion pictures are actually made and we intend to hold open house for the visiting exhibitors.

It occurs to me that it might be of assistance to these exhibitors if they were informed as to just how to get to our laboratory-studio from the loop, and I have the following suggestions to offer:

Jump in any taxicab and ask any one of the drivers to take you to the finest laboratory-studio in Chicago—or take the Northwestern, elevated, get off at Diversey station and walk west four blocks—or:

Take the Lincoln Avenue car, get off at Diversey Parkway and walk west two blocks—or:

Take the Southport Avenue car, get off at Diversey Parkway and walk east a half block.

If you will give publicity to these directions, as we are satisfied that the entire moving picture industry will be welcome at our place during the convention, you will oblige.

LOUIS GOTTSCHALK WRITES MUSIC SCORE FOR “THE CURSE OF EVE” FILM

After three months had been spent in working on the pictorial prologue to "The Curse of Eve" and timing the musical score by Louis Gottschalk to the pictures, Dr. Bruce Gordon Kingsley, who has been for past three years one of the leading organists of the Los Angeles theaters, played the score by Gottschalk and declared it to be the most appropriate thing which had played in motion picture accompaniment.

The biblical prologue to "The Curse of Eve," which depicts with remarkable photographic effect the creation of the world, gave to Composer Gottschalk a big task upon which to work. As the picture moves from the opening scenes of chaos through the scenes of creation and into the pictorially beautiful Garden of Eden, the music rises to deafening pitch and then softens in a more beautiful theme.

The creation scenes, which in themselves are instructive in photography of natural effects, furnished Composer Gottschalk with material for something entirely new—photoplay music. Gottschalk and Kingsley worked together over the music before the latter played it special showing of the prologue.

TITLE OF NEW WORLD FILM STARRING MADGE EVANS HAS BEEN CHANGED

The new World-Picture Brady-made in which juvenile actress, Madge Evans, is to make her first appearance as a star, has had its title changed. It was produced as "Jerry-for-Short," but will be known in general public as "The Little Duchess," and was published August 20. The diminutive heroine is the heiress to a dukedom, discovered by her grand agents in a little American circus and carried over to the family castle.
"VARIETY DAY" FOR SHORT LENGTH FILMS IN THEATERS PROPOSED BY GENERAL IS SUCCESS

San Joaquin Valley (Cal.) Exhibitor Adopts Plan to Replace Big Features; Scheme Relieves Routine of Daily Program

It was just a month ago that General Film first broached to exhibitors through branch offices a novel plan to relieve the monotony of the conventional daily showing of a five-reel feature supplemented with three or four reels of "fillers." The suggestion made by General was that this routine be broken by the introduction of a "variety day" once or twice a week. On these days the bill was to be made up entirely of short-reel pictures, such as the select product distributed by General, each unit to be in attractiveness equivalent to a "feature" itself.

Reports so far received show that the "variety day" plan is succeeding everywhere in the country where it has been tried.

GOLDWYN SUES MABEL NORMAND IN CONTRACT ROW

Concern Starts Fight to Make Star Keep Signature Pledge

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation has gone to law to uphold the integrity of a contract entered into between a motion picture producing firm and one of its stars. Suit has been instituted by Goldwyn through Gabriel L. Hess, general counsel for and secretary of the company, and John B. Stanchfield, of Stanchfield & Levy, has been retained as attorney and as special counsel to obtain an injunction preventing Mabel Normand, screen comedienne, from working for any other contract or individual.

MABEL NORMAND

Miss Normand entered into a contract September 16, 1916, with Samuel Goldfish, whereby she was engaged to be starred in motion pictures under his management for a period of two years at a weekly salary of $1,000. Under this contract she was to act exclusively for Mr. Goldfish.

Upon the formation of Goldwyn Pictures Corporation by Mr. Goldfish, Edgar Selwyn, Archibald Selwyn, Arthur Hopkins and their associates, Miss Normand's contract was assigned to Goldwyn. Miss Normand was scheduled to begin working for Goldwyn in its studios on May 1 and arrived in New York soon after that date, manifesting an immediate intention of not entering upon her contract. Her response to notifications as to the date of beginning work proving to be evasive, Goldwyn came into possession of information that Miss Normand planned to work elsewhere and for other individuals.
F. E. BACKER BUYS "WHO'S YOUR NEIGHBOR?" IN HALF OF U. S. FOR MAMMOTH FILM CORP.

From operating in two states to buying a picture for one-half of the United States is the stride made by F. E. Backer, president of the Mammoth Film Corporation in purchasing twelve states, namely, California, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Utah, Montana, Arizona, Wyoming Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, the city of El Paso, Texas, and New Jersey, from the Overland Film Company. Samuel Krell, president, selling agents for the Master Drama Features, Inc., for "Who's Your Neighbor?" This sudden expansion of Mr. Backer's activities was occasioned by the possibilities which he saw in this feature from the moment it was screened.

Mr. Backer says:
"Now and then there is produced a picture whose theme is unusually timely, and has appeal for all classes of people; one whose fundamentals are so solid they cannot be exploited after the manner of the big theater propositions which play extended runs. I have, accordingly, arranged with J. O. Martin to look after my Western territory. He will make his headquarters at the Manx Hotel in San Francisco, and I will shortly make a trip out there to overlook my Western interests. The response from the West has been so sudden and enthusiastic that we have already arranged for six road companies which will be fully equipped to present this picture as it should be presented."

KING-BEE COMEDY RIGHTS SOLD IN THREE STATES, SAYS CONCERN

Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee Disposed of for Two-Reacters with Billy West

The King-Bee Film Corporation announces that the King-Bee Billy West comedies have been sold for the states of Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee. The Southern Metro Pictures Corporation of New Orleans is handling the comedies in this territory.

The Standard Film Corporation of Kansas City also has contracted for the output of these pictures for the middle western states, and R. C. Capper of the Standard Company is conducting a vigorous advertising campaign in his territory.

Three of the comedies, "Back Stage," "The Hero" and "Doughnuts" were shown recently at Loew's New York Theater and were well received. Wherever shown, it is said, the films are rapidly gaining in favor with the public.

DEEMSTER" IS SHOWING ON TWO THEATER CHAINS IN COOK COUNTY (ILL.)

Ten prints are working daily.

John B. Warren, senior member of the firm, reports good results with this, his first venture in the state rights field, and announces he will buy other features. His organization is equipped to handle the biggest attractions.

MARY MACLAREN SOON TO START NEW PICTURE FOR DAVID HORSLEY

A new story for Mary MacLaren, now under contract with David Horsley, is in the scenario department and soon will be under production. Miss MacLaren's first picture at the Horsley studios has been completed under the direction of Thomas Ricketts and now is undergoing its finishing touches prior to publication.

Miss MacLaren, whose screen successes have been meteoric, in the future will be seen as the daughter of a poor but socially ambitious mother, bent upon seeing her child in the "swim." Just what the effect of wearing fine clothes has upon the child, who has been brought up to look down upon her more plainly dressed associates, carries absorbing interest, it is said.

HERRINGTON IS STRONG AGAINST LEE OCHS

Fred J. Herrington, former league president and present national organizer, who has spent the year organizing exhibitors from coast to coast, does not approve of Ochs' policies nor any of his violations of the past year. His statement follows:

"The organization, instead of being used to further the interests of exhibitors, has been made a personal matter for personal aggrandizement of an individual. The president of the organization has given more consideration to the promotion of his own personal interests than the interests of the league. Therefore, with the present conditions of the league it cannot survive very long.

"The future of the league will depend upon the action of the delegates at this convention—the defeat of Ochs and the placing of the control of the organization in the hands of the exhibitors, to whom it rightfully belongs."

"I will declare myself further on this vital subject on the convention floor—believe me."

Herbert Brenon presents the picture of that uncouth, illiterate peasant preacher Rasputin, who obtained mastery over the late Czar and Czarina of Russia in.

The FALL OF THE ROMANOFFS with Iliodor, the Mad Monk and Former confidant of Rasputin.

The screen story shows how poison powders were used by Rasputin to push the young Czarevitch, the Czarina's favorite child, to the brink of the grave; how the mother's heart was tortured by Rasputin to maintain his mastery over the royal pair and how when in horror Iliodor finally realized Rasputin's villainy, he set about to unmask him and had to fly for his life.

Why They Have Faith
In Goldwyn

Exhibitors themselves are largely responsible for the nation-wide feeling of faith and confidence in Goldwyn and in our productions. They tell us, and they have told other exhibitors, that they believe in Goldwyn: Because Samuel Goldfish always has been identified with and produced clean, fine, superior pictures and under this big new alliance he has the facilities to make better and finer pictures than ever before.
Because Edgar and Archibald Selwyn and Margaret Mayo have in quick succession produced some of the greatest and most successful plays in the history of the American theatre, and bring to Goldwyn a knowledge of box office values that will benefit every exhibitor in the industry.
Because Goldwyn's authors represent the best names identified with big, money-making plays and novels on two continents and because the very pick of all their works are owned and controlled by Goldwyn.
And also because every artistic facility that a producer can obtain has been enlisted into Goldwyn service for the making of Goldwyn Pictures.
When important exhibitors have said all of these things about us, what more could we wish to say about ourselves?

Why Is Circulation?

A Talk to Advertisers

Circulation has been discussed a great deal during the past few years, and the technical side of circulation analysis has been studied from every angle.

How much, how secured and where located are the big questions which are asked of the publisher by the advertiser, with various subdivisions of the inquiries as modified by individual interest.

The biggest question of all is seldom asked. Why is circulation?

The average space-buyer never stops to consider the one vital fact about circulation—that it is the definite result of a definite creation, editorial quality.

Editorial appeal pulls circulation of which that appeal is the index. The higher the appeal and the stronger its character, the better and more desirable the circulation is going to be.

The value of a trade publication lies in the character of its circulation appeal.

If it has built up a distribution based on specific editorial character, the advertiser who goes into a publication of this kind knows in advance whether the interest is live or passive.

The advertiser who puts quantity first, and who reads circulation statements so closely that he has no time to study the publications themselves, has got away entirely from the fundamental fact back of all circulation, he has forgot to ask himself, "Why?"

A page-by-page analysis of the "Exhibitors Herald" proves that it has a vital and commanding readers' appeal.

THE CONVENTION: A LESSON TO AUTOCRATS

BEING a very hard loser, Mr. Lee A. Ochs undoubtedly will endeavor to construe the results of the recent Chicago convention as a victory for himself personally and for his followers.

In reality, it is a bitter defeat.

This assertion is born out by the following facts:

The attempt of Mr. Ochs to dominate the convention exclusively for his own interests resulted in the disruption of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League and Mr. Ochs is now a king without a country.

The “gaveled” election resulted directly in the formation of the American Exhibitors Association, which today has a more important and representative membership than the old organization.

Mr. Ochs now being unable to claim personally the backing of the organized exhibitors cannot claim it for his publication.

THE Motion Picture Exhibitors League, with a long record of useless, time-wasting conventions, easily outdid any previous effort along this line at the one just passed. About one hundred and twenty-five exhibitors from various parts of the United States traveled to Chicago for the meeting, the majority of them expecting to learn something that would assist them in bettering their business, and partaking in constructive work for the general advancement of the industry.

But instead of giving consideration to constructive work of any kind the convention was compelled to listen exclusively to political barkers attempting to beguile the exhibitor into schemes and subterfuges.

In this regard the sentiments of a majority of the leading exhibitors present were ably expressed by Charles Pettijohn of Indiana, who repeatedly declared that the event was the most useless and distressing affair of its kind that he ever had the misfortune to attend.

As far as can be learned, during the entire duration of the convention not one item of constructive work was undertaken and carried to a conclusion. According to the time-honored custom certain resolutions were read and committees were appointed, and that is about as far as the...

work goes. An illustration of this occurred near the end of this convention. Call was made for the report of the committee on song and music copyright. Whereupon Alfred Hamburger of Chicago arose and declared, yes, he would like to hear what the committee had accomplished. Presently, Mr. Hamburger’s interest abated for he was told that he was one of the appointed members of the committee.

ONE point that necessitates strong emphasis is that the action of those exhibitors who left the convention floor on the night of the election was not the action of a number of youths piqued over the dismal prospect of victory. The men who left that floor were substantial, intelligent business men who were driven from the floor by the hopelessness of the situation.

The matter of the league presidency was only an incident with them. They would have accepted Lee Ochs or any other candidate if they felt assured that the new official would have at heart the best interests of the members of the organization; that he was capable through mentality and experience to direct the affairs of the league; that he was big enough and broad enough to forget personal opportunity and ambition and direct the league along the channel of constructive personal and protection of the interest of the exhibitors’ body.

After several days of first hand observation these men came to the conclusion that Lee Ochs did not measure up to any one of these qualifications. Consequently, they reasoned that it would be folly to attempt to further follow his leadership. And expressions coming from Mr. Ochs such as, “When it comes to exhibitor propositions, I know them babies well,” in no way tended to impress the delegates with Mr. Ochs’ faculty of intelligent leadership.

The “bolt” was due entirely to Mr. Ochs’ personal ambition, the packed delegations, the high-handed methods and the utter absence of a constructive program which is, in reality, the one legitimate reason for an annual convention.

The defection from the Exhibitors League was due to gross mismanagement, the personal ambition of Ochs and to the determination of the real business men among the exhibitors to have what they have never been able to get before—a real business organization, avoiding political buncombe and aimed toward mutual protection and constructive work.

OCHS' HIGH-HANDED METHODS DISRUPT LEAGUE

Twenty-Eight State Delegations Refusing to Submit to “Steam Roller” Leave Convention Floor and Organize New National Association

"POLITICS" AND TRADE REVIEW BOASTS DISGUST DELEGATES

By J. RAY MURRAY

The most dramatic incident in the history of exhibitors' conventions—the disruption of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America—occurred at the Coliseum, Chicago, Wednesday, July 18.

Just prior to midnight delegates representing twenty-eight of the most active states in the exhibitors' association came to the conclusion definitely that Lee A. Ochs and the principals of the "Trade Review" could not be swerved from their plan of "steam rolling" the convention and withdrew from the convention hall.

THIS POINT MARKED THE DISRUPTION OF THE MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS LEAGUE OF AMERICA AND THE FORMATION OF THE NEW AMERICAN EXHIBITORS ASSOCIATION.

COULD NOT HALT HIGH-HANDED METHODS

Prior to the dramatic walk-out every effort was made to have Mr. Ochs and his associates abandon their high-handed methods and give consideration to the future of the organization and to the rights of the various state delegations which had not come under the sway of the Ochs machine.

But the Ochs machine remained obdurate and took the position that Ochs' re-election was to be accomplished at any and all cost. It was whispered generally about the convention hall and in the hotel lobbies that the Ochs machine recognized that without the re-election of Mr. Ochs and the perseverance of the league the future of the "Trade Review" would be very problematical. And the personal interests of the Ochs clique made the future of the exhibitors' organization of secondary consideration alongside of the publication enterprise.

The disruption of the league occurred just following the nominating speech by Louis Levine of New York. The nomination of Mr. Ochs was seconded by Peter J. Schaefer of Chicago.

Mr. Levine, after a lengthy compliment to the president and a fierce tirade against all opposing factions which was repeatedly objected to, placed the name of Mr. Ochs before the convention.

JACOB WELLS MAKES DEMAND

While the tellers were being appointed Jacob Wells of Virginia arose and demanded to know if Mr. Ochs intended to accept the "steam-rollered" nomination. This was done after repeated efforts were made to have Mr. Ochs withdraw in favor of any other candidate which a conference committee would select.

"I am not on trial," replied Mr. Ochs, endeavoring to avoid the issue.

MR. OCHS' RETORT WAS THE SIGNAL FOR THE QUIET ORGANIZED WITHDRAWAL FROM THE CONVENTION HALL OF DELEGATES REPRESENTING TWENTY-EIGHT STATES AND THE CREAM OF THE EXHIBITORS' BODY.

The exhibitors who remained on the floor, those affiliated with the Ochs machine, stood about for a few minutes gazing blankly at one another while the fact that their conduct had disrupted the league was gradually being realized.

Later the vote was taken, which was a perfunctory matter, and immediately following Mr. Ochs gave his memorable speech of acceptance, which is printed on another page. Charles Pettijohn of Indiana spoke following Mr. Ochs and his remarks also are given on another page.

Roster of M. P. E. L. Officers

Joseph Hopp was nominated and elected first vice president. Other officers elected were: William Isenberg of Mississippi, second vice president; H. M. Thomas of Nebraska, third vice president; E. J. Fisher of Washington, D. C., fourth vice president; William Brandt of New York, corresponding secretary; William J. Sweeney of Illinois, financial secretary; E. H. Horstman of Massachusetts, treasurer.

It was decided to hold the next convention in Boston, Mass., in July, 1918.

The Thursday session met at 3:30 o'clock and went into executive session. Routine business was transacted. About eighteen delegates were present.

A banquet was held at the Hotel Morrison Thursday evening.

William A. Brady, at the Wednesday evening session, introduced Rev. Christian F. Riezen, pastor of Grace Church, New York, whose few remarks served to relieve the tedium of the meeting.

William McCormack Blair, representing the "Four Minute Men," addressed the delegates, as did Fred C. Woodward, representing Mr. Hoover, the United States food administrator; Evans Evans and J. J. O'Connor of the Red Cross delivered short messages also.

Mr. Brady in an address said he would be ashamed of the delegates as American citizens if they did not get down to business, drop petty politics and be real men and make good
Ochs’ Salary Raised to $1,000

At Tuesday’s session the grievance committee decided that Illinois be allowed twenty-five votes, and a resolution offered by Louis Levine and Lonis J. Blumenthal of New Jersey that a trailer advertising committee be appointed was acted upon.

Later Joseph Hopp of Illinois reported for the constitution and by-laws committee. There were several changes made, including the addition of two vice presidents and increases in the salaries of various officers, the president’s salary being raised from $300 a year to $1,000.

D. G. Rodgers of Minneapolis read the report of the resolutions committee, which was acted upon. The report of the committee on deposits, of which Mr. Rembusch was chairman, contained some pithy paragraphs directed at the producers, who were termed stock jobbers, and the convention declared itself unalterably opposed to the deposit system.

The secretary of the league was directed to notify the film companies that members would refuse to pay the deposit after a certain date unless they wipe out the deposit system.

M. Feitler of Pennsylvania asked what had become of a similar resolution made a year ago. The chairman said Washington and Oregon had acted upon it and eliminated the deposit evil.

Would Adjust Stars’ Salaries

The high salaries paid motion picture stars came in for considerable criticism, and the convention went on record to bring about an adjustment of the high salaries. Just how this is to be accomplished was not disclosed.

Charles Pettijohn was in favor of a legislative committee, and said thirty-eight states had had censorship bills killed by concerted action from exhibitors, and in only three states had the film concerns aided.

Louis Levine reported for the law and legislation committee, and the convention refused to pay the widow of M. A. Neff, a former M. P. E. L. president, the sum of $201 claimed to have been due for services rendered. A bill for $5,000 for services at Washington during the recent tax fight from Isadore Stern, a Philadelphia lawyer, was referred to a committee with power to act.

W. A. Brady’s message to the convention was read and acted upon.

Wednesday’s session opened with less than half a dozen delegates present. Ochs called the meeting to order and told the sergeant-at-arms to scour the exposition for delegates.

“I don’t want to be accused of pulling anything here,” he added. There was a very slim attendance, notwithstanding that it was the third day and the day on which the convention was to elect officers for the ensuing year.

Wells Starts Excitement

The first real excitement of the convention came when Percy Wells of Wilmington, N. C., arose and withdrew the name of Henry B. Varner as a candidate for the presidency of the league. He stated that North Carolina delegates had had a candidate to present upon arriving, but after viewing the proceedings of the meetings, the suspension of the by-laws, the president selecting the committees to work under the incoming president, he did not think it would be fair to the man to be placed in the chair.

Mr. Wells said there were nineteen states, representing 100 votes, whom he had learned were of the same opinion as North Carolina.

Ochs and his policy were hotly defended by Eugene M. Clark of Mississippi, who had moved the suspension of the by-laws, and said North Carolina had been voting against everything at the convention, to which Mr. Wells replied that he felt the majority on the floor ought to rule instead of “steam roller” methods.

Joseph Hopp, in a spread-eagle speech about the red, white and blue badge he was wearing, called the delegates not present slackers, sitting behind yellow badges at the Hotel Morrison.

Rembusch Next Withdraws

This brought forth a stinging rebuke from Charles Pettijohn of Indiana, who said the Indiana delegation was not composed of slackers, and objected to Hopp or anybody else referring to them as such. He said he stood for a united front; that Ochs lacked the support of many, and he was opposed to ousting anybody from the organization. He ridiculed the resolution regarding the curtailment of high salaries paid stars and said Mary Pickford and Charlie Chaplin must be worried. The delegates were then surprised to hear him withdraw the name of Frank Rembusch as a candidate for president.

A third candidate’s name—that of Fred J. Herrington—was at this point withdrawn. William J. Shinn of Ohio stating Mr. Herrington did not aspire to the presidency.

ROTHACKER FILM
STUDIO ONE OF EXPO FEATURE

One of the big features of the M. P. E. L. Exposition at the Coliseum, Chicago, last week was the motion picture studio in the Annex, conducted by the Rotheraker Film Manufacturing Company. Pictures were shown there daily and it was always crowded.

A special picture, entitled “Fro the Studio to the Screen,” which depicted every detail of the industry was an added feature.

Through the kindness of O. T. Thayer of the Whole Film Corporation and Rex Weber of the Titan Film Company, who offered their services as directors on the improvised studio stage during the exposition, the crowd was kept amused in the Annex. Putting animated motion picture stars through their paces.

American Exhibitors Association, Born Out of Ochs' Convention Violations, Is Purely Business Organization for Only bona Fide Exhbitors; Jacob Wells Made President; $20,000 in Treasury

By WILLARD C. BENSON

Because Lee A. Ochs set himself, his trade paper, and his clique up as being bigger and better than the best interests of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, and "steamrollered" his way to the second term as president at the seventh annieversary convention in Chicago, July 14 to 22, twenty-eight state delegations seceded from the organization, walked out of the Coliseum and formed a new and powerful national organization officially named American Exhibitors' Association.

A motion presented by the independent state organization, whose leadership has been embodied in the statement, "We are in this business for the business of the exhibitors," introduces a political element into the handling of the business of the exhibitors.

The new organization, which already has applied for a charter of incorporation under the laws of Indiana, is purely a business organization, and will be operated in the interests of its exhibtor members, all of whom are to have as much right in affairs as directors in any big corporation.

Jacob Wells Is President

The officers unanimously elected to perfect and establish the new organization are:

JACOB WELLS, president, Richmond, Va.

GUY WONDERS, vice president, Baltimore, Md.

WILLIAM FAIT JR., treasurer, Utica, N. Y.

CHARLES PETTIJOHN, general manager, Indianapolis, Ind.

These men will act more as an advisory board in handling the affairs of the new organization. Mr. Pettijohn has been given the power to appoint a national organizer. The organizer does not necessarily have to be an exhibitor, nor does any of his aids. The organization will be placed on the same basis as a salesman of any big mercantile concern, and must show theater owners throughout the United States the business benefits the new organization offers.

Fred J. Herrington, who was the most successful organizer in the history of the old league, and whose acquaintance among exhibitors encompasses the entire nation, already has proffered the office of organizer. It is expected that Mr. Herrington will be appointed within the next two weeks and take up his duties with offices in Indianapolis, which temporarily will be the main headquarters of the new organization.

No Salaries for Officers

No offices outside of the general manager and the organizer and the employees of the corporation under these men will receive salaries. This plan was hit upon by the organization committee and included in the constitution and by-laws for the purpose of eliminating politics and graft. The general manager and organizer and their forces will hold permanent positions the same as officials in mercantile concerns, except that they are subject to be replaced or discharged at the end of a year, according to the dictates of the members of the association through a vote.

While the association is not to be operated on what is known as the zone plan, which was at first outlined but rejected by the members, the general manager and organizer and their forces will hold permanent positions the same as officials in mercantile concerns, except that they are subject to be replaced or discharged at the end of a year, according to the dictates of the members of the association through a vote.

Chicago Already Has Local

Chicago already has an A. E. A. local in the Motion Picture Theater Owners' Association of Illinois, recently formed, and of which Henry Schoenstadt is president. This organization was one of first to be absorbed by the A. E. A., and a reorganization now is under way.

William Fair Jr., treasurer of the A. E. A., was bonded Thursday night. July 19, and about $20,000, which was donated by members, was turned over to him.

Detroit has been selected as the scene of the first annual convention, to be held during the summer of 1918. While the date has not yet been fixed, it is intimated that it will be held at the same time the old league goes into session in Boston.

None of the former members of the old league who were candidates for office before the break this year will be allowed to hold executive offices. It is announced by the new officers. However, the candidates refused to accept offices in speeches before the assembly in Chicago following the final bolt which brought forth the new A. E. A.

Acting on an invitation from William A. Brady, extended as a representative of President Wilson to organize the ranks of the industry to aid in the war on Germany, the A. E. A. will make application for membership and representation in the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry. A committee will soon be picked by the A. E. A. executives to act with the forces of Brady.

Representatives Picked

Of the twelve-eight states in the new association, representatives of twenty-two have been selected as follows:

Judge A. P. Tugwell, California.
Harry Crandall, District of Columbia.
Frank J. Rembusch, Indiana.
W. H. Willy, Kansas.
Louis Dittman, Kentucky.
N. E. Thatcher, Louisiana.
Guy Wonders, Maryland.
Harry L. Kincaide, Massachusetts.
S. A. Moran, Michigan.
Peter Jeup, Detroit.
W. A. Steffes, Minnesota.
Sam Trigger, New York City.
I. M. Mosher, New York State.
Percy W. Wells, North Carolina.
Samuel Bullock, Ohio.
A. B. Momand, Oklahoma.
Fred J. Herrington, Pennsylvania.
George C. Waring, South Carolina.
Charles E. McElrath, Tennessee.
Harry Bernstein, Virginia.
The names of representatives in other states will be selected within the next six weeks, it has been announced. Judge A. P. Tugwell of Los Angeles, who was vice president in the old league, will be the main figure in organizing the California exhibitors. Judge Tugwell was one of the most influential leaders in the fight to stop the "steamroller" tactics of Ochs when the convention opened. As the parliamentarian he had the floor only a few minutes when the convention convened, when Ochs ousted him. Upon finding that Tugwell had used the unconstitutional tactics, Ochs proved that the per capita tax of California had not been paid, and Judge Tugwell, who was the only representative of the California branch, was ruled out.

Percy Wells Fought Ochs

Percy W. Wells, president of the North California branch, which has 750 members and which has become a state branch of the A. E. A., opposed the constitution violations of Ochs almost from the moment the convention was called to order. Those who were primarily responsible for the formation of the new organization through their fight against the unprecedented acts of Ochs are Percy W. Wells, Charles Pettijohn, H. B. Varner, Jacob Wells, Frank J. Rembusch, Judge A. P. Tugwell, Fred J. Herrington, A. R. Moorhead and L. W. Brophy. These men carried the fight constantly to the Ochs party and challenged him time after time.

At one time during the presidential nomination on the floor, when the Chicagoans who left the old league were slurred by, Maurice Choyinski, a member of the A. E. A., and who refused to accept office this year in the association, rushed from the back of the hall toward Ochs to fight. But a score of Ochs' men surrounded Choyinski halfway down the aisle and with the aid of the policemen at the door he was ousted. Also Henry Schoenstadt, Louis A. Frank, A. J. Krug, Adolph Powell and others were ordered from the convention floor by the police at the pleasure of Ochs.

Constitution Committee

The committee appointed to draw up and by-laws for the A. E. A. was composed of Judge A. P. Tugwell, J. M. Mosher, Percy W. Wells, Jacob Wells, Charles Pettijohn, Fred J. Herrington and Samuel Bullock.

The following recommendations were adopted by the A. E. A., some of which have been incorporated in the constitution and by-laws:

"The national governing body shall consist of the following officers:"

"President, vice-president and treasurer and a board of directors consisting of one director from each zone herebefore mentioned, who shall be elected from the membership comprising each respective zone. All officers shall be elected annually by the board of directors elected to represent the above mentioned zones."

"The office of general manager shall be a salaried office, and the amount of salary shall be determined by a majority vote of the directors."

"We further recommend at this convention that the directors comprising the temporary organization, which will form a permanent organization for the first year, incorporate in their constitution and by-laws the following articles:

"(2) That the dues of the members of this association shall be twelve dollars ($12) per year per house, six dollars ($6) of the aforesaid twelve dollars ($12) to go toward the support of a national and six dollars ($6) credited to the support of the charter.

"(3) That it shall be the duty of the general manager to select and hire an organizer, who shall be subject to his direction, and in addition to the general manager's salary the national or governing body of this association shall furnish him with all necessary expenses incurred in the proper conduct of his office; and he shall be given all discretionary power in the selection of the amount of help required for the efficient conduct of his office.

"We further recommend, subject to the approval of this convention, the following temporary officers to perfect and establish the American Exhibitors' Association:

"President—Jake Wells, Richmond, Virginia.

"Vice president—Guy Wonders, Baby, Illinois.

"Treasurer—William Fast Jr., Utica, New York."
HERE'S LEE OCHS' SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE

The same being such a dignified and sterling specimen of the oratorical art that the "Herald" reproduces it literally.

"Fellows, dis is nuttin' new—dis is a joke, these boltin' fellows, they mean nuttin' to our league at all. It's a cinch. Am I going to accept it? ... I'd like to see anybody stop me and you've seen Lee Ochs work hard. I've worked hard I'm tired—my wife has fought with me ninety-eight thousand times to stop it, that all I talked about when I get home is the league. I admit, not for my personal reasons, that I've worked hard but I'm going to work harder. Do you know where? I'll tell you. I'll give doz babies that bolted sixty days to come back into dis league—if de don't I'll bet thousands of dollars that I'll have more exhibitors in doz states in MY league den de ever had.

"Dere not playin' wid a baby that can't go out and trim anybody in gettin' members for dis league. When we set out to do somethin' I do it. This is nutting but a fight of exhibitors. Dis has been the dirtiest and rottenist fight of exhibitors and the Moving Picture News which paid their candidates. People, I didn't tell no member of this convention that Varner collected his traveling expenses from tree foins in N' York—one a producer concern, one a distributing concern and a trade paper concern.

"What would you expect if the president of your league accepted money from film corporations? What would you think of that? Listen, just give me a little time. IF I DON'T TRIM THOSE BABIES I'M THROUGH.

"I want to say that two states have stuck in with just two members, Indiana with two and Michigan with one. Let me correct that! I mean Oklahoma state and the State of Michigan. As far as Oklahoma is concerned that state is the last state I was sure ever would go against me first, I don't bring up the past but if anybody had been with Oklahoma but the president and the secretary, not that I hav'n't and always been with Oklahoma and always will be as long as you're good boys.

"Well, listen! I just wish I was acting already. WHEN IT COMES TO EXHIBITORS' PROPOSITION I THINK I KNOW THOSE BABIES WELL. I want to say to you that the exhibitors that have been loyal to me have certainly been loyal but as loyal as they have been I will show my appreciation by displaying my interest to them, and I want to say to you states that are new into dis league that I MYSELF PERSONALLY will do anything in the world for you to help build your organization and make it what it should be and if I can't do it alone you've got the Exhibitors Trade Review to do it for you.

"But when I think of doz trade papers—a baby eight months old we started on a shoe string—we got promises from the league for financial support AND NOTHING DOING. In eight months we got a full grown man and the biggest one in the industry.

"And don't forget, I predict this: BEFORE THE YEAR IS OVER I'M GOING TO PULL SOMETHING ELSE FOR YOU AND BELIEVE ME IT IS SOMETHING GOOD, AND WHEN I PULL IT, THEM BABIES THAT BOLTED WILL GET THEIRS. Take it from me all I want you to do is give me a bunch of good officers and if I don't start things going soon, then I'm all in.

"I don't know who to begin to thank you (applause) but rest assured I will do the right thing for you and I want to make a statement that next year I'll not be a candidate for president. I'LL NOT BE BECAUSE I DON'T THINK IT IS NECESSARY. I'm going to come to the next convention wherever it is going to be and if I don't give you the biggest convention that you ever thought of you can take me and dump me in the—what the name of river in Boston?—oh yes, the Charles River and say, fare thee well."

AND HERE IS THE RESPONSE FROM PETTIJOHN OF INDIANA

"Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Convention:

"My Brother Delegate from Indiana, Mr. Ray Andrews, and myself are very tired, and we desire to go to our hotel for a much needed rest. When we retire we ask that our leaving be not misunderstood.

"Indiana has tried to be fair in this convention and we have striven hard to avoid a split.

"Before leaving, it is my personal desire to pay my respects to our new president. I want to congratulate our newly elected President for the dignified manner in which he has presided over this convention, and I want to especially compliment him upon the dignified speech he has just delivered. I want to more especially compliment him upon his dignified choice of language and especially his epigram in which he referred to my fellow-delegates from Indiana as 'them babies.' I am certain that most of his remarks about us are justified, else he would not have made them.

"I am still here as a delegate to this convention and I believe that it is as much my privilege to fly around the electric chandeliers of this hall and kiss myself on the back of my neck, as it was the privilege of the preceding speaker.

"And so in retiring let it be understood that I have taken this opportunity to pay my sincere respects to our president for the ensuing year.

"Mr. President and Gentlemen, Indiana bids you good-night."
NATIONAL ASSOCIATION ELECTS DIRECTORS
IN CHICAGO SESSION; INTERRUPTED BY ROW

Body Adjourns to Aid Warring Exhibitors Make Peace; Brady to Call Meeting in New York; Plan
Fight on Film Dupers

The National Association of the Motion Picture Industry met at the Princess Theater, Chicago, at 11 o’clock Wednesday morning, July 18, and elected directors for the ensuing year. The headquarters of the association were at the Congress Hotel from which point the various heads of the big concerns watched with interest the progress of the convention being held at the Coliseum, and the formation of the new American Exhibitors Association.

Directors Elected

The following board of directors was elected: William A. Brady, World Film Corporation; D. W. Griffith; William L. Sherrill, Frohman Amusement Corporation; Adolph Zukor, Famous Players-Lasky Corporation; Carl Laemmle, Universal Film Manufacturing Company; Donald J. Bell, Bell & Howell Company; J. E. Brulatour, Eastman Films; J. H. Hallberg, Motion Picture Equipment; Walter J. Moore, H. C. Miner Lithograph Company; J. F. Sherrott, Nicholas Power Company; Arthur S. Friend, Paramount Pictures Corporation; W. W. Irwin, Vitagraph; J. A. Berst, Pathe Exchanges; P. A. Powers, Universal Film Manufacturing Company; Richard A. Rowland, Metro Pictures Corporation; Arthur James, Metro; William A. Johnston, M. P. News; Joseph F. Lee, state rights buyer; Thomas G. Wiley, and Paul Gulick.

Following the election of the directors a motion to increase the number of directors was tabled after considerable discussion. This matter will be taken up again at a later meeting in New York.

To Fight Film Duping

Another important question before the body was the marked increase in the unlawful practice of duplicating films by a number of persons who are disposing of these “dupes” to small exchanges and flooding the European and South American markets. The National Association proposes to take the matter up with the authorities at Washington.

At this point of the business meeting, an interruption occurred, when Frank J. Reubenbush announced that there was serious trouble in the ranks of the exhibitors and asked the association to intercede and affect a reconciliation if possible between the warring factions. A committee of five delegates was sent to the Hotel Missouri to confer with the exhibitors there assembled, and the association meeting adjourned to meet at the call of the president in New York. It is proposed to hold meetings quarterly hereafter.

ESSANAY PLAYERS IN BIG WATER CARNIVAL
DURING CONVENTION

With a big afternoon carnival on the lake shore, in which more than 100 pretty Essanay actresses did “mermaid” stunts, a packed house at the Coliseum in the evening, and a banquet for exhibitors following, K-F-S-E day at the Chicago convention proved one of the most memorable events of the exhibitors’ gathering.

The water fest was held at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, the proceeds by special request of George K. Spoor, president of Essanay, going to swell the Navy League fund. Bryant Washburn, Marguerite Clayton, Taylor Holmes and Virginia Valli, Essanay stars, were introduced to the crowd on the beach, and the marine band of the naval training station at Lake Bluff swung down the beach playing martial strains with the bathing girls two abreast behind them. Following the review program of aquatic sports, including tub races, diving and swimming races and others, was carried out.

The winners of the prizes, including Virginia Valli, Thelma Blossom, Evelyn Napier, Helen Jackson and Louise Long, were introduced to the crowd at the Coliseum that evening, in their bathing suits.

“REBECCA OF SUNNYBROOK FARM,” NEXT FILM WITH MARY PICKFORD, CALLED HER BEST ON

Mary Pickford’s presentation of “The Poor Little Rich Girl” will live long in the hearts of the many thousands who have seen it, but her newest picture, “Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm,” according to an Artistic executive, will be even greater.

Under the direction of Marshall Neilan, the capable young Lasky producer who has attracted wide attention for his artistic achievements under that trademark, the new M. Pickford vehicle is now rapidly nearing completion at the west coast studios.

Supporting Mary Pickford in the latest photoplay are Eugene O’Ree, Helen Jerome Eddy, Charles Ogle, Marjorie Daw, Mayme Kelso, Jack Wolff, Josephine Crowell, Jack McDonald, Violet Wilkey, Frank Keller, Kate Toncray and Emma Geri.

EMININE STARS THROW LAST KISSES AMIDST BURST OF MUSIC AS CHICAGO EXPO CLOSES

The seventh annual Motion Picture exposition, held at the Coliseum, Chicago, ended with a final burst of music and shouting Sunday night, July 22, when the last star had bowed his way to the gang plank and the last feminine screen beauty had thrown her last kiss.

In numbers the last day equalled that which preceded it in attendance, and by the same token was a more satisfying day for the "fans" who braved the heat of the place to upon the many celebrities offered for their approval, as a greater number were on hand than any day during the exposition.

Many Stars Not Present

The fact that many of the advertised stars did not appear at all was but a disappointment to not a few who attended. During the early stages there was a marked parity of screen celebrities, and as the Chicago critic put it, "it was the Hamlet, with Hamlet left out."

It is estimated that 125,000 persons entered the exposition, and while there was $10,000 less floor space sold this year than last, the management deducted a fair profit. The Boston theatre Chicago, sold 30,000 tickets in one day at 5 cents apiece, the week previous to the big show.

Little Mae Marsh opened the exposition on "Goldwyn Day"—July 14—and throughout the week there was a steady stream of people passing in and out of the Coliseum. Sunday, July 15, was "Fathe Day," when Mae White and Sheldon Lewis appeared.

Lillian Walker appeared both afternoon and night on Monday, and there greeted the smiling star with cheers. Xell Craig, Anita King, Mae Murray and others were in the Coliseum Monday.

Violet Mersereau Present

"Bluebird Day," which was Tuesday, ushered in Violet Mersereau, Lee Moran, Eddy Lyons and other Universal luminaries, including Carl Laemmle.

Wednesday, "World Day," was another day of surprises bringing as it did Alice Brady, June Elvidge and Carlyle Blackwell. This was one of the biggest days of the week, and it was found necessary to close the doors at 8:30, the crush became so great.

On Thursday, which was "K-E-S-E Night," Bryant Washburn, Hazel Dale, Shirley Mason, little Mary McAllister, Helen Ferguson, Taylor Holmes, Rodney La Rock, Marguerite Clayton and Raymond McNee were present. Norma Talmadge, Rosemary Thayer, Francis A. Bushman, Beverly Bayne, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, Edith Storey and Fanne Ward were amongst the stars who appeared the latter part of the week.

MOSS STARTS WORK ON COSMO HAMILTON TALE. "SINS OF THE CHILDREN"

B. S. Moss announces that production of the screen version of Cosmo Hamilton's "The Sins of the Children" will begin soon, following the completion of the scenario this week by Anthony P. Kelly.

"The story by Mr. Hamilton," said Mr. Moss, "makes an admirable vehicle for screen production, and the sensational elements of the story have been worked up to a high pitch."

HOW OCHS PUT OVER THE ELECTION GRAB

Lee A. Ochs' official organ in the current issue states that Mr. Ochs was elected by a vote of 178 to 59. This is an incorrect statement, although probably made deliberately with a view of trying to establish the fact of a bona fide election. There were no votes against Mr. Ochs, as all the delegates opposing Mr. Ochs, having found that their rights were being violated, had withdrawn from the convention floor before the vote was taken. Mr. Ochs' organ also states that "six states representing 59 votes bolted the annual convention." In reality, the delegates who left the convention represented twenty-seven states, casting a vote of approximately seventy-two. In addition to this, immediately following the "bolt," two other state delegations joined, adding their strength to the new American Exhibitors Association. Another fact of great importance is that Mr. Ochs had the various state delegations friendly to him largely "padded" as to their voting strength. For instance, the Illinois delegation was allowed twenty-five votes. According to the constitution of the league this would be based on a membership of three hundred and seventy-five, or the legal one vote to each twenty-five of membership. Actually, the Illinois membership in the league does not number one-quarter of three hundred and seventy-five. In the case of several of the state delegations which were known to be unfriendly to Mr. Ochs they were not permitted to register the number of votes to which they were legally entitled. These various irregularities were contributing causes to the "bolt."
AMERICAN EXHIBITORS ASSOCIATION WILL SEEK FEE FOR ADS USED IN PLAYS ON SCREEN

Any Mercantile or Business Enterprise Getting Mention or Picturization of Products Will Have to Pay; Money Will Go Into Exchequer

The new American Exhibitors Association already has plans under way for the formation of a body within the organization for the purpose of collecting a fee from any mercantile or other business enterprise which is mentioned in any way in the pictures flashed on the screens of A. E. A. members' theaters.

According to plans of Fred J. Herrington, which have been prepared and ratified by the new organization, every business concern will have to arrange to pay a fee for mention or picturization of its products on the screens of A. E. A. exhibitors. The monies collected will go to swell the funds of the American Exhibitors Association exchequer.

To Protect Exhibitors

Mr. Herrington declares that this plan will be carried out to protect exhibitors, who for many years have innocently projected pictures of dramatic and comic character in which telegrams, fire and burglar-proof safes, fashion revues and many other forms of advertising have appeared.

It is likely that the producers will be consulted soon relative to securing agreements by which the exhibitors of the A. E. A. will profit by this form of advertising, which heretofore has not been touched upon by any other organization.

In outlining the plans of the advertising proposition, Mr. Herrington pointed out two instances where two respective producers, for certain lengths of time used Western Union telegraph forms, from which thousands of persons have read material of vital importance to the continuity of the plots of different film dramas, as well as comedies.

Cites Proof Instances

"In each instance," says Herrington, "the producers and business differences with the Western Union Telegraph Company, and for several months in each instance, until the troubles were adjusted, the producers used fictitious company titles on the telegraph blanks flashed on the screen.

"I know of other agreements between advertisers and producers where some very important advertising propositions exist. If the producer flashed these on his own screen it would be perfectly proper, but when he uses the screens of A. E. A. exhibitors in the future either the producer of the pictures or the advertiser must pay for the service.

Receipts Go to Treasury

"This is really a service. Exhibitors pay the exchanges for their films—in fact, the exhibitor pays a very good price for everything he gets, and therefore the strong men of the A. E. A. must see that the exhibitor gets what is coming to him. All receipts will go into the treasury and be used to maintain the organization. No producer will have a voice on matters that concern exhibitors in this independent organization. The manufacturer, therefore, will have to serve our members with good pictures—and at all times the producers will find the A. E. A. a strictly business organization for the bona fide theater owner, and the producers be accorded heartiest support and cooperation."
RED J. HERRINGTON TELLS LEAGUE HISTORY FROM HIS ELECTION TO COMING OF OCHS

ays He Cleared League of Debts and Got Biggest Membership Up to Time He Left Office; Charges Present Incumbent with Neglect

Fred J. Herrington, former M. P. L. president and organizer, and present Pennsylvania representative of the American Exhibitors Association, declared this week that when he turned the presidential office over to Leo A. Ochs, there was $6,000 in the treasury and the league's debts were entirely paid.

Tells of Conditions

In outlining the history of the organization from the time he took office as president, Mr. Herrington said that he assumed the presidency when the organization was $4,000 in debt, and that there were only 150 members on the rolls. These members, he stated, were scattered over the states of Oklahoma, Michigan, Pennsylvania and California.

“I brought into the league five additional states, namely Minnesota, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and New York, a short time after I took office,” observed Mr. Herrington.

“However, when I turned the office over to Ochs I had managed to bring in twelve states all together with a membership of 4,000—the largest the league ever had.

“If Ochs had continued the work from the point where I left off instead of starting a trade paper and extending to other interests which did not aid the old league, I doubt there would have been a split in the ranks of the exhibitors.”

A. E. A. has Big Future

“During the coming year I predict a great future for the American Exhibitors Association, and I think that it will be the greatest organization ever conceived for the aid and betterment of business and general conditions for exhibitors throughout the country. Already we have the cream of the biggest and best men in the exhibition business, and the business benefits which the new organization offers should attract the others like flies.”

Toronto, Ont.—The operators request for an increase in wages has been satisfactorily settled, both parties having conceded certain points.

J. STUART BLACKTON LEAVES VITAGRAPH TO PRODUCE INDEPENDENTLY FOR PARAMOUNT

Another significant change in motion picture producing circles became known this week, when Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, announced that arrangements have been completed whereby J. Stuart Blackton, former vice president of Vitagraph, will become an independent producer for the Paramount Pictures Corporation. While retaining his financial interest in Vitagraph, Mr. Blackton ceases all active connection with the concern and will form his own organization for the purpose of producing the new pictures, which are to be known as the J. Stuart, Blackton Series of Photoplays. There are to be four productions during the first year, all to be equal in power and scope to “The Battle Cry of Peace,” which won Mr. Blackton an international reputation as a director and producer.

Active work upon production is to be begun at once, and the first picture is to be issued about October 1. The remaining photoplays are to be ready for distribution at intervals of two or three months.

PICKFORD FILM WINS IN CHICAGO OVER FUNKHOUSER

After a battle of weeks following the refusal of Major M. C. L. Funkhouser, Chicago's motion picture censor, to issue a permit for its exhibition, “The Little American” featuring Mary Pickford, has been granted a showing.

The permit, however, was only secured after the major and Assistant Corporation Counsel Ayers had failed in an attempt to have Judge Denis E. Sullivan, of the superior court, set aside a ruling from Judge Sabath's court. Judge Sullivan said he was not inclined to reverse the finding of a concurrent court.

The decision placed Chief Schuttler in the position of being in contempt of court had he refused to issue a license and the permit was issued on Saturday, July 21.
METHODS DISRUPT LEAGUE

Jacob Wells of Virginia then arose and asked why delegates who had spent their money to come to the convention could not get fair treatment. He was for the uplift of the organization, he said, and did not believe anybody who was not a theater owner should be there. Managers of theaters or men connected with other parts of the industry should have no part, he stoutly maintained.

Jacob Wells Worries Ochs

Mr. Wells said the convention showed a wrong spirit by fighting individuals; that they only wanted half a chance, and that delegates were entitled to that. "You don't control the men," Mr. Wells, who owns a string of theaters throughout Virginia: "you are not the majority representing the screen today. My God, gentlemen, what are you here for?"

A worried look had spread over Ochs' face. He turned to Mr. Wells for his sterling character and said he did not like the spirit that was being shown. He added that if thebolting states came back and had the majority he would stand by them. He said he would not stand for outsiders coming there and running the convention, however;

"it is very evident I have been misunderstood," said Mr. Wells, addressing the chair again. "If you are going to assume the tactics of three or four men who got up and addressed the meeting about the star-spangled banner, those men and the trouble with your organization: there is the damnable situation of one man wanting to sit down on another. I am for harmony and want to see this organization succeed."

He then mapped out a plan of dividing up into zones and other methods of conducting the organization, and asked them to get together, organize and have money in the treasury. He asked Mr. Ochs if he still had a certain regard for the men out of the convention, to which Ochs replied he had for some of them.

Calls Holdouts Cattle

A. B. Momm of Oklahoma pointed out that the twenty-two states on the convention floor did not represent the majority and that the men assembled at the Morrison Hotel had left because they had no chance on the floor, because they believed "steam roller" methods were being used.

It was then that H. Charles Hespé threw the convention into a bedlam by calling the delegates who had remained away a lot of cattle and said he didn't wish to associate with them.

Jacob Wells sprang to his feet at this and crossed the floor to where Mr. Hespé stood and demanded an apology. Mr. Levine of New York moved that Ochs apologize for Mr. Hespé's action. The chairman apologized. Mr. Wells then left the hall.

Stop Bolt, Jepp's Plea

Peter Jepp of Michigan, treasurer, declared they could not afford to let the men bolt; that it would be disastrous to have a split in the organization. Mr. Levine then recommended that a committee be appointed to confer with the delegates at the Morrison Hotel and plead with them to come back for the welfare of the league.

H. J. Brown of Idaho said he had come 2000 miles, and wanted to know why he couldn't get the floor. He asked: "Are you exhibitors or politicians here? You don't get men into an organization by fighting."

Mr. Eagers of Nebraska was in favor of arbitration, and a committee was appointed to meet with a committee of delegates at the Morrison Hotel.

In the parlance of the motion picture studio, at this point the atmosphere of the convention hall became static and there were ominous rumblings in the neighborhood of the Morrison Hotel.

While waiting for the arbitration committee to return, William A. Brady, president of the N. A. M. P. I., addressed the convention, as did W. W. Irwin of the Vitagraph Company and several other heads of the big film firms.

The arbitration committee filed in with its report. Lee Ochs paced nervously back and forth. The committee read its report, an amendment was suggested and adopted, and it looked as though peace and harmony was about to settle down upon the convention.

Calm Before Storm

However, it was but the calm before the storm. The evening session brought all kinds of trouble. There was no quorum present, and the strong-arm men at the door were examining everybody trying to gain admittance.

Finally it was agreed to let any bona fide exhibitor enter the hall who cared to listen to the proceedings, providing he kept in the rear. This admitted the delegates who had been termed "boleterm" and the convention again got down to business.

Despite the tentative agreement of the afternoon to the effect that Ochs would not be a candidate for re-election, he was nominated by one of his henchmen from New York, and Peter Schaefer of Chicago seconded the nomination.

There being no other nominations for the office of president, a vote was taken and Lee Ochs was declared elected. Mr. Ochs smiled confidently.

At this point Jacob Wells of Virginia arose and asked Mr. Ochs if he intended to accept the presidency under the circumstances. It was a very embarrassing question, and Mr. Ochs was plainly ill at ease. "I am not in favor." he replied.

At this point half of the delegates seated in the hall arose and quietly passed out. They were followed by hussies from the remaining crowd.

The balance of the officers were then elected for the ensuing year.

AD FILM MEN'S COMMITTEE HOLDS CHICAGO SESSION

The executive committee of the Advertising Film Producers' Association of the World held an interesting session on Tuesday, July 17, at the Rothecker studios, Chicago, at which they mapped out ways and means for the broad extension of the organization.

During the meeting motion pictures were made of the members present, which will be combined with another set taken at the advertising convention at St. Louis. These will be shown throughout the country under the auspices of the Advertising Film Producers' Association at ad clubs.

The next meeting of the association has been called for August 24, 1917, which will also be held at the Rothecker studios, Chicago, and at which time all of the members of the association will be present.

Those present at the Chicago session of the executive committee were W. A. Harris, president, of Cincinnati; W. R. Rothecker, vice president, Chicago; R. V. Stambaugh, secretary, Cleveland; Fred C. Laffin, treasurer, Chicago; Joseph Brand, committeeman, New York; Herbert Andrews, committeeman, Washington, D. C.

GOLD KING SCREEN SCORES AT EXPO FILM EXHIBITION

A feature of the M. P. E. L. Exposition at the Coliseum, Chicago, last week which attracted thousands of film "fans" that attended was the first motion picture show given in the Annex.

These exhibitions, while given under the most unfavorable conditions especially during the afternoon sessions, when the place was flooded with daylight, were greatly appreciated by the crowds.

A Gold King screen was used, and the pictures were particularly distinct. The subtitles and inserts came up very clear and sharp and could be read from any part of the Annex.

Many exhibitors, anxious to improve their projection, left the room after viewing the free show determined to investigate the merits of the Gold King screen.
High-Lights of the Annual Trade Round-Up

"It ill becomes the followers of the president of the M. P. League to call A. E. A. members 'cattle'" marked Judge Tugwell, "when they are led by an Ochs' (ox)."

At times the convention hall sounded like a young boiler factory, especially when Lee Ochs took the gavel.

That New York minister introduced by William A. Brady had a touch of "pep." He explained it by saying you couldn't remain in New York unless you were "briefly interesting." He certainly as both.

June Elvidge, Alice Brady and her screen luminaries looked in on the convention Brady day—wednesday.

There was a regular stampede the back of Convention Hall when Joe Hopp was given a box of cigarettes to pass out to the delegates.

Alfred Hamburger listened attentively to the report of the usic tax committee and then asked for some information. But was somewhat surprised when he was informed that he was a member of the committee.

To Jake Wells of Virginia must the credit for righting a great wrong on the convention floor. He "steam roller" had just got started when he insisted on a lowdown.

That Boston crowd kept everybody in good humor.

John M. Casey, who is the official censor of Boston, Mass., being chief of the license division of the mayor's office, was deeply interested in the Chicago brand of censorship. He couldn't understand Major Funkhouser's stand in "The Little American" film.

The president's message to the exhibitors read more like an advertisement for a trade journal than anything else. He informed his followers that they now had 200 subscribers. This is according to L. A. O. or W. S. B. audits did not A. B. C.

There was a run on the ice sphere pitcher Wednesday morning. "The cold, gray dawn of the evening after..."

While William A. Brady was addressing the convention upstairs his daughter Alice was delivering a few words of welcome to the "fans" on the exposition floor.

The signs reading "We are for Lee Ochs" were brought in, but were not needed. The "steam roller" had proven more effective.

Zowie! How Bill Brady did pound that old table with that bung starter!

The Boston delegation burst into song every little while about being a thousand miles away, and they would see the fellows there in 1918.

Those few remarks of Jake Wells thrilled everybody who heard them, including the press, and he got a good hand. He put the quietus on the spread-eagle speeches of the Illinois delegation's members who were bobbing up every few minutes.

Charles Pettijohn of Indiana was the one best bet in the speechmaking line. He silenced the gentleman from Minnesota, also the gentleman from Mississippi, as well as that New York delegation.

For making a few remarks and expressing his opinion of the New York delegation, a trade paper editor was put off the convention floor early in the proceedings.

The Boston delegates were excused on Thursday afternoon to attend a game of ball at Comisky Park.

Sam Bullock, of Cleveland, O., the "fire eating" delegate and A. E. A. member, is the author of a stirring war song entitled, "When Pershing Leads the Boys Across the Water." It is played daily in one of his theaters.

L. W. Brophy, of Muskogee, Okla., is known as the "cowpuncher exhibitor." Therefore he refused to let Lee Ochs "bulldog" him into submission.

"Pete" Jeup of Detroit wanted the next convention in his city and tried to "boost" for Detroit single handed against a crowd from Boston. Well, Pete got his wish—the A. E. A. meets there next year.

Sam Trigger lived up to his name on the convention floor. He was as quick on the "trigger" as "Bill" Hart ever dared to be, much to Lee Ochs' discomfiture.

"Them Babies" became a common expression around the "loop" during convention week in Chicago. Lee Ochs' masterpiece will not soon be forgotten among the exhibitors.

L. H. O'Donnell, the irrepressible Hoosier, from Washington (Ind.), batted in the pinches for the A. E. A., and gorged himself after each battle with chicken dinners. L. H. was one of the silent partners to Pettijohn and Rembusch, not to mention Parcy W. Wells.

Percy W. Wells declared: "The South is in the saddle, and we're here for battle." Percy gave Ochs the scourching of his young life before the conventionites, and they couldn't put Percy off the floor. He also lunched on chicken elbow to elbow with Hoosier O'Donnell.

Frank J. Rembusch of Shelbyville, Ind., upon leaving the convention hall at 2 o'clock Wednesday day said: "We are protesting against the high-handed, steam-roller methods of Ochs." And when he returned that evening he was met by five burly cops on the door.

"You'll notice that Indiana voted ten not to adopt the Trade Review as the official organ of this League," said Charles Pettijohn, when asked by "Dark Horse" Joe Hopp, why he didn't vote for the Indiana delegates not present.

"I wish, for the sake of peace and harmony, that Lee Ochs would resign inside of two months," said Joseph Hopp to a "Herald" man on Thursday, at the close of the convention! Mr. Hopp was made first vice-president at Wednesday night's stormy session.)
FROHMAN WINS N. Y. COURT BATTLE FROM FAMOUS PLAYERS OVER RIGHTS TO PLAY

Judge Grants Injunction Restraining Lasky Corporation from Producing in Films W. S. Maugham’s “Land of Promise”; Decision Seen as Important

A decision was handed down this week by Judge Hendrick in an action instituted in the Supreme Court, New York county, by Charles Frohman, Inc., against William Somerset Maugham and Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, in which the court granted an injunction restraining the defendants from producing in motion pictures Mr. Maugham’s play “The Land of Promise.”

The right to produce this play in America, Canada and England has been acquired by Charles Frohman. The contract did not, however, in terms expressly give Charles Frohman the moving picture right. The court’s decision is of interest to theatrical managers because it lays down the rule that a theatrical manager who has acquired the rights of production of a play is entitled to restrain the author or any other person from producing the same play in motion pictures.

This decision is of importance because it affects many similar cases and protects the rights of theatrical managers in plays which they have developed into valuable theatrical properties.

INCE WILL PRODUCE FOUR FILMS YEARLY TO BE PUBLISHED THROUGH ARTCRAFT

These Plays Will Be in Addition to Hart-Artcraft and Paramount Features; Activities Already Commenced at Coast Studio

Thomas H. Ince, through the Artcraft Pictures Corporation, announces that he will personally produce from two to four special productions during the coming year for Artcraft. These films will be issued through Artcraft in addition to the Hart-Artcraft pictures and the photoplays he will issue through Paramount. A telegram from Mr. Ince received by Walter E. Greene of Artcraft states that these specials will be similar to Billie Burke in “Peggy” and “Civilization,” and will offer pretentious films with unusual themes.

Activities in connection with the production of the initial Ince-Hart offering to be published through Artcraft have already been started at the West Coast studio. The supporting cast is practically complete and the script by C. Gardner Sullivan is ready for screening. Work on the sets is progressing rapidly and it is expected that the actual filming of the picture will be well under way by the middle of next week.

BENJAMIN CHAPIN EXPLAINS MAIL PLAN TO GET “LINCOLN CYCLE” FILMS TO TRADE

President of Charter Features Corporation Conducts Successful Advertising Campaign by Letters Familiarizing Exhibitors and Exchanges with Product

Benjamin Chapin, president of the Charter Features Corporation, and star of their “Call to Arms” and other Lincoln Cycle pictures, is believer in most painstaking care and absolute thoroughness in every branch of the process of making and marketing a motion picture.

Unbroken Ad Campaign

As a result, he speculates on the production of the “Lincoln Cycle”; for this reason, also, he has conducted an unbroken advertising campaign for many months, in this way familiarizing exhibitors, exchanges and public as well as the state right buyers, with every detail of the material he has to offer them.

Then came the trade showings, the successful run at the New York Strand Theater, followed by more than two hundred performances at the Globe Theater. The criticisms of the trade journals were laudatory.

Praise comes with much better grace from Harriet Underhill of the “Tribune,” Brock Pemberton of the “Times” and “Zito” of the "Journal" than it does from the office of the Charter Features Corporation.

The trade has been made familiar with the details of the pictures, and an impartial judgment has spoken regarding their quality," says Mr. Chapin.

Wrote Letters to Trade

"Next came the most important part of the work. We had to get a response from the trade. Personal contact is, of course, the best way of doing that, but we cannot go personally to twenty-five thousand motion picture people in the United States and Canada; so we did the next best thing: We wrote to each and every man whom we considered big enough to appreciate the value of what we had to offer and whom we might reasonably expect to be interested in our pictures. We wrote to each exhibitor of importance, to know if he wanted our pictures, and how much he would pay for them. There were scores of requests for rental of the "Lincoln Cycle," and the demand is increasing daily."

STANDARD FILM WILL ISSUE A HOUSE ORGAN

R. C. Cropper, president of the Standard Film Corporation, distributors of Art Dramas and the Billy West comedies in the Middle West announces this week that, in response to numerous requests received from exhibitors, the organization will issue a monthly house organ. The name of this publication will be "Theatre" and its object will be to help the exhibitor to do a bigger business with Art Dramas and with the Billy West comedies.

MAE MURRAY WILL STAR IN BLUEBIRD FEATURES; QITS LASKY WITH DIRECTOR

Exhibitors of Bluebird photoplays will be interested in the announcement that Mae Murray, more recently a star in Lasky features, has been engaged to star in Bluebirds with Robert Leonard her producing director. The deal was closed at the New York headquarters of Bluebird late Saturday afternoon, July 14, and after having spent a few days at the Chicago convention. Miss Murray and Mr. Leonard departed for the West Coast.

Immediately upon arriving in Los Angeles a decision will be reached concerning the first feature Miss Murray will present and Mr. Leonard will at once begin the work of production. This engagement marks Mr. Leonard’s return to Bluebird’s directing staff. When the program was in its early stages he directed Ella Hall in several features, leaving Bluebird a few months ago to join the Lasky forces as Miss Murray’s director.

Miss Murray’s presentations of “A Mormon Maid,” “Sweet Kitty Bel-lairs” and “At First Sight” were directed by Mr. Leonard. Among other features in which Miss Murray has starred are “The Primrose King” and “To Have and to Hold.” In these presentations Miss Murray has become established as a screen favorite.

ZAMBERNO OFFERS ILLINOIS EXHIBITORS THREE NEW FEATURES

Following a recent announcement to the trade that he would offer some new productions which he recently secured in New York, Frank Zam-berno, of the Unity Photoplays Company, of Chicago, states this week that “Her Surrender,” “Two Men and a Woman” and “Babbling Tong-ties” will be issued next to Illinois exhibitors.

Each of these productions, which were made by Ivan, will be given extended runs at a prominent Chi-cago “loop” theater before they are offered state-wide.

Mr. Zamberno states that each production is highly dramatic, and the leading roles have been intrusted to stellar stars.

BRENNON USES EXPERTS TO AID PERFECTION OF REALISTIC DETAILS IN "ROMANOFF" FILM

Strives to Make Picture Historically Correct for Successful Presentation to Russian Republic; Play Shows Every Phase of Life and Intrigues

Herbert Brenon is leaving no stone unturned to make his forthcoming production, "The Fall of the Romanoffs," true to the spirit and atmosphere of Russia. He is making every effort to have the picture correct in every detail. Not only is he anxious to make it a success from the point of view of an entertainment, but he wishes to make it a strong and important factor in spreading the facts and conditions which led up to and caused the Russian revolution.

Seeks Perfect Film

Mr. Brenon wants "The Fall of the Romanoffs" not only to be of historical value in this country and throughout the world, but especially in Russia. The Russian people have been kept in comparative ignorance of the intrigue and plots of the Russian court and they are just beginning to realize how they have been hoodwinked and misgoverned.

Realizing that inattention to detail and failure to observe the habits of Russian daily life with which every Russian is familiar would practically kill the picture from a historical angle in Russia, and would therefore be practically useless to the Russian people, Mr. Brenon is taking great pains to follow every detail closely.

Russ Experts Called

Russian experts have been called in to supervise all scenes in which a slight deviation from the correct would mean ruination, such as religious ceremonies and gatherings of state, or in any scenes in which customs distinctly Russian are brought into use. Costumes and uniforms are being copied minutely by those well versed in the wearing apparel of the Russians. The czar's robe of state, trimmed with yards of ermine and silk, has been copied minutely from the original, so have his orb, his scepter and his crown.

The cast, too, has been chosen with equal care and discrimination. From Nance O'Neil, who plays the part of the czarina, down to little Cyril Brenon, who will be the little czarovitch.

BRYANT WASHBURN IN "SKINNER'S BABY," AND "OPEN PLACES" ESSANAY'S AUGUST FEATURES

Sequel to "Skinner" Series Will Be Published the 6th, to Be Followed by Mounted Police Romance on August 20

Essanay is putting out two big features during the month of August, as well as seven two-part subjects. These pictures, which are said to have been especially constructed for hot-weather programs, are being published through the K-E-S-E service.

Mounted Police Romance

The second of Essanay's feature films for this month will be "Open Places." This dramatic picturization of a Canadian mounted police romance, is the third of the Western series, featuring Jack Gardner, the former musical comedy star. It is scheduled for publication August 20. The story is based on the struggle of a member of the mounted police to overcome his love for a woman and arrest her renegade hus-band, wanted for murder. The picture was staged in the Canadian Rockies, and abounds in beautiful mountain scenery, it is said. Ruth King is Mr. Gardner's leading woman, with Carl Stockdale in the heavy lead.

Four sub-titles of the "Do Children Count?" series are being issued, one every Wednesday. These pictures feature little Mary McAlister, Essanay's child star. They are planned for a screen time, approximately, of twenty-five minutes.

August Units Named

The units scheduled for August are "The Season of Childhood," "The Little White Girl," "The Bridge of Fancy," and "The Kingdom of Hope." K-E-S-E is handling the films.

The schedule is completed by three Black Cat features which are being published the first three Saturdays of the month: "Vernon, the Bountiful," featuring Virginia Valli for August 4, is a comedy-drama of approximately twenty-six minutes screen time "The Long Green Trail," a picture based on a kidnapping plot, will be issued the following Saturday. It has been screened for twenty-five minutes. "Don't Lose Your Coat," the third Black Cat feature for August 18, is a comedy-drama with a screen time of twenty-six minutes. These seven are being published through General Film.

Helen Ware in “THE GARDEN OF ALLAH”
Selig drama; nine parts; published state rights

As a whole: Magnificent Story: Intensely thrilling love tale
Star: Excellent
Support: Wonderful Settings: Realistic
Photography: Clear throughout

Just as the Lieder stage production of several years ago held as the finest thing ever attempted on any stage, so the Selig screen version of “The Garden of Allah” stands out above many of the other so-called spectacles.

Robert Hichens’ romance of the Sahara desert lends itself admirably to motion pictures and many of the effects which it was impracticable to reproduce upon the stage have been screened in all their vivid colorings and settings.

Never in the history of motion pictures has a more vivid sandstorm been reproduced, while the white heat of the tropic noon, the caravans of Arabs, turbaned and swarthy looking individuals that make one shudder, the wild dances and activities of Egyptian cities, beautiful gardens and above all the majesty of the solemn desert—the garden of Allah—grabs and holds a person enthralled.

Helen Ware, as Domini Enfilden, the girl whose fate is written in the sand, plays with sincerity and conviction a trying role. She is ably supported by Thomas Santschi, who makes a wonderfully realistic Boris, and by James Bradbury, the Sand Diviner; Matt B. Snyder, as Count Androvsky; Will Machin, as Captain De Trevignae; Harry Ousdale, as Father Roubier, and Al W. Filson as Lord Rens.

The story: Domini Enfilden, seeking solitude and forgettingness after her mother has run away from home and the death of her father, journeys to Beni-Mora, at the edge of the Sahara desert. There she meets and falls in love with Boris Androvsky, a renegade monk, who has renounced his vows after twenty years in a monastery.

While they were being married a terrific sandstorm swept over the city, but notwithstanding this Boris and Domini start out on their honeymoon across the desert. While camping among the sand dunes they meet Captain De Trevignae, who recognizes Boris. It is then the latter realizes that he must confess his past to Domini. He does so and she, though her soul is tortured by misgivings, gives him up and he returns once more to the monastery and his Trappist garb forever.

“The Pride and the Man” is a very enjoyable story. William Russell is well cast in a particularly powerful drama, which should prove an excellent attraction. The story concerns a prize fighter who falls in love with a society girl. Some pretty bathing beach scenes and exciting prize fighting scenes are well wrought into the film.

Francella Billington plays opposite Mr. Russell. Clarence Burton and George Fisher also are members of the cast.

The story: Jack Hastings meets Thelma, a society favorite, and they fall in love. They are married, but Thelma’s father will have nothing to do with Hastings, because he is a prize fighter. Hastings quits fighting and goes into the contracting business, at which he is a failure. He becomes indebted to his wife for a large sum of money, and having no other means of paying the debt he fighting one more fight. The story and direction of "The Little Terror" is the work of Rex Ingram. Miss Mersecau's supporting cast consists of Sidney Mason, Ned Finlay, Robert Clugston, Jack Raymond, Mrs. Brandage and Edward Porter.

The elder Saunders never approved the marriage of his son and so at first pays little attention to the lovely girl. But when George Reynolds, who had promised to marry Alice, comes to claim his bride the elder Saunders does all in his power to prevent the marriage. Even if every production offered by the Metro Distributing Corporation is not a subject that can be booked with confidence a Yorke picture, if it carries Harold Lockwood in the leading role, will attract certain patrons. While the story of "The Hidden Spring" is an old one and a story that once was popular, it has been handled in an interesting fashion and Harold Lockwood gives to it that something frequently found lacking in previous offerings of this distributing company.

No doubt exhibitors and their patrons who viewed Mr. Lockwood's production prior to "The Hidden Spring" will be glad to learn that he has selected a new leading lady—a lady with some personality. Vera Siecon offers Mr. Lockwood good support in the role of Thora Erickson.

"The story tells of a young lawyer who goes to a mining town which is ruled by a grafting lawyer. He decides to show the people where they are being cheated out of their rights. In doing so he has to expose the father of the girl he loves. Everything turns out well when the father meets his death in trying to save the life of the young man his daughter loves. Their engagement brings a happy close to the picture."

Do you remember the Nubian in "Cabiria"? You want to see him again? Foolish question. Well you may. See Maciste in "The Warrior." A number of surprises are in store for you. Perhaps the greatest when you discover that Maciste is not an African, but an Italian, and not a very worthy one at that. His tremendous physical strength is again displayed in 7,000 feet of stirring, thrilling and glorious action. Maybe you think this story of the Alpine war is gruesome, but you are wrong. Even when terrific scenes are unrolling Maciste's marvelous power brings much laughter.

It is well that Maciste possesses a genial nature and that his energies are simply directed against his few enemies, for he has the strength "that will move mountains." The picturesque Alps add magnificent scenery. When patrons view the insurmountable cliffs that are scaled with rope and pulley and the chasmsbridged by the same means—the brave men using their well trained bodies and accomplishing the seemingly impossible—theater patrons should learn a deep lesson. There is a subtle message to mankind in the film.

The story is incident, but furnishes plenty of motive for the deeds of valour shown in that Maciste performs with the air of having put two lumps of sugar in tea or some other such trivial happening in a busy day. The exhibitor who books this picture will find it a big money maker.

The story: Italians in Austria are interned and maltreated. Maciste is among them. They are cast into prison. Maciste overcomes the two guards and they escape and seek refuge in an Italian castle on Austrian territory. The count and his nephew feed the starving people. The Austrians arrive and Maciste lures them from the castle, while the nephew, through a secret passage, escorts the refugees to Italian soil. Maciste is boun hand and foot, but succeeds in breaking the ropes and escapes. He is brought before the Italian command and enlisted in the service. Meanwhile the count has been thrown into a dungeon, while his captors hunt for the treasure they suppose to be hidden. The nephew's sweet love embroilers him an Italian flag and blesses it. The Saints are invoked to preserve him and their cause and his life. Godspeed, while she hides from the Austrian Pluffer, one of the guards Maciste had overcome in the first escape, writes him that he is torturing the old count—only waiting to get hold of Maciste. Maciste scales mountains and does other marvelous feats and brings Pluffer and his count to the heights to carrying them both and with as much ease as if he were carrying a suitcase. Finally, after climbing the Alps and plantging the Italy flag on Austrian territory, Maciste returns to the castl just in time to save the sweetheart from attacks by his drunken captors. The Austrians besige the castle, but are attacked from the rear by Maciste and vanquished by him with a blazing flag. The count returns to the castle and the sweetheart overjoyed at the meeting with the count but, remembering something, he exits and returns beaten the wounded nephew on his shoulders. Then the family is reunited and happy. And the girl lovingly caress the flag that she blessed and which brought them to victory. Maciste lives happily ever after with his flag on his shoulders and the count in the other, and smiling holds his precious burden.

Six reels of German comedy! This is entitled, "Alma where Do You Live?" Hal Clarendon directed the film. He play may have been funny, but the screen version fails to amuse. The subtitles are very ordinary—extracts from the play undoubtedly, but absolutely devoid of humor in type. The impossible situations, which both actors and artists did their best to make convincing, cut the intelligence. Two of these should be mentioned. A supposedly connoisseur of pictures views a woman standing in the picture frame and thinks it such a wonderful and natural picture that he offers a big sum for it—and Gaston's sweetheart, although she destroyed a masterpiece, is forgiven this heinous deed when she promises to be his model for life. But there is no cause for elucidation. The picture contains nothing except an interesting dance by the star to lift it out of the rest of productions that make no impression for good or for evil.

The story of a young man who goes through life thinking only of a good time and who is suddenly awakened from his frivolity by the love of a young woman is the message of "Youth." The story is by Roy S. Sensabaugh and the direction by Remarque Fielding.

The settings, supposedly in Tennessee, are beautiful. The photography brings them out well. Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge are interesting. They are supported by Johnny Hines, Muriel Ostriche, Robert Broderick, George Cowl, Victor Kennard, Henrietta Simpson and Henry West.

The story: In order that his son might make good James Goodwin sends him to Tennessee to work on a dam which his company is constructing. Bryan goes down there seeking a good time and plenty to drink. He meets Jean Elliott, the sister of the construction boss, and under her influence he soon makes a man of himself. The exhibitor who operates the family show house and is on the lookout for a picture devoid of lurid melodrama should find "The Sawdust Ring" a wholesome offering.

The production is clean and entertaining. The work of Bessie Love in pigtauls and short dresses is enjoyable. Her charm predominates the feature. Jack Richardson is cast as Bessie's father and the owner of a circus.

The story tells of two children who run away to join a circus. The mother of the little girl is ill and has been sent to a hospital. The father of the little boy is a junk dealer. Both children are anxious to become circus performers. They finally arrive at the circus of Simmons and secure employment. When Bessie falls from a horse Simmons learns that she is his daughter and through her he is able to locate his wife, who had left him years before because of a misunderstanding. There is a happy reunion.

SELIG WORLD LIBRARY

The variation of subjects and the interesting manner in which they have been handled should make this issue of the Selig World Library for publication on the General Film program of especial appeal.

Some of the topics combined in this issue are scenes in New Mexico in a section known as Pueblos, in which are said to be forty-five tribes speaking nine different languages; thrilling scenes of painters on the top of the superstructure of the Brooklyn bridge; interesting views of the Island of Sicily and the famous Washington Elm, under which George Washington assumed command of the American army.

The only thing that is going to help "The Slacker" get by is the topic it deals with. The story and direction have had no consideration and they show it. The theme is a patriotic one and deals with a young man too selfish and cowardly to aid in the defense of his country.

At this time the exhibitor has many opportunities to advertise this film and he should be able to raise response, but if the picture were to stand on its own merits it is easy to predict what the outcome might be.

Emily Stevens, who has won popularity on the speaking stage, is starred and handles her role fairly well. Walter Miller as Robert Wallace, the man who is a slacker, handles his role suitably. Leo Delaney and Sue Ballou are other members of the cast. The story and direction are by W. Christy Cabanne.

Many views of soldiers marching through the streets, a description of the midnight ride of Paul Revere, the signs of peace between the North and South at the close of the Civil War, recruiting stations, warships, beach scenes, a man drowning and his rescue, and Francis Scott Key, who wrote "The Star Spangled Banner," are all combined in the film version of "The Slacker."

Exhibitors should like this fast-moving cinema drama of the Michigan timber country, taken from a Saturday Evening Post story, and featuring Charles Ray. As James Ashe, Jr., whom the lumbermen nickname "Sudden Jim," Charles Ray is seen in an entirely new role and one that fits him admirably.

Sylvia Bremer, as Marie Ducharme, is a charming little school "marm" and Joseph J. Dowling gives a fine portrayal of a rough old country squire, Judge Zanaan Franco.

There is a thrilling fire scene where a gang of toughs blow up and burn a trestle and some well done fistic battles. Audiences at the Covent Garden, Chicago, where it was shown on Sunday, received "Sudden Jim" very enthusiastically.

The story: James Ashe is sent by his father to take charge of the Ashe Clothes Pin Factory. Here he meets all sorts of opposition but manages to extricate himself, re-elect old Judge Franco and drive the corrupt Michael Moran out of town, the latter threatening to close Jim’s factory up by refusing to haul the necessary lumber. At this point Sudden Jim takes a hand by driving the trainload of logs through the fire started by Moran’s men under a high trestle and finally wins the hand of the little school teacher.

PATRICK O’MALLEY, THROUGH GREAT BAREBACK RIDING, MADE MEMBER OF SELIG CO. TO SUPPORT LEW FIELDS

Like his noted namesake, Charles O'Malley, the famous dramatist and rider of fiction, Patrick O'Malley has practically ridden himself into the Selig Polyscope Company through his wonderful bareback riding. He will be prominent in the support of Lew Fields in a forthcoming Selig drama.

O'Malley's skill was gained in the mountains of Pennsylvania, where he was born, at Forest City, September 3, 1890. Through his daredevil spirit at 8 years of age he was doing a slack wire act on the stage. O'Malley is not new to pictures, as his experience covers this country, England and Ireland.

PATRICK O’MALLEY, WHO APPEARS IN SUPPORT OF LEW FIELDS IN A FORTHCOMING SELIG PRODUCTION

O'Malley, senior, was a mine superintendent near Forest City, Pa., and the very first film flashed before the eyes of O'Malley, junior, was of the "stunt" variety. I remembered that he had a friend in New York who was a picture actor. He arrived in New York the day I arrived left for Florida and a picture colony. Pat to up the chase. He arrived at the film producing center just as one of the directors was making a mob scene. I appeared in this scene as a policeman. Pat's was rapid. He went to Europe with the Sid Alcott Phiers in leads, playing in Ireland. Then the war broke out and the government stopped all picture making. O'Malley is known to many as the Chauncey Ockett of the screen.

VM. RUSSELL HAS PRIZE FIGHTER
ROLE IN "PRIDE AND THE MAN" FILM
LEADING MUTUAL PROGRAM JULY

William Russell, in the role of a prize fighter, heads Mutual schedule for the week of July 30 in "Pride and the Man," a five-reel star production from the American studio.

There is staged, merely as part of the love drama, a fight scene which rivals the news films of the big ring. The picture presents wide advertising possibilities, the name of the star has big box office value. The fight scene can be heavily advertised and the romance around which the picture is constructed should be sufficient to make the picture a success.

With "Pride and the Man" Mutual will issue, July 30, the second chapter of "The Great Stanley Secret." This is in eight reels, two four-reel chapters. William Russell and Charlotte Burton play the leading roles. The first chapter, "Lipsy's Trust," was issued July 25; the second installment is under the title "Fate and the Wild." There are two comedies on Mutual's schedule for the week; "Man Proposes," at the La Salle for the week, issued on July 31, and the Cub, "Jerry's Big Stunt," takes the screen August 2. Both are one-reelers. George O'Hara, the comedian, plays the leading role in Jerry's Big Stunt.

Mutual Tours Around the World for July 31 covers, tanken, an Island in the Zuider Zee, the monastery and convent at La Grande Chartreuse, and Majorca, an island of the Mediterranean. This one-reel travel picture shows steadily growing booking, an evidence of a popular demand for short subjects on just this character.

Real Life No. 66, which is issued August 2, covers the following subjects; "Making Machine Guns," "Beads of Joe Petsal," "Saving a Wrecked Steamship," "Keeping a Boys Home," and animated drawings from Life.

Mutual Weekly, the current news reel carrying pictures of happenings of headline consequence, appears August 1.

BEAUTIFUL SUBMARINE PICTURES TAKEN AT MIAMI, FLA., APPEAR
IN GAUMONT REEL FOR AUGUST 9

The beautiful undersea pictures taken at Miami, Fla., by the Gaumont Company by E. B. Gray are to be issued as a section of "Real Life," No. 67, through Mutual August. The pictures were taken from a diving bell and show submarine gardens that is a veritable fairy land. Schools of fish, sponges, coral formations and a diver at work are seen. The pictures are taken by sunlight which seeps down through the water. On the same reel are pictures of a negro baptizing in Fiona with two hundred converts in line; how electricity generated by the heart of the tallest boy in the school, how a grammar school maintains its own fire fight force of pupils, and two animated drawings of a popular character, one from "Life." The second Gaumont single-reel of the week is the Mutual Weekly, giving latest news of warfare both here and abroad. It will appear August 8.

"Tours Around the World," No. 40, for August 7, reviews for a trip down the Senegal River to each West Africa. It is a wonderful series of views from a little known part of the world, including Podor, the test spot on earth; the celebrated Falls of Felou, and eyes, the head of navigation. There are two other sections of this reel, picture of Bruges, Belgium, taken tore the war, and fishing villages of France on the Mediterranean coast.

"DOWN TO EARTH" IS NEXT FAIRBANKS
COMEDY VEHICLE THROUGH ARTCRAFT

The next production to be produced by the Artcraft Pictures Corporation will be a new Douglas Fairbanks comedy, entitled "Down to Earth." The story for this display was written by Fairbanks himself and is said to be replete with typical Fairbanks humor. Under the direction of John Emerson in the new film, there is rapidly nearing completion at the Lasky studio in California, and August 12 is the date announced for its release by Artcraft.

Scenarized by Anita Loos, who has become an important contributing factor to the success of the new Fairbanks organization, the photographic tells of a typical American youth whose wandering ideas and living close to nature are not in accord with the views of life assumed by his sweetheart, an ambitious society bud. Bridge parties, suites, dances, tea parties and sumptuous dinners are the important items in the pretty girl's social career, and these occupy too much of her time for wandering amidst God's country in the great outdoors. How the persistent youth takes her away from her surrounding and wins her over to his way of thinking despite herself is said to offer of the most amusing topics the screen has yet displayed.

Several subjects in slides announcing the coming of this feature, and 3x10 banners printed in four colors on extra heavy three-ply canvas are among the accessories. Other aids to exhibitors who desire to use newspaper material in connection with the exploitation of "Who's Your Neighbor?" are advertising mats from fourteen lines single column to a half page. Newspaper cuts ranging from one column to three columns in size showing thrilling scenes and the individual actors are also included in the exploitation help.

HARRY CAREY STARS IN "THE ROUND-UP"

Harry Carey, the western actor of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, is working on a five-reel production with Jack Ford as his director. The working title of the film is "The Round-Up" and Edith Sterling, supported by many of the Universal cowboys, plays opposite Carey.
ART DRAMAS ANNOUNCES FILMS SCHEDULED FOR MONTH OF AUGUST

The revision of program schedules necessary to allow of the immediate publication of the Horsley Crane Wilbur features on Art Dramas program has been completed, and the new order of films is given here for the first time.

Several changes in publication dates for the next two months are indicated. Contrary to first plans, "Eye of Envy," first of the Wilbur Art Dramas, is to be placed among the July films, and the second, tentatively titled "Blood of His Fathers," will follow in August.

The film schedule, which will be adhered to, as far as is known, presents the Apollo picture, "When You and I Were Young," starring Alma Hanlon, directly following "The Peddler," the Joe Welch feature from the U. S. Amusement Corporation studio.

"When You and I Were Young" is to be followed by "Eye of Envy," which stars Crane Wilbur. Next comes the U. S. Amusement-Art Drama, "Think It Over," in which Catherine Calvert and Richard Tucker are starred.

The first film for the month of August comes from the Van Dyke studios and is entitled "Peg o' the Sea." Jean Sothern is starred in this, which is a comedy. "Peg o' the Sea" has for setting a New England fishing village.

Another Alma Hanlon vehicle, "Behind the Mask," from the Apollo company, is next in order. This was written by Charles Dazey and adapted by Frederick Rath. Mr. Dazey is well known as the author of "In Old Kentucky," "Manhattan Madness," "Wolf Lowry," "The Flower of Faith," and other successful plays and pictures.

An Erleograph production, starring Marian Swayne and directed by Joseph Levering, will be the next feature on the program. No title has yet been selected for this film. However, it is similar to Miss Swayne's two previous Erleographs, "Little Miss Fortune" and "The Road Between."

The last production for August will be the second of the Horsley productions starring Crane Wilbur. The working title of this is "Blood of His Fathers." Mr. Wilbur plays three distinct roles in this—a father, his son and his grandson. The play is a drama.

"ARMS AND GIRL" AND "RUNAWAY" TWO STAGE SUCCESSES SECURED BY PARAMOUNT FOR BILLIE BURKE

Two important stage successes have been purchased by Famous Players-Lasky Corporation as vehicles for Billie Burke and will be issued by Paramount under the selective star series booking plan. The first of these is "The Runaway," in which Miss Burke starred on the stage under the management of Charles Frohman a few years ago. The play was presented in Paris by Pierre Velere under the title "La Gamine," where it scored a complete triumph.

This will be the second instance where Miss Burke will appear upon the screen in a Paramount adaptation of one of her former stage successes, the first being "The Land of Promise," by W. Somerset Maugham, which has already been completed under the direction of Joseph Kaufman.

"Arms and the Girl," the other play which has been purchased by Famous Players-Lasky for Miss Burke, proved one of the greatest sensations of two seasons ago, when it was presented at the Fulton Theater in New York, with Fay Bainter in the leading role. It was in this delightful characterization that Miss Bainter made her first Broadway success. The story concerns the adventures of several young Americans caught in Belgium during the German invasion.

UNUSUAL NUMBER OF SHORT FILMS WILL BE PLACED ON MARKET IN SEPTEMBER BY PETER PAN CORP.

H. C. Allen, President, Says Mo-Toy Comedies, Enacted by Dolls, Are Proving Popular Despite Hot Weather

After a year of careful study of the production of short subjects, H. C. Allen, president of the Peter Pan Corporation, is preparing to begin in September to give the exchanges an unusual number of short films.

The Mo-Toy comedies, which are being published under the Peter Pan organization, are enacted by doll actors and present an entirely new feature in the field of production.

"Mo-Toy pictures," says Mr. Allen, "came into the market during the height of the summer heat, and they would appear to some extent a handicap. The booking, however, has been most successful, and the pictures a being played all over the country. Proctor and Loeb are booking them solid for their theaters in New York.

We know that they cannot help but be successful, if they cannot fail to please a discriminating audience. A picture only the most distinctive subjects and they are a solicute new to any audience. At present a great advertising campaign is under way, which will be a material aid to both distributors and exhibitors."

BUD FISHER NOW IS IN CHARGE OF PRODUCTION OF MUTT AND JEFF FILMS; TWO COMEDIES WEEKLY ASK

After allowing three months for a sufficient supply of Mutt and Jeff to accumulate, Bud Fisher has taken hold of the producing company himself and is attending only to the production, but also personally to the distribution. So great is the demand for these comedies it is said, that he has been receiving requests from exhibitors from all parts of the country to publish two a week. However, the amount of work involved in the production has rendered it impossible for him to comply with the requests at present.

Mr. Fisher's cartoons are published daily in 278 newspapers and are thus seen daily by an audience of 17,000,000 persons. This is a great advertising asset.

While there are several territories still open, from the present outlook the entire country will be sold by the week. This has been accomplished solely on reputation, and without showing a single print, it is said.

As concrete evidence of the coming popularity of the comedies it is of interest to note that the Strand Theater of New York has booked them solid, one a week, for the coming year.
HIL LEWIS OF CHICAGO OWL FEATURES GETS RIGHTS TO "ONE LAW FOR BOTH" IN ILLINOIS AND WISCONSIN SECTOR

Negotiations were concluded this week between the Owl Features Company of Chicago and the Ivan Film productions, under the terms of an agreement by which the Owl Features Company becomes exclusive distributor in the state of Illinois and also southern Wisconsin. Phil Lewis, while in New York City to close this deal, remarked that, in his opinion, "One Law for Both" was one of the best box-office attractions of the season.

Mr. Lewis stated that he contemplates exploiting this feature in a manner similar to the way it has been handled in New York, giving it an extended run at one of the best downtown theaters in Chicago and cooperating with the American ambulance in Russia if they so desire.

JNN MURDOCK TO BE SUPPORTED BY DAVID POWELL IN INITIAL FROHMANN ROLL ADAPTED TO SCREEN

In beginning the making of Charles Frohman successes in motion pictures the Empire All-Star Corporation has set about the task with the expectation of making the picture versions of Charles Frohman's greatest successes in every way worthy of the triumphs attained by the same plays on the speaking stage.

Not alone will the greatest Frohman stars lend theirtrained ability to recreating the parts made successful by them, but Charles Frohman stage settings, properties, and scenic effects will be utilized in the forthcoming motion pictures, and utmost care will be taken in selecting the supporting casts that will surround each star.

As an example of the sincerity of purpose of the Empire All-Star Corporation in carrying out this last mentioned detail is cited the engagement of the popular stage actor of the Imperial production, the Imperial stage hero of "Outcast," one of the forthcoming Empire pictures. Mr. Powell will be remembered by exhibitors as a featured player in the company supporting Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance"; as leading man for Miss Pickford in "Less Than the Dust," and as the player who perhaps scored highest opposite Clara Kimball Young in "The Price She Paid." Previous to his motion picture career Mr. Powell had risen to fame as a member of Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree's company at His Majesty's Theater, London. He first came to America in 1907 as leading man for Miss Ellen Terry. He supported Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson and created the role of Christopher in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

In "Outcast" he is cast as Geoffrey Sherwood, the young broker with whom Miriam (Miss Murdock) falls in love.

TRIPLE PHOTOGRAPHIC EXPOSURE IS A FEATURE OF "WHO'S YOUR NEIGHBOR?"

A triple exposure which breaks the record for the number of times necessary to make it satisfy a director is one of the many photographic features of "Who's Your Neighbor?" the sociological photodrama now being exhibited by the Sunshine Drama Features, Inc., 1493 Broadway, New York City.

Laboratory experts say that this triple exposure is one of the finest things of its kind ever done. It is such a delicate piece of work, requiring such perfect timing to be fraction of a second and perfect synchronization, that the image was taken twenty times before the result was satisfactory to Director S. Rankin Drew.

T. M. OSBORNE, EX-SING SING WARDEN, LAUDS "WHO SHALL TAKE MY LIFE?" FILM, PRODUCED BY SELIG COMPANY

Hon. Thomas Mott Osborne, famous prison reformer and ex-Warden of Sing Sing prison, recently witnessed the film "Who Shall Take My Life?" in New York City in company with the author of the photoplay, Miss Mabelle Helkes Justice, when privately projected by William N. Selig. Mr. Osborne was enthusiastic in his expression on the object and lesson conveyed by the production, after the picture was run. Later, he wrote the author the following letter under date of April 23, 1917:

"My Dear Miss Justice:

"Your moving picture film, 'Who Shall Take My Life?' which I had the pleasure of seeing the other day, in which is set forth with much skill and effect one of the strongest arguments against capital punishment—the possibility of executing an innocent man—is bound to be of considerable assistance in the campaign for abolition of the death penalty. What you have portrayed upon the screen might easily happen. Since I first came in close touch with the New York prisons several men have been executed whose guilt was open to very grave question. I hope the film will have wide publicity.

"Thomas Mott Osborne,
"Former Warden of Sing Sing Prison."

COAST PRODUCING COLONIES HIT BY U.S. DRAFT FOR GREAT ARMAY; CHAPLIN'S NUMBER NOT CALLED

The motion picture colony on the west coast was hit by the recent drawing for men to answer the first draft call. With considerable anxiety the lists were scanned on Friday last by the Los Angeles studio forces.

Charles Chaplin's number was not among those drawn, although his press agent was called. Wallace Reid, the Metro star, was the first of the screen notables to be drafted, although he may claim exemption on account of his wife and baby.

The Lasky Company had two actors drawn—Tom Forman and Lucien Littlefield. However, Mr. Forman had already joined the Coast artillery and Mr. Littlefield the ambulance service.

In the Triangle ranks Charles Ray was an early selection. Mary Pickford's assistant director, Roy Marshall, was also drawn. George Walsh of the Fox staff will be given an opportunity to do some standing broad jumping over in the trenches, as will Victor Potel of Essanay. Charles Parrott, a director, and Ralph Spence, a scenario writer for Fox, were drawn.

Charles Dazey's son, Frank, was drawn, as was Jack Blystone, director general of L-Ko Company. Jay Belasco, of the Cristic Comedies was chosen, likewise Horace Davey and Neal Burns of the Horsley Company. Lynn F. Reynolds, a director now with Triangle, was drawn, as was Pliny Goodangle, husband of Mary Anderson, Universal City will lose William Franey, Milton Sims, Craig Hutchinson, Francis McDonald, George Marshall, Lloyd Whitlock and J. Webster Dil.

Many in the technical departments of the various studios were drawn and the plants, as a result, will be seriously affected.

William N. Selig is in receipt of a letter from London, England, to the effect that "The Crisis" is enjoying a long run at the Scala Theater. The London papers are of one voice in their praises of the spectacle.
JOHN J. McGRAW HAS LEADING ROLE IN "ONE TOUCH OF NATURE" FILM, SHOWING GIANTS IN GAME

A ball game between the Giants and the Phillies at the Polo Grounds, New York, at which there were 22,000 spectators, was filmed in Thomas A. Edison's photoplay, "One Touch of Nature," in which Manager John J. McGraw has a leading part. Three fast innings are shown in the film, and the star of "One Touch of Nature," John Drew Bennett, had a chance to show that he could play baseball in fast company. In the ninth and deciding inning, when he is supposed to bat out a home run and win the game for the Giants, there are many exciting moments and incidents that will please baseball enthusiasts.

Viola Cain has the leading feminine role. Manager McGraw proves that any time he gets tired playing baseball there is always a field open for him as a film actor. He registers well and his acting is good. "One Touch of Nature" will be published through K-E-S-E.

DOUBiE OF NOTED RUSSIAN GENERAL APPEARS IN "FALL OF THE ROMANOFFS"

After a search lasting more than two weeks, during which time George Hall, casting director for Herbert Brenon, interviewed 200 film players, an exact double of General Korniloff, the famous Russian officer who led the new revolutionary troops to victory in the recent offensive against the Austrians, has been found and will play an important role in "The Fall of the Romanoffs." In the original scenario of the picture General Korniloff was named as one of the characters who is in all of the scenes depicting the recent revolution. A well-known actor has been engaged for the role, but when General Korniloff leaped into the limelight by his sensational victory of a few days ago, Mr. Brenon decided that the actor he had engaged would not do, as he wanted an exact duplicate of this important personage. Mr. Brenon would not be satisfied with a made-up Korniloff, but insisted upon the real thing. So Mr. Hall, casting director, was set on the task, and after two weeks' search secured the man he wanted—a noted Italian actor who is as like Korniloff as a twin brother. The Italian has been working at the studio for a week now and is in nearly all of the big scenes.

"A DOG IN THE MANGER" IS NEXT SELIG-HOYT COMEDY THROUGH K-E-S-E

One of Charles Hoyt's very best comedies, "A Dog in the Manger," will be the Selig offering through K-E-S-E service Monday, August 6. It is a two-reel farce and is declared to be one of the best of the Selig-Hoyt comedies yet issued. The cast includes William Fables as A. Jackson Bright; James Harris as Colin Early; Amy Dennis as Gay Somers, the landlord's daughter; Edgar Murray Sr., as Boniface Somers, the landlord; Fred Eckhart as Mr. Grump, a star boarder. J. A. Richmond directed the comedy.

The plot concerns two inventors who come to grief when their bogus sausage machine goes to pieces and they only escape from pursuing policemen by a very close margin. The two arrive at a hotel where all employees have gone on a strike. Both fall in love with the landlord's daughter. Mr. Grump, the star boarder, has the gout and his ailment is not relieved any when the hotel strike occurs. They make him liar. He rises in his ugly chair out of the hotel and down the walk. Fearing the loss of his star boarder, the landlord orders a pursuit. The star boarder's chair never stops till it plunges into the lake. The strike breakers dive in after the star boarder, who failed to hold his breath as instructed.

BUSTER COLLIER TO SUPPORT J. PICKFORD IN "TOM SAWYER," A MARK TWAIN TALE

Buster Collier, son of William Collier, noted comedian, has been especially engaged by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation to appear with Jack Pickford in its adaptation of Mark Twain's comedy, "Tom Sawyer." The production is already under way at the Lasky studio and will be announced for publication by Paramount within a few weeks. Buster Collier is by no means new to the screen, having starred in "The Bugle Call," which marked his first appearance on the screen.

500 EXHIBITORS SEE PRODUCTION OF ESSANAY FILMS CONVENTION WEEK

Five hundred exhibitors took advantage of the invitation of George K. Spoor, of the Essanay Company of Chicago, to inspect the studio during the National convention.

In order to make their trip worthwhile arrangements had been made for five companies to be at work. With all preparations made so that work could progress without a stop, it was a very interesting trip to the many who had never before watched the production of pictures which they would later see on their own screens.

Many were the expressions of pleasure at the opportunity offered to meet Taylor Holmes who had been unable to attend the convention. Through the courtesy of President George K. Spoor, Mr. Holmes had been appearing in "Seven Chances," a stage comedy which is playing at the Cori Theater in Chicago.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The Merrill Theater reported the largest business in its history when recently showed "Skinner's Dress Suit," and expects to duplicate this record with "Skinner's Baby."

Detroit, Mich.—John H. Kunsky, one of the foremost exhibitors of Michigan, has signed a contract with the Goldwyn pictures for the entire year's output, to be shown in Mr. Kunsky's chain of theaters. He will secure the first run in Detroit.

St. Louis, Mo.—M. H. Hoffman, Inc., formally opened its first branch office here in the Empress Building last week. The St. Louis branch will be in charge of Sidne J. Baker, a well known salesman of the middle west, formerly identified with Bluebird photoplays. The states of Missouri, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska will be served by St. Louis.

Springfield, Ill.—The Aladdin Theater recently purchased by Harry Jewell and E. J. Cunningham was sold to F. G. Williams, manager of the Jefferson Theater.

Eric, Pa.—William Gairgraves, owner of the motion picture theater at 907 State street, will build a new house to his theater to cost $750.
THE PLANTER," STARRING TYRONE POWER, SOON WILL BE GIVEN TRADE SHOWING IN NEW YORK

Producer Harry C. Drum Takes Film to Gotham After Triumphal Exhibition in West; Will Publish Play on State Rights Basis

Following an unusual demonstration at a trial public showing in the West, in which at the climax the audience rose from their seats and shouted "The Planter," featuring Tyrone Power, a ten-reel production, has been brought to New York by producer, Harry C. Drum, and a state showing will be given before the press within a few days. Mr. Drum has taken temporary office in room 805 of the Mecca building at 1600 Broadway. He will shortly be joined by F. M. Manson, western mining man, who financed production.

One of Best Films
Those who have so far seen the duction, including the public and trade, call it one of the best of big productions of its class so made. The story is from a novel Herman Whitaker and is one of best sellers Harper has ever issued. In the production of the feature special attention was given the scenario, and more than six months was spent on the construction and development of the script alone.

Mr. Drum adapted the story for the screen and also handled the production work.

The feature was directed by T. X. Hefron, formerly with Famous Players and credited with some of the greatest film successes.

Noted Star in Lead
Tyrone Power, one of the foremost dramatic actors, portrays the role of Hertz, and on the completion of the picture made the statement that never in his career had he essayed a part covering so wide a range of emotions.

Two intense dramatic climaxes and one of spectacular nature are merged into one with startling effect.

No announcement of definite marketing plans has as yet been made. The original plan was to handle the production purely on a state rights and personal exploitation basis.

M. H. HOFFMAN NAMES BIG FEATURES FOR SUMMER AND FALL WHILE AT CONVENTION

M. H. Hoffman, vice president and general manager of M. H. Hoffman, Inc., who was one of the busy men of the Chicago convention, met many exhibitors, producers and state rights men. During one of the many interviews held in the Sherman Hotel, Hoffman held discourse regarding the summer features his concern distributed, and also dwelt upon their superfices which he will issue in the fall.

While it is true," said Mr. Hoffman, "that I have some special material for summer, I do not want exhibitors to feel that I have something up my sleeve for their fall dates.

"Bar Sinister" Goes Well
"The Bar Sinister" is selling exceptionally well and is providing a hot-season attraction to a degree that justified my belief in this superb Lewis production. Our New York Foursquare Exchange is doing big business with this feature, and the St. Louis office, in charge of Sid J. Baker, who was recently opened, is also doing a fine business.

"The Sin Woman," in which Irene Fenwick, Reine Davies and Chiffor Bruce form a duo of stars, is pleasing exhibitions because of the business it is attracting to their houses. The strong scenes in The Sin Woman are particularly appropriate at this time of the year.

Gets Midwinter Prices
"As for our other features, including 'Should She Obey?' the picture of marriage and divorce; 'Her Fighting Chance,' Jane Gray being the star in this James Oliver Curwood story, and Brodsky's 'A Trip Through China,' an exceptional picture of the Orient, all are standing up to every expectation for hot-weather business.

"All of our Foursquare exchanges are not only getting bookings, but the real test of a picture's worth.

Our fall films include two superfices which I believe are destined to be among the most talked-of during the year. The first of these is 'The Fringe of Society,' now being made for us by the George Backer Film Corporation. This is the first Backer-Foursquare picture in which Ruth Roland and Milton Sills are co-stars, and associated with them are Leah Baird, J. Herbert Frank, Ollie Firey, George Larkin and James Cowler, who was Buck Moe in 'The Bar Sinister'.

Second September Feature
"The second big feature which will be ready for publication in September is 'The Silent Witness,' in which Gertrude McCoy is the star, and for which we acquired the world rights from the Author's Film Company. Theatergoers will remember the play of this name, after which the picture was made, as one of the pronounced Broadway successes."

JACK LAIT TO WRITE FOR MOTION PICTURES

Jack Lait, the well known Chicago newspaper writer whose articles and stories in the Chicago Herald have developed a big following, has signed a contract with the Chicago Tribune and will commence work with that newspaper on September 1.

The Chicago Tribune plans to make a series of motion pictures based on the Jack Lait stories and those familiar with Mr. Lait's work believe that the Lait-Tribune pictures should be very popular.

The Chicago Tribune is arranging with a number of newspapers throughout the country to publish the Lait stories prior to the making of the pictures.

Toronto, Ont.—It has been announced that Superfeatures, Limited, will put out a "Within the Law" road show and Vitagraph will also put out a road show on "On Trial."
THOUSAND DAYS IN BOOKINGS ON "REDEMPTION" ARRANGED FOR IN TERRITORY ALREADY SOLD

The popularity of Julius Steger's production "Redemption," featuring Evelyn Nesbit and her son, Russell Thaw, is best shown by the fact that more than 1,000 days of bookings have already been arranged for the film in the territory already sold.

The film has been booked for 400 consecutive days in New York City alone, where it will be shown in all the Loew theaters, the Keith and Proctor houses and other large theaters. In New Jersey 125 days have already been booked, to start August 15. In Illinois Jones, Linick & Schaefer have already booked 223 days, and further bookings are coming in constantly. Sufficient bookings have been arranged in Pennsylvania to bring the total up to 1,000 days.

An indication of the drawing power of "Redemption" was the business done by the film at the Far Rockaway Theater, Far Rockaway, N.Y., last week. Manager Silverman stated that the house was crowded at four performances each day, and he turned away at least 1,500 persons daily. All records for attendance and receipts were broken at the Broad Street Theater, Newark, and every other theater which showed the film played to unusual business and profits.

FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF AMERICAN CO. SEES GREAT PLANT WHERE PUNY ONE ONCE STOOD

Present Roster of Players Grew from Company of Cowboys; George Periolat Is Only Actor of Old List Remaining at Santa Barbara Studio

The American Film Company, Inc., at Santa Barbara, Cal., is celebrating its fifth anniversary of location there.

Five years ago a company of cowboys rode up the main street of the town. They formed the vanguard of the American forces. Of these players there remains but one, and only a few of the mechanical employees.

George Periolat is the lone actor who remains. In those early days Periolat supported "Jack" Kerrigan, "Chick" Morrison, Sidney Balderidge and Smith M. Wilson are the three mechanical men who remain of the original company of eighteen. Morrison superintends the plant and Balderidge the technical department.

First Studio Puny Affair

The first studio was a puny affair upon an o-trach farm. Frequently the big birds uprose and kicked up so much trouble that the production was stopped for the period. The location was at State and Islay streets, which has long since given way to intensive improvements.

But from the first success the American's efforts, and in the fall of the initial Santa Barbara year Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the company, visited the town and with rare foresight purchased property where the present beautiful film town has been developed.

Chicago Factory Increase

While the fairy city grew under the California sun, the Chicago factory increased in size from 6,000 to 20,000 square feet of floor space, and increased in weekly output from 60,000 to 1,500,000 feet of celluloid. Changes in personnel in the central office have been many, but through the period R. R. Nehls, manager, and Charles A. Ziebarth, superintendent of the plant, have watched the business grow.

PARALTA WILL DIRECT PUBLICITY ON FILMS SAME AS STAGE PRODUCERS DO PLAYS

Features to Be Exploited on City and Town Billboards on Old-Established Plan, Says President Anderson in Outlining Policy

Paralta Plays, Inc., will direct the publicity in connection with its films, if are to be made through Tri-Re Distributing Corporation un-the Paralta plan, strictly on the basis of stage productions.

every executive in charge of a dement in the Paralta organization an experienced theatrical man.

Anderson, president of Paralta, been a theatrical manager and picture producer and exhibi-since 1897. Nat I. Brown, gen-manager, has been identified with trical productions and pictures years. Wilbur Bates, advising and publicity manager, has connected with theatricals since being identified with the ex-ration of the greatest productions me by the theatrical syndicate for years. Carl Krusader, director of itors' publicity department, has many years' experience in theat-agement and picture exploit-

The combined experience and ity of this quartet stands behind Paralta production.

Two Lines of Publicity

There are two lines of publicity the promotion of motion pictures must be intensively developed," Mr. Anderson. "Any departure these lines is waste of effort and never losing sight of the fact whole structure is based on adequate production. First, picture must be good entertain-and just what theatregoers want to see. With a really picture the producer starts at.

The first line of publicity extends to producers to exhibitors—infor-ation as to what is being produced different interests, story, author, company and all details. This rtion made, then comes the portant line—between the exand the public—the vital line, the success of the entire story depends. adequate patroniin legitimate theatrical interests uction is put before the public ning with general news items atic column. Then, a few weeks playgoers, the advance man comes into town, and actual work of bringing the pro-tion to the attention of local the-goers is begun. On the departure Advance man it is carried on by the local manager until the show comes in.

Each Town to Know Films

"Paralta Plays will be made widely known to theater patrons as they are being produced, but their actual proand in public attention will be conducted on in each town exactly as a traveling attraction on the speaking stage is handled.

Of course it would be impossible
Paralta to have an advance man in every town ten days to two weeks ahead of the showing of a Paralta picture, but this company has devised an effective substitute for 'the man ahead,' and he will be there in effect it not in person.

"All Paralta's advertising paper and 'relate' will be framed on strict and well-tried theatrical lines, shooting directly at the mark of creating in the public mind curiosity and desire to see its pictures. The value and effectiveness of these established the-arithmetical methods has been well proved by an experience of fully thirty years.

Will Not Issue Synopses

"Paralta will not issue heralds or other printed matter of any kind giving the synopsis of any story. This is fundamentally wrong, for it gives audiences information which sales interest in a production and hurts and does not help.

"One never sees in a theater program a synopsis of the story of the next attraction. He may see a display underlne, perhaps, with refer-ce to some big feature of the coming bill, but everything is done to interest in seeing the play—not in killing the element of novelty and surprise by telling in advance the details of the development of the dramatic action."
BECK, SINGER AND WEISS, CHARGED WITH "JOAN" THEFT, ARE HELD IN NEW YORK

Famous Players-Lasky Corporation Accuse Three Men Now Held for Grand Jury Hearing on $2,000 Bail; Print and Negative Recovered

The biggest achievement made so far in the efforts of film producers to put a stop to the theft of positive motion picture films was accomplished by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation this week in New York in connection with the arrest of three men charged with stealing a positive print of "Joan the Woman," from which a duplicate negative was made. Both the print and negative have been recovered.

Fred Beck, Leo Singer and Louis Weiss, the three men arrested, were brought before United States Commissioner Hitchcock and, after a hearing, were held for the grand jury on $2,000 bail each. Beck, Singer and Weiss are charged with the theft of a film positive of "Joan the Woman," produced by the Cardinal Film Corporation.

Jail Beck, Singer, Weiss

Following the theft of one of the prints Ralph A. Kohl, attorney for the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, took the matter to the United States district attorney's office and an investigation was begun by Assistant District Attorney Edwin A. Stanton and Mr. Kohl. Beck, Singer and Weiss were arrested. It is alleged that the stolen positive was taken to New Jersey, where it was being made into a negative film.

The Famous Players-Lasky Corporation is conducting an active campaign against film thefts and has obtained the backing of the federal government in its efforts to put a stop to the evil. Theft of motion picture positives has become a source of considerable loss to producers. The practice has been to ship the film overnight from an exchange and make from it a master negative, to be shipped to foreign countries. It is a mechanical method of picture piracy and has long been a sore point to producers.

Big Revenue Seen

The theft and duplication of the "Joan the Woman" positive would have meant a big source of revenue to lawbreakers. The picture was produced by Cecil B. De Mille, director general of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, and has as its star in the main part, Geraldine Farrar. The photoplay appeared at the Forty-fourth Street Theater in New York throughout the last theatrical season. It was following the winter run that the positive is alleged to have been stolen from a film exchange.

Prosecution of the case will be followed through relentlessly, and the present action in regard to the arrest and holding for the grand jury of Beck, Singer and Weiss is generally regarded as a big thing in the line of producers' efforts to crush out a long-time evil.

FRANK E. WOODS MADE GENERAL MANAGER OF
LASKY CO. PRODUCTIONS

Author of "Birth of a Nation" Scenarion Will Have Complete Charge of Stories

Jesse L. Lasky, vice president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation who is in active charge of all the producing activities of the concern, announces through the New York Paramount offices that Frank E. Woods has been engaged as general manager of productions of the Lasky Company under Director General Cecil De Mille.

Mr. Woods is the author of the original scenario of "The Birth of a Nation" and was former general manager for D. W. Griffith and supervisor of productions of the Fine Arts studio.

"Mr. Woods," says Mr. Lasky, "will have complete charge of the story from the time it is passed from the reader until it is ready to be issued on the Paramount program. He will work directly with the writers and directors."

ELABORATE BOOK FOR EXHIBITORS IS ISSUED ON "COME THROUGH" FILM

Excerpts from criticisms which appeared in the leading New York papers are given, as well as data regarding cuts, posters and other advertising aids which may be secured.

Sharks Don't Have to Turn on Backs to Bite

It remained for J. Ernest Williams, the foremost authority on marine photography, to enlighten the world in refuting the old fallacy that generally accepted that a shark will turn over to bite.

This old belief has been disproved in an interview with Mr. Williams, whose work in photographing sharks under the water, "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Sea," and for the Wilbur Brothers' latest success, "The marine Eye," has been notably successful.

Popular Science Monthly quotes Mr. Williams as follows: "I have proved by actual photographs that a shark does not turn over to bite a shark wants to pick up any from the bottom of the sea be right down to it as a dog pounces on a bone and picks it up. A shark has not to turn over to bite more than any other fish does.

"PRIDE AND THE MAN," WITH WM. RUSSELL IN BIG PRIZE RING STORY, SCHEDULED JULY 30

Recounts Story of Professional Boxer Winning Society Girl's Hand After Struggle; Star Supported by Francelia
Billington, in Heiress Role

The latest Russell subject, "Pride and the Man," produced by the American for Mutual pictures on July 30, should make every woman take a little more respect for the man who is really a man.

The story recounts how a professional boxer marries a society girl for love against every kind of odds, and after many melodramatic defeats in happiness, it gives an excellent story of upper and lower strata of society, without being clichéd on sociology and melodrama.

For the playing, Bara as the society girl in the story, Russell as the boxer, who has an undeclared romance with Bara and in the course of events kills her and in the final fight is himself killed. Bara has money and they have a daughter whom she leaves in the custody of her former lover. Russell is all the way. He leaves the boxing ring, takes the daughter to a small town and becomes a school teacher.

PARAMOUNT’S SERIAL DEPARTMENT PLACED IN HANDS OF E. A. McMANUS, NEWSPAPER MAN

Is Especially Engaged to Handle Distribution of Concern’s Initial Photonovel in Thirty-Two Parts Soon to Be Issued

The serial department of Paramount now is under the management of Edward A. McManus, a newspaper man of wide acquaintance in the trade, who was engaged last week.

Mr. McManus was especially engaged to handle the output of the stars who will be featured. McManus is the originator of the moving picture serial running in novelized form in newspapers. His first venture in this line was a picture produced simultaneously in hundreds of motion picture houses on the day the counterpart of those particular episodes of the picture appeared in the daily newspapers throughout the country. His first success in this line was “What Happened to Mary?” This was followed by “Who Will Marry Mary?” Both these stories appeared in serial form in leading newspapers and magazines throughout the country, while the picturized versions were running in the theaters.

“The Exploits of Elaine” and “The Perils of Pauline,” tales of the doings of two young women who came to be known from coast to coast, were other successes of Mr. McManus’ management.

Headed International
When the International Film Service was inaugurated last year, Mr. McManus was placed at its head. For a long time he has held responsible executive positions; as one of the heads of the William R. Hearst organization for several years.

The negotiations which led to the engagement of Mr. McManus as manager of the Paramount serial department were finished this week, following shortly on the announcement of that organization’s purpose to distribute its first serial. Mr. McManus will begin work soon with the Paramount organization and the first Paramount serial will be released early in September.

RELIEF SEEN BY PENNSYLVANIA TRADE IN SELECTION OF SHATTUCK AS CENSOR CHIEF

Philadelphia Lawyer States He Has His Own Ideas Concerning Reel Cutting; Big Fund Set Aside for Board

With the appointment by Governor Brumbaugh of Frank R. Shattuck, as the official censor for the state, Pennsylvania gains much needed relief, it is the opinion in the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh trade.

The successor of J. Louis Breitinger, who was forced through political reasons to resign last January, is a Philadelphia lawyer, who frankly states he has no special knowledge of the motion picture industry but has his own ideas concerning censorship.

States His Views
“Hard and fast rules, such as the rule permitting only the ‘eight-foot kiss’ ‘mean little to me,” says Mr. Shattuck “and I will judge every picture on its merits, being personally disposed to guard against features that might incite to crime more than against alleged improprieties.”

Mr. Shattuck was sworn into office before Judge John M. Patterson, in Common Pleas Court No. 1, Philadelphia, last week, and he has filed his oath of office with the secretary of state at Harrisburg.

$103,720 Appropriated

There will be no lack of funds with which to conduct the office of the State Board of Motion Picture Censors to be appointed by the governor during the next two years, as $103,720 of Pennsylvania taxpayers’ money was appropriated to maintain the board.

3 INDIANA SHOWS ARE CLOSED BY FIRE MARSHAL

H. H. Friedly, Indiana fire marshal, in a campaign for fire prevention, last week closed the Theatrons at New Castle, the Star Theater Frankfort and the Bagford Theater at Hagerstown.

These theaters were forced to close their doors three days after the expiration of the campaign and will not be allowed to open until they comply with the fire laws.

Complaints against the three houses were made because of inadequate fire escapes, and the operator of projection machines which are not properly enclosed.

In a bulletin just issued the fire marshal points out that many of the owners of film houses do not know how to realize how necessary it is to have a name of safety to keep booths clean at all times, and entirely free from loose films, hot carbons, scraps of film and other combustible matter.

Attention is called to the rule prohibiting metal boxes for these materials and scraps. The operator’s booth is supposed to be fireproof, and it is assumed that a blaze started in it would not spread to the audience. At the same time, any such fire or flame in the booth is liable to cause a panic in the average picture audience, with loss of life, injury and disaster.

CHICAGO FILM WORKERS BACK AFTER WALKOUT

The film inspectors employed by the various film exchanges in Chicago have abandoned the idea of unionizing, and have returned to old positions.

The trouble, which had been brewing for some time and which culminated in a walkout about six weeks ago, was the result of an attempt to get the inspectors to organize a union.

At the same time, any such advance in wages so much as a cent. The policemen who were struck outside of the large exes throughout the “loop” district have been withdrawn and the men say there will be no more trouble.

Herbert Brenon in the FALL of the ROMANOFFS with ILIODOR (former confidant of Rasputin, Czar and Czarina) reveals the true story of Rasputin, real ruler of Russia, and most astounding adventurer of modern times: shows this false prophet rising from peasant filth to the silken splendors of Petrograd, where he makes Grand Dukes and money masters his servants and the Czar himself his humble follower; depicts his discovery of the Mad Monk Ilidor, an educated man he endeavored to enslave; portrays Ilidor’s imprisonment and escape, and graphically pictures Rasputin’s bloody ascent to supreme power, the great conspiracy ending in his sensational death, and the dawn of the Revolution in which was born the Free Russia of today.

Two Goldwyn Pictures Win $728,000 in Contracts.

Goldwyn's only trade showing in all America to date is the one held last week in Chicago when an invited group of exhibitors saw Madge Kennedy in "Baby Mine" and Mae Marsh in another production not yet announced by name to the public.

As a result of this one Chicago showing Goldwyn booked contracts in a single afternoon aggregating $728,000.

In other words: Goldwyn Pictures sell themselves on sight to the biggest and ablest exhibitors of the nation; sell themselves through sheer merit; through their strength and beauty and because they reveal in every foot of their length the fact that skilled producers have put their hearts and brains into the making of them.

When, within the next few days, Goldwyn Pictures are revealed at trade showings in our twenty-five offices in North America even you cannot conceive of the sensation they will create, or estimate the volume of bookings these showings will induce.

We have been truthful and accurate about Goldwyn Pictures. We have awaited their completion before announcing their virtues. And Robert Lieber, the great Indianapolis exhibitor, voices the opinion of hundreds of exhibitors when he says: "Goldwyn Pictures are better than you ever said they would be."

A. E. A. Outlines Plan

THE "Herald" hails as a pleasant duty the task of directing the attention of motion picture exhibitors throughout the country to the outline of policy of the American Exhibitors Association issued by Charles C. Pettijohn, general manager, and printed in full on another page of this week's issue.

The statement is not intended to be a comprehensive program of what the new association intends to accomplish. The men promoting this organization are content to build slowly and well and do not intend committing an extensive program to paper—and leaving it there.

Even the casual observer must be struck with the simple common sense which is the basis of the outline of policy. In the first place, the organization is to be one for exhibitors and for no one else. A member must be a theater owner—a person whose chief interest in exhibitor organization is to protect his invested capital.

Along this same line the organization will not concern itself with money-making schemes—it is not an organization "for profit," but one aimed to safeguard and promote the business of exhibiting motion pictures, allowing and assisting the members to gain the "profit," not out of the organization, but out of their individual investments.

Again—like every real organization of a similar nature—it will depend for support upon dues, donations, etc. That is, the association will be for the exclusive benefit of its members and because of the advantages it has to offer its members will be glad to support it.

As for its internal organization, it is to be so constituted that it will be for the benefit of all and it will be impossible for any few members to gain control of it.

The new association will oppose and combat all the evil influences which the exhibitors' league was supposed to oppose and combat but did not—legalized censorship, excessive and unjust taxation, general political interference, unwarranted and unjust requirements from distributors and the unwholesome picture.

It appears that exhibitors are to be given a real business-like organization offering the advantages and the protection which all exhibitors need.

If you are looking for an organization which has a real reason for existence—investigate the plan and policy of the American Exhibitors Association.

Adolph Zukor

THE story set forth in the news columns this week to the effect that Mr. Adolph Zukor is the directing genius of the new organization which is to distribute forthcoming Clara Kimball Young pictures, directs attention with emphasis to the fact that Mr. Zukor is rapidly attaining a position of commanding importance in the realm of motion pictures.

There is probably no executive in the film trade whose associates are more fiercely partisan and loyal toward than are the co-workers of Mr. Zukor. Quiet and reserved in manner and speech, a lightning judgment for grasping the possibilities of a situation, an almost unlimited capacity for work—all these sterling qualifications have contributed their quota toward advancing Mr. Zukor toward the position in which he dominates a number of the greatest institutions of the film world and is constantly adding thereto.

A Contract Incident

CONTRACTUAL relations between producers and players probably have given rise to more useless litigation and waste effort than any other single cause in this business. Almost invariably the contract is broken by the player and frequently for no better reason than temperamentally unrest. In certain cases, however, this has not been true and deliberate bad faith of the producer has been the disrupting factor.

An unusual incident to a contract breaking episode occurred recently when the Ochs trade paper announced its unwillingness to print the advertisement of Clara Kimball Young when she abandoned the Selznick management. A feature that contributes greatly to the unusualness of this incident is that Miss Young is by no means the first player that has abandoned a contract and subsequently come to the aforementioned publication with advertising copy.

Aside from the complicating element in this incident, the "Herald" believes that a trade paper is greatly exceeding its proper function when it attempts to do police duty in connection with the private business transactions of anyone in the trade whether it be an exhibitor, a producer, a distributor or a player.

UDGE TUGWELL BARES OCHS’ "UNDER MY HAT" SCHEME

Alleges Harry A. Sherman Offered Old Organization Chief Plan to Make Films Bearing League Name as Producer and Share Per Cent of Profits; Harrington Makes Charges

In a speech before the Motion Picture Theater Owners' Association, in Chicago this week, Judge A. P. Tugwell, who represents California in the American Exhibitors Association, declared that Harry A. Sherman, president of the Sherman Pictures Corporation of New York, has offered Lee A. Ochs' proposition whereby Sherman will make or obtain films which will bear the word "Ochs" in the title. Judge Tugwell stated that Sherman had promised to turn over to Ochs and his organization 10 per cent of the profit from the venture.

"During the convention in Chicago," Judge Tugwell declared to the Association exhibitors, "Ochs told the delegates that 'I have a big proposition under my hat for you and the organization!' And that big proposition is the Larry Sherman offer.

"Great is the ox that leadeth the cattle," said Judge Tugwell, "but I believe we exhibitors who have founded this great organization for the exhibitor, the American Exhibitors Association, have conclusively proven that we are business men and are anything but cattle."

At the meeting of the American Exhibitors Association it was the general consensus of opinion among the theater owners that the majority of the bona fide exhibitors who now are with the old organization soon will be enrolled as members of the American Association.

Fred J. Harrington, organizer in the old organization before being compelled to resign, told the theater owners that in twenty-five states where the old group campaigned in our behalf, exhibitors continually asked the one question: "Why should we join your league when it has never done anything for us?"

Varner Does Greatest Act

"Among all the other men in the industry, H. B. Varner, of Lexington, N. C., has done more in one year for the industry than any other individual in the United States," said Harrington.

"Mr. Varner is a man of affairs, and he really knows the big men of affairs in this country. This is due to the fact that he has been in the business for a long time and he has studied the business."

"I have been in the business of the Chicago Association for twenty years and I have known Mr. Varner for that long time. He is a man who knows what he is talking about and I believe that if he were to come to our city he would find that he would be welcome among the exhibitors."

Would Not Print Facts

"Paramount defended its position in the matter, but the Trade Review did not print this fact, simply because Paramount advertised in that publication."

"But there is one man in the industry—Charles Laemmle, president of Universal, whom the Trade Review could not whip into advertising."

"The Trade Review did not say that there was anything wrong with the attack of Jack Kerrigan in the leaflet Universal with a half finished feature production on that concern's hands."

"And one of the most glaring instances of proof that this paper prints news for the exhibitor according to the dictates of its advertisers is the recent Cicero movie."

Afraid of Selznick

"The Trade Review had the audacity to announce to the trade that owing to the circumstances of the case, the paper had to refuse Clara Kimball Young advertising. The facts are that Selznick advertises with the Trade Review, and had that paper accepted Clara Kimball Young advertising, it would have lost Selznick's business."

"The Trade Review had the guts to ask the old organization for $25,000 in cash for the stock the old organization holds in the paper unless the members backed Ochs for re-election at the convention."

"We must have honest trade papers. The Exhibitors Herald, News, World and Magazines are legitimate trade papers. They are published for the exhibitors by men who make a business of publishing, and their publishers do not use the exhibitors' knowledge to get business—nor do they virtually force subscriptions. These I have named, are legitimate papers, gentlemen, but not the Trade Review."

Most Powerful Organization

"I hold out no olive branch to the manufacturer and distributor. I am in the harness for the exhibitor first, last and always. If the exhibitor is treated right, then you will find that all of the other parts of the industry are right. But, remember, the exhibitor is the foundation."

"We have organized in the American Exhibitors Association the most powerful organization of exhibitors ever formed in this country since the inception of the motion picture industry—and there is no doubt in my mind but what this new organization will bring perfect peace and long looked for equity which should and will, before long, exist between the theater owner and the manufacturer."

Within the next week the branch of the old organization in Chicago will receive a formal resignation from all former members now allied with the American Exhibitors Association. Reasons for resigning will be given in the paper, which later will be published in the trade journals, it is announced by Harry Schoenstädte, president of the Chicago local of the A. E. A.

Plan Tribute to Varner

George Henry, former president of the old Chicago league, has tendered his resignation and joined the A. E. A. A resolution was passed at the meeting to write a tribute of thanks to be presented to H. B. Varner for lobbies from the shoulders of exhibitors for their war tax which threatened to settle upon them, without which they would have put many theaters out of business. Adolph Powell, M. A. Choyne and A. J. Krug were appointed to frame the tribute.

“THE WARRIOR,” WITH MACISTE, THE GIANT, IN LAST TWO WEEKS ON BROADWAY, GOES BIG

Film and Star Continue to Be Talk of Summer Theater-goers in New York; Crowds Flock to See Raver’s Play in Criterion

The last two weeks of the limited engagement of the summer’s laughing success, “The Warrior,” started this week in New York at the Criterion Theater. Maciste of “Cabiria,” the giant hero of the Italian war spectacle, continues to be the talk of summer theater-goers in New York, hundreds of whom find their way from the hot streets every afternoon and evening into the cool auditorium of the Criterion.

Renewed expressions of praise for the spectacle come to Harry Raver, who brought “Cabiria” to the United States three years ago and is sponsor for the second big Italian film production. Emphasis is laid on the appearance of a new matinee idol on Broadway, the caveman Maciste, who sends from the trenches in Italy his deep appreciation of the enthusiasm with which his latest efforts have been received in this city. Maciste promises a new and bigger production if he survives the conflict in which he is now fighting for his country.

Several large theater parties were organized during the week, most notable being the presence at the Criterion of eighty members of the motor division of the United States army. With Miss Eleanor Gates, playwright and novelist, as hostess, these troopers thoroughly enjoyed the ninety minutes of combined thrills and laughs which “The Warrior” affords.

GIRL INSPECTORS BLAMED BY CANADIAN EXHIBITORS FOR POOR CONDITION OF FILM

Some Toronto Exchanges Hire Licensed Operators to Replace Women, Attaining Splendid Results; Age of Reels Given as Reason in Many Instances

Toronto, Ont.—A number of Canadian exhibitors are complaining about the condition of films which they receive from various film exchanges. In many instances the bad condition has been blamed on the age of the film. The fault, however, with the inspection departments of the exchanges, it is said.

It has been the policy of various exchanges in the past to employ girls on the inspection benches. Their work has not been entirely satisfactory, as they did not watch for misframes, but were satisfied only to cut the torn sprocket holes out of the film.

A number of Toronto exchanges already have secured the services of licensed operators to work on the inspection benches to replace the girls. Splendid results have been attained since this change has been made, and the exchanges have had no complaint whatever from the exhibitors.

The expense of putting men on the inspection benches is perhaps a little greater than having girls working in the same capacity, but the added expenditure is well repaid in the better condition in which films leave the various exchanges, it is pointed out by prominent exhibitors here.

TRIANGLE FIGHTS

ARTCRAFT TO GET WILLIAM S. HART

Arguments in the case of the Triangle Film Corporation vs. the Artcraft Film Corporation were heard before Judge Martin T. Manton, in the Federal District Court, New York, on July 26.

The Triangle concern seeks to restrain the Artcraft company by injunction from hindering William S. Hart from appearing in Triangle productions, also to prevent Thomas H. Ince from making or distributing any pictures in which Hart stars.

The disputed part of the contract reads: “This contract is made upon the condition and with the understanding that the employee will be supervised in his acting and work hereunder by Thomas H. Ince, the present managing producer of the Triangle studios at Culver City, Cal.”

Both sides submitted lengthy arguments in support of their contentions and Judge Manton will render a decision after going over the facts of the case.

AMERICAN EXHIBITORS ASSOCIATION PLANS OUTLINED FOR U. S. THEATER OWNERS

No Packed Conventions or Faction Domination Can Rule Convention, Outline Shows; Organization Not Formed for Gain, but to Protect Members

The American Exhibitors’ Association, founded on strictly business principles, and which now is forming branches in twenty-eight states, since its inception in Chicago has absorbed a score of state branches of the organization from which it seceded, and has recruited hundreds of new members during the past week, announces General Manager Charles Pettijohn from the head office in Indianapolis.

The new branches of the A. E. A., according to Mr. Pettijohn’s report, are spread over the states from coast to coast and from the southern to the northern boundary lines. Chicago, New York and Detroit all have established local branches, with large, representative memberships composed exclusively of bona fide theater owners.

For the benefit of exhibitors throughout the country, Mr. Pettijohn has issued the following outline of the principles upon which the A. E. A. has been founded:

General A. E. A. Principles

The purpose of the organization is to improve and protect the business interests of its members and to care for the interests of the exhibitor first, but work in harmony with all branches of the industry.

Only bona fide motion picture exhibitors can obtain membership, which means theater owners or accredited managers.

A member discontinuing in the motion picture theater business will immediately forfeit his membership.

This national body shall work to assist the United States government in times of war or great crisis.

To demand and encourage the production and showing of pictures of a high moral character.

To adjust and arbitrate differences between different branches of the industry.

To work against adverse legislation and restriction and to build up and maintain a united front to protect the motion picture industry.

No Money-Making Schemes

THIS ORGANIZATION SHALL BE INCORPORATED IN REGULAR BUSINESS FORM AND SHALL NOT BE USED FOR ANY MONEY-MAKING SCHEMES OR PROFIT.

It shall depend for its support upon its membership through subscriptions and donations.

The plan of organization is such that the national body can never be controlled by a few, and a PACKED CONVENTION WILL BE IMPOSSIBLE.

The plan will be such that the organization will be more representative, and large cities will not be able to control delegations as they have in the past. Because the very large cities will be given a charter and must operate under separate charter from the balance of the state.

For example, the city of New York will have a separate charter and the state of New York will have a separate charter. Past experience has proven that the conditions under which an exhibitor in smaller cities and large cities work are different; therefore both work better and more efficiently as separate bodies. And the larger cities have been able to bring an immense delegation to conventions and in that way control the organization at the same time giving the larger cities the proper power and consideration by giving them a separate charter equal to the state.

Plan Outlined

Delegates to the national convention will be elected only distributed, because representation will be based on the following plan:

Each charter shall be entitled to two delegates, one the state president and the other a delegate elected by the charter, and then each charter shall be allowed one delegate for each 100 members.

On this plan it will be impossible for one charter to have the power of selecting all of the committees doing the work of the convention or be able to come to a convention with enough delegates to control the convention, such as a few states did at the last convention of the now defunct organization.

REMBUSCH ASKS INDIANA EXHIBITORS TO AID U. S.

Frank J. Rembusch, president of the Indiana Exhibitors Association, a branch of the A. E. A., sends the following request to Indiana exhibitors to co-operate with William A. Brady in aiding the government:

Indiana Exhibitors Association
Shelbyville, Ind., July 24, 1917.
Dear Brother Exhibitors:

The president of the United States has been with exhibitors on the recent proposed tax of 1% per cent of gross receipts, which will probably not be passed, congress appreciates the fact that this tax would unprofitably run and bankrupt many theaters and put many theaters "out of business," the same as it has in Canada, every exhibitor in Indiana and in the nation should show his appreciation and promise of his cooperation by doing his bit in financing the war. Now any contract on the government.

Your president will advance money for these slides, and to ensure that a generous return will be forthcoming from all Indiana exhibitors in the way of dues and donations.

A constituent member of the First Convention Board states: "The motion picture industry has been a熬 of the nation’s progress in this way. I believe everything asked for in reason will be granted if the nation picture industry shows itself worthy.

Therefore, please run the slides, and on August 15 return them. It is of greatest importance, "Do your bit and help finance this splendid work."

F. J. REMBUSCH,
President, Indiana Exhibitors Association.
Member American Exhibitors Association—a new national exhibitors’ organization.

Co-operation of exhibitors, it has been pointed out by Mr. Brady, will aid the trade in getting the favor of the government. This is imperative, says Brady, and is one way for exhibitors to show their appreciation to the government for the exemption from taxation.
CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG WINS RELEASE FROM SELZNICK; FORMS OWN COMPANY

Cross Suits Dropped and Star Is in New Concern of Which Adolph Zukor Is Prime Factor; To Make Eight Films Yearly.

The various rumors regarding Clara Kimball Young and Lewis J. Selznick which have been circulated the past few weeks have at last taken definite shape, and the official announcement is finally made that Miss Young is to head her own producing organization.

As stated in "Exhibitors Herald" several weeks ago, Miss Young suddenly left the Selznick banner, under which she was producing, and filed suit in New York courts against the Lewis J. Selznick Enterprises and the Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation for an accounting and the annulment of her contract, which had until 1921 to run.

Selznick Agrees to Release
Mr. Selznick at the same time brought a counter suit to compel her to fulfill her contract. Miss Young thereupon made a trip through the West and South, visiting various exchanges to entrench herself for the legal battle.

Now, however, Mr. Selznick has agreed to release Miss Young from her contract and will dissolve the Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation, leaving her free to produce her own pictures. Miss Young also has dropped her suit against Mr. Selznick.

Zukor a Prime Factor
The new organization, of which Adolph Zukor is the prime factor, has a charter under the laws of New York and will distribute all the Clara Kimball Young productions. It will be known as the "C. K. Y. Film Corporation" and has contracted to purchase outright eight or more pictures a year from Miss Young for four years.

"Marionettes" First Film
Miss Young will head her own organization and select her own stories, it is said, as well as her directors and supporting casts. The first picture will be "The Marionettes," which now is under way at the Thanhouser studios at New Rochelle, N. Y. This will be finished about September 1.

It has been decided to make but one picture in the East, one in Porto Rico and one in California.

Montreal, Que.—Abe Fischer has been appointed as general sales manager for the Independent Film and Theater Supply Company's Montreal office. The appointment has just been announced by George F. Perkins. Mr. Fischer is a very capable young man and has a large and wide experience in Canada, having successfully handled the Universal program and Famous Players features, Warner's features and the United Film service. He resigned the position as president and general manager of the United Photoplays, Ltd., in Montreal to take up his new duties immediately.

ZAMBRENO GETS BIG WAR FILMS FOR TWO STATES

Secures First Official French Firing Line Pictures Rights in Illinois and Indiana

The Illinois and Indiana rights to the first official French war pictures ever shown in this country, have been secured by Frank Zambreno of the Unity Photoplays Company, at 207 South Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

These pictures are the property of the French government and are being exploited through the New York World, to which concern they were loaned.

It is said they are without doubt, the most graphic examples of the horrors of the great conflict ever photographed. Five cameramen lost their lives along the western front while this official record of the war was being made and in many instances Frenchmen lying in the foreground can be seen while at a distance the Germans are distinctly outlined.

These war pictures are being shown to the Chicago public at the Bandbox Street this week.

St. John, N. B.—Joe Leiberman is to take the place of J. J. Mooney of the Fox Film Corporation's Exchange here. Mr. Leiberman was manager of the Monarch Film Company before accepting this position. "MOTHER-LOVE AND THE LAW," FIRST FILM OF CRYSTAL PHOTOPLAYS CORP., IS FINISHED

Drama to Be Published About September 1 Is Based on Famous Dolly Matters Case Which Stirred the Middle West

The Crystal Photoplays Corporation, which has been working for some time on their first production, announces that the film has been completed and the concern expects to publish it about September 1. The title of the picture is "Mother-Love and the Law," and the scenario is based upon the famous Dolly Matters case which stirred the Middle West about a year ago.

Dolly Ledgerwood Matters enacts the leading role. In the supporting cast are such well known players as Mable Bardine, George A. Siegmann and Patrick Calhoun. Mr. Siegmann also directed the play.

The film will be given a Chicago showing soon and state rights buyers are already making inquiries of W. D. Burford, general manager of the Crystal Corporation, concerning territorial rights. Handsome lobby displays and 1, 3 and 6 sheets have been prepared, and the company is now having prepared striking 24 sheets picturing Justice holding her scales with a baby on one side and a pack of gold in the other, which briefly tells the story of the film. There is a love story woven into the photoplay and a gripping trial scene.

The Crystal Photoplays Corporation has a very complete plant at Peoria, III., where the main parts of the first production were made under the directorship of Mr. Siegmann, assisted by James O'Shea. Abe Schultz was the cameraman, formerly with D. W. Griffith. The scenario was prepared by O. A. C. Lund.

GERMAN KAISER, EX-CZAR, CZARINA, RASPUTIN, ARE CHARACTERS IN "FALL OF THE ROMANOFFS"

Grand Duke Nicholas, Prince Felix and Iliodor Appear in Brenon's Forthcoming Drama from Actual Events of Great Revolution

Aside from the fact that Herbert Brenon's latest production, "The Fall of the Romanoffs," is to be a notable feature and one that promises to take its place in the constellation of great pictures, a resume of its cast of characters will be of great interest, since the list includes a half-dozen famous international figures. The czar and the kaiser are both important characters in the story, and other notables who figure prominently in the action are the czarina, the Grand Duke Nicholas, Prince Felix, Rasputin and, of course, Iliodor, the Mad Monk. This role being assumed by Iliodor, the real character.

Edward Cornell is credited with the characterization as Rasputin, who was responsible directly for the overthrow of the Romanoff dynasty. Nance O'Neil, noted picture star, is the czarina, and gives an impressive presentation of the empress of the Russians, now reduced to one of the common people by the recent revolution. Alfred Hickman is the kaiser, while George Deunenberg, a well known French actor, was, strangely enough, chosen to play the kaiser.

Charles Craig, playing the heroic Grand Duke Nicholas, is another true-to-life portrayal, while Conway Tearle has the role of Prince Felix. With a story absolutely true to recent history and the principal, that of Iliodor, the Mad Monk, played by the real monk, "The Fall of the Romanoffs" gives every promise of being a screen success.

REMBUSCH HEADS NEW A. E. A. BODY ON ORGANIZATION

Accepts Chairmanship Offered by Business Manager Pettijohn

Frank J. Rembusch, president of the Indiana state branch of the A. E. A., has accepted the chairmanship of the Organization Committee, proffered by Charles Pettijohn, General Business Manager of the new organization.

In a statement to the "Herald" this week, Mr. Rembusch said:

"The general manager of the new organization, Mr. Pettijohn, has just left my office, and he has demanded that I accept the position of chairman of the Organization Committee of the American Exhibitors' Association. "This tremendous task will require all of my spare time and a great deal of sacrifice, but I feel that I will be in the fight for the right and we will succeed."

that despite the claims of the president of the old organization, that the managers of the film exchanges had never been consulted regarding the abolition of the deposit system, Mr. Schoenstadt arranged to meet the exchange managers and discuss ways and means for the ending of deposits. He declared that in a very short time Chicago exhibitors as well as state theater owners who are members of the S. E. A. would no longer have to pay deposits.

Committee Is Appointed

It was also agreed by members that all posters which are not used at the theaters on features be returned to a new department at association headquarters. These posters will be given out to other exhibitors who later run the films.

HART’S FIRST ARTCRAFT FILM WILL OFFER STAR IN NEW TYPE DRAMA

C. Gardner Sullivan Is Author of Story Which Will Be Novel; Ince to Direct

The past week has been a very busy one for Thomas H. Ince and William S. Hart, who accompanied Ince into the Artcraft fold. The name of the first Ince-Hart-Artcraft drama is not yet announced, but it is said to be a story of an entirely different type from anything in which Hart has recently appeared. C. Gardner Sullivan, who has provided the star with so many of his best-known vehicles, is the author of the piece, so it is reported.

PLANS ARE OUTLINED

The executive committee shall be composed of the presidents of the charters, and a plan will be inaugurated by which a referendum of votes by mail may be taken on urgent questions.

Working with a national organizer, who will be selected by a committee under the general manager and headed by Frank J. Remus, a nation-wide campaign soon will be started to increase the membership of the new organization.

While Fred J. Herrington has not yet been picked as organizer, it is expected that he will be the man to fill the position, owing to his national acquaintance with theater owners and his knowledge of conditions in the exhibition branch of the trade.

DON’T SELL MUTILATED FILM UNTIL WAR ENDS, U. S. PLEA; GERMAN BUYERS ACTIVE

W. W. Irwin Warns Kaiser’s Men Are Purchasing Material at Big Prices to Use in Manufacture of High Explosives

Government officials have requested every representative motion picture producer and distributor in the country to refrain from selling mutilated motion picture films to any person whatsoever until after the termination of the war. Every big producer in the country has agreed to co-operate with the government in this matter.

During the recent convention of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry in Chicago, Walter W. Irwin, general manager of V. L. S. E., notified his colleagues that information had come to him which tended to prove that Germany and the central powers had agents in this country who were attempting to corner the market on old and mutilated films which they were using for the manufacture of high explosives.

It is said these German agents have offered as high as forty-two cents a pound for old films as against the usual price of eighteen cents a pound. The basis of motion picture films being gun cotton they are highly valuable in making nearly all high explosives.

Mabel Normand signed a contract with Goldwyn last fall and came east in May to begin work. Temporary differences, now fortunately adjusted by Gabriel L. Hess, general counsel for Goldwyn, and Arthur Butler Graham, counsel for Miss Normand, delayed the beginning of her work, but during the intervening time Goldwyn did not hold up its plans for its star. A great amount of literary material had been purchased from authors, and the scenario department of Goldwyn buckled down to the preparation of her first two pictures.

RAISE PRICES TO 15c, FREULER TELLS EXHIBITORS

Public Should and Is Willing to Pay More for Cinema Amusement, Says Mutual Chief; Standards of Productions Warrant Advance; Tells Theater Men to Improve Exhibition Conditions.

The time is here for a general price-raising movement among the exhibitors conducting theaters with a 10-cent admission. A great many of these theaters are giving a great deal more than 10 cents' worth of amusement. Their costs of operation have considerably increased, and the standards of film production have vastly improved since the day when the 10-cent price became general. The public ought to pay more, and it is willing to pay more.

There was a time in the early history of the motion picture when the public was glad to see a one-reel show for a 5-cent admission. Now for only twice the money the public can see about a hundred times as much amusement on the screen, under better conditions, in a better house, with better projection, and the 15-cent price that the exhibitor should be getting now is more available than the nickel was then.

Ten-Cent Prices Are Passing

When I consider the big investment that is being made at the studios supplying the Mutual Film Corporation with its star productions, and the studios of some of our worthy competitors, and when I consider the products of their big, capable institutions, the strong box office power of the best of the present-day stars—Mary Miles Minter, Charles Chaplin, Ann Harding, Mary Pickford, Juliette Day, William Russell, Douglas Fairbanks, Julia Sanderson, Marguerite Clark, Olive Tell, Garl Kane, Margarita Fischer and such screen personalities— I am convinced that the 10-cent theater is rapidly passing into the past along with its busy predecessor, the "5-cent show."

The exhibitor will find little difficulty in increasing his price to 15 cents if he will only make an effort to make his show look like the money's worth. That is largely up to the exhibitor. The same pictures that run on Broadway in New York for prices around 50 cents a seat are being shown elsewhere at prices from 10 cents on up. The pictures are the same, but the presentation makes the difference. A new coat of paint, comfortable seats, music, fresh air, cut flowers and a little politeness along with the advertising will easily make the difference between a 15-cent house and a 10-cent house.

Adopt Straight Fifteen-Cent Price

It will also prove a much better policy to put in a straight 15-cent admission price than to follow the line which some exhibitors have adopted of putting in an occasional special day with a 25-cent admission. The public likes to know what it is going to pay when it starts for the show, not when it gets to the window. The special price for a special show, in a neighborhood house particularly, is as destructive of goodwill and patronage as the old practice among 5-cent houses which used to hang up a 10-cent sign when they were "holding them out."

The general application of a 15-cent admission price will be easier, of course, when it can be paid in one piece of money with a 15-cent piece. The Mutual Film Corporation originated the idea of a special 15-cent coin, made particularly for the benefit of the motion picture industry. The idea is growing in favor, and if the exhibitors of the country will help the thing along by writing to their congressional representatives it will be a simple matter to get the necessary legislation. This movement will have the advantage of incurring no foes, as did the movement some years ago for a recoinage of the 3-cent piece.

Always Favored an Increase

I have been a consistent advocate of the steady increase of the admission price for the motion picture theater from the beginning. It is pleasant at this time to point back to the time when, at the launching of "The Diamond from the Sky," we inaugurated a campaign for the general institution of a 10-cent admission price. That campaign succeeded admirably. The new 10-cent houses steadily pulled patronage away from the 5-cent houses. The increased price carried a suggestion of higher quality which took with the public.

I remember at that time I said to the exhibitors of the country in a book entitled "How to Increase Your Box Office Receipts": "Be sure to make your show look like a quarter's worth when you ask for a dime." The same rule holds good today. Make it look like more. Treat your show as though you think it better and you will have the public convinced. Ten cents is not enough money for a seat at the representative motion picture theater today. Get fifteen.

SIX FIVE-REELERS, AND MANY LESHER FILMS UNDER WAY MAKE UNIVERSAL'S BUSIEST MONTH

Big Features Started Within Space of Ten Days; Many Well Known Stars and Players to Appear in Forthcoming Pictures

July proved to be the busiest month from the standpoint of productions that Universal City has known in many months. Within a space of ten days, six different five-reel productions were started under the direction of Elsa Jane Wilson, Jack Ford, W. B. Pearson, Ruth Ann Baldwin, L. W. Chaudet and George Marshall.

"Hidden Treasure" is the title of the play that has been assigned Miss Wilson. The principal parts will be taken by Zoe Rae, Gretchen Lederer, Frank Brownlee, Charles West and Lillian Peacock.

Harry Carey in Drama

Jack Ford will direct Harry Carey and Edythe Sterling in a big drama of the cattle country. The working title of the production is "The Round-Up." Both as author and director, W. B. Pearson has put his best efforts into "Gold Dust," an adventure story in which he is now filming Eileen Sedgwick, Fred Church, George McDaniel and other capable players. In this film Miss Sedgwick is thrown into a cage of lions.

Ruth Stonehouse has been given a part fitted to her personality in "A Gentle Ill Wind," now in course of production. Lloyd Whitlock will appear opposite Miss Stonehouse.

Story of New West

"The Bumble Bee" is the rather pointed title of the new West in which Neal Hart will be presented.

In addition to the full length features, Lee Moran, Eddie Lyons, Max Ascher, Gale Henry and William Franey have completed comedies, while Jacques Jaccard has practically finished three entire episodes for "The Quest of Columbia." Universal's new mystery serial, starring Marie Walcamp.
WORLD PROGRAM SYSTEM PROVES ITS VALUE AT CHICAGO EXPOSITION, SAYS BRADY

Alice Brady, June Elvidge and Carlyle Blackwell Literally Mobbed, Declares Producer, Because of Popularity Gained on Distribution Plan Now in Use

"If ever my mind had carried a shadow of doubt regarding the program system as the survival of the fittest, Chicago would have dispelled that fleeting shadow for all time," declared Director General William A. Brady of World-Pictures, following his return from the convention and exposition. Resuming, Mr. Brady said:

"Until the day set aside for us, the Coliseum had been full, but not uncomfortably so. In the daytime the big edifice had been sparsely occupied, and at night only fairly full. On World-Pictures day the crowds began to move as soon as the doors were opened, and by 3 o'clock in the afternoon the assembled multitude was setting up a clamor for our stars.

Stars Discovered

"My daughter Alice and June Elvidge wandered into the building informally, thinking they could slip through the throng without being recognized and 'take in the sights.' Of course they were discovered before long, and there was no denying the demands for their appearance upon the platform, in spite of the plan which had been laid out for none of our stars to be introduced until night.

"When Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge and Alice Brady arrived at 8:30 that evening they had to be smuggled in through a side entrance, because the regular avenues were choked with men, women and children.

"The enthusiasm with which the world's stars were received was such that it will never be forgotten by any of those present, and after the reception, if you wanted to locate Miss Elvidge, Mr. Blackwell or Miss Brady you had to do was to look at the spot or spots where the people were jammed in so they could not move.

"Now comes the most remarkable part of the narrative. We did not decide to send any of our stars to Chicago until the day before the exposition opened. It is a serious business matter to pause in the making of so much as a single picture, and at our stars work all the time in our plan of efficiency, the visit of three World artists meant the stopping of three pictures.

Program Is Effective

"Thus we broke every record of attendance and attention by a wide margin, and the only way I can account for it is upon the theory that the stars on a thoroughly well-established program, appearing before the same audiences every week or oftener, in a great number of theaters, establish a popularity enormously outstanding that of the overpaid stars of special features coming around once in a while—sometimes with a success and sometimes without."

DOROTHY DALTON BECOMES PARAMOUNT STAR; TO APPEAR IN EIGHT FILMS YEARLY UNDER INCE

Actress Follows Charles Ray and Enid Bennett, Who Will Be Directed by Noted Producer in Features on New Program

Another Thomas H. Ince star has been added to those already announced by the producer as following him in his new affiliation with Paramount. Mr. Ince has announced, in a message to the Paramount offices in New York, that Dorothy Dalton's name is to be added to those of Charles Ray and Enid Bennett as Ince stars to appear in pictures hereafter to be published exclusively through Paramount. There will be eight Dorothy Dalton pictures scheduled by Paramount.

The announcement places the name of Dorothy Dalton in the list of Paramount stars along with Marguerite Clark, Pauline Frederick, Billie Burke, Lisa Calvallini, Julian Eltinge, Enid Bennett, Jack Pickford, Vivian Martin, Wallace Reid, Charles Ray, Sessue Hayakawa, George Beban and others.

Miss Dalton, by the terms of the new arrangement, will continue under the direction of Mr. Ince, through whom she has achieved film fame. Pictures made under his directions and with Miss Dalton as star will be published regularly by Paramount.

EXHIBITORS BEAT $500 THEATER TAX IN LONDON, ONT.

London, Ont.—A special committee, composed of members of the city council of London, Ont., had their plans frustrated by that civic body when their recommendation to tax the motion picture theaters of London $500 was defeated by the council. The maximum theater tax was placed at $200. The fight was backed by exhibitors.

J. H. Flock, lawyer, representing the grand and Majestic theaters, appeared before the council to plead the cause of the motion picture men of London. The original recommendation of the committee was that theaters be charged a license fee of $100 for all under 500 seating capacity, $200 for less than 1,000 seating capacity, $400 for less than 1,500 seating capacity, and $500 for more than 1,500 seating capacity.

Mr. Flock declared that the fees represented an increase of more than $50 per cent, as all theaters pay only $80 per year. He stated that the Grand theater is being taxed $430 annually in licenses and that only one other city in Ontario now charges more than $100 per year.

"You are anxious to get industries to the city," declared Mr. Flock; "I think you should show consideration to those which are here."

Mr. Flock's endeavors were evidently instrumental in jolting the proposed stringent tax.

GUY McCONNELL, FILM PRODUCER AND WRITER, MADE DIRECTOR-GENERAL OF WHOLESOME CORP.

Penny Philanthropist Story Now in Production; Work on Serial Soon Will Start; Stories Will Be Clever, Clean and Realistic

Guy McConnell, widely known as motion picture producer, and a magazine writer of note, has joined Wholesome Films Corporation in the capacity of director-general. McConnell’s genius will guide the continuity of production of all Wholesome objects.

Wholesome Films already has begun production, under Mr. McConnell’s direction, of “The Penny Philanthropist” by Clara E. Laughlin, alp Morgan of the “Turn to the Right” Company, has been cast in the leading masculine role. Production is to begin soon, M. J. Weisfeldt, general manager, announces, on a serial picture from McConnell’s pen.

Fifty Leading Writers

The basic idea of Wholesome Films, of which the company’s name itself indicative, is proving a Mecca for leading lights in film and literary circles. Mr. Weisfeldt declares that more than fifty leading writers have already agreed to bring their pen creations to Wholesome for production.

“The Wholesome Films idea,” asserted Guy McConnell, “has long appealed to me. I have wanted to be identified with just such an ‘uplift’ move in motion pictures. Now, as director-general of Wholesome Films Company, I shall bend my every effort to an accurate mirroring on the screen of the author’s point of view. In no way will the works of recognized authors be sullied by cheap shills injected by directors—in no way will false action be thrust upon the motion picture public in order to put the so-called ‘punch’ in mediocre stories.

WHEREIN A THEATER MGR. GIVES PATRONS SOME SOUND ADVICE

Manager Charles H. Ryan of the Garfield Theater, 2844 Madison street, Chicago, has distributed cards to his patrons as follows:

Don’t Growl—Kick Talk with anybody in the management of an institution that serves the public and you will find the average American will growl, but he seldom complains. When something is wrong he will argue the matter with a ticket seller, usher or doorman. They have no authority to set things right. The public will not go to the trouble of sending an orderly complaint to the management. An intelligent complaint will often clear up difficulties for you. You must know how to gather yourself for a kick and how to land it in the right place.

PEDRO DE CORDOBA IS LEADING MAN IN FIRST ELSIE FERGUSON FILM

Noted Actor of Stage and Screen to Support Star in “Barbary Sheep” for Artcraft

The supporting cast selected for Elsie Ferguson, Artcraft star, in her first picture production, “Barbary Sheep,” is headed by Pedro De Cordoba, an actor well known to patrons of stage and screen. As Miss Ferguson’s leading man in the Robert Hichens play he has the role of Benchahal, an officer of Algerian cavalry, infatuated with the wife of an English nobleman who pays too much attention to big game hunting and not enough to his beautiful better half.

He has had a wide experience in Shakespearean roles, was in the original New Theater company, and has had leading parts in a variety of Broadway successes. He appeared in “The Wanderer” last season. He was prominent in the support of Geraldine Farrar in three productions: “Carmen,” “Temptation” and “Maria Rosa.”

EMERSON CUTS AND ASSEMBLES FAIRBANKS NEW FILM WHILE ON WAY TO NEW YORK

With 10,000 feet of the new Douglas Fairbanks- Artcraft production, “Come Down to Earth,” under his arm, Director John Emerson and Billy Shea, head of the assembling department, have left San Francisco for New York, to be gone three weeks. Emerson is cutting and titling this Fairbanks production while en route to New York.

In order that they have all the facilities of the studio cutting room, arrangements were completed with Mr. Hoppe of the Santa Fe Railroad to remove three Fairbanks drawing rooms and grant the carpenters a free hand in making these rooms practical for Emerson and his associates.

While in New York Emerson will discuss some big stories with recognized screen authors.

NEXT EDGAR LEWIS FILM, IN PRODUCTION, WILL ARRIVE IN N. Y. EARLY IN AUGUST

Mysterious Picture Promises Many Surprises, Announces Charles "Feature" Abrams; Many Noted Players Will Appear in Large Cast

The next Edgar Lewis picture promises many surprises, Charles "Feature" Abrams of the firm of Abrams-Rossman, announces. Mr. Lewis expects to return to New York with his picture completed early in August.

In spite of the secrecy surrounding the next special Edgar Lewis picture, which now is being completed at Ticonderoga, N. Y., enough news has reached Broadway to cause speculation in film circles as to the nature of the film.

Has Many Noted Players

Although Mr. Lewis has been working on his new production for two months and has had his large company assembled at Ticonderoga for more than six weeks, the only definite news received is that Mitchell Lewis, Hedda Nova, Victor Sutherland, William A. Williams and Ray Chamberlain, members of "The Bar Sinister" cast, and Mabel Scott and Edward Rossman, who played prominent parts in "The Barrier," including Joseph Heron, Philip Sanford, William Cavanaugh and Juanita and Alberta Mezner, will also be seen in the coming drama. The nature of the story and its title have never been mentioned and still are guarded, but Charles "Feature" Abrams, who visited the Edgar Lewis Company recently, managed to get some news of the production.

According to Mr. Abrams, a town consisting of twenty-seven buildings has been built by Mr. Lewis on the edge of a beautiful lake, three miles northwest of Ticonderoga. A church, a dance hall, a Hudson Bay Company post, a Northwest Mounted Police station and even a Chinese laundry are among the structures erected, and the natives of that section of the country have named the village after its creator, calling it Fort Lewis.

Will Finish in August

The photography is under the personal supervision of Edward Earl, who has selected the Craftsman Film Laboratories to do the printing and developing under the personal supervision of Charles Herlman.

TWO BIG ESSANAY FEATURES FOR AUGUST AND SEPTEMBER SHOWING AT K-E-S-E OFFICES

"Open Places," a Western, with Jack Gardner, to Be Issued to Exhibitors August 20, Followed by "Efficiency Edgar's Courtship" September 3

Trade showings of two Essanay feature productions now are being offered at branch offices of the K-E-S-E service. One is "Open Places," the third of the Essanay Western series, in which Jack Gardner, the former musical comedy star, is being featured. This photodrama will be issued August 20. The second production is that in which Taylor Holmes, the stage comedian, is to make his screen debut. This is a comedy-drama entitled "Efficiency Edgar's Courtship," and will be issued September 3.

"Open Places" Is Novel

"Open Places" presents the adventures of a little New England schoolman who attempts to teach the "wild and woolly" West its A B C's. In the little town of Rawhide, Mont., on the Canadian boundary, she meets a typical bad man and, impressed by his picturesque appearance, weds him. He will not die by a duel in which her husband slays another man and is forced to flee across the boundary to escape justice. A year passes, in which the little school teacher gradually grows interested in Constable Calhoun, the Canadian Mounted Police. The dramatic climax comes when, as their acquaintance has ripened into mutual love, the bad man turns up again to claim his wife. The picture has a screen time approximately of sixty-five minutes. Rut King and Carl Stockdale head the supporting company.

Holmes in Subtle Comedy

Taylor Holmes has been given the same type of subtle comedy characterization in his first picture which made "His Majesty, Bunker Bean," "The Third Party," "The Million" and other of his stage successes so popular. The story, written by Clarence Budington Kelland and published in the Saturday Evening Post, presents the actor in the role of an efficiency expert who seeks to win the love of a girl by the application of modern business methods. To more successfully compete with his chief rival, who plays a guitar, he purchases a saxophone. Efficiency was out for him. Virginia Valli takes the leading feminine role. "Efficiency Edgar's Courtship" has a screen time of sixty-eight minutes.

PAULINE FREDERICK TO STAR IN "HUNGRY HEART," ADAPTED FROM A NOVEL

Widely Read David Graham Phillips Story Rights Purchased for Screen Version by Lasky Concern

An announcement of importance was made this week by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, that "The Hungry Heart," by David Graham Phillips, has been accepted for Paramount and will be produced in photoplay form with Pauline Frederick in the leading role.

The book was published in 1909 after running serially in one of the popular magazines and became one of the six best sellers of that year and the next. Phillips was believed to have reached the top point of his literary work in "The Hungry Heart." Its heroine, sketched by Phillips from real life, presented a remarkable character of young American womanhood living in an age which made incessant and heavy demands on the nervous makeup of women of all classes.

The scenario has been written by Eve Unsell. It starts, as does the book, with the wedding of Courtney Benedict (played by Miss Frederick) to Richard Vaughn. The depiction of Courtney as a vivid personality, magnetic, charming, highly vitalized girl, is in line with the best efforts of Miss Frederick's past work in motion pictures.

GOLDWYN TRADE SHOWINGS IN CHICAGO

BRING CONTRACTS FROM BIG EXHIBITORS

Goldfish and Weiss Hold Second Exhibition in Boston; Philadelphia Scheduled Next Week; Many Theater Owners in Larger Cities Are Signed

Goldwyn's first and only trade showing, held last week in Chicago, resulted in many contracts for Goldwyn pictures with some of the nation's biggest exhibitors.

This trade showing, at which only two of the Goldwyn productions were projected, produced many surprises. One morning during the convention an invited group of exhibitors from all sections of the country saw Madge Kennedy in "Baby Mine," her first Goldwyn picture, and at the conclusion applauded. After luncheon the same group of guests saw Mae Marsh in a Goldwyn production which has not yet been announced by name to the public.

As a result of the Chicago showing contracts were signed with Robert Leiber, for the Circle Theater, Indianapolis; Edward A. Zorn, for the Temple Theater, Toledo; William Sievers, New Grand Central Theater, St. Louis; William Flynn, for the Twelfth Street Theater, Kansas City, and Nathan Ascher, for his twelve Chicago theaters.

Other important contracts, covering a score of the larger cities, have been signed within the week by exhibitors without the necessity of trade showings.

Samuel Goldfish, president of Goldwyn, and Alfred Weiss, vice president, held, a second trade showing in Boston last Friday in conjunction with Harry F. Campbell, manager of Goldwyn's Boston offices. Exhibitors throughout the territory were present by invitation.

Philadelphia will have its trade showing early next week, and similar showings are being announced for all of the Goldwyn offices in the United States and Canada.

J. C. GREEN, VETERAN EXHIBITOR, SECURES "GREAT WHITE TRAIL" FOR CANADA AND ALASKA

Will Exploit Feature from Wharton's Canadian Features Offices in Galt, Ont.; Will Co-operate with Theater Owners in Showing Film

John C. Green, the veteran showman, exhibitor and film exploiter of Galt, Canada, has purchased all the Canadian and Alaskan rights for the new Wharton super-feature of the North, "The Great White Trail." The deal was concluded in Ithaca last week when Mr. Green, in company with business partners, made a trip to the Wharton studios and signed the contracts which made the territories of Canada and Alaska his. Mr. Green has opened offices in the Temple building, Galt, Ont., and will operate under the name of Whartons' Canadian Features. He is to begin distribution within a week or so.

Mr. Green has been in the motion picture business in the United States and Canada practically since the first films were shown. He was one of the first men in this country to exploit pictures upon what is known now as state rights, but which was called in its embryonic stages "wildcatting."

"I'm going to try to give the Canadian and Alaskan exhibitors the best deal they ever have had," he says. "That goes for everything connected with the picture, from the print on down, and it includes everything from price to service. I am a stickler for taking care of the exhibitor, for the simple reason that I have been an exhibitor myself and I know what should be done for him. And having all the knowledge of what I would like to have done for me as an exhibitor, why should I not carry it out in my dealings with the men who book 'The Great White Trail.'"

STEGER WILL SCREEN "JUST A WOMAN," FROM EUGENE WALTER'S PLAY

Miss Charlotte Walker, Who Starred in Stage Version, Cast in Title Role

Eugene Walter's well-known play "Just a Woman" will be produced as a photodrama by Julius Steger in association with Lee Shubert and Joseph M. Schenck.

Miss Charlotte Walker will be the star, playing the title role which she created in the original stage version, and she will be supported by an excellent cast, headed by Lee Baker. The production will be under the personal direction of Julius Steger and Joseph A. Golden.

SHARKEY AND LAUDER ARE SPENDTHRIFTS IN COMPARISON TO THIS PHOTOPLAY COMEDIAN

The stories of the mouse that built its nest in Tom Sharkey's pocketbook, of Harry Lauder waiting until it came his turn to buy a drink at the bar and then inviting his friends to his hotel room where he had a bottle, and of Charles Chaplin's saving habits are known to a large number of persons, but James Aubrey, the eccentric picture comedian short to appear in a series of two-reel supercomedies under the management of Arthur N. Smallwood, takes the prize for economy.

Mr. Aubrey denies vehemently that he still has the first dollar he ever earned, but admits that his actual needs are small and that he saves his money. His strongest vices consist of drinking lemonade and smoking an occasional cigarette. He presides over his own bachelor apartment, and when he does cut out, the "nickel in the slot" automatic restaurant is his favorite.

"Merely one or two nickels dropped in a slot, and anything from a fried egg to a piece of lemon meringue pie or a cup of coffee will be forthcoming. The demand for ice tea these warm days has caused the restaurant management to have a compartment set aside where anyone desiring ice tea may get a glass containing a lump of ice and a piece of lemon. There is no charge for the tea, but to get the tea a nickel must be deposited in the slot. Aubrey's favorite drink, it appears, is not ice tea, but lemonade; so he uses the lemons and the ice, helps himself to water and sugar, and makes his own lemonade without cost."

This latest economy, he figures, saves him about 60 cents a day, and if the lemons hold out all summer should enable him to buy an additional Liberty Bond.

Toronto, Ont.—Many of the largest theaters in the province of Ontario have booked the Goldwyn pictures for the coming year. The Regent Theater has obtained the first run on these pictures in Toronto, and the Patricia Theater, the newest London house, has also contracted with Goldwyn.

CORONA COMPANY SOON TO START NEW FEATURE; TO FILM NOTED WRITER'S WORKS

The Corona Cinema Company, producers of "The Curse of Eve," is making preparations to soon begin the production of another big state rights feature.

For the past several weeks negotiations have been under way toward the culmination of a deal which will place this company in the top ranks among the producers of feature pictures.

It is understood that an agreement has been reached between Corona and one of America's foremost novelists which will give this company the exclusive picture rights to all of his works. He will have an active connection with the producers in such a capacity that will enable him to assist in the supervision of the filming of his works.

Negotiations now are pending with a well-known feature director for his services covering a period of two years.

ESSANAY TO STAR MARY McALISTER IN "PANTS," HER FIRST FIVE-REELER, SCHEDULED SEPT. 10

Initial Feature with Child-Actress Will Contrast Life of Conventional Little Rich Girl to that of Other Children

Essanay is filming little Mary McAlister, its child star, in a five-part comedy-drama, the title of which is "Pants."

"Pants" will be the first feature production in which the little actress takes the leading role. However, President Spoor of Essanay believes her past successes have created a demand for her in something bigger.

The story presents the contrast between the life of a rich little girl, hemmed in by prudery governnesses, and that of other children who, though poorer, enjoy the full freedom which childhood needs. While the important roles essentially are played by children, the story carries such realism that it will form a picture equally as enjoyable to adults as to children. Such is proving the case with the "Do Children Count?" series, written by the same author. No attempt is being made at a preaching in the feature.

In the company supporting little Mary are John Cossar, Arthur Metcalfe, Mary Parkin, Arthur Keppe, Marion Skinner, as well as numerous children.

The picture will have a screen time approximately of sixty-five minutes. The picture will be published through K-E-S-F on September 10.

"THE WOMAN GOD FORGOT" IS FIRST FARRAR PICTURE FOR ARTCRAFT, GREENE ANNOUNCES

Film Will Be Colorful and Powerful Drama of Aztec Life, Introducing Historic Character of Montezuma and Splendors of His Court

That the first picture made by Geraldine Farrar as an Artcraft star will be far out of the beaten track, and on an unusual scale of production, is the statement that comes from Walter E. Greene, president of Artcraft Pictures Corporation.

"The title of the picture," says Mr. Greene's announcement, "will be 'The Woman God Forgot.' It is a colorful and powerfully dramatic story of Aztec life, introducing the historic character of Montezuma and revealing the splendors of his court. Jeanie Macpherson, whose great patriotic play for Mary Pickford, 'The Little American,' has made her the most talked about screen writer in America today, is the author of 'The Woman God Forgot,' and it will have the personal direction of Cecil B. DeMille.

"Mr. DeMille and a staff of research experts have been at work for many weeks preparing data for effects and costumes, and we expect the cost of the big special settings which will be built to run into figures which might be considered excessive if they did not pertain to so magnificent and important a production."

"Among the special sets is a tropical jungle, containing a lake for water fowl, the whole fenced and covered with over 10,000 feet of wire netting, to prevent the escape of the animals and birds."

NEW PROJECTION DEVICE INVENTED WHICH CUTS COST

Oscar Scheck of Cleveland Perfects New Idea to Increase Quality of Work

The latest idea in the way of improving projection and saving cost of operating motion picture machines has been invented by Oscar Scheck of Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. Scheck's patent is a device for attaching a mazda incandescent lamp to the projection machine, which heretofore depended entirely upon carbon arc lights, and which materially reduces the cost of operating as well as increases the quality of the projection.

Mr. Scheck is a lighting engineer and has had the appliance tested in several Cleveland theaters for more than a year. According to reports, it has proven highly satisfactory.

INDIANA SONG HIT IS INTRODUCED IN FILM BY THE UNIVERSAL CO.

The latest "song hit in photoplay" number to be featured by Universal in co-operation with Watson, Berlin & Snyder is "Indiana," which will be presented by Claire Rochester, well known to vaudeville's audiences. It has a swinging, military air, easy to march to, and the words of the lyric, while exploiting the special charms of the good, old Hoosier state, can be twisted to fit almost any regiment. Many of the troops embarking for France have secured copies of "Indiana," and it is expected that the special photoplay featuring the song will prove equally popular.
M. H. HOFFMAN OFFERS EXHIBITORS TRADE PLAN FOR ELIMINATION OF MIDDLEMEN

Concern Seeks Prominent Theater Owners as Representatives in Territories to Take Place of Four Square Service Stations

The progressiveness of M. H. Hoffman, Inc., has been shown in a number of important ways, but in none to a greater extent than in the stand taken to deal with exhibitors in such a manner eliminating all middlemen.

“Our organization,” says Mr. Hoffman, “serves in the capacity either as producers, distributors or world rights buyers, and sells direct to exhibitors through its Foursquare service stations. In this manner all the waste which commonly arises through any method of distribution is not only that of what is in fact or practice, direct from manufacturer to consumer.

Exhibitors Get Offer

“According to the Hoffman distribution plan through its Foursquare service stations, exhibitors are to be given the full benefit of these financial savings. What is more, M. H. Hoffman, Inc., intends to see that the exhibitor gets the benefit of these savings.

“We seek prominent, reputable exhibitors to represent us in every territory, and wherever it is possible to effect such an arrangement such exhibitor will take the place of a Foursquare service station. M. H. Hoffman, Inc., invites communication from exhibitors of enviable reputation, and such exhibitors who write informing us what radius of territory each one covers will find us ready to make an arrangement of the sort that will be gratifying to all exhibitors in each territory. Where there is an organization of exhibitors M. H. Hoffman, Inc., will avail itself of the opportunity to deal direct with it, and where it is advisable we will place men and Foursquare service stations at the disposal of such an organization.

Aim to Cut Finance Waste

“What M. H. Hoffman, Inc., is aiming to do is to eliminate the financial waste in distribution, which at the present time is a freight tariff which exhibitors are unjustly asked to pay. All that our organization seeks to make in the way of profits is a portion of the saving which we shall effect in eliminating waste in the distribution end of this business.”

J. B. MAXWELL MADE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF PARALTA; ANDERSON CREATES OFFICE

Will Have Charge of Efficiency Branch and Compute Cost of Productions; Widely Known for Many Vaudeville Successes

Carl Anderson, president of Paralta Plays, Inc., took another important forward step this week by creating a new office in motion picture production—the executive director.

This functionary will be an all-powerful man in the Paralta management and will be subject only to the action of the board of directors. He will have general supervision of efficiency men, for it is the purpose of Paralta to carry its investigations to their ultimate conclusion and to subject the production end of the industry to the same scrutiny that was applied to distribution and exhibition.

Mr. Anderson and the executive committee of the board of directors of Paralta appointed Joseph B. Maxwell to the position.

Mr. Maxwell is known to the theatrical profession as "Joe." He has been for many years widely known as the greatest producer of feature vaudeville acts in this country and has accumulated a fortune in this branch of constructive amusement enterprise. In the development of this work he has maintained a small private theater for rehearsals and a costume department, and has managed his business on lines of such great efficiency and economy that he has attracted the attention of the entire theatrical profession.

The appointment of Mr. Maxwell to the position of executive director of Paralta is in line with the policy of this company to fill all executive positions with experienced theatrical men of high standing.

Mr. Maxwell is one of those practical minds who cannot see why a picture that is scheduled to cost $50,000 on liberal estimates should show a cost of $65,000 to $70,000 or more when the balance sheet is struck.

He and other experienced producers of big theatrical enterprises believe that motion picture production can be brought down to a financial system just as certainly as the construction engineer can sell, almost to the dollar, what a sixteen-story building will cost.

Mr. Maxwell will make his headquarters in New York, but he will spend much of his time on the coast, where he will do a great deal of investigating to establish a system of cost computation in relation to picture production. He also will go deeply into exhibition, his long experience as a showman making this branch of the industry particularly interesting to him.

SEVEN GAUMONT MEN NOW ARE IN U. S. ARMY

Six Gaumont men are in government service as members of the Tenth Regiment, New York, and one is at the camp for officers at Plattsburg; yet the American headquarters of the Gaumont Company at Flushing must make a further contribution to the draft. Eight Gaumont men have draft numbers near the top of the list that they will be called upon to serve unless exemptions are allowed. These are Frank H. Mayer, Charles Francis Ward, Frank Eugene Bellese, Charles Merkle, Harold William Lewis, John Schafer, Lawrence D'Armour and John Diviny.

Toronto, Ont.—Mr. Pomeroy, manager of the Photodrome Theater here, has announced that he intends to make use of the two extra floors in his building which have not been occupied. He will make a dance hall out of the upper floor and a barber shop out of the lower floor. In this way he will lower the expenses of the theater and make use of valuable unused space.

Sir Arthur Wing Pinero didn’t write “The Amazons” specially for the screen. Nevertheless the photodramatization of the comedy makes delightful motion picture entertainment, and no exhibitor who is looking for the est in pictures can afford to let it pass unbooked.

Marguerite Clark, the diminutive star, romps through the five reels dressed as a boy and furnishes most of the in. No one can play these roles quite like Miss Clark, here is an amusing boxing scene in the second reel, in which Clark knocks out one of the boys, who is twice her size.

The cast includes Elsie Lawson and Helen Greene as Villie and Noel. William Hinckley as Lord Litterly, Helen Robinson as the Marchioness of Castlejordan, Edar Norton as Lord Tennyson, and Andre Bellon as De Grival. The picture was directed by Joseph Kaufman.

The story: Disappointed that their three children are girls instead of boys, they are brought up as boys by the Marchioness of Castlejordan, and no males are allowed within the walls of the estate. Their antics upset the villagers and cause considerable gossip. Tommy, the youngest, is sent to London to visit relatives. He slips away from the house dressed in gentleman’s evening clothes and visits a dance hall. Here she encounters a cockney bully and in self-defense knocks him down. Escaping from the theater, he jumps into the cab of Lord Litterly, who takes her home, and a warm friendship springs up between them. Later the lord is instrumental in saving her from a fall from a runaway horse. Her two sisters arrange a meeting with two men in the gymnasium one evening. Tommy climbs through a skylight and “drops in” on Lord Litterly who, also, happens to be bringing a message to a maid. The marchioness discovers the trio and, seeing that her girls will be girls, she gives them her blessing, and a triple wedding follows.

"Skinner’s Baby," the third of the Essanay “Skinner” series, will be welcomed with open arms. It introduces another member of the “Skinner” family, near the end, a dear little nite of humanity, around whose coming the whole story is woven. There are innumerable other youngsters in the picture, enough to satisfy anybody.

"AN EVEN BREAK"

Triangle Distributing Company; five parts; published July 22

As a whole: Delightful Story: Intense
Support: Charming Settings: Splendid
Photography: Excellent

“An Even Break” is a Triangle picture. Hence it is characteristic with its exquisite photography, careful direction, capable cast and clean, sweet story with suspense and thrills as well as real human heart-interest. Lambert Hillyer deserves honors as author and director. A clever psychological study of the aims and ambitions of childhood, starts off this fine production. The child actors are earnest and the introduction serves as a foundation for later character development.

Olive Thomas as Claire Curtis bids fair to get her dainty feet firmly planted on the altar of public opinion. Her work is refined, simple and convincing, and besides all this, she is beautiful. Two of the most attractive features of the picture are dances performed by Miss Thomas and a bevy of pretty, graceful girls. These in the gorgeous settings of modern cabarets and midnight frolics, fantastically gowned as they are, afford interest to all.
Then there are the thrills—a race against time, with Miss Thomas driving the roadster; the wreck of the pursuing car, and many other things which grip and hold.

Charles Gunn as Jimmie Strange, the inventor, heads a capable cast, which includes Margaret Thompson, Darrel Foss, Charles K. French, J. Frank Burke, Louis Durham.

Here is a program picture which will make patrons say “Bring on the whole of it.”

The story: As children Jimmie Strand and Mary and Claire state what they desire to be when they grow up. Jimmie succeeds in being the accepted inventor. Then the story starts. He comes to New York to superintend the manufacture of his machine, ordered by a firm in his home town which has accepted the drawings and expects to recoup its weakened finances by the invention. Arrived in New York, he is taken in hand by the son of Harding & Co., which concern contracts to fill the order. This concern is avaricious and decides to bankrupt Collins and include the invention in its assets. In the course of his training Jimmie is initiated into the gay life of the cabaret. The renowned little dancer Claire Curtis, loved by all but won by nobody, Jimmie discovers to be his childhood playmate from home. He accomplishes that which nobody else has done by succeeding in getting an interview with Claire, and their childhood fondness for each other is renewed. Affairs progress nicely when Mary, whom Jimmie foolishly proposes to in his first outburst of enthusiasm, appears on the scene. Claire decides that she will give Mary a fighting chance for Jimmie’s love, and she takes her in and gowns her and teaches her. Mary goes into the life that Claire lives in, and likes it so much that when Jimmie believes himself ruined, his machines destroyed and his friends bankrupt, Mary refuses to go back home and says she is going on the stage anyway.

But Claire drives him home and in the nick of time saves his machines. When she mentions that Mary will be glad, Jimmie tells her that Mary turned him down, and that if he thought he could make Claire care for him he would try. There is a happy ending.

A grand jumble of ballroom sets, stage groups, talking and nodding of heads, the arrest of two speeders, the enticing into the hands of the police an international crook, and the frustration of an attempt to murder the hero, interspersed with plenty of cynical subtitles, have been slapped together in “The Stolen Treaty.”

Perhaps if Earle Williams were given a story that held a role suitable for him he would again come into the popularity he once claimed, but until then he will continue to remain poor in the eyes of those who once held him as their favorite. Corinne Griffith, Denton Vale and Robert Gaillard are among the members of the cast.

The story deals with a Zorarian prince who comes to America to enter into some kind of a treaty. The entire affair is a secret, because the honesty of America is at stake. The Zorarians gain possession of the treaty and then demand a large sum of money before they will return it. The hero, a member of the secret service, steps in, and through his cleverness is able to again get the treaty out of the hands of the foreign prince. The Zorians plan to murder him, but they are prevented from this by the appearance of the Secretary of State.

“The Iron Ring” is a modern story of New York social life, of a young man’s climb to success and the consequent neglect of his young wife while he is chasing his elusive dollar.

It has been well produced and well acted by a cast including Arthur Ashley, Gerda Holmes and Edward Langford. Edward Langford puts the proper amount of punch into the role of Alec Hulette, while Gerda Holmes is an appealing character as Bess, his wife. Alexandra Carew plays the role of a wayward wife, Mrs. Georgie Leonardi and to Arthur Ashley is entrusted the part of Jack Delmore. The story was written by Horace Hazleton and directed by George Archainbaud. Chicago audiences at a “loop” theater enjoyed “The Iron Ring,” which is, after all, the best test a photoplay can go through.

The story: While Alex Hulette is making frequent business trips, his wife meets and forms a warm friendship for a Mrs. Leonard, a none too desirable neighbor. She also meets Jack Delmore, one of New York’s notorious clowns, and through Mrs. Leonard they plan little party during Hulette’s absence. His unexpected return precipitates the strained relations between husband and wife, but when she learns the true nature of Delmore and her character is cleared by an honest-old butler, Alex takes her into his confidence once more, and happiness reigns in the “dovecot.”

Triangle drama; five parts; published July 22

As a whole: Pleasing
Movie: Melodrama with fairy tale
Star: Mrs. McGraw, an in position Support: Picturesque Setting: Very good

"In Slumberland" is a fantastic story of a villainous Irish landlord and a little girl, who, like Peter Pan, believed in fairies.

Thelma Salter is the little girl and plays the role of Helen McCree with her usual piquant charm. Others in the cast are Laura Sears as Nora McCree, her mother; Jack Livingston as Patrick McCree, her father; Shamus, the baby; J. P. Lockney as Peter Kennedy, the landlord; and Walter Perry as Flynn, the Bogman.

The story is by L. Y. Jefferson and was directed by rvin Willat. Beautiful photography abounds and the atmosphere of the Emerald Isle is well sustained. Some beautiful sets depicting fairyland are used, and the subtitles, all in dialect, reflect care in handling and help to preserve the story's atmosphere throughout.

The story: A scheming landlord, with evil designs upon the pretty wife of Patrick McCree, succeeds in having Patrick join the queen's army for the Boer war, thus threats of arrest for a supposed murder. During his absence Kennedy presses his suit, destroys McCree's letters, and removes Nora from her husband's care. When about to be evicted the poverty stricken family is saved from the treacherous Kennedy's clutches by the return of the soldier. There is a wonderful fairy tale which runs through the narrative about the land of Belwixt and Between, told by the Bogman to little Eileen, and through the little girl's belief in fairies she finds her other, who has been attacked by Kennedy and dragged into the bushes.

Folks who like baseball stories will like "One Touch of Nature," and readers of Peter B. Kyne's Saturday Evening Post stories will find renewed enjoyment in this Edison screen version.

John Drew Bennett has the leading role and his Yale basebal athletic record stands him in good stead in this instance. Viola Cain's work as the fiery Irish maiden is excellent, while a very capable cast surrounds the two.

John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, appears in several scenes to advantage and the scenes taken at the Polo Grounds, New York City, lend the proper amount of realism to the play. Fine photography and good direction make this a fast-moving, sure-fire American comedy with a wonderful appeal.

The story: Cosgrove of Yale falls in love with a vaudeville star. His mother, who comes of a snobbish family, looks for the vaudeville performer's family in her "Who's Who" guide, but is unable to find it. Cosgrove, Sr., cannot stand for his son marrying the daughter of a plumber and there is a split in the family, the college boy being evicted. He gets a position on the New York baseball team and in the deciding game of the world's series "leans on one that goes over the fence and wins the game. Through his trusty bat a reconciliation is effected and the prodigal son and his wife and father-in-law are welcomed home.

George Beban gives another one of his unique character portrayals in "The Cook of Canyon Camp." In this Morosco production Mr. Beban is a French chef in a lumber camp, who cooks "flapjacks" with "dexterity and dispatch."

From the moment he arises from his bunk on a cold frosty morning until he is seen chasing after his bride through the woods, he never ceases throwing his arms about, kissing his fingers to the sky and gesticulating in the manner of a wild-eyed Frenchman. In fact, Mr. Beban dominates the whole story.

The photography is perfect and the direction is a credit to Donald Crisp. The story, however, is also by Mr. Crisp lacks originality, being the old theme of the husband who believes his wife untrue, made popular years ago in the song "After the Ball." Exhibitors, though, should find it an acceptable box office offering.

Supporting Mr. Beban is clever Helen Eddy as Marie, Monroe Salisbury as Silent Jack, and Florence Vidor as Mrs. Jack.

The story: Jean is the cook at Canyon Camp, a lumber settlement. He is in love with Marie, who lives across the lake, and they carry on a flirtation by means of mirrors. Silent Jack, a member of the camp, is an enigma to the industrious, happy Jean, and he finally succeeds in winning the silent man's confidence and straightens his family troubles by bringing the wife and husband together. In doing so Jean almost upsets his own love affair, but receives a check from the grateful Mr. Jack, and he and Marie patch up their differences and are married.

"Vernon, the Bountiful" is a breezy little comedy-drama of an idle, wealthy youth, who marries a chorus girl, almost loses his fortune and through his wife wins over four grouchly trustees.

The pleasing personality of Rodney La Rock vests the role of Vernon, the care-free youth, with the proper spirit, and Virginia Valli makes an excellent show girl of the musical comedy type. The tale is one of the Black Cat features.

The story: Vernon arises at 3 p.m. and calls up his chorus girl friend, while his trustees are anxiously going over his bills, a flood of which threatens to wipe out his fortune. When the trustees learn of his engagement to Hazel they try to buy her off. She thereupon marries him and his allowance being cut off he goes into partnership with a fashionable tailor and soon accumulates enough money to defy the guardians of his fortune. JAMES MAHER, EXHIBITOR-PRODUCER, OF CHICAGO NOTE, IS FILM PIONEER; STARTED IN BUSINESS 15 YEARS AGO

In the rapidly diminishing list of pioneers of the grown motion picture business a place belongs to James Maher. To him belongs the distinction of being a pioneer exhibitor of Chicago, as fifteen years ago he started the first "store show" on lower State street in that city. Afterward, in 1905, he and William H. Swanson embark in the exchange business at 79 South Clark street, Chicago. This exchange speedily became the largest concern of its kind in the world.

Started Producing Company
After selling out his Chicago theaters and film exchange he, with Bill Steiner and Herbert Miles, started the International Producing Company in New York which was the first to establish its own offices throughout the United States and Canada.

For the past few years "Jim," as he is familiar known throughout the trade, has been associated with Bill Steiner in the Photodrama Company in producing and booking their own productions. Recently disposed of his interest in the Photodrama Company, Mr. Maher has under consideration several large propositions and he is open to consider others.

Recent Films Named
"After the Ball," "The House of Bondage" and "Heddy Lamarr Made Good" are the names of some of the recent films with which Mr. Maher was identified. There is probably no better judge than he of the marketable value of films. Mail will reach him at the office of the Photodrama Company, Candler Building, No York City.
TWENTY-THREE REELS OF COMEDY, DRAMA AND NEWS FEATURES ON UNIVERSAL PROGRAM FOR AUGUST 6

Variety is the distinguishing feature of the Universal films for the week of August 6. Monday will be “Buttery Day,” as usual, signalized by the publication of “Follow the Girl,” a Western play, featuring Ruth Stonehouse and Roy Stewart. In addition, several comedies, a Western thriller with Harry Carey in the star role, three big news reels and the latest installment of “The Gray Ghost,” the mystery serial that is arousing so much interest, will be issued.

“The Soul Herder,” a Bison drama of the old frontier, is the offering for Tuesday, August 7. Harry Carey has the leading role. It concerns the regeneration of a reckless knight of the plains who, through force of circumstances, is forced to protect and later to provide for two homeless children. At the same time he is obliged to impersonate a parson, and in this guise puts over one of the most effective “sermons” ever heard in the lawless land of Buckhorn. “The Love Sleaker,” a Nestor comedy featuring Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran, will be shown the same day.

A two-reel L-Ko comedy, “The Little Fat Rascal,” leads the films for Wednesday, August 8. Merta Sterling, Phil Dunham, Al Gerald, Luella Hutton and Charles Ince take parts in this tale of the corn-fed country hero and a darkly disguised villain seeking the hand and fortune of Saucy Mert. No. 84 of the Animated Weekly will be issued on the same day, containing all the latest news incidents suitable for screen presentation.

“The Untamed” Scheduled August 9
Mary Fuller will be the star of the dramatic feature for Thursday, August 9, entitled “The Untamed.” It tells of the romance that comes into the life of a daughter of a Southern moonshiner, who finds herself thrown into contact with a young revenue officer. Events cause the course of the girl’s love to run far from smoothly. Her father is killed in a raid, but the undaunted daughter of the Blue Ridge continues to run the still alone. The proprietor of a local dance hall tries to lure her into his web, but the young revenue agent, who happens to be on hand, saves her from this sordid fate. In return, she brings him back from death’s door when he is stricken by a rattleSnake, and fate is kind to both in the end.

“O-My the Tent Mover,” a Joker comedy featuring William Franey, is scheduled for issuance with “The Untamed.” It is a brief burlesque of “Omar the Tentmaker.”

Comedy for Friday, August 10
“Like Babes in the Wood,” a two-reel Victor comedy featuring Violet MacMillan and Fred Woodward, will be issued Friday, August 10. This is a story in which the imaginative adventures of two children are depicted with appealing realism. The same day the thirty-first issue of the Universal Screen Magazine will make its appearance, filled with news and special features.

Besides a Joker comedy featuring Gale Henry and entitled “The Vamp of the Camp,” there will be a Powers humorous travelogue, entitled “Seeing Ceylon with Hy. Mayer,” issued Saturday, August 11, together with the thirteenth number of Universal Current Events.

The seventh episode of “The Gray Ghost,” the mystery serial featuring Priscilla Dean, Eddie Polo and Harry Carter, issued during the week, will be entitled “Caught in the Web.”

WALLACE REID STAR IN “THE HOSTAGE,” FIRST PARAMOUNT STAR SERIES FILM

“The Hostage,” a story of modern Europe, written by the well-known author Beulah Marie Dix, is to be the first production in which Wallace Reid will star under the new Paramount selective “star series” booking plan.

In real life Wallace Reid now is color sergeant of the Lasky Home Guards, with which he drills at least twice a week. Therefore his friends and admirers can expect to see him give a very excellent interpretation of the hero of this story, a young military officer who is held as a hostage by a neighboring country. The youth’s father, commanding an invading army, has been trapped in the mountains and forced to give the boy to the enemy as security for the good conduct of his army in retracing through the enemy lands. The general has no intention of keeping his pledge and has arranged for his son to escape from his captors at a given time. The plans miscarry, and the young man finds his life hanging upon a mere thread.

Robert Thornby, director of a number of successful Paramount pictures, is in charge of the production, which was staged at the Lasky studio in Hollywood. The cast surrounding Mr. Reid is a large one and includes a number of players who have already gained note in former Paramount productions. Camille Anckewich, Lillian Leighton, Guy Oliver, Noah Beery, Lucien Littlefield, C. H. Geldert, George Spaulding and Gertrude Short are among the important players thus included. An interesting feature of this production is the introduction of a new leading lady for Wallace Reid, in the person of Dorothy Aprill.

NORMA TALMADGE TO BE SUPPORTED BY NOTABLE CAST IN “THE MOTH,” A FORTHCOMING SELZNICK PICTURE

A notable cast will appear in support of Norma Talmadge in her newest Selznick-Picture, “The Moth,” which promises to equal her recent success, “Poppy.”

Opposite Miss Talmadge will again appear Eugene O’Brien, who has played in many stage successes with Ethel Barrymore, Frances Starr, Elsie Janis, Irene Fenchik, Margaret Illington and Kyrlle Bellows. Donald Hall is another member of the “Poppy” cast who will appear in “The Moth.” Among the feminine members of the Talmadge cast are Maud Allen and Virginia Dare.

The part of the profligate husband is played by Hassard Short, a newcomers to the screen. He is an English writer of short stories and a composer, as well as having played in “Peg o’ My Heart” with Laurette Taylor.

THE MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY," NEW THANHOUSER FILM, SOON TO BE ISSUED

“The Man Without a Country” will appear upon the screen shortly, the Thanhouser Film Corporation having just completed a multiple reel feature based upon Edward Everett Hale’s story.

Florence La Badie is featured in the production in the role of a patriotic American girl, while H. E. Herbert, a well-known Broadway actor, plays Lieutenant Nolan, the unfortunate army officer whose later years are spent as a prisoner on a naval ship.

Ernest Warde directed “The Man Without a Country,” which will have its initial showing within the next few weeks.
"GARDEN OF ALLAH" FILM MAGNIFICENT IN MYSTERY

Subtle Touch of Romance and Realism Will Cause Many to View Selig Play Again, Writes Maibelle Heikes Justice; Is Like Rich Wine in Intoxicating Effect, She Declares

While in Chicago recently, Miss Maibelle Heikes Justice, the well known writer of photoplays and novels, attended the premier presentation here of "The Garden of Allah," a Selig feature. She was so impressed with the picture that she wrote the following impressions. Her article is interesting, giving one author's view of another's supreme effort.

by MAIBELLE HEIKES JUSTICE

This is not a review of "The Garden of Allah." Others will review and pass judgment on its great merits. But this is an intimate insight into some of its mysteries—the subtle touch of romance and reality which make many an onlooker to return and view again before the intoxicating spell of the desert shall have passed from his being. Like a rich wine, one will not wish to dispel its effect. One prefers to think under a dreamy haze of the lives and tragedy of Domini Embled and Boris Androvsky. The story is one of the love classics of modern times. I do not doubt that in a hundred years from now this story will be classed with the love story of Romeo and Juliet, but while we could only read Shakespeare, we have in the pictured story of "The Garden of Allah" an epic of living photographic beauty which will last into posterity.

Tells of Mystery in Film

I have been in a great desert. When I saw "The Garden of Allah" all its deep mystery came back to me, but that mystery, always terrible in its intensity, was no better explained, the sea, the mountains, you give no such an impression. If you want to sense the bigness of the universe go into a desert on a starlit night. A million eyes watch you. The sands stretch away like rolling waves. The peaceful calm soon becomes a dreadful stillness. You grow afraid, because you are so small—but an atom it seems. I have seen a spider run over the sand, and he seemed like company. Neither you nor a coyote is startled at each other, you are both so lonesome—desert dogs are called in Egypt. Should a caravan of camels pass in the cool of the night, you watch their silhouettes as in a dream, for they are only a part of the mystery. When they have gone, you perhaps nod and sleep, but in that peace there is always mystery. The desert never explains.

And you see all of this in "The Garden of Allah." I never looked on a production like this before. You get right out of the place where you are living and in the desert wastes of Algiers. In fact, so true are the details of the production, one is in Algiers. No real travelogue of the desert, the oasis of Beni-Mora, or the life of its strange and picturesque denizens could bring you more emphatically there. Colin Campbell, the Selig director, is a wizard. For here in the picture one sees a race of wonderful and devout religion, the Mohammedan at home. The strange Sand Diviner of destiny is there, the quiet and patient camels, the insistent beggar of alms, the white-swathed figures of the Moor and the Arab, the Legion of Honor with the military touch of the French Zouaves, all give local color to this remarkable picture of Colonel Selig's.

No Detail of Story Omitted

All this, and not one detail of Robert Hichens' beautiful story is omitted. I thought as I looked on this picture, knowing the original novel so well—and its unfathomable love romance, for a man's and woman's soul are stripped and wounded unto death—what if some regular staff writer had been permitted to scenarize the book? No doubt he would have changed it to a "happy ending," when, to reach its present inevitable tragedy, Hichens, the author, used all the beautiful construction and phraseology to be found in the English language.

"I have always loved this story. Pick it up anywhere—one always wanders away in the depths of mystery, almost hearing the piper who plays the African love song of the desert—no one but God and I know what is in my heart."

I do not believe a stranger marriage than that of Boris and Domini ever took place on the screen. Amidst an absolutely realistic sandstorm these two plight their troth, which afterward only accentuated the elemental tragedy of the desert.

Santschi's Work Superb

Santschi as Boris comes into his own in this picture; his repression of the emotion rending his soul is superb. Helen Ware felt and enacted the love and renunciation of Domini as a reality—it is not acting. The same can be said of all the cast—they were a part of the desert. One remembers the wondrous language of Hichens' novel—but here it is deeper impressed upon you by the beautiful Selig photoplay. These desert scenes—never monotone—are a revelation.

I do not want to say any more. I am writing this after having viewed the picture and do not want to be awakened from its mysterious, enthralling charm. But listen to this, you who may be nurturing in your heart some hopeless love story: Go see "The Garden of Allah" and you will forget it in sympathizing with that love of Domini and Boris. It is the greatest love story of modern times.

MARY MILES MINTER WILL STAR IN A WAR FILM, "THE CALL TO ARMS"

Mary Miles Minter is engaged in a war play bearing the working title of "The Call to Arms." It deals with the ammunition smugglers and bootleggers of the border country and is the first to be written for the American Film Company, Inc., by Charles Turner Dazey, author of "In Old Kentucky." It is the second to be directed by Lloyd Ingraham in Santa Barbara, the first being "Charity Castle," completed last week. A Mexican village will be built on the studio lot; several hundred extras will be engaged in the fight scenes and regulation army machine guns will be fired.

ALICE BRADY'S NEXT WORLD DRAMA IS "BETSY ROSS," A REVOLUTION TALE

Alice Brady's next drama for World-Pictures is "Betsy Ross," founded upon the historic flag-making episode of revolutionary times. This picture play carries a touching love story, punctuated with heroism and adventure. It was written by H. A. Du Souchet from his own widely circulated novel of the same name. Mr. Du Souchet also wrote the successful stage play, "M. Friend from India."
SOULS IN PAWN," WITH GAIL KANE, A DRAMA OF INTRIGUE AND WAR, LEADS MUTUAL PROGRAM AUGUST 6

"Souls in Pawn," Gail Kane's fourth Mutual-American production, leads the list of Mutual films for the week of August 6.

"Souls in Pawn" is a story of international intrigue, in the days which immediately preceded the great European war, and in the first months of the world conflict.

Miss Kane appears in the role of a French woman high caste and wealth who, to avenge the murder of her husband, sells her soul to an alien spy-in-chief, falls in love with the buyer and gets into deep complications from the last acts of the piece she is a Red Cross nurse, and the uniform of the Red Cross becomes few women as it is in Miss Kane.

No Horrors of War

"Souls in Pawn" is not a war picture in that it shows one of the horrors of the war, and yet in a stricter sense it is a war picture, for its theme is world politics immediately before and during the war.

There are two comedies on the Mutual schedule for the week, "Jerry on the Railroad," a one-reel Cub for August 9, and "Pigs and Pears," a one-reel La Salle for August 7. There is a heavy demand for one-reel comedies, and both the Cub and La Salle brands have been booked by hundreds of exhibitors. M. De la Parelle, who is directing La Salle comedies, has struck a popular chord in his subjects, and although the first film was made only a few months ago, the brand has been booked eagerly.

Reel Life Enters New Field

Reel Life, Mutual's weekly film magazine, enters a new and novel field in its subject matter of August 9. It shows undersea pictures. E. B. Gray, noted photographer, was commissioned to get undersea pictures for Reel Life and selected the sea gardens near Miami, Fla. They are so unusual that they will stand a week's looking. The same issue of Reel Life shows a negro art museum in old Virginia; pictures R. E. Madsen, the Nebraska boy giant; shows how the human heart generates electricity, and covers a variety of other subjects, including animated cartoons from Life.

Mutual Tours Around the World for August 7 covers trip down the Senegal River in French West Africa; Tunis, an old city of Belgium, and a trip through the shing villages of France. Mutual Weekly No. 126, the four-covered topical film carrying current events up to the close of publication, reaches the screen August 8.

HERBERT BRENON'S "LONE WOLF" FILM BEATS "WAR BRIDES" BROADWAY RUN

Herbert Brenon's latest production, "The Lone Wolf," has now beaten the run of his previous successes, "War Brides," at the Broadway Theater in New York. The picturization of the Louis Joseph Vance story has gone over here to great success, and shows every indication of an encore.

RED CROSS GETS FIRST SHOWING OF SELZNICK FILM, "THE LESSON," WHICH STARS CONSTANCE TALMADGE

Lewis J. Selznick donated the first public showing of his first Constance Talmadge picture, "The Lesson," to the Long Beach branch of the American Red Cross, and it was seen by a big audience at the Hotel Nassau in New York Sunday evening, July 29.

The occasion was a benefit entertainment given by the Long Beach branch of the American Red Cross Society to raise funds for the establishment of a hospital for convalescent soldiers and sailors of the United States Army.

"The Lesson," as adapted by Charles Gilbey from the story by Virginia Terhune Van de Water, belongs to the new school of photoplays. It is the kind of picture which, by depicting scenes of real life, makes everybody live over again similar episodes in their own experience, it is said.

TEN NOTED STARS ARE MAKING FILMS FOR MUTUAL AUTUMN PUBLICATION;
ALL PRODUCTIONS IN FIVE REELS

Mutual stars are at work at the studios on nearly a score of five-reel feature productions for publication early in the fall on the Mutual schedule.

The list includes productions in which the following stars of stellar importance will appear:

Miss Minter, whose "Melissa of the Hills" has just been issued, has virtually completed "Charity Castle," the first of her productions under the direction of Lloyd Ingraham. Her next will be "Call to Arms."

William Russell has completed "Sands of Sacrifice" and has started work on "The Sea Master."

Miss Juliette Day, the new addition to the Mutual American forces, has about completed "Betty and the Buccaneers," and "The Rainbow Girl" has been selected for her second picture.

"The Unafraid" is Next

"The Unafraid" will be Miss Gail Kane's next production, following "Souls in Pawn," scheduled for publication August 6. "Southern Pride" will follow.

At the Empire studios in Glendale, L. I., Miss Ann Murdock is at work on "The Impostor."

Edna Goodrich is producing "A Daughter of Maryland," upon the completion of which it will be published with "Reputation" and "Queen X," productions already finished.

Julia Sanderson at Work

Julia Sanderson is at work on "The Runaways," which is nearly completed, and a second production has virtually been decided upon for her.

Olive Tell has started her first production at the Empire studios.

Jackie Saunders has completed "Bab the Fixer," the sixth of her star productions for Mutual made at the Horkheimer studios. "Bab the Fixer" is set for publication August 13.

Miss Margarita Fischer, because of illness, has been working slowly on her forthcoming production, "The Girl Who Couldn't Grow Up." This film will be issued early in autumn.

Charles Chaplin is producing the twelfth of his Mutual specials at the Lone Star studio near Los Angeles. It will follow "The Immigrant," which was issued June 18.

EXHIBITORS HERALD
“HELL’S BELLES,” CRACK CANADIAN SCOTS OF SOMME BATTLE FAME, FILMED IN CHICAGO

Fighters of Vimy Ridge Filmed in Marches and Ceremonies on Recruiting Trip; Films Now Ready for Theater Owners “Hell’s Belles,” new Mutual special for immediate publication, a twenty minute review of the dress parade and evolutions of the Forty-eighth Highlanders, crack Canadian regiment that fought at Vimy Ridge, constitutes one of the principle picture news features of recent issue.

The famous regiment appeared in Grant Park, Chicago, Monday morning and the Mutual’s five hundred foot picture was screened the same evening.

“Hell’s Belles” was the name given the Forty-eighth by Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, after the Scots had cut up his troops in disgraceful fashion during fighting along the Somme and in a finish battle with the bayonet at Langemarck, during which the Forty-eighth lost half its strength but wiped out three times their numbers of the enemy. The regiment has been again recruited in Canada to nearly its full strength and is shortly to return to France.

The picture shows Colonel J. S. Dennis and his staff receiving American army and navy officials and prominent Chicagoans, the salute to the United States Naval reserves, arriving to act as escort; the flag of the Seventy-first New York regiment, being carried across the continent by the visitors; the march of the Forty-eighth down Michigan Boulevard escorted by mounted police and naval reserves, and close-ups of the principal officers, Lieutenant Colonel Dennis, Lieutenant Colonel C. W. Darling, Lieutenant Alexk Sinclair, who was badly wounded at St. Julien, and other interesting personages.

BIGGEST AD AND PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN BACKS MUTT AND JEFF FILMS, SAYS FISHER

Statement Based on Fact 278 Newspapers Print Cartoons for 17,000,000 Daily Readers; Publishers Will Co-Operate with Theaters

Probably no pictures ever offered on the market have enjoyed such wide-spread popularity as the new Mutt and Jeff comedies.

Bud Fisher, president of the Bud Fisher Films Corporation, claims that the biggest advertising and publicity campaign in history stands behind these pictures. This statement is based upon the fact that 278 of the most prominent newspapers in the country print Mutt and Jeff cartoons to a daily audience of 17,000,000 persons, and also upon the fact that novel methods have been introduced by Shepard and Van Loan, his publicity agents, to stimulate relations between his exchanges and his exhibitors, and between his exhibitors and their audiences.

One new feature, which has been devised in connection with service to the exhibitors, is that the newspapers in all cities where theaters are booking these new Mutt and Jeff pictures will give publicity in their columns gratis, receiving in return publicity in the theaters which run a slide calling attention to the series of cartoons in the newspapers. This is a reciprocal arrangement which should be far reaching in its results, bringing the newspapers and the exchanges and exhibitors together on a basis of mutual interest, without additional cost to either party.

In addition to this feature the Bud Fisher Films Corporation also is supplying the exhibitors with a full line of interesting advertising, which has great value in attracting audiences.

Toronto, Ont.—Theatre offices of the Regal Films’ Toronto office has been very busy during the past week arranging for a move to larger quarters at 21 Adelaide street west. The new office will be one of the largest film exchange buildings in Canada, and the Regal will occupy the entire three floors of the large building, to take care of the Ontario business.

Toronto, Ont.—“The Whip” has played a return engagement at the Grand Opera House here with such success that it is booked for another week.

Toronto, Ont.—In the city of Toronto M. Thaler, the progressive manager of the College Playhouse Theater, was the first manager in Canada to sign a contract for the Goldwyn productions. Messrs. Alexander, Lester and Mentol of the Park and Doric theaters contracted for Goldwyn pictures for both theaters.

“THE WILD GIRL” TITLE OF EVA TANGUAY’S FIRST PHOTOPLAY FOR SELZNICK

Eva Tanguay announces through her manager, Harry Weber, that the name of her first Selznick picture will be “The Wild Girl.” This title takes the place of the working title “The Firefly.”

Miss Tanguay’s picture which is about half finished, promises to be sensational, it is said, and many inquiries have been received by her manager concerning the publication date of the film.

Toronto, Ont.—The Universal feature “The Greater Law” is booked for a second run in the Photodrom Theatre here for an entire week. This theatre is almost opposite Shea Hippodrome, which had first run of this picture. Mr. Pomeroy, the manager, has arranged a unique lobby display, which has caused a lot of discussion and which has been the means of drawing good box office receipts, especially for this time of year. The lobby display shows, in glass case, the inside of a cottage in Alaska, and the outer part of the lobby is decorated as if it were in Alaska, showing ice and snow, which makes the theater look cool and inviting.

Toronto, Ont.—“The Masque of Life” still is upholding its reputation as being a clean-up hot weather picture. Theaters playing this picture the last week claim record business in spite of the sweltering weather. The Toronto office of Regal Films finding it very hard to supply its end of the exhibitors desiring booking and the Ontario copy of this production is booked ahead until the first of November.

They tell us "Lightning" Joe Brandt has finally got back on the old job as general manager for the Universal, after being accused of almost everything under the sun, even assistant P. A. to the diminutive Irving Mack while in one city attending the recent exhibitors' exp.

That was a nifty banquet at the Hotel Morrison, July 20, given by the Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company, with palindrome P. F. Sharp at the helm.

Mr. Hamburger may be cute and all that, but don't let him get a slant at Pete Schaeter all dolled up in that white creation he was sportin' the evening the big Coliseum event opened up! We'll admit he was there.

F. A. "Bill" Hamburger, the frame man, was caught taking several orders. Behave, Bill; you should know better. From July 14-22 was for pleasure exclusively.

Milton Kusell, for the past few years associated with the Celebrated Players Film Company, now is affiliated with the sales squad of the local Goldwyn offices. Did you note how lately the hirsute appendage is coming along—at the recent Coliseum coming's?

Believe us, that was some "lovin' cup" (by Graves, silver purveyors) the Triangle aggregation slipped to G. E. Spencer upon his resignation, to assure not only—eh—but you all the Paramount sales boys. And, by the way, G. E., old scout, confidentially, what was hidden in that cup?

Milton Simon says: "It is just as easy to get business for the Triangle as Ty Cobb gets hits from that Sox bunch of twisters. "Smot-Milite!"

We beg your pardon! (with apologies to the "tribe") Si Greiter of Grover & Herz informs us as "Hash and Hearts," a Midget comedy, will play the Star Theater the week of August 6, rather than July 30. Why worry, so long as the fulfil is working?

F. M. Brockell, manager of the Goldwyn offices, has nothing but smile breakin' out all over his countenance. 'Ts rumored that a glorious flock of contracts has caused the affliction.

Another one of Nat Wolf's specialties was unearthed at the exhibitors' exposition. Did you see him get away with the stealin' at the Red Cross booth? You gotta lay off those Hoosiers, that's all.

Exhibitors of Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky, be on the lookout any day after August 5. One of those high power motor vehicles will be visiting you within the orbit of a comet, Harry Weiss, at the wheel. There surely must be a few of you, who so far have not signed up a few Lewis J. Schenck products. Be a good fellow, boys—Harry is seeking a record.

C. E. Smith, manager of the Metro Chicago branch, was seen strolling around the lobby of the Hotel Severn in Indianapolis July 25. No, it can't be did; no Overland is supposed to be driven out of sight of its sales station. Cresson purchased his, somewhere on the North Side along Broadway.

Maurice Choyński has a brother Joe, nationally known as one of the greatest of all past-masters of the fictile art. Maurice apparently inherited some of the pugnacious tendencies. It took an entire company of Ochs' strong arm squad to keep Maurice from going right up on the convention hall platform after the "learned ora- tor" from New York.

Fred J. Herrington said little but accomplished much for the A. E. A. Looks like Fred will be on the road National A. E. A. organizer soon.

H. B. Varner, a typical southern gentleman of the old school, and the man who saved the industry from taxation in a fight at Washington, was ill during the convention.

Percy Wells of Wilmington, N. C., before leaving for the Chicago convention, had to round out his new wardrobe. North Carolinians declare Perc had a hard verbal battle to get away without bringing her to the dance floor, but not a wardrobe, though, even if he did have to stay over an extra day.

E. J. Crall of Newport News, Va., can stay up all night, sing, dance, dine and flirt like a trooper—to say nothing of long rides in taxi cabs—and pull through bright eyed and game for more. Although E. J. was not in Chicago looking for a convention fight—rather looking for fun—he is an ardent member of the PMU. "If Papa Crall could only see me now," he remarked at one chicken dinner.

Hugh O'Donnell, who pulled all sorts of ingenious political tactics for the bunch to beat Oechs, left Chicago for his summer home in Michigan with several quarts of firewater for an "aged Irish". That's old stuff, Hugh. Eh, wot?

Sam Bullock, termed one of the "cattle" by the Oechs crowd, took some of the "bull" out of L. A. O.

Sam Trigger, the fire eater with the Scotch accent from New York, smiled like the proverbial Cheshire Cat when he turned over to the A. E. A. the major portion of the Manhattan Local membership. Sam is crazy—like A. FOX.

Peter Albine, the m. or l. w. k. ed of Longacre Lamppoon and Just to Fun, passed through Chicago on Saturday, July 21, en route to the Pacific coast for a much needed rest. Here, Pete, say we in our usual effulgent manner.

Peter Schmidt, who writes thing for the Artcraft Pictures Corporation and is titled a P. A., looked in at the convention last week and the grabbed a rattler for the west, where he will spend a three-week vacation. Regards to Bennie Ziedman, Pete!

M. J. Weil, manager of the Castl Theater, is just earammed full (those smiles you can't wear off. H) should be—just signed a year's contract with the Artcraft-Paramount office. A galaxy of ten stars such: Bill Hart, Margarite Clark, George M. Cohan, Mary Pickford, Dough Fairbanks, etc., on a pre-publicity arrangement will rotate at his present film house beginning with Margarite Clark, July 28, in "The Amazons" a week's run.

ESSANAY REPORTS UNEXPECTED DEMAND FOR "SKINNER'S BABY" FILM, FEATURING WASHBURN

Three Representative Exhibitors Report Big Summer Business with New Production; Many Calls for Advance Bookings, Is Report

The unexpected demand for pre-publication runs on Bryant Washburn's latest Skinner picture, "Skinner's Baby," almost forced a postponement in the regular publication date. More than twenty-five of the leading theaters in different parts of the country, most of them being houses which maintain a strictly open booking policy, wired their K-E-S-E branches for dates on pre-publication runs.

Inasmuch as prints are usually sent to the branches from four to six days in advance of issue date it was thought that many of these runs would have to be refused. In most instances, however, arrangements were made whereby engagements were scheduled for the following week and the bookings in the individual branches for the regular customers readjusted accordingly.

Three theaters whose bookings had been taken up with the K-E-S-E home office as soon as the first announcement of "Skinner's Baby" was made, were provided with prints for showings to start July 30. S. L. Rothapel of the Rialto of New York had had a standing order for this subject for several weeks and finally laid aside another feature in order to make room for it.

E. C. Bostick of the Merrill Theater, Milwaukee, Wis., and Alfred Hamburger of the Ziegfeld Theater, Chicago, were the other two managers who used this subject for a week's run starting at the same time. Big business has been reported by these exhibitors on the film.

FIRE REGULATIONS MAY DRIVE EXCHANGES FROM WASHINGTON, D. C., TO BALTIMORE

General Exodus from Capital Proposed by Association if Rules Go Into Effect January 1; Managers Ask Home Offices to Move

With Baltimore offering the best facilities and excellent transportation, the film exchange men of Washington, D. C., have warned the authorities that if the stringent fire regulations go into effect January 1 as scheduled, that there will be a general exodus to Baltimore, from which point the Washington trade will be taken care of.

Seek a Compromise

The Washington authorities now are endeavoring to bring about a compromise with the exchanges, and promoters have been brought into the limelight who have promised to supply the necessary fireproof buildings to house the exchanges.

Thomas Moor, owner of a chain of motion picture theaters, already has started the erection of a new seven-story building on the west side of Eighth street, between D and streets. This building, it is promised, is being erected in compliance with the stringent Washington fire regulations at a cost of $100,000. The building will be of reinforced concrete and steel. It will be ready to house exchanges by January 1, it is announce.

Baltimore Wants Exchanges

However, Baltimore is making strong effort to get the Washington exchanges there. At a meeting recently of the Washington Exchange Managers Association, the managers voted recommendations to their home offices for the removal of the Washington exchanges to Baltimore, was pointed out that Washington exhibitors could be served just as easily from Baltimore as from the capital itself.

Schenectady, N. Y.—The city officials are making strenuous efforts to close the motion picture houses on Sunday, and it is expected a decision of the council will be handed down soon.

Greenwich, Conn.—Russell A. Cowles has bought a three-story building at Putnam and Greenwich avenues which he will erect a motion picture theater.

Erie, Pa.—William Fairgranves, owner of a motion picture theater at 907 State street, is improving his house with a new front at a cost of $350.

Dover, Del.—Manager George M. Schwartz of Wilmington, Del., has opened the new Temple Theater on Dockerman street. It has a seating capacity of 425 and Mr. Schwartz has placed a $5,000 organ in the building as well as an indirect lighting system.

Columbus, Ga.—James E. Deaton will erect a motion picture theater here to cost $5,000.

New York.—S. L. Rothapel, manager of the Rialto theater, announces that he has booked “Skinner’s Baby” for the week beginning July 29. So popular did “Skinner’s Dress Suit” prove with New York audiences that he anticipates another big week’s business with this latest screen, featuring Bryant Washburn.

Kearney, Neb.—To take the place of municipal concerts here two motion picture houses will give matinee performances on Sundays, during the fall and winter. The management of both the Crescent and Empire Theatres are agreed to show only films such as are educational or of a religious nature.

Nashwauk, Minn.—The new Unique Theater, which has been undergoing repairs by contractors for Crockett town, is completed. The building is thoroughly fire-proof and well lighted and ventilated, with a seating capacity of 500.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Frank H. Dillon, manager of the Jewey Theater says: “The Helen Holmes ‘Railroad Rider’ serial is positively one of the best drawing cards I have ever shown.”

Marine City, Mich.—J. E. Donaldson, manager of the Marine City Art Theatre, reports that he did a big business with Damaged Goods,” breaking all records for Marine City. Mr. Donaldson arranged a private showing for the clergy of the town, and went after the business men with vim, stirring up considerable interest thereby.

Manager H. J. Thatcher, of the Strand Theater, Salina, Kan., hit upon a novel method of advertising “The Mysterious Mrs. M.” which he played recently. His achievement shows that Mr. Thatcher is one of the real showmen who have turned their attention to motion pictures.

A few days before the Mary MacLaren feature arrived in Salina, a very attractive young lady from Kansas City registered at the principal hotel as “Mrs. M.” Manager Thatcher had taken the newspapers and hotel men into his confidence, as well as one or two merchants. “Mrs. M.” however, would give the news hounds no information, nor would she see anyone who called, through curiosity. The hotel proprietor was deeply ignorant of his guest’s reasons for being in Salina.

The mysterious lady then purchased an automobile from a local dealer and with signs, reading “The Mysterious Mrs. M.,” hanging from the tonneau, rode around town. She next deftly extracted a valuable diamond ring from a jeweler’s case and made her escape in her auto, later sending the merchant the cash value of the ring. At the first performance of the picture the mysterious masked woman entered the theater and demanded a seat. When asked who she was she replied, “The Mysterious Mrs. M.” and at that moment the picture was flashed upon the screen.

The following day the Bluebird picture broke all records for attendance at the Strand Theater, it is said.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The motion picture men of the city arranged a trip recently to the various large cities, with Building Inspector Jacob H. Hilken, to ascertain the provisions of their ordinances regarding film storage.

Detroit, Mich.—So well did the public like “The Gilt of the Magi,” the two-reel O. Henry story, that it was repeated at the Washington Theater, one of the J. H. Kunsky chain of theaters, for another week.

Aurora, Ill.—The Aurora Theater on Lincoln highway is to be reopened in the fall.

Hastings, Neb.—The Plaza Theater has opened a branch theater in Gilmer, and Manager Hayter is giving a show there twice a week.

Chicago.—The Woodlawn Theater Company has acquired the title from Alexander Simpson to the property on Thirty-third street for a consideration of $5,000, and will erect a $200,000 theater with a seating capacity of 2,000.

Rockford, Ill.—An extension is being built to the Palm Theater, which adds 500 seats to the house.

Chicago.—Lithographs advertising the Goldwyn Pictures to be published in the early fall greet one from almost every stand in the city. These immense 24-sheets bear the heads of Mae Marsh, Madge Kennedy, Maxine Elliott, Jane Cowl and Mary Garden. They are printed in brown, white and blue and are the most artistic ever seen in Chicago.

Vancouver, Wash.—The Palace Theater has changed its name to the American and now is being managed by John P. Higgins.

Portland, Ore.—After expending $30,000 on remodeling the Liberty Theater on Stark street, the new picture house was recently thrown open. It is one of the finest houses on the coast.

Palo Alto, Cal.—A deal is pending between the T. S. Montgomery Company of San Jose and a theatrical company of San Francisco for the purchase of a corner lot at University avenue and Waverly street. A theater to seat 2,000 will be erected thereon if the deal goes through.

Powell, Wyo.—Henry Fulkerson is altering the Alpha Theater to provide room for 300 more seats. When completed the Alpha will be one of the finest houses in this part of the state.

Victoria, B. C.—Charlie Chaplin in "The Immigrant" broke all records at the Columbia Theater, Manager E. Clark reports.

Waco, Tex.—Fire destroyed a motion picture theater on Austin avenue and several adjoining buildings, including the Waco Hotel. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Houston, Tex.—Fourteen thousand dollars is being spent on interior decorations for the Prince Theater.

William T. Binford of Denver, Colo., has taken over the distributing rights of the Mo-Toy comedies produced by the Peter Pan Film Corporation of New York for the territory of Wyoming, Utah, Colorado and New Mexico. He says that the Mo-Toy comedies are already in great favor throughout his territory.

CO-RESPONDENT,” WITH MISS HAMMERSTEIN, IS FIRST ADVANCE M. P. CORP. PHOTOPLAY

Hubert-Hammerstein-Ince Combination to Make Twelve Features Yearly, to Be Exhibited at Box Office Price of Dollar

As first reported to the trade in the Exhibitors Herald, the Advance Picture Corporation, of which Mr. Schubert, Arthur Hammerstein and Ralph W. Ince are the prime owners, has completed details for its first production. The Co-respondent’ will be the last production of the Advance Corporation, in which Elaine Hammerstein Ince will star. The drama was produced last season at the Booth Theatre, New York, with Irene Fenwick the leading role. The announcement is made that the film is now completed and will be offered to exhibitors very soon.

Plan Dollar Admission

Regular theater methods will be employed to exploit their production, as stated. They will make probably else features a year, which are to be exhibited at a box office price of $1. These features will be sold outright to exhibitors who wish to use them in their theaters, or will be sold on the rights basis.

FILMS COAST STUDIOS TO BE USED FOR PRODUCTION OF KEYSTONE COMEDIES

Films Will Be Made for Triangle Program; Many Old Players Back with New Organization; Players’ Names Not Yet Given

Activities on the West Coast include the opening of the Fine Arts Studio in Los Angeles on July 16. This studio will be used for the production of Keystone comedies for the Triangle program, and many of the old Keystone people are back under the new organization. The names of the members of the permanent company have not been announced.

Among the former directors who were under Mack Sennett and who now are at the Fine Arts studio are Charles Avery, Harry McCoy, H. Raymaker, Robert Kerr, Regis Morris and Henry Kerman.

At Edendale, in the old Keystone plant, now known as the Mack Sennett studio, there are four companies working under Directors Clarence Badger, Edward Chinn, Fred Fishlock and Victor Heerman. Charles Murray, Chester Conklin, Mack Swain, Ben Turpin and a number of others retained by Mr. Sennett now are at work at Edendale.

Toronto, Ont—Announcement has been made that Arthur J. Reddy, formerly with the Toronto branch office of K-E-S-E, will succeed Arthur Larente as branch manager in Montreal. Mr. Larente has been appointed sales manager.

SEATTLE EXCHANGE HEADS DELIVER FILMS IN STRIKE

Owing to an express drivers’ strike in Seattle, Wash., the film exchanges of the city suffered a severe handicap. It necessitated using the cars of many of the managers in delivering films to trains.

The Universal Company suffered the least inconvenience because of the fact that they have a delivery machine of their own. Other exchanges were not so fortunate, and it was no uncommon sight to see a manager driving his car about the city laden with reels.

EIGHT AT HORSLY COAST PLANT CAUGHT IN U. S. WAR LOTTERY

Uncle Sam has called eight men from the David Horsley studios for service in the new American army, and of the eight, four were drawn from companies engaged in the production of comedies. Horace Davye, director of Neil Burn and Gertrude Selby in Selburn comedies, was the first man to be published as a conscript.

Second extras of the afternoon papers announced the drawing of H.B. Lull, assistant director to Horace Davye, and Clair De Witt, assistant director of George Ovey in Cub comedies. Then came the name of George George, who plays with George Ovey. The comedy jinx was broken when Ben Cohn, scenario editor, discovered his number in the tabulated lists. Two stage carpenters reported themselves as drafted, while Harry Ryan, a property man, enlisted in the coast artillery several days before the great military lottery.
INDIANAPOLIS TRADE SUCCEEDS IN CUTTING DOWN PROVISIONS IN PENDING ORDINANCE

Sprinkling System in Buildings, Extra Fireproof Lining in Vaults, and Film Storage Demand Are Cut Out of Measure

Theater and exchange men last week succeeded in bringing about changes in the proposed Indianapolis, Ind., ordinance governing the storage, handling and manufacture of films, which has been pending for some time in the city council.

H. H. Friedly, Indiana fire marshal, who attended an executive meeting, made a plea to the exhibitors and exchange men to aid in the "fire prevention crusade" which he is conducting throughout the state.

One of the main objections the film men made against the proposed ordinance was the section regarding the placing of sprinkler systems in buildings where large quantities of films are kept. This provision has been eliminated, as was another provision, demanding that a wall of fireproof material be built between vaults where films are inspected and stored. Also, the provision in the ordinance making it unlawful to store films in buildings in which theaters are located was struck out.

HORSLEY PROMISES ANNOUNCEMENTS OF INTEREST FROM N. Y.

David Horsley left Los Angeles for New York this week on a mission that promises to add to the keen interest now being evidenced in the development of motion picture productions on the Pacific Coast.

W. A. S. Douglas, president of the Lasalida Film Company, has been in the East for several weeks engaged in transactions that will be concluded in New York upon the arrival of David Horsley.

"When I arrive in New York I shall in all probability make some interesting announcements," was the only statement made by Mr. Horsley before leaving Los Angeles.

It has been tested out and proven beyond a shadow of doubt in the best theaters of the country that "MOTOY" Comedies appeal not only to regular audiences but to "stay-at-homes" who rarely visit the movies.

Those who see them talk about them: every audience going out sends another in.

The reason is just this: "MOTOYS" are alone in their field; they are as cleverly produced as they are charming; being short reel Comedies they provide a welcome relief from heavy drama and thrillers.

WEEKLY BULLETIN

of

American Exhibitors Association

A Business Men's Organization of Exhibitors Only.

TO THE EXHIBITORS OF AMERICA:

The purpose of the American Exhibitors Association is to create and maintain a national body of motion picture exhibitors, to improve and protect the motion picture business, to encourage the production and showing of motion pictures of high character, to protect the individual member from unfair methods of trade and other abuse, to work for the best interests of the industry as a whole, to adjust and arbitrate differences between members and various other branches of the industry; to assist the United States government in the work of public information in times of war and other great crises, and in every lawful way to promote generally the prosperity, uplift and betterment of the motion picture industry.

In accordance with this purpose, and fulfilling the fundamental idea that the American Exhibitors Association is, in deed as well as in fact, a true exhibitors' organization, a bulletin will be issued each week in time for the editions of the trade papers, in which the doings of the association to date will be concisely given for the information of all exhibitors.

The organization is already started in thirty states, and is working. By the time of the Detroit convention next year we expect to be organized in every state. What is now desired are applications for membership. Within the next week we wish to reach every exhibitor in the United States with a personal letter in which an application for membership will be enclosed. Please respond promptly. Return applications filled out, and your check for $3 or $6—six months' or a year's dues—at your option.

The General Manager is the personal representative in New York City of every legitimate exhibitor, and is being paid for the purpose of representing exhibitors in any business pertaining to the motion picture industry.

This service is designed to save busy exhibitors time and money. The establishment of an office in New York by the General Manager is to further this purpose. Business which would ordinarily exact attention and time from the exhibitor will be looked after from these headquarters without trouble or expense to him.

Should any exhibitor fail to receive the letter and application card, will be please send at once his name, name of theater and complete address.

Prompt response in the way of membership and dues is important. All communications should be addressed to the American Exhibitors Association,

Publisher Exhibitors Herald,

Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Sir:

I have just received your issue of August 4, with your account of the convention proceedings in Chicago. I wish to say that I fully approve the fair and candid way in which you handled the situation and the circumstances leading up to the unfortunate split in the organization. I have also just read a report on the convention in the “so-called” Exhibitors Trade Review. If I had not attended the convention and had seen no other report than the one in the Ochs’ organ, I certainly would have been convinced that there was “something rotten in Denmark”. I, for one, certainly was not ashamed of the intelligence and the progressive spirit of the band of men and women who refused to wear the Ochs’ yoke. I think the result of the Chicago convention spells the end of the Exhibitors Trade Review. The fact that Ochs and his boomers could not see far enough beyond the end of their noses to realize that such a split-up as occurred in Chicago, would do them infinitely more harm than good proves conclusively that they surely were of too small caliber to represent the Motion Picture Exhibitors of this country.

I heard the following prophecy made on the floor of the convention a year ago, just after Ochs’ election: “The League certainly has a rocky road before it.” This surely has proven true in every sense of the term. If the Ochs’ gang has any idea it can accomplish anything for the organization, its members have several things coming. I believe they will find that the number of yellow back journals sent to Michigan Exhibitors will decrease noticeably from week to week. My subscription has not yet expired but I am notifying the publishers to day that the last issue containing the report of the convention, is decidedly more than I care to stand. I hope that your publication will continue on every possible occasion to expose the manipulations of the Ochs’ brand, which to me serves too much of the methods of pot-house politicians. I am

SM/RJ

Yours respectfully,

S. A. Moran
Prof.
Ochs, Film Magnate?

"A don't forget, I predict this: Before the year is over I'm going to pull something else for you, and believe me, it is something good, and when I pull it them babies that bolted will get theirs."

The above literary gem is culled from the now famous speech of acceptance delivered by the re-elected president of the exhibitors' league.

As indicated in the report of a speech made last week in Chicago by Judge A. P. Tugwell of California the "something" that the irrepressible Lee is "going to pull" is a flyer in production and distribution activities.

This is not the first time that Ochs and his associates planned becoming film magnates and issuing pictures bearing the emblem of the league. Nearly a year ago this same crowd had an identical plan, but the deal fell through because the Lacker did not produce the necessary funds with which to proceed.

Legitimate trade paper publishers in the East have for several months been menaced with the competition of an irregular publication; it now appears that there is a plan afoot to menace also legitimate producers and distributors with a competition masquerading under false colors.

The Music Tax

NOW come the music publishers—or, more explicitly, an avaricious group of music publishers—with a plan to collect in tribute from the motion picture exhibitors of the United States a sum that might very easily equal a million dollars every twelve months.

This group of music publishers plan to collect a tax of 10 cents per seat from every theater operator in the United States once every twelve months. The escape from payment of this tax would be the refraining from playing such musical compositions and songs as are copyrighted by this aggregation of music publishers.

This controversy which has arisen between the exhibitors of the country and the music publishers is of vital importance to every exhibitor, because if the music publishers are successful in their plan a theater with the meaner seating capacity of 200 seats would be compelled to pay a tax of $20 a year for the privilege of using the songs and compositions of the music publishers.

The plan of the music publishers undoubtdedly will meet with a great deal of opposition, because this is a very inopportune time to attempt to impose an additional tax upon motion picture exhibitors. Also, because song publishers long have exerted every effort to have exhibitors use their compositions for the adversising benefits.

Again, the music publishers' plan is not equitably devised, because it would attempt to compel an exhibitor who played but one song in an entire year to pay the entire amount of the tax. In the case of the thousand seat house

News of Exhibitors and Exchanges

The A. E. A.

BONA fide representation in thirty-one states of the Union is the achievement already won by the American Exhibitors Association.

The brief career of this organization has demonstrated beyond doubt that the exhibitors of the United States earnestly desire an organization built upon the basis of sound business principles.

There is positive indication that the American Exhibitors Association will encounter a development and prosperity never before attained by any exhibitors' organization.

The reasons for this are clear: The A. E. A. will give to exhibitors what they never have been able to obtain before—protection from outside interference and constructive aid in promoting the success of their theaters.

What the old league was chiefly concerned with—"inside politics"—will be barred completely from the new association. The old expositions, balls and other "means of collection" which consumed so much attention and energy of the old league officials that they had little time for anything else will be forgotten. The association will be financed like all other protective and co-operative organizations—dues and donations.

The new association will not undertake to absorb task of the old league in demanding concessions from producers and distributors on one hand, and on the other hand, begging support of their organization.

The A. E. A. brightens greatly the future of the intelligent motion picture exhibitor. Those who do not avail themselves of the advantages of this association will have only themselves to blame.

Martin J. Quigley
The American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers has proposed a scheme to tax the playing of all copyrighted musical numbers owned and controlled by music publishers who are affiliated with the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. The playing of these numbers will require payment of a copyright fee of 10 cents per seat, to be collected through the society's licensing agency, the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

This fee is intended to cover the cost of licensing the copyright holders and the administration of the licensing system. The society has estimated that this fee will generate approximately $1 million per year, which will be used to support its operations and provide services to its members.

The scheme has met with resistance from the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association, which has threatened to file a lawsuit to challenge the constitutionality of the fee. The Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association represents thousands of movie theaters across the United States and opposes the scheme as an unfair burden on the industry.

The American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers has stated that it will not rescind the fee without the consent of its members, who are represented by the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association. The association has called for a compromise, and the two sides are reportedly discussing ways to reach a mutually acceptable resolution.

The fate of the scheme is uncertain, but it is likely to be a contentious issue for the movie industry and the music publishing community in the coming months.
BOLT AND SPLIT OF OCHS' LEAGUE UNDER DISCUSSION AT N. A. M. P. I. SESSION

Brady Calls Adjourned Session in New York; Change By-Laws Admitting Members of New A. E. A. and All Representative Theater Owners

An adjourned session of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry was called by President William A. Brady on Monday, August 6. The most important subject that came up for consideration was the bolt and split of Ochs' league. The new American Exhibitors' Association under the by-laws of the N. A. M. P. I. cannot become part of the latter until its members first become members of Ochs' league.

In view of the fact that a new exhibitors' organization has come into being during the past year, the advisability of changing the by-laws of the N. A. M. P. I. to include all representative theater owners and exhibitors is apparent.

The matter of increasing the number of directors in the N. A. M. P. I. branches from five to seven came up for discussion and the exhibitors will be asked to name fourteen instead of ten as their representation.

As inasmuch as the national body has not been notified of the newly appointed directors in the Ochs league, the old directors were still eligible to sit at the meeting. Five of these belong to the newly formed A. E. A.

THEATER OWNERS OF CHICAGO A. E. A. WILL NOT HAVE TO PAY FILM DEPOSITS

System Will Be Wiped Out Within Next Two Weeks, Is Promise, Through Organization's Promise to Guarantee Payment for Service

The deposit system will be wiped out within the next three weeks in Chicago, is the promise of Henry Schoenstadt, president of the Chicago branch of the American Exhibitors' Association.

All members of the A. E. A. in Chicago, through an arrangement with the organization, will be able to trade with the exchanges on the old-established commercial lines used by all business concerns.

The A. E. A. branch already has outlined plans to be presented to a committee of exchanges from the F. I. L. M. Club, guaranteeing payment for the service of any member of the A. E. A. branch who refuses to pay for film service.

The exchanges have already intimated that such a plan would meet with their approval, and it is expected that arrangements will be completed within the next two weeks whereby A. E. A. members will not have to pay the deposit when securing films. The plan also demands that it, after booking a film, an exhibitor decides to cancel he must notify the exchange, seven days in advance.

The A. E. A. branch committee which will present the new plan to the exchanges is composed of the following members: Henry Schoenstadt, A. J. Kring, Max Jessen, Louis H. Frank, Miss Anna M. Kesner, G. P. Morris, Maurice Choy, J. Cooper, and E. Bratty.

"TURN OF A CARD" IS NEW KERRIGAN FILM FOR PARALTA

Play Concerns Adventure of College Youth and Romance in West

Work is progressing on J. W. Kerrigan's second picture under the Paralta Plays trademark. The subject is a comedy-drama of the West and East called "The Turn of a Card" and was written by Frederick Clair. Thomas J. Geraghty prepared the story for the screen.

The photoplay concerns the adventures of Jimmy Montgomery, a college youth, who goes West and becomes involved in a series of exciting experiences. He also has a romance with a pretty girl.

Louise Wilson appears opposite Mr. Kerrigan in the role of Cynthia Burdett.

POWELL LEAVES TO MAKE TEN-REEL FEATURE IN TEXAS

Frank Powell, the director, left for New York with a company of players August 3 for Texas. It is the intention of Mr. Powell to produce a ten-reel state rights feature on an elaborate scale. Private capital, it is said, is back of the venture, most of whom comes from the Lone Star state.

Among the cast of actors Mr. Powell has under his direction are George Becher, Ralph Dean and Benji Hendricks.
TAX FIGURES SHOW CONVENTION TREACHERY

Figures do not lie when they come from the City License Bureau, where every theater owner has to pay his annual amusement tax. The following statistics from in the City Hall show Ochs' treachery in the past convention.

In the city of Chicago there are 378 theater owners. From the beginning of 1917 up to July 1 exhibitors' organizations' rosters showed an inclusive membership of 122 men.

Of the 122 members listed, 45 per cent are theater managers—not owners—exchange attaches, and many men who formerly owned theaters and at present not actively engaged in any branch of the industry.

Only 80 of the 122 have paid dues.

In the Illinois State branch of the Ochs organization there are twelve members and only six of them have ever paid their dues.

Convention Scandal Post Mortem

On the floor of the past convention Illinois was represented by 20 delegates and 5 at-large—the latter representing the state organization composed of 12 members.

According to the above figures there must be 488 bona fide theater owners in Chicago, and all members of the Ochs branch.

The city of Chicago license report in 1916 showed that at that time there were 415 theaters in Chicago—and this included theaters offering stage attractions exclusively.

The license report for 1917 shows that exactly 80 of the motion picture theaters listed in the 1916 report have gone out of business.

Therefore, the 20 Chicago delegates allowed on the convention floor by Ochs represented 500 theaters. There is not this number of theaters in Chicago, the city license report shows, and the delegates were representing stage theaters and film theaters that have passed out of existence. This, notwithstanding the state organization has a membership of 12, and sent its five delegates.

Some Other Striking Facts

It took 28 votes against 21 for Ochs' Chicago branch to expel Maurice A. Choyinski and Louis H. Frank.

The glaring fact stands out that 14 of the 28 were non-theater owners. So, 14 out of an alleged 500 members expelled the former members.

Marking back to the convention fiasco, Boston sent 30 delegates when entitled to only 9, according to the license report of that city.

Judge A. P. Tugwell was the only member from California, which state was entitled to five other delegates. But Judge Tugwell was ruled completely out of the convention, and the California per capita tax of $37.50 was refunded.

Judge Tugwell also was ordered out of the convention, notwithstanding he then was vice-president of the Ochs organization.

HERE IS THE DEMAND OF THE MUSIC PUBLISHERS' COMBINE

The following letter suggesting that exhibitors call at the headquarters of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers and secure licenses for the rendition of musical compositions by pianists in theaters has been received at the leading branches of the American Exhibitors Association:

Dear Sir: The public performance of copyrighted songs and other musical numbers in a restaurant, hotel cabaret, motion picture theater, dance hall, ballroom, etc., without permission of the copyright owner subjects the proprietor of such establishment to very serious penalties.

The Supreme Court of the United States on January 22, 1917, enforced a decision in the case of Victor Herbert et al. vs. The Shubert Company, holding that the unauthorized performance of a copyrighted musical composition in a restaurant, hotel, cabaret, motion picture theater, dance hall, ballroom, etc., infringes the exclusive right of the owner of the copyright to perform the work publicly.

This society was organized to protect composers, authors and publishers against such rendition of their compositions and for the purpose of licensing the public performance of the works of its members, who comprise most of the well known authors, composers and publishers of America and foreign counties.

We would suggest that you call at this office upon receipt of this letter, in order to obtain the facility of your business to you or a license to perform such musical compositions. If you are unable to call, all requests and our representative will call upon you. It is important that this matter receive your prompt attention.

If no license is secured, then you are hereby notified to desist from rendering or permitting the rendition upon your premises of any of the works of the members of this Society.

The society is under the Copyright Act for the public rendition of copyrighted musical works without the owner's consent are enjoined by the enclosed extract of the Copyright Law.

Yours very truly,

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF COMPOSERS, AUTHORS AND PUBLISHERS

By F. S. HARTMAN.

The above letter, which is a duplicate of scores of others sent to the A. E. A. branches throughout the country, was received by Henry Schoenstadt, president of the Chicago local branch of the A. E. A. This branch has turned the matter over to its executive committee, which will take the matter up in detail with the national body.
INTERIOR SCENES USED MAINLY IN BRENON'S
"FALL OF ROMANOFFS," WHICH NNEARS FINISH

Workmen with Knowledge of Russian Customs and Architecture Employed to Construct Sets for Forthcoming Feature

In staging his new production, "The Fall of the Romanoffs," which is now nearing completion, Herbert Brenon has used mainly interior scenes. All of them have been erected in his studio, where workmen are employed daily preparing sets. Special workmen who are skilled in making sets for picture work and in the knowledge of things Russian are being used.

Eighty-three separate sets have been built, varying from replicas of rooms of state in the czar's palace to simple little peasants' huts. Of the former four cover the entire stage and are bigger in scope than any Mr. Brenon has had in his former productions.

Mr. Brenon has had two complete villages reproduced—one typical of many little Russian villages, the other typically Jewish. The little villages are complete in every detail.

In a week, or ten days at the most, all of the scenes for "The Fall of the Romanoffs" will have been taken. Already the task of assembling and erecting has been begun, and it will not be long before these dramatic events which have taken place in Russia will be re-enacted on the screen.

INCE WILL BUILD NEW COAST STUDIO TO PRODUCE FOR PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

Thomas H. Ince announced this week that he expects shortly to build a new studio from his own designs, in which will be produced the pictures under Mr. Ince's new affiliation with Paramount. The announcement came in the form of a statement from Ince through Jesse L. Lasky to the New York Paramount offices, and followed on the heels of the news that Charles Ray and Enid Bennett, two young photoplayers who have made their way to stardom under Ince, will henceforth appear in pictures to be released regularly through Paramount.

Mr. Ince now is occupying the former Biograph studio in Los Angeles.

"I stand independent, and there are other music publishers who are with me. If the exhibitors positively refuse to use the musical compositions of the combine it will not be long before this organization will have to go out of existence. The whole thing looks to me like a proposition to give a few persons jobs at $10,000 a year."

E. S. Hartman of Chicago, who is general Western counsel for the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, has been connected with Alfred Hamburger in his connection with the combine.

The officers of the music publishers' combine are: George Maxwell, president; Victor Herbert, vice president; Glen MacDonough, secretary, and Raymond Hubbard, treasurer. Nathan Burkan of New York is general counsel.

TRIANGLE Loses

SUIT FOR HART WITH ARTCRAFT

Counsel for Plaintiff to Take Appeal from Court's Decision

Judge Martin D. Manton of New York in the United States District Court on August 1 dismissed the Triangle Film Corporation's petition for an injunction to restrain the Artcraft Film Corporation from making or distributing any pictures in which William S. Hart, the noted delineator of western roles, appears.

The legal battle between the two film concerns began with Thomas H. Ince, the director, leaving the Triangle company and affiliating with the Arterraft Corporation.

Mr. Hart, who was under a two-year contract with the Triangle Corporation, thereupon announced that he would produce his own pictures under Mr. Ince's direction or supervision, and left the company. Triangle began action for breach of contract in California when Arterraft announced its intention of distributing Hart productions. The Triangle counsel intends to take an appeal from Judge Manton's decision.

LUST OF THE AGES,” WITH LILLIAN WALKER, FIRST OGDEN CORP. FILM, IS COMPLETED

Extensive Plans Being Made to Exploit Pictures Which Is Not Sex Triangle or European War Play; Offices Opened in New York

The Ogden Pictures Corporation, of Ogden, Utah, has completed its first picture after a period of seven months under the direction of Harry J. Revier. The film, entitled “Lust of the Ages,” features Lillian Walker.

It is said the role assigned to Miss Walker in her new play is radically different from any she has heretofore played, although no inkling of the character of the story has been given out except that it is not a sex play and does not deal with the present European war.

Offices of the Ogden company have been opened in room 1202 of the Goldrey building, New York City, and the matter of handling state rights is under the management of Jesse J. Goldberg. Extensive plans are being made for exploiting the feature although the channel of issuing the production has not been determined.

The new concern expects to make about six pictures featuring Lillian Walker per year for the next two years.

SCENES FROM FILM VERSIONS OF FROHMAN STAGE SUCCESSES
EXHIBITORS ENTHUSIASTIC OVER GOLDWYN FILMS AT PHILADELPHIA AND BOSTON

“Baby Mine,” with Madge Kennedy, and Maxine Elliott in “Fighting Odds” Received Well at Trade Showings

Simultaneous trade showings were held last week of Goldwyn Pictures in Philadelphia and Boston, and the same scenes of enthusiasm that marked the initial presentation in Chicago were repeated.

Samuel Goldfish, president of Goldwyn, and Alfred Weiss, vice president, were in charge of the Boston showing, which was held in the morning at the Fenway Theater, which had been obtained by Harry E. Campbell, manager of Goldwyn’s Boston offices. “Baby Mine,” Margaret Mayo’s farce comedy, was the first picture that won the applause of the Boston audience. In this production Madge Kennedy makes her debut on the screen. After a luncheon the hundreds of exhibitors present from all over New England saw Maxine Elliott in “Fighting Odds,” a powerful new play by Roi Cooper Megrely and Irvin S. Cobb.

The Philadelphia showing was held in the Palace Theater on Market street on what, at that time, was the hottest night of the year, the picture starting at 11:15 p.m. and holding the audience of exhibitors from the entire Philadelphia district until 1 a.m. The showing was under the auspices of Stanley V. Mastbaum, George T. Ames, manager of Goldwyn’s Philadelphia offices, and F. B. Warren, one of the Goldwyn vice presidents from New York.

“MO-TOY” DOLL COMEDIES PROVE SUCCESS FOR EXHIBITORS, DECLARES H. C. ALLEN

Films Are Wholesome and Have Widespread Appeal, He Says; Not Similar to Any Other Picture in Field

H. C. Allen, president of the Peter Pan Film Corporation of New York, in discussing short reel subjects this week pointed out the novelty of the “Mo-Toy” doll comedies which have been proving successful wherever shown by exhibitors.

“All that has been accomplished in the industry,” said Mr. Allen, “dwarfs before the tremendous future that lies before it. People do not want trashy subjects and Mo-Toy comedies are in harmony with the opinion inasmuch as they are perfectly wholesome and have a widespread appeal with all classes of people.”

The success of Mo-Toy comedies, Mr. Allen maintains, lies in the fact that they get away from similarity to anything else in the motion picture field. They are carefully produced, the dolls are well selected, the animation is natural and the pictures are not long enough to tire.

SELIG STAGES A COMPLETE CIRCUS FOR “THE BARKER” FILM WITH LEW FIELDS

Spectators Become “Audience” as Star and 16-year-old Leading Lady, Amy Dennis, Enact Roles; K-E-S-E to Issue Play August 13

The Selig Polyscope Company staged a complete circus on the studio lot at Chicago last week. The circus was essential for certain scenes in “The Barker,” a Selig Red Seal play, written by Charles K. Harris, and to be published August 13 through K-E-S-E.

Hundreds of spectators were present to see Amy Leal, Dennis, the 16-year-old leading lady for Lew Fields, do a trapeze “stunt.” Lew Fields, just to show that he had not forgotten how, turned a few cartwheels, which were the envy of the small boys assembled. Many of the spectators became the circus “audience,” Director J. A. Richmond pressing them into service.

The circus was transplanted complete to the Selig lot. There was the “big top,” the sawdust rings, the clowns and the red lemonade. At first it had been planned to join some traveling aggregation, but no tented attraction was near enough and time was short. Then it was that Director Richmond organized a circus of his own.

“The Barker” is classed by Lew Fields as his one best film effort. It is not a comedy, but a heart interest drama, giving Mr. Fields many opportunities for talent work.

PROGRESSIVE CO. SUES SENNITT AS A THEATER OWNER

Suit has been instituted by the Progressive Motion Picture Company of Los Angeles, Cal., against the Woodley Theater of Los Angeles, for the recovery of $5,800 alleged to be due them for services. The Woodley Theater, according to the complaint, would soon begin the film production of Mary Roberts Rinehart’s novel, “K,” for publication under a special arrangement with Universal.

Since starting work upon the book Lois Weber is undecided whether to market “K” as a special state right feature or as one of the Lois Weber Productions, as originally announced. Previous announcements regarding its distribution were given out somewhat prematurely, and will be subject to such change as Lois Weber may consider most desirable.

MARKET PLAN OF LOIS WEBER’S “K” IS NOT DECIDED

An announcement was recently made to the effect that Lois Webe was undecided whether to market “K” as a special state right feature or as one of the Lois Weber Productions, as originally announced. Previous announcements regarding its distribution were given out somewhat prematurely, and will be subject to such change as Lois Weber may consider most desirable.

HARLEES FROHMAN'S STAGE STARS WORK ON FALL FILMS FOR MUTUAL PROGRAMS

Edna Goodrich, Ann Murdock, Julia Sanderson and Olive Tell Plays Well Under Way; Western Studios Are Active

Eastern studios at which Charles Frohman's stage stars are at work on the picturization of Frohman stage successes for publication through the usual Film Corporation are the scenes of great activity.

Productions starring Edna Goodrich, Ann Murdock, Julia Sanderson and Olive Tell are well under way or completed.

Reel for Fall Trade

It was stated at the time that arrangements were completed between John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual, and Alf Hayman, representing the Frohman interests, that the production of the Frohman stars would not be issued until at least three have been completed. That time is rapidly approaching, for two of the stars have virtually completed the third production and are ready to start on the fourth. There is every evidence that the productions will be issued to exhibitors for early fall presentation.

Ann Murdock has completed "Outcast," "The Impostor" and "The Beautiful Adventure."

She now is at work on "My Wife," under the direction of Dell Henderson, while her next production, "The Richest Girl," will be directed by Albert Capellani.

Edna Goodrich has completed "Reputation" and "Queen X" and will soon have finished the last scenes of "A Daughter of Maryland. "American Maid," selected for her fourth picture, will be directed by Albert Capellani.

Western Studios Active

Olive Tell's first picture will be "The Unforeseen." Julia Sanderson is at work under Dell Henderson's direction on "The Runaway."

These western studios which contribute to Mutual's release schedule are as active as the eastern studios with Mary Miles Minter, William Russell, Gail Kane, Juliette Day, Jackie Saunders and Margarita Fischer, all at work on five-reel features for fall.

POLLY OF THE CIRCUS," WITH MAE MARSH, TO BE ISSUED BY GOLDWYN SEPTEMBER 9

Concern Makes Formal Bow to Exhibitors with Margaret Mayo's Drama; Pathetic Story Will Be in Six or Eight Thousand Feet

Margaret Mayo's drama, "Polly of the Circus," starring Mae Marsh, has been completed at the Goldwyn studios at Fort Lee and now is being cut and assembled for publication to exhibitors September 9. With this picture Goldwyn makes its formal bow in the cinema world.

In the production are nine separate spectacle scenes of a circus. Of the 89,000 feet of film sent to the laboratories only six or eight thousand feet will be used to tell the pathetic story, which is said to have made a fortune for its producers on the stage.

Four small Jersey cities figure in the film, a big horse race with seven thoroughbreds, a real circus parade and pageant, scenes showing the early morning arrival of a big circus in a small town and its departure at night, and many other big features.

At times as many as 2,000 persons are in the scenes, and big audiences appear in the stands.

Vernon Steele, the English actor, interprets the role of John Douglas, the minister, while Wellington Playter portrays the character "Big Jim," the boss canvasman, which are two of the more important roles in support of Miss Marsh.

Among the other important players in the cast are Lucile Satterthwaite, Isabel Vernon, Viola Compton, Helen Salinger and Charles Elbridge. Mae Marsh is said to do her best work in the role of Polly.

STUART HOLMES TO APPEAR WITH MISS EVA TANGUAY "Wild Girl" Name of First Film Under Selznick Banner

As announced in last week's "Herald" Eva Tanguay has decided upon "The Wild Girl" as the title of her first picture under the Selznick banner.

Director Howard Estabrook has selected Stuart Holmes, late of the Fox Film Company, and Valerie Bergere, well-known vaudeville star, to appear in support of the eccentric dancer, as well as Tom Moore, who has been working with Constance Talmadge in another Selznick picture.

As yet no date for the publication of "The Wild Girl" has been set, but it is expected the work of cutting and assembling the film will start about August 15.

Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Pennsylvania, New York state, Oklahoma, Indiana, California, Michigan, Massachusetts, Kentucky, Minnesota and many other states which already have branches with memberships of the most representative exhibitors in these states will receive the aid of the national organizer.

Fred J. Herrington declared this week that Chicago already has one of the most completely organized branches in the association.

H. H. Varner of Lexington, N. C., and Percy Wells of Wilmington are engaged in recruiting new exhibitors in this southern state. Both men report great success and declare that the old organization in both of the Carolinas has been completely taken into the A. E. A.

PREACHING OCHS AND HIS PAPER CAUSES A WALKOUT IN CHICAGO

Thirteen Members Leave Meeting
Because of Talk; Franke Wants Facts, but Is Foiled

At a meeting of Ochs' branch organization in Chicago Friday, August 3, out of the twenty-four members who assembled thirteen left the headquarters before the meeting progressed far because of speeches made concerning Ochs and his trade paper.

F. H. Franke, one of the remaining eleven members, asked Joseph Hopp, who is president:

"How many members have resigned from this branch?"

"Only one member has resigned," declared Hopp.

Franke was not satisfied and demanded a better report, and wanted also to know how many members had resigned for the purpose of joining the American Exhibitors' Association branch. Hopp, however, contended that none had resigned for this purpose.

Sam Gold then demanded of Hopp that he tell the eleven remaining members why advertising checked the telling of the truth in Ochs' trade paper.

Hopp refused to answer.

FIRST WORLD FILM OF NEW KITTY GORDON SERIES IS ENTITLED "HER HOUR"

The first of Kitty Gordon's series of photoplays under her renewed contract with World Film Corporation, entitled "Her Hour," and work already is well advanced upon the film at the Fort Lee studio. The direction is in the hands of George Cow...
TOTAL of probably more than $150,000 a year is spent by the more important picture releasing concerns in the United States each year for the making of cuts and matrices as publicity aids for exhibitors using their releases. It is entirely safe to say that more than half of this sum is wasted—for two reasons: first, because the exhibitor, lacking expert knowledge of the character of the cut service he needs, does not indicate exactly what he wants; second, because the exchange service department does not put the cuts to work after they are placed in stock.

Every motion picture publicity department is daily confronted by the most perplexing problem growing out of the frequent misunderstanding of what is typographically possible on the part of the theater man seeking cuts for release.

It is with the intent of making clear the mechanical character of the cut and the matrix, and thus enabling the exhibitor to more intelligently deal with these products that this article is presented.

Definition of "Cut"

A "cut" may be either a reproduction of a drawing done in solid lines or a reproduction of a photograph done in "halftone." The motion picture exhibitor but seldom deals with "fine cuts" and is much more interested in the halftone cuts by which he is enabled to print the pictures of motion picture stars, scenes from plays, etc., in his house organ or his newspaper publicity and advertisements.

For the sake of simplicity the process of making the halftone cut may be passed over, being largely a matter of photography, optics and chemistry. The exhibitor is concerned more especially with the character of the finished product.

A halftone cut is really just a piece of metal cut into dots. This is accomplished in the process mentioned above by the use of a screen. The screen is a sheet of glass ruled with fine lines, crosswise, which when held to the light looks very much like a fine wire screen. These lines are etched into the metal plate along with the picture by photographic and chemical processes and between the crosswise lines the dots stand out to receive the ink from the press and transfer it in these same dots to the paper. The dots of the half tone cut are big and thick, running close together in the dark parts of the cut; that is, the shadows of the face or figure, in the eyebrows, etc. The dots are very tiny indeed in the light parts of the figure on the cut, as for instance in the whites of the eyes, the cheek bones or the tip of the nose. There are just as many dots in one part of the cut as another, but the difference in the sizes of the dots makes the difference in the tones and makes the picture possible.

The fineness or coarseness of the screen used determines the coarseness or fineness of the cut. Coarse screen cuts are made to print on rough, cheap paper. Fine cuts are made for printing on well finished, expensive papers. Of course the finer the cut the more dots to the inch and therefore the more quality and tone value the cut can reproduce.

Your newspaper uses cuts made with a coarse screen having either 65 or 65 lines to the inch. The newspaper cut is, however, called a "55" or "65" screen cut. The cuts in the "Exhibitors Herald" and most other standard trade papers are much finer, running from 110 to 133 screen.

"Fine" Cuts for Good Paper

Now these fine cuts, while they give perfect quality on fine paper stock, cannot be used in newspapers or on cheap program stock for the reason that the tiny dots of a fine cut when printed on coarse paper tend to blur and run together where the roughness of the paper crowds up between the dots and smears the ink.

It is therefore useless to try to print a trade paper halftone in the newspaper. Hundreds of requests are received every week by the big picture concerns publicity departments from theater men who want to reproduce in newspaper advertising some of the handsome cuts of stars seen in the trade paper ads. The only way it can be done is to make a new cut from the original photograph, using a coarse screen. Of course it is possible for the exhibitor

THE A B C of the Mechanics of Picture Publicity Illustration

By TERRY RAMSAYE

THE accompanying article on photo-engraving and its particular application to the business of the motion pictures is especially recommended for consideration by exhibitors. Mr. Terry Ramsaye has incorporated into the article a wealth of practical information which forms an explanatory guide for exhibitors in preparing illustrations for their house organs, programs and newspaper advertising. The article in a clear, concise manner explains the possibilities of the processes of photo-engraving and also their limitations. Upon request any additional information desired about the mechanics of illustration will be forwarded to exhibitors.—The Editor.

JAMES SHELDON, OF SERIAL FAME, MADE PRESIDENT OF EMPIRE ALL-STAR CORP.

Was Former Chief of Syndicate Film Corporation Which Brought Out “The Million Dollar Mystery” Film; Discusses Forthcoming Plays

James M. Sheldon was elected president of the Empire All-Star Corporation at a meeting of the Board of Directors of that company held on Friday, July 27.

Mr. Sheldon was formerly president of the Syndicate Film Corporation, which brought out “The Million Dollar Mystery,” the serial that established a record for continued photoplajv productions.

Recently Mr. Sheldon, as president of the Randolph Film Corporation, succeeded in securing Billie Burke for a serial made by George Kleine. Mr. Sheldon in the trade is frequently referred to as “the man who put the serial on the map,” owing to his unusual talent for exploiting the kind of entertainment that has grown to be so popular. At a time when serials were scoffed at Mr. Sheldon’s faith in their box office possibilities was so steadfast that he launched “The Million Dollar Mystery.”

For twelve years prior to entering the film industry Mr. Sheldon was engaged in the practice of law in Chicago.

In discussing the forthcoming activities of the Empire All-Star Corporation, Mr. Sheldon said: “As has been announced in the trade journals, the Empire All-Star Corporation was organized especially to produce the Charles Frohman successes in motion pictures. In undertaking the filming of these subjects we have some of the greatest stars in the world—such box office magnets as Julia Sanderson, Ann Murdock, Olive Tell and William Gillette. We have at our command all the unlimited resources of the Charles Frohman organization, including a wealth of scenery, costumes, properties and rights to the famous Charles Frohman successes.

SHAMROCK CORP. OF TEXAS TO MAKE WESTERN SERIES

Contracts with N. Y. Company to Deliver a Two-Reel Film Monthly

The Shamrock Photoplay Corporation, located at San Jose, Cal., has contracted with a New York film company to make one two-reel “western” a month for the next year.

The first picture, “Jim of the 3-C Rance,” was ready about September 5. Work on the film now is being pushed at the studio. The scenario was written by P. S. McCey, of San Antonio.

The concern is backed by San Antonians, and it is claimed that they have an ideal location for taking motion pictures of the Western variety.

ETHEL CLAYTON HAS NOVEL WORLD FILM IN “THE WOMAN BENEATH”

In Role of New York Society Bud She Weds Westerner for Money, but Frowes Her Worth

The next Ethel Clayton play for World-Pictures Brady-made is “The Woman Beneath,” in which a New York society girl marries a rich westerner for his money and does not think she cares for him until he apparently “goes broke.” Then she pitches in to help him, although he has been fooling all the time about that financial disaster, and shows him that under the society bud exterior she is pure gold.

BRENON’S “FALL OF THE ROMANOFFS” FEATURE NOT TO EXCEED EIGHT REELS, IS PROMISE

Herbert Brenon, who is just completing his production, “The Fall of the Romanoffs,” has announced that his new feature will not exceed eight reels. He has made all his pictures within the past year eight reels and now has decided that his future productions will never exceed that limit.

“Eight reels,” says Mr. Brenon, “is the ideal length for a feature picture for special productions. An eight-reel picture runs about two hours. The theater, which is a much older art than ours, discovered through years of experience exactly how much entertainment the public can stand and profiting by this knowledge have sifted their performances down to two hours and a half.

“Theatrical managers have learned by experience, too, that there is such a thing as over-dosing the public. In the theater the very longest of plays begins at 8:15 and continues till 11 o’clock. There are usually two intermissions of eight minutes each, and with fifteen minutes for an intermission and an overture, that leaves two and a quarter hours of actual theatrical entertainment. To keep an audience too long in their seats, they have learned, means that they begin to get restless, and no matter how good the play may be they begin to get bored.”

MADGE EVANS CO-STARTS WITHlew fields IN NEW WORLD FILM, "CORNER GROCERY"

Little Player Has Role Opposite Star of Orphan Girl Who Finds Way to Heart of Old Storekeeper; Play Has Comedy and Pathos

Little Madge Evans will be the co-star with Lew Fields in "The Corner Grocery," shortly to be published by World-Pictures Brady-made. Many of Mr. Fields' most effective scenes are with the little orphan girl who finds a way into the affections of the gentle-hearted old storekeeper of this comedy of the screen, with its remarkably skillful blending of broad humor and tender pathos.

Stage Play Qualities Preserved
It is said by those who have witnessed the early private showings of the picture that all the essential qualities of Adolph Phillip's speaking play have been preserved in the transition from stage to film.

The appearance of little Madge as co-star with Mr. Fields is a reminder that the diminutive screen actress is a very much occupied young lady. Her first starring vehicle, "The Little Duchess," is the current offering of World-Pictures, showing a child as the pivotal personage in a distinctly human drama peopled almost entirely by grown-ups.

The appearance with Mr. Fields will follow this publication after a brief interval, and not long afterward little Madge will play the entirely striking role of the child in "The Burglar.

Another Film Named
Then will come the photoplay upon which the tiny Miss Evans is working at present, the tentative title of which is "When Carol Took the Subway." This may be changed. The picture is being directed by Harley Knoles, whose filming of "The Little Duchess" was uncommonly effective.

The most significant feature of the raising of Madge Evans to planetary magnitude in the motion picture firmament is that there is nothing juvenile about any of the plays, excepting her own personality.

"A SLACKER'S HEART" IS SUCCESS IN ILLINOIS AND INDIANA, DECLARE DISTRIBUTORS

Seven-part Patriotic Drama with Strong Patriotic Appeal to America Being Shown Successfully by Exhibitors, Say Greiver & Herz

"A Slacker's Heart," said to be a strong appeal to patriotic America and which endeavors to show why America is at war with Germany, is being shown with unexpected success in Illinois and Indiana, Greiver & Herz, the distributors, announce at the Chicago office.

This seven-part drama made by the Emerald Motion Picture Corporation is being published to the trade by Greiver & Herz, who control the rights in the two states.

The drama is enacted by a capable cast which is headed by Edward Arnold and Byrdine Zuber, two well known film players. The film shows that America is not a nation of slackers; shows the propaganda to make this a nation of pacifists, and dispels any illusion as to the designs of Germany against this country, it is pointed out.

"Hash and Hearts," the first of the Midget Comedy brand, also is being handled by Greiver & Herz from the Chicago exchange in the Consumers Building. This comedy played a solid week, starting July 30, at the Star Theater in the Chicago "loop" district.

Liberty Army May Take Him from Big Film Cleaning Business

A. Teitel, the Chicago film renovator, with offices at 112 North La Salle street, who for the past two years has done the major portion of film cleaning for the trade in Minneapolis, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, is among the first men in the Chicago trade to be called to the colors of the new Liberty Army. Mr. Teitel's draft number is 3,701. Upon notification from the Chicago bureau he took his place in the ranks of the drafted men and marched in the parade through the "loop" district on Saturday, August 4.

A. TEITEL
Chicago Film Cleaner

Although unknown to the trade, about two years ago Mr. Teitel opened offices and announced that he had discovered a new chemical process for cleaning film. It took considerable length of time to get the attention of the dubious trade, but after doing work for three exchanges he established an enviable reputation which soon spread throughout the central states film centers. His business has grown steadily, until at the present time he has one of the largest film renovating establishments in the country.

Mr. Teitel's concern has cleaned and inspected prints of some of the most pretentious productions on the American market.

The latest big feature which passed through the Teitel cleaning plant was "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." In appreciation of the work the following letter was received:

Mr. A. Teitel,
112 N. La Salle St.,
Chicago.

Dear Sir:
We want to congratulate you for your work on "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," as the print which you cleaned for us gives us the same satisfaction as a brand new copy.

A. J. GOLDMAN,
"Twenty Thousand Leagues" Mgr.

Mr. Teitel declares that during the past two years he has received letters of commendation from some of the biggest exchanges in the central state.

NO SHUTTER ON NEWEST PROJECTION MACHINE SOON TO BE PLACED ON MARKET

C. E. Hollander of Newark, Ohio, Incorporates Kinardt Company to Handle Invention Which Does Away with Flicker in Slow-run Reels

Charles E. Hollander of Newark, Ohio, has taken out papers of incorporation for the Kinardt Company of Newark and will place on the market a new motion picture projection machine. The company is incorporated for $17,000.

Is Great Improvement

The new machine is said to be a great improvement over the present machines. The greatest departure is the elimination of the shutter, which does away with all flickering, especially when the film is being run slowly. This is done by prismatic reflection and permits the projection of films either fast or slow, with no effect on the picture as a whole, nor does the chance for ignition of the film become greater, or even as much, it is said, notwithstanding the light passes through the film in much the same way as it does in machines now in use.

Standard films can be used, but a special film is suggested which will net a saving of 50 per cent, it is claimed. The film runs through the machine steadily, instead of by jerks, as at present, due to the shutter projection.

Soon to Be Marketed

It is said the method of operation by reason of the new device makes motion pictures more restful to the eye than the old style method of blending one picture into another by means of the shutter.

A number of Newark, Ohio, business men are interested in the project. The machine has been perfected and as rapidly as possible will be built and placed on the market.

On the South Side the Twentieth Century, Grand Oak and Willard will show them first and on the North Side of Chicago they will be presented at the Pine Grove and the Albany Park theaters. It is said a $10,000 deposit was required to secure the program.
“THE MANX-MAN,” ADAPTED FROM CAINE BOOK, OPENS AT CRITERION, IN NEW YORK, AUGUST 13

Scenes of Film Were Laid and Actually Photographed on the Isle of Man; Elizabeth Risdon, Fred Groves and Henry Ainley Featured

When “The Manx-Man,” in its film version of the greatest of Hall Caine’s narratives, is disclosed for the first time at the Criterion Theater in New York, Monday, August 13, one of the most ambitious attempts at photodramatics ever screened is promised.

The film story is based on what many consider Hall Caine’s best work. The scenario was written by Hall Caine and George Loane Tucker, the latter a well known director.

All the scenes were laid and taken on the Isle of Man, with thousands of the native islanders to help, thus giving the proper background and atmosphere. All the outdoor scenes are of the native fields and rock-ribbed shores of the isle. The homes, inns, court halls and other interiors are the same that Hall Caine described in his novel, and the same that George Loane Tucker found when he went among the Manx-Men. Many of the characters, notably the native peasanty and sardonic, are the actual inhabitants of the island who, through government co-operation, were permitted to make universal holiday when their services were needed by Mr. Tucker to immortalize their quaint little country on the screen.

The enterprise which has made “The Manx-Man” a screen version is distinctly American. Not only was the acting company, with perhaps two notable exceptions, an American company, but the picture is controlled and promoted through Henry J. Brook and his associates.

The names that first attract attention among the actors are those of Elizabeth Risdon, Fred Groves and Henry Ainley. Miss Risdon is more than well known on the New York stage,

“LITTLE MISS OPTIMIST” IS NEXT DRAMATIC FEATURE WHICH STARS VIVIAN MARTIN

Vivian Martin’s first star picture under the new Paramount plan is “Little Miss Optimist,” written especially for her by Gardner Hunting.

Miss Martin plays the part of a girl newsie, Maisie-Rosie. Early parts of the picture show the delivery of a big morning newspaper with the heroine struggling with real newsboys for her share of paper. As a newsie she meets Deal Hendrie, son of a wealthy family, but practically starving because of his decision to be a musician against his father’s wishes. Maisie brings the lad back to hope and a new life and he eventually gets a position as organist. A big romance is interwoven in this new film subject.

Tom Moore, brother of Owen Moore, a clever juvenile, is leading man for Miss Martin. He recently scored successes with Mae Murray in “The Primrose Ring” and with Suee Hayakawa in “The Jaguar’s Claws.”

“THE WORLD FOR SALE” IS BLACKTON’S FIRST PRODUCTION TO BE MADE FOR PARAMOUNT

J. Stuart Blackton, whose affiliation with Paramount was announced recently, has begun his first big spectacular feature for publication by this organization. In Mr. Blackton’s announcement of his new association he stated that he held the picture rights to almost all of Sir Gilbert Parker’s books. His first Paramount picture will be an adaptation of one of the most famous of the English-Canadian author’s novels, “The World for Sale.”

Mr. Blackton has adapted the story to film purposes, has supervised the writing of the scenario and is personally engaged in the direction and all the technical details of the massive production. Work was begun under his direction in New Jersey last week where some of the exteriors are being taken. The interior scenes will be filmed in Brooklyn where Mr. Blackton has his studios ready for any requirement of interior work.

The announcement of the members of the cast in “The World for Sale” is expected next week.

Montreal, Que.—Mr. Bouget, owner of the National Biograph, Notre Dame Street W., Montreal, has made extensive improvements in his theater. He is installing an organ and has placed an order with Perkins Electric Company for two simplex machines and a double 50 Hertner transverter.

CENSORED FILMS CAN BE RECALLED IN PENNSYLVANIA

Harrisburg, Pa.—According to a decision of Deputy Attorney General Joseph L. Kun, the State Board of Censors has authority to recall an approval of a film unless rights have been acquired or have intervened, which a recall would disturb.

This opinion was given Frank P. Shattuck, the newly appointed chairman of the motion picture censor board. The opinion says that while the act does not expressly authorize a recall “the intent is clear to constitute the board a bulwark of the people against sacrilegious, indecent and immoral motion pictures,” and says that if the power is given to recall a disapproval there is certainly power to recall an approval.

ERNEST SHIPMAN QUILTS WILLIAMSON BROS.; TO PRODUCE FIVE-REELER

Ernest Shipman, general manager of the Williamson Bros., with offices in the Longacre building, New York city, has resigned and will embark in the producing business early in the fall.

Mr. Shipman intends to produce a five-reeler feature in which Neil Shipman will be the featured star. The title of the film has not as yet been announced.

Mr. Shipman severed his connection with Williamson Bros. on August 4.

Bessie Barriscale had the Covent Garden Theater, Chicago, ringing with laughter with her antics in “ Borrowed Plumage,” a story of Ireland back in the days of John Paul Jones.

It is a costume play, well produced, and though slight in texture, holds the interest by reason of being well acted and well staged. Many elaborate sets have been used and the atmosphere of the Emerald Isle in the days of wigs and snuff boxes is faithful in every detail.

“Souls Adrift” is an entertaining piece of screen fiction. It contains excellent photography, plenty of suspense and is carefully acted throughout.

The story affords a good role for Ethel Clayton, who is cast as the pampered daughter of a wealthy shipbuilder. Milton Sills gives her fine support as Micah Steele.

Most of the action takes place on an isolated island in the Pacific ocean, where the shipwrecked couple are cast by the waves after the yacht on which they are traveling is blown up. The picture proved a good drawing card at the Covent Garden, Chicago, where it was shown last week.

The story: Micah Steele, an inventor, is cheated of both the profits on his patent and the hand of Elma Raybourne by Elma’s father. Micah secures employment as second engineer on Raybourne’s yacht on a cruise around the world. The yacht blows up in the Pacific ocean, and Micah and Elma are cast up on an island. During the days that follow Micah protects her and showers every attention upon the headsstrong girl. He saves her from an attack by pearl smugglers, one of whom later burns the hut where she sleeps. The light attracts a passing vessel and the following morning, realizing her love for Micah, she begs him to accompany her back to civilization.

Franklyn Farnum is excellent in “The Clean-Up.” Given a few more stories such as this, with the winsome Brownie Vernon as his leading lady, and exhibitors who book Bluebirds will have no trouble packing their houses.

The story is one of small town folks with a penchant for reforms, who become so imbued with the idea that they fight among themselves in their efforts to undo one another.

The play moves along swiftly and is bound to hold interest throughout. It is a clean-cut, fresh-screen play, well directed and carefully handled by a cast which includes Franklyn Farnum, Brownie Vernon, Mary Talbot, Marc Fonton, Martha Mattox, Claire McDowell, Albert McQuarrie and William Human, all excellent in their parts.

The story: Stuart Adams, an advance agent for “The Girl and the Garter” road show, leaves New York to book the play in a theater in the town of Weston, which is his home town. En route Adams meets a charming young lady who is on her way to Weston. Upon arrival. Adams’ sweetheart is waiting for him at the station, but she runs away when she sees him with the other girl.

However, Stuart faces a difficult situation when his father learns that he is advance agent for the show he forbids Adams to see Hazel. An interview with Hazel’s father gets into the papers, and Adams is challenged to an open debate before the Reform League and the Personal Liberty League. Adams gets a telegram from the manager of the show stating that it has closed and to cancel the engagement at Weston. He goes to the meeting and pleads with the townspeople to get together, and states he will make an appearance, if they will, by not permitting "The Girl and the Garter" to be shown. They agree to this, and Adams is taken home to Hazeld as his reward.

Francis Carpenter, Virginia Lee Corbin in
"JACK AND THE BEANSTALK"
Standard Pictures-Fox Film Co.; ten parts; published July 30

As a whole Unusual Story Fairy tale Support Remarkable

Photography Exquisite

William Fox's initial child picture, entitled "Jack and the Beanstalk," is founded on the old fairy tale which doubtless all children have heard of. An epilogue set in the modern day has been used to introduce the fairy story, which is told in the form of a dream. The main objections to the picture are: First, its length; the dramatic action is delayed by the insertion of too many scenes just to get scenic effects. This feature shows a miniature village, perfect in its completeness, picturesque and amusing with its tiny inhabitants dressed as full grown men and women. Second, the verbal story read to little ones is enough to give them horrors, but the pictured version abounds with scenes of brutality which are not the things for children to see. And speaking of child labor! All the participants in the picture with the exceptions of the giant and giantness and the characters in the very short epilogue and prologue are child actors and it is not a pretty sight to see a huge man pick children up and hurl them to the floor where they lie bruised and bleeding.

The little lad who plays the title role, Francis Carpenter, is a wonderful little actor. Little Virginia Lee Corbin, the heroine and princess, is adorable and brings roars of laughter with her childish dignity and dainty ways. Violet Radcliffe, who plays the count, affords many amusing moments in her role of a villain. Others in the cast are Carmen Fay De Rue, J. G. Tarver, Vera Lewis, Ralph Lewis, Eleanor Washington and Lenee Glennon.

The whole production will doubtless have a large following because of its traditional story.

The story: While Jack's mother and Virginia's mother go to an afternoon tea the nurse reads the story of Jack and the Beanstalk. The children are thrilled and decide to go in search of the giant castle. Jack brings his motor car (toy) and meets Virginia with her bag at the cross roads. They get to a forest which they believe to be the enchanted woods but find no castle. Night comes and the children fall asleep and dream: Jack sells his mother's cow for a handful of beans. The mother is heart broken for they are without food. She throws the beans out of the window. During the night they take root, grow and in the morning they have reached and disappeared into the sky, twining and intertwining so as to form one single stalk. Jack and his dog climb the stalk and at the top discover a beautiful village, but the inhabitants are in deadly fear of a canibalistic giant. Jack tells the king he will rid them of the giant who had killed his father and robbed Jack's poor mother of her rightful wealth. Of course the little princess falls in love with Jack and then there is the jealous count who plots against Jack and his happiness. Many adventures ensue in futile attempts to kill the giant. The climax is reached after the king dies. Jack is seen scrambling down the beanstalk with the princess in his arms, the giant after him. He reaches the ground, chops down the stalk and the giant comes down with it, breaking both legs. Jack pounces upon him and stabs him to death. Then he takes the princess in his arms and, kissing her, promises to never leave her again. Here the children are awakened by their parents and the film ends.

Stories of the timber country have a certain appeal with all audiences and this is the ease with "The Long Trail," a drama of the Canadian Northwest. There is excellent material in this Famous Players production and the author has made his plot clean-cut and forceful, with an added climax near the end that serves to hold an audience until the last foot.

Lou-Tellegen has the principal role, that of Andre Dubois, a trapper, and opposite is Mary Fuller, as Louise Graham. Film patrons will welcome back their old favorite. Pictorially "The Long Trail" is a feast and the production, aside from some of the love scenes, which have been overdone, is up to the Paramount standard.

The story: Andre, a trapper, meets Louise Graham, the poor niece of wealthy furriers, who have invaded the northern country on pleasure and business. Andre and Louise are caught in a blinding snow storm and are forced to stay in Andre's cabin over night. Her wealthiness enhances the following morning scorches her and she her relatives leave her. Andre offers to wed her and she accepts.

Meanwhile the never-do-well brother of Louise has enticed Michette, Andre's little sister, from a convent in Montreal. He deserts her and Andre after her death swears vengeance. Louise's brother stumbles into camp, is recognized by Andre and only her appeals save him. Andre helps him across the long trail. He is pursued by mounted police for another offense, is shot and Andre accused of aiding him in his escape. Louise proves her love by saying she had given the aid and her husband had followed on discovering her act.

The average audience will conclude that this is a picture made expressly to exploit Emmy Wehlen's curls and pouting lips, and not because there was a story to tell. And the average audience will have sized the situation up right.

There is some beautiful St. Lawrence river scenery, where the picture was made, but little else. There are close-ups of Emmy Wehlen's feet, close-ups of her hair, close-ups of a pair of trousers she dons for no apparent reason at all except to look cute, and close-ups of her pout.

The supporting cast includes Walter Miller, who plays the suave role of "Birdie" Featherstone; Harold Entwhistle, as a wealthy banker and diplomat; Margaret Seddon, Sue Balfour and Augustus Phillips. William Christy Carrigan directed the picture and wrote the story. Photography is good; direction, poor.

The story: Panthea Strong's aunt wishes to marry wealthy banker; hence Bertram Caesar Featherstone, who is courting Panthea, carrying her dog and golf sticks, as a hard row to hoe. Bertram, after Panthea's engagement is announced, becomes a woman hater and goes o the Thousand Islands. Panthea also sojourns there with her fiancée and meets Bertram at a masquerade party. Bertram kidnaps Panthea and takes her to an island. When her folks go in search of her they find that agents of the German government have taken her way in a motorboat. A chase follows and Bertram rescues her.

Edward Arnold, Byrdine Zuber in

"THE SLACKER'S HEART"

Emerald M. P. Co. drama; seven parts; published state rights Timely indeed is "A Slacker's Heart," written by Frederick J. Ireland and produced by the Emerald Motion Picture Company of Chicago. The picture has a certain appeal inasmuch as it presents the question "to enlist or not to enlist?" that confronts every young man in this country today, and is a strong argument for armament.

Throughout the story the interest is well sustained, and the climax is handled in a manner that should bring spectators to their feet. The declaration of war by Germany, the President's message, the exposure of dealing between German spies and Villa and his followers, are all interwoven with a love story that makes excellent screen entertainment, devoid of objectionable features.

The cast, which includes Edward Arnold, Byrdine Zuber and Rhea Laughlin, is an excellent one and the theatre shows painstaking care in its production.

The story: Phyllis is in love with Frank and when he is declared with Germany she urges him to join the army. Frank is influenced by a chum named Von Litz, in behalf of a secret agent of the German government, and his parents are free to answer the call to the colors. He turns a deaf ear to his mother's pleadings and looks with scorn upon his younger brother's scout uniform. Phyllis is heartbroken over his apparent unpatriotic stand and breaks her engagement. While she organizes a Red Cross unit and goes to war, in a furor over the war preparations, Frank's father and sister sail for New York. Word comes of the blowing up of the ship and the loss of all aboard. Frank then has his eyes opened to the treachery of Uncle Sam's enemy and declares himself opposed to Germans and their methods. He exposes Von Litz, bides the Secret Service men capture an emissary of Villa, and the picture ends with Phyllis and Frank in another's arms.

There are many extracts from the President's message, verbal allegorical pictures and references to the past history of the United States which have been well handled. The picture is being handled by Greiver & Herz of Chicago in Illinois and Indiana.

ING BEE STUDIO AT BAYONNE, N. J., WORKS AT FULL CAPACITY ON NEW COMEDIES FEATURING BILLY WEST

Probably no company engaged in the production of motion pictures has been more active during this summer than the King Bee Film Corporation, whose studios at Bayonne, N. J. have seldom been idle. During the summer the direction of Louis Burstein, resident and general manager of the company, work has been on both day and night, and as the demand for the comedies featuring Billy West as the star has exceeded expectations he has been kept busy. A pleasing story of the cattle country, with Ruth Stonehouse in the leading role, playing the part of a little Swedish girl, is "Follow the Girl." Although the material is not new, the plot is unfolded with enough action and suspense to keep the average spectator wondering as to the outcome until the end.

As the title implies, there is a detective element in the tale, with plotters who smuggle papers into the United States by sewing them in the hem of an immigrant girl's dress.

Excellent photography abounds, especially of the great Western ranch country. The picture has been nicely tinted, which adds to its charm. Besides Miss Stonehouse, Jack Dill, Roy Stewart, Claire Duprey, Harry Dunkinson and Alfred Allen appear in the cast.

The story: Little Hilda Swanson, learning of the possibilities of America, leaves her native land and sails to Olai, a childhood friend. An adventure in the employ of foreign crooks is an element in producing valuable papers.
into the United States and sails on the same boat. While Hilda is asleep the papers are concealed in her dress by the adventure's, who fears detection upon her landing. Hilda and O'Keefe later go west to secure work. They finally locate upon a cattle ranch. While lengthening her dress she discovers the papers and gives them to Larry O'Keefe, owner of the ranch. In the meantime the adventurer and her partner are searching for Hilda, and in turn are being watched by United States detectives. During an attempt to steal O'Keefe's cattle Hilda is kidnaped from the ranch. O'Keefe follows the crooks, rescues Hilda and turns the papers over to government officials, who arrest the crooks. MISS SAUNDERS IN "BAB THE FIXER" LEADS MUTUAL PROGRAM AUGUST 13: MANY OTHER SUBJECTS SCHEDULED

Jackie Saunders in "Bab the Fixer," sixth of her series of star productions for Mutual, leads the Mutual schedule for the week of August 13.

"Bab the Fixer" was produced by Horkheimer, under the direction of Sherwood McDonald, from the story by Lee Arthur, in which Miss Saunders herself collaborated.

MISS JACKIE SAUNDERS AS A BRIDE, AND SUPPORT, IN A SCENE FROM "BAB THE FIXER," A FORTHCOMING FEATURE (Horkheimer Mutual)

The production is a five-reel comedy-drama, laid principally on a western ranch, but the first of the first act is laid on Wall street and there are a few scenes in a Fifth avenue finishing school.

Star an Ad Asset

"Bab the Fixer" is the sixth of her series of star productions for Mutual, Jackie Saunders herself is an advertising asset for the exhibitor. The fact that she plays a tomboy role is another point to use in advertising. Exhibitors can get effective advertising by dressing their ticket sellers in typical western garb.

The Mutual schedule for the week of August 13 includes two comedies, "The Widow's Might," a one-reel La Salle, and "Beech Nuts," a one-reel Cub starring George Overy. "The Widow's Might" is based on a conspiracy to acquire the fortune of a stony old woman by fair means or foul, marriage being selected as the most effective. George Overy meets a bevy of beautiful girls at the seashore in "Beech Nuts," gets into their dressing room, where he gets into many complications, and he ends up by smashing his flivver into a gasoline filling station.

Reel Life No. 69, the weekly screen magazine, which is issued August 16, shows the work of the Y. M. C. A. in various sections of the world, pictures the various phases of military training through which army recruits are placed and contains as the animated drawing from Life "The Absent-Minded Dentist."

Mutual Tours Around the World, No. 41, issued August 14, takes the audience through Southern Corsica, down the Hoayoux, a river in Belgium, and thence to pictures near Trieste.

Mutual Weekly, the one reel of current events to be issued August 15, carries the latest news of importance up to within a few hours of its publication. The Weekly is made up of pictures which in many instances beat the newspaper illustrations of big events.

MAKING SOLDIERS FOR NEW ARMY PICTURED IN GAUMONT, AUGUST 16

The whole country has been following with great interest the work of the men at the various training camps for officers. Recognizing that the new camps for the soldiers of the national army will offer the same training the Gaumont Company has taken pictures of the work of the men training to be soldiers. These will be issued through Mutual in Reel Life No. 68 on August 16. New work as getting ready for a bayonet charge, going through a barb-wire barricade, and charging with the bayonet at some of the preparations shown as the army is being shaped into shape for the "big push" next year. Hurdle jumping is a necessary course for soldiers. Being good ball players, our enzy soldiers take readily to bomb throwing, and just how they do it is shown in these pictures.

The Young Men's Christian Association has more that 800,000 members in North America. Just what goes on within the walls of some of the larger institutions of great cities is pictured in this issue of Reel Life. For the pictures the Gaumont Company chose the large Y. M. C. A. building in the world, that at 55 Hans Place, New York, with a membership of more than 7,000. The mental, moral, physical and spiritual needs of men and boys are systematically taken care of in a manner which lend themselves to pictures in an entertaining way. Perhaps the greatest interest centers about athletic activities and the places of social relaxation.

There also is an animated drawing of a humorous nature called "The Absent-Minded Dentist," taken from Life.

"The Barrier" will be issued to Canadian exhibitors early in September. Mr. Wright was in New York last week conferring with the publicity department of Selznick Enterprises regarding the immense public campaign that will be launched in Canada. He predicts that "The Barrier" will be the season's biggest success in Canada.

Miss Jones, Waukesha, Wis., Exhibitor, Wins Against Odds

After hard struggle, she establishes amusement company controlling chain of theaters, despite advice it couldn't be done.

By MISS FLOSSIE A JONES
Waukesha, Wl.

I have been in business three and one-half years, have started showing pictures in an old wooden building exclusively for summer shows. Despite the fact I put in eight oil stoves during the first winter, the big was very cold and the snow which sifted through cracks made conditions even worse. Every day I decided to close for good, but I got some business and kept it. These early experiences as an exhibitor taught me to expect emergencies as nothing else could.

Took Over Park Theater
This first theater was called the Silurian Casino, and fourteen years was one of the biggest money-making houses in Wisconsin. I have since renamed it the Colonial. After a year's experience I took over a little house called the Park Theater, cleaned, painted and remodeled it and did a good business. When my lease ran out I sold the fixtures at a profit of $500. The owner signed me a new lease, tried to operate it himself, but it was a failure and had to go.

Then got outside capital in the Colonial Theater, and by borrowing money myself I managed to get $13,000, with which I remodeled the Colonial, making it one of the prettiest and coziest little theaters in Wisconsin. I got every man on the job myself, paid them by the hour and bought all the material and saved $500 on the lowest bid, a profit of $7,900, which paid for the entire contract. I designed the house myself. The walls of the theater are done in old rose material, the white enamel beamed ceiling with a cream background and a hand-painted arch of roses. White enamel sashes add a touch of beauty. The drapes are dark colored, the velvet trimmed with gold. The theater seats 1,000 persons.

Does All Press and Ad Work
Five months after the Colonial opened it was destroyed by fire, but I borrowed more money and rebuilt it and have been doing a nice business ever since. Outside of the regular program feature pictures I have played grand opera, $2 road shows, vaudeville, lectures and "The Birth of a Nation" four times at 50 cents to $1.20, doing all my own booking, advertising and press work. I tacked up a thousand cards advertising "The Birth of a Nation" and hung paper from a 3-sheet to a 24-sheet stand myself when I could not get help. I also did most of my own lithographing.

I next took over a theater named The Unique, and with the aid of some big real estate firms, which acted as trustees, I formed the Waukesha Amusement Company and purchased three theaters at a cost of $74,000. My partner and I put in the Colonial as stock. I also acquired the Auditorium Theater, which was built at a cost of $45,000.

Is Proud of Accomplishment
I am general manager and vice president of the amusement concern. I am happy and proud of what I have accomplished, because big picture men had said that it could not be done, and that I was wasting my time trying to swing a deal to form such a company with Liberty Bonds being sold and all the war talk.

New York—Herbert Brenon's screen sensation "The Lone Wolf" continues to defy the heat. At the Broadway Theater it is still drawing large audiences, with no end to the successful run in sight. In spite of the heat wave of the past week, which prostrated hundreds, the attendance at this production held up steadily, and as the theater is a cool one, those who sit through the showing of the picture are exceedingly comfortable. The Herbert Brenon office announce that they intend to keep the picture at the theater indefinitely. In the meantime the advance bookings from all parts of the country are being received by the Selznick offices. The distributors of this feature, and every indication points to a record-breaking business for "The Lone Wolf." to take the page from the trade paper and have an engraver in his own town make a coarse half tone from it, but this costs more money than most exhibitors care to spend on cuts, also the quality of the resulting cut is often very poor.

The cut which the motion picture exhibitor gets at the film exchange is a "copy" of the original or "pattern cut." This copy is naturally made by a much cheaper process than the original and hence is ordinarily sold at a price of about one-tenth the cost of the pattern plate. The copy is originally made by a known process, hence the copied cut is called in the trade an electrolyte. This term is derived from the method by which it is made. An impression of the pattern cut is made in wax. The surface of the wax is coated with a substance which conducts electricity. The wax is then placed in a copper electroplating bath and the mould is literally plated with copper. This plating process of course deposits a thin shell of the copper. The back of this shell is filled with metal, usually lead or lead alloyed with a similar metal. The copper shell filled with lead is then trimmed up, the rough edges squared and the electrolyte thus produced is tacked on a block of wood. This is for the purpose of making the electro "type high," which means that when it is placed in a form with type its face will stand at the same height as the surrounding type matter which is to be printed at the same time.

The Duplicating Process

Another process of coping or duplicating cuts from a pattern or original plate is now coming into favor. It is patented under the name of "aluminotype." This may be briefly described as the process of making a mould of the original cut in plaster of paris and in this mould making a casting of the cut with an alloy of aluminum. Some picture companies use the aluminotype instead of the electrolyte because of its greater durability and its lightness in weight. An aluminotype being a casting is most successful on cuts of coarse screen, while an electrolyte carefully made will reproduce a cut regardless of the fineness of the screen. This is because the electrolyte is made by the electroplating process and the electricity carries the copper into the most minute details of the mould, while the aluminum casting cannot get the same microscopic accuracy because the flowing metal does not fill every tiny bit of space in the mould.

The matrix, commonly called a "mat," is a cheap and useful form of cut distribution. The mat is in effect a mould of a pattern cut made in paper or pasteboard. From this mould castings are made with melted type metal. The result is a duplicate of the original cut. Since this method of making a cut is called stereotyping the resulting metal cut is called a "stereo." A well made mat yields a very satisfactory stereo cut and well equipped newspaper plants, even in smaller towns, can make stereo cuts—though they ordinarily call it "casting a mat." As the nature of the process indicates, the mat can only be made successfully from coarse newspaper cuts.

But since some publications and some printing houses are not equipped to make stereotypes from mats, and since any printing house can use an electrolyte, the electro cut is the most generally practical and is in almost universal use. The cost of mats is considerably lower than the cost of electrots, but its range of usefulness is narrower and it is not so perfect a copy of the pattern cut.

Advice on Illustrations

The advantage of using illustrations with press notices in the newspapers, in house programs, throw-aways and similar forms of advertisement hardly should need emphasis. The exhibitor's merchandise is pictorial. Every patron who thinks of the show thinks of it in terms of pictures. Pictures, therefore, should form a dominant part of the advertising of the show. The great reason for the success of the motion picture as a form of entertainment as a medium of telling a story, is that it supplies imagination ready made and that it does not require the "reader" of the screen story to use his own powers of visualization. The motion picture story does its own describing, and it gives a picture of the villain throwing the heroine over the precipice instead of merely relating the same words. Words have meaning only as they are associated with visual ideas. The motion picture supplies all this ready made. Let the theater advertising capitalize this same pictorial value. Use cuts and plenty of them.

The publicity departments of the big film corporations spend thousands of dollars a month making cuts which branch managers often seem to think were intended for door weights. If the exhibitor will insist on getting cuts he can get them.

"THE MIDNIGHT MAN," A BUTTERFLY FEATURE STARRING JACK MULHALL, HAS A NOVEL TURN IN ITS PLOT

Jack Mulhall is the star of "The Midnight Man," the Butterfly Picture scheduled for publication August 13. This feature deals with the adventures that befall the inventive son of a safe manufacturer. Jack Mulhall takes the part of Bob Moore, whose father is desirous of forming a business consolidation with John Hardin, a rival manufacturer of safes, much against the wishes of Bob. The reasons for Bob's objection resides in the fact that he had worked day and night to construct a safe that cannot be opened. Although the young man has the utmost contempt for the existing qualities of the Hardi-treasure-chests, he is nevertheless strong for the daughte of the household. Irene Hardin reciprocates Bob's interest, much to her father's chagrin. A three-cornered battle of wits ensues, unusual complications arising when Bob befriends a safe cracker, hoping to learn some professional secrets with which to contound his fiancee's of du rate father. The unexpected occurs, however, when the lure of Irene's necklace proves too much for Bob's protection. The novel manner in which things are final straightened out provides the chief interest in a plot with several novel turns. Jack Mulhall is supported by Al Kroman, Hal Wilson, Wilbur Highy, A1 McQuarrie at Uard Lamont.

Recommendations to Insure Against Loss by Fire

Initial article of series sets forth building plans aimed to eliminate fire waste—Many precautions urged.

Herewith is an article setting forth the recommendations of the National Fire Protection Association for the prevention of fires in theaters, studios, exchanges and storage vaults. The recommendations are of vital importance to the entire trade in curbing and eliminating damage and loss by fire. Many costly fires in theaters and exchanges are directly traceable to carelessness and ignorance of proper fire prevention precautions. This article will be followed by others, all aimed to disseminate fire prevention information and to encourage the taking of proper precautions.—EDITOR.

The advance publication of the report of the committee on explosives and combustibles, sent out by the National Fire Protection Association, contains much valuable information relative to the regulations governing the prevention, storage and handling of motion picture film.

The report, which was prepared by a committee under the chairmanship of C. Hutson of New York City, covers every phase of the handling and storage of films, which will be of especial interest to exhibitors. It applies to all forms of motion picture film, except the approved slow-burning and, whether in the form of negative, raw stock, finished product or discarded scrap film.

The exceptions noted are occupancies other than studios, in which less than five standard reels of film are kept, motion picture theaters and establishments manufacturing raw film stock.

Under the head of building and construction, the report provides that every building in which film is handled must be of fire-resisting construction, except one-story buildings used for studios only. These may be constructed with unprotected metal members, but must, of course, be entirely non-combustible. Such buildings must also be equipped with automatic sprinkler systems.

To Limit Footage

Every laboratory, exchange or other establishment where more than five reels of film are stored should have one or more fire vaults or cabinets used exclusively for storing film.

All laboratories, according to the report, should be separated from all other parts of the building, both vertically and horizontally, by partitions.

The regulations cover the construction of carpenter tops, costume and dressing rooms, which are to be separated from the studio floor or stage.

Under the head of exchanges the committee recommends independent rooms, used exclusively for receiving and delivering films. The inspection room, where repairs, e., c., are made, also must be a separate room, as well as one for the storage of posters and other combustible material. All studios, laboratories and exchanges should be provided with adequate aisle space, and at least two exits, remote from each other. Metal furniture, shelving and fixtures must also be supplied as far as possible.

Partitions of concrete or metal lath and cement plaster three inches thick, or of brick or hollow blocks four inches thick, are required and must extend from floor to ceiling. All openings are to be protected with wired glass or bars of an approved type, conforming to the regulations of the National Board of Fire Underwriters for the protection of openings in walls and partitions against fire.

Data on Storage

Under the section relating to storage of films the committee has gone into every detail of the handling of same and the report covers fully every angle of this important feature. It provides that 200 reels or 1,000 pounds of film may be placed in one cabinet, but the storage of any amount in excess of 200 reels must be in a film vault, the interior of which shall not exceed 700 cubic feet.

Film vault floors must be cement or other fireproof material, the walls of which shall be of brick at least eight inches thick, or hollow tile at least twelve inches thick or of reinforced concrete, six inches thick. The walls must be without cracks or holes that will permit the escape of gases.

All vaults must be provided with an independent reinforced concrete roof at least six inches thick, except in fire-resisting buildings where the floor above is equivalent to a concrete roof.

Film vaults must be provided with skylights or glass windows, but must not be located near boilers, stacks or other sources of heat, and no heating coils or heating appliances is permitted in a film vault.

In the matter of providing an opening to vaults, there must be two fire doors, one on the interior face of the wall, which must be an automatic sliding fire door. The other can be a normally-closed swing fire door. Only one door opening to a vault is permitted. The doors mentioned must conform to the regulations of the National Board of Fire Underwriters as to construction and installation.

Position of Containers

The racks in film vaults are another important feature of the vaults. These must be built of metal or other non-combustible material and so arranged as to prevent film containers being placed only upon one another, in a vertical position. Vertical incombustible partitions, equivalent in heat insulation and durability to three-eighths of an inch hard asbestos and extending from floor to ceiling, must be placed between every twenty containers (in a horizontal direction). All partitions must be substantial and have the exposed edges protected. The containers on each side the partitions must be kept an inch away from the partition, and the racks must not obstruct any vent openings.

Another stipulation is that racks must be so arranged that film cannot be placed under or between containers in a vertical position.

In case where an excessive floor load would result from having the film vault filled with water, vaults must be provided with one or more scuppers, with an inlet area equal to three square inches for each sprinkler head installed in the vault. A depth of ten feet of water, it is said, will result in a floor load of 626 pounds per square foot. (To be continued)

“A WIFE’S SUSPICIONS,” FEATURING VAL PAUL AND MISS BETTY SCHADE, LEADS UNIVERSAL PROGRAM AUG. 14

Willard Mack is the author of “A Wife’s Suspicions,” the Gold Seal drama which heads Universal’s regular schedule of films beginning August 14. This follows Jack Mulhall in “The Midnight Man,” a butterfly picture, Monday, August 13, under separate booking arrangements. Val Paul and Betty Schade are featured in the leading roles of “A Wife’s Suspicions.”

The story has to do with the complications that arise when Mary Bradford surprises her husband in conversation with some ill-conditioned strangers who appear to be on familiar terms with him. Jack Bradford evades his wife’s questions concerning his acquaintances, and this leads to a series of exciting events in which Mary, with many sad misgivings, tries to shield her husband from what she imagines are the consequences of his own mistakes. But in the end it turns out that she herself has made the most complete mistake of anyone concerned in the story. “The Rushin’ Dancers,” a Nestroy comedy, featuring Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts, will be issued the same day.

L-Ko Comedy for August 15

“Rough Stuff,” a two-reel L-Ko comedy, featuring Dan Russell and Ghyllys Varden, will head the films for Wednesday, August 15. The eighty-fifth issue of the Universal Animated Weekly will also be published the same day.

Harry Carey will be the star of the dramatic feature issued the following day, Thursday, August 16. The title of Carey’s vehicle is “Cheyenne’s Pal.” It is a swiftly moving little drama of the cattle country. Gertrude Astor and Jim Corey have leading parts, and Cactus Pete, Carey’s sturdy cow-pony, plays a very effective part in the working out of the story. Jim Corey is serving as a buyer of horses for the British army. He purchases some horses from Cheyenne Harry, but casts a covetous eye upon Cactus Pete, Harry’s faithful horse. The cowboy rises ever so often for the horse, but Corey holds his time, determined to have the animal. This finally occurs, after Harry has spent all of his money on a dance hall beauty. Next morning he awakens, lonely and conscience-stricken. He is lost without Pete. Under cover of darkness Pete and Harry take a desperate chance—and are successful.

“Out Again, In Again;” a Joker comedy, featuring William Francy, will appear the same day. This is a film on prison life, which tells of the misadventures that befall prisoner No. 13, who is elected to be guest of honor at his own execution. Harry Mann, Eileen Roberts and Millburn Moranti fill the other roles in support of Francy.

Diversity of Subjects Scheduled

“The Brass Girl,” a two-reel Victor comedy, featuring Matt Moore and Jane Gail, is the offering for Friday, July 17. The thirty-second number of the Universal Screen Magazine will be issued August 17.

Universal Current Events, which has shown a remarkable increase in popularity, will appear in its fourteenth issue Saturday, August 18, together with a Joker comedy, featuring Gale Henry, entitled “Rock to the Kitchen.” “Power’s” educational devoted to “Algeria, Old and New,” and a Powers’ comic cartoon, “Doing His Bit.”

During the week episode 8 of “The Gray Ghost,” Universal’s mystery serial adapted from Arthur Somers Roche’s novel, will be issued outside Greater New York. This will be entitled “The Danger Hour,” and features Emory Johnson, Priscilla Dean, Harry Carter and Eddie Polo.

SELG’S FILMS ON GENERAL FOR AUGUST 13 WEEK OFFER THRILLS

For the week beginning Monday, August 13, the Selig Company announces some interesting films. For Monday, August 13, “The Sole Survivor,” a two-reel drama of Central American jungles, is scheduled. This film, written by James Oliver Curwood, features Bessie Eytton, supported by an all star cast.

“Her Heart’s Desire” is the title of the one-reel drama to be published by Selig in General Film service Saturday, August 18. Bessie Eytton is again featured in this production, which is one of the few one-reel film dramas directed by Colin Campbell.

“Between Man and Beast” is the title of the Selig two-reel jungle drama to be issued by Selig in General Film Service Monday, August 20. Again Bessie Eytton is starred. One big scene in this play is where a big ape captures and cares for a little child.

“Her Salvation” is the title of the Selig one-reel film for Saturday, August 25, in which Bessie Eytton is again starred in a drama having to do with the “submerged tern.”

William N. Selig calls especial attention to the fact that his very best stars, very best writers and very best directors are now contributing to General Film plays. Colin Campbell, responsible for the direction of such great film dramas as “The Garden of Allah” and “The Crisis,” directs one or more of the above described film productions. Bessie Eytton of “The Crisis” fame, Eugene Messerer, Wheeler Oakman, Charles Gray, Thomas Santschi, Kathlyn Williams and other well known stars appear in General Film Service through the medium of Selig pictures.

Hoffman-Foursquare pictures distributed through the New York Foursquare Exchange are finding a ready market, despite the fact that warm weather still continues. One of the many contracts closed during the past week was with Locy’s Circuit of Theaters, in New York which purchased “Her Fighting Chance” for sixty-five days. This contract is sufficient evidence of the worth of the picture, in which Jane Grey is the star, and other important negotiations are pending for bookings in large units.

Among other bookings of the various Foursquare pictures recently made by Manager Hy. Gansborg and his selling staff are:

- On “The Bar Sinister”—Pontiac, Saranac Lake: Fox Bay Ridge, Brooklyn; Grand Theater, Malone; Happy Hour, Lake Placid; Fox’s Crotona Theater, Bronx; Strat Theater, Ithaca: Mozart, Elmira; Avon, Utica, Unique Wharton, L. I.; Lyceum, College Point; Carillon, Ticeralda, N. Y.

CHICAGO TRADE EVENTS

By "MAC"

"Duttie," the live president of the Exhibitors Supply Company, returned to the main office August 3 after visiting the Indianapolis branch. After giving the nearby trade a flying visit, in company with R. E. "Bob" Gunman, manager, H. A. R. Dutton states his company purchased the entire supply stock of the Central Film Company of Indianapolis.

F. M. Brockell, manager of the Goldwyn offices, is fast lining up the boys for the sales squad, having recently added the following well known film men: Paul Bush, former manager of the Beach Theater; Nat Wolf, the "expo auctioneer," and S. H. Lighter, formerly affiliated with Paramount exchange.

The athletic Fox manager, Jack O'Toole, has changed his quarters to a smaller portion of the Fox site. With business now piling up, you can't blame a chap who seeks the shade.

Dr. J. W. Pence, owner of the Lyric and Star Theaters, Columbus Junction, Iowa, who was a recent visitor to the city, says he soon will remodel the Lyric, making it one of the most attractive film houses in Iowa.

The trade last week got an eye full of little Hughie Mack, who was in town long enough to state that he has joined the L-Ko Companies. Of course the Universal will become much heavier on the comedy publications in the near future.

Anybody who thinks it is a cinch to become one of Uncle Sam's flyers, just get Harry Ascher on the wire. Harry is all right, but his line on aviation is a marvel.

Some members of the trade saw a handsome young man waltzing about in front of Cohan's Grand Opera House that sultry evening of July 27. It was Maury Rubens from Joffet. Maury holds the record for attendance to the "Turn to the Red" lacking once of having attended an even dozen times.

Another member has been added to the Chicago film speedsters' squad. Frederick Russel Clark, president of the Titan Pictures Corporation, now is guiding one of those Dodge "flyers." Liable to see him any of these days now in the "Loop," just as soon as he gets the speeds properly memorized. Watch your step, Fred.

That young buck regaled in the Rajah Silk sartorial creations strutting about the fifteenth floor of the Consumers building is no other than I. Van Ronkel. That Bluebird crew joined him recently, upon his return to the office. The crew assembled around the festive board awaiting their honored guest. 'Tis rumored the feast commemorates Ike's "fourth" annual celebration of his "fortieth" birthday.

Harry D. Charness has become special representative for the Owl Features, Inc. to handle the new feature "One Law for Both," recently purchased from Ivan Abramson for this territory.

Manager Charles Z. Schaefer of the Casino used a nice stunt in exploiting his attraction "A Smacker's Heart" the week of July 29. Miss have cost a tidy sum to resurrect dear old Abe Lincoln and bring the busy Woodrow Wilson from Washington.

"THE SEVEN PEARLS," NEW PATHE SERIAL, TO BE PUBLISHED ON SEPT. 2

The Pathé Company will publish on September 2 a new serial entitled "The Seven Pearls," featuring Millic King, Creighton Hale and Leon Bary. The story was written by Charles Goddard, who also prepared the scenario, and who wrote "The Exploits of Elaine" and "The Perils of Pauline" serials.

"The Submarine Eye"
Mrs. L. H. Webb, owner of the Goodwin Theater, Newark, N. J., has signed contracts for the entire first year’s output of Goldwyn Pictures for her little Newark theater. Beginning with “Polly of the Circus,” starring Mae Marsh, during the week of September 9, Mrs. Webb will exhibit twenty-six Goldwyn productions, the maximum that Goldwyn has planned for its first year of operation.

While woman exhibitors are very much the exception in showmanship-rule, there are few better known exhibitors in America than Mrs. Webb. Four years ago she built a motion picture theater on Broad street, Newark, and named it after Rev. Hannibal Goodwin of Newark, who is given credit for the invention of the film that is used in modern-day motion picture taking. Rev. Goodwin was at present rector of the House of Prayer in Newark.

Mrs. Webb began her motion picture exhibitions with the desire to feature the educational side of film progress, supplemented by pictures of the cleaner and more inspiring type. She was the first exhibitor in Newark to stress the musical program as a means of conveying the mood of the pictures shown in her house. Her son, William Webb, operator, has gained more than a local reputation by his interpretative scores.

Ellwood City, Pa.—Work is being rushed on the new theater being erected here by E. D. Barnes, and it is expected the house will be finished by September 1. The new playhouse will seat 800. The main floor will have 550 seats and the balcony 250.

Stillwater, Minn.—W. H. Cox has sold the Alamo Theater to J. E. Taylor of Oklahoma City.

Ionia, Mich.—Earl Wright, formerly of Ionia, has formed a partnership with Frank Joslin of Smyrna and purchased the Empress Theater at Belding. The former owners were Reed & Warner.

Chariton, Iowa.—The Brown block has been remodeled and D. Earl Combs is conducting a motion picture theater there. Robert Pereinfield is manager.

Indianapolis, Ind.—A deadlock exists in the city council over the passage of the ordinance providing for regulations on the handling and storing of motion picture films. Commissioner of Buildings Jacob H. Hilkene, who prepared the ordinance with the help of E. M. Sellers, manager of the Indiana inspection bureau, and H. H. Reidley, state fire marshal, will take a trip at the expense of the motion picture interests to ascertain what is being done in other cities. Cincinnati and Chicago will be visited.

A striking example of what can be accomplished by a wide-awake exhibitor who follows a well-defined policy along lines of business efficiency has come to notice in the case of J. P. Kaufman and his “Palace of Pictures” at New Braunfels, Texas.

This prosperous little theater was built entirely out of the profits that have come to Mr. Kaufman through the use of Universal service. In 1909, while still hardly more than a lad, young Kaufman opened a crude air-dome in his home town, with the sky for a roof and canvas walls to keep the more economical fans from watch-
“ROPING HER ROMEO” IS INITIAL SENNETT COMEDY SCHEDULED FOR PARAMOUNT

Many of Players Who Appeared Under Keystone Banner Will Appear in New Productions; First Film Appears September 15

Mack Sennett announces from Edendale, Cal., this week the titles and casts of his first three pictures to be published by Paramount Pictures Corporation, in accordance with the new Paramount-Sennett affiliation. All Mr. Sennett’s most noted film comedians and pretty girls have been retained by him and will appear in the Paramount-Sennett comedies, the first to be issued September 15 and every two weeks thereafter.

“Roping Her Romeo” is the first Paramount-Sennett. It features Polly Moran, Sennett comedienne, and Ben Turpin and Slim Summerville. Slim is over six feet something and correspondingly attenuated.

“A Bad Room Blunder” is the second Paramount-Sennett, featuring Chorles Murray, Mary Thurman and Wayland Trask. Murray ranks among the best barker-squeers of the stage and screen. His particular bits were made with Ziegfeld’s “Follies” in the old days.

“The Pullman Bride,” featuring Gloria Swanson, is the third Paramount-Sennett comedy. The men featured are Chester Conklin and Mack Swain.

FIRE THREATENS PATHE FILMS IN CHICAGO

The fire started in the basement of a saloon and spread to a restaurant, on the second floor of which building were stored the films. Firemen flooded the place with tons of water and extinguished the blaze before it reached the Pathe rooms.

Concerns Little Girl Outcast of Village Surrounded by Bigoted Hypocrites; Minister Is Author of the Script

The next Erbograph-Art Drama, which is to be issued directly following "Think It Over," is entitled "The Little Samaritan," and is from the pen of Rev. Clarence J. Harris, a man who combines scenario writing with acting in a successful manner. As pastor of Unity Church in Yonkers holds a prominent position in the community, while as a writer of unique and original scripts he is known over the country.

"The Little Samaritan," in which Marion Swainy, is starred, the Mr. Harris has constructed a play with a clerical atmosphere, and details of it are extremely realistic.

The setting is a small town, with narrow-mindedness and rural exploitation—which characterizes almost every miniature social group. Under guise of Christians the characters practice hypocrisy, avarice, selfishness and injustice, using their religion as an after-dinner joke. Harris puts it, "as a duck to hide their sins, instead of armor."

Miss Swainy as Lindy

Owing among these pharisaical citizens and forming a vivid contrast to them is little Lindy, played by Miss Swainy. She is a girl of simple impulses, charitable disposition and friendly nature, who lives with her grandmother. Lindy is spurned by the children of the town because she is a "nobody"—she has no parentage, and gossip has been busy since first came to the place.

Then a new minister comes, Lindy is a fancy as to him, as he is young and friendly and supplies her desire for a sympathetic companion. Lindy strikes up a warm friendship, the he grants her the dream of her life—to be a part of the choir. But the others take singing if she is admitted. No Noah, an old negro, is about to be put to the poorhouse. Lindy pleads with the minister to give him a chance as bell-ringer. This is done. But, when Lindy realizes her grand- mother's poverty, she seeks work as a domestic servant. The minister, greatly amused, sees her sincerity and gives her the position.

Some Dramatic Points

The scene of the church, a hard-pressed minister, owns the cottage in which Lindy and her grandmother lives. He comes for the rent, but the old woman cannot make up the total. The minister threatens, and Lindy appears with the extra money, refusing to tell where she got it.

A great sensation occurs the following morning. The minister reports that his cabinet has been unlocked and the collection money is gone. As only Lindy and old Noah hold the key suspicion falls on them. They are accused. Lindy denies the theft, then, rather than have her suspected, confesses that she stole it. He is put in prison. This nearly breaks Lindy's heart, for she is fond of the old negro. At last she saves herself up to the鮨, sacrifice. She goes to the minister and tells him she took it.

Carle Gerard Is Minister

The minister is for jailing her at once, but the minister stops him. He then tells them that he has discovered the theft, and that both Lindy and Noah are innocent. Her act of self-sacrifice has not gone unnoticed, however, and the next Sunday he procures a sermon, in which he pours out a stirring invective against the congregation, and holds up Lindy as an example of a true Christian. His talk is so moving that Lindy is made a popular member of the community and given her place in the choir. Then the minister confesses that he loves her and asks her to wait a few years for him. She agrees.

The role of the minister is played by Carle Gerard and Lucile Dorington and other Erbograph favorites have supporting roles. Joseph Levering directed the play.

FIRST OF NEW GEORGE ADE FABLES TO BE PUBLISHED BY ESSANAY SEPTEMBER 1

"The Twelve-Cylinder Speed of the Leisure Class," with George Bean and Frankie Raymond, to Be First of Series

Essanay announces that, commencing September 1, a new series of George Ade Fables in Slang will be issued on the General Film program. This is another step toward the recently published policy of this company to confine a greater part of its output to subjects of a comedy nature.

To Be in Two Reels

The first series, issued about two years ago, were only one reel in length, but proved so popular that this famous author has been induced to write another series. Owing to the wealth of humorous material in the present stories, it has been decided to make them up in two-reel lengths. The reception which these pictures, dealing with the peculiarities of our traits and characteristics, have met assures this new series of a welcome in every theater. Special attention has been given to the subtitles, and as this was one of the strongest features of the former productions, there is no doubt that they will appeal even more forcibly since the public has grown to appreciate the value of cleverly phrased interpolations.

First Subject Named

The first subject is entitled "The Fable of the Twelve-Cylinder Speed of the Leisure Class." George Bean and Frankie Raymond play the leading parts. The story, as the title implies, deals with the troubles which are brought on by those who attempt to live the easy life. A number of attractive beach scenes will be shown, also the author's idea of night life in a metropolis, with its dancing cabarets and other forms of strenuous amusement. It will be issued September 1.
WALLACE REID SUPPORTS GERALDINE FARRAR IN NEW PRODUCTION, "THE WOMAN GOD FORGOT"

Drama of Aztec Life Necessitates Large Amount of Historical Research Work by Experts Under De Mille; Seen as Star's Best Play

The fact that "The Woman God Forgot," first of the productions which Geraldine Farrar will make for Arcturus, is a drama of Aztec life, has necessitated an unusually large amount of historical research. The research department of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, headed by Director General Cecil B. De Mille, has made many amusing as well as interesting discoveries concerning the manners and customs of the mysterious people who inhabited this country hundreds of years before the white man came.

Among their revelations is one relating to barbers. The impression has been that this occupation was introduced into America first by the Spanish, later by the French and English settlers, but the experts working under Mr. De Mille discovered that barbers and barber shops existed in America before Columbus ever discovered that the earth is round. In fact, it has been established that the Aztecs had complete paraphernalia, except perhaps the striped pole and the hootblack, hundreds of years before the arrival of Cortez.

Work is proceeding rapidly, under the direction of Mr. De Mille, on the production of "The Woman God Forgot," in which Miss Farrar is reported to have a role of such dramatic power that it is comparable only to that of "Joan" among the parts she has played on the screen. Wallace Reid is her leading man.

"THE FRINGE OF SOCIETY," WITH RUTH ROLAND AND MILTON SILLS, READY FOR HOFFMAN

First George Baeker Film for Issuance to Exhibitors Through Foursquare Exchanges in October Seen as Money Maker

"The Fringe of Society," the seven-part superfeature which marks the first George Baeker-Foursquare product, has just been finished. Robert Ellis directed the picture.

Ruth Roland and Milton Sills are co-starring in the feature, supported by Leah Baird, Ollie Kirkby, George Larkin and Jules Cowles, who played Buck Moe in "The Bar Sinister."

M. H. Hoffman, vice-president and general manager of M. H. Hoffman, Inc., which is to distribute this feature in October, regards the picture as one of the best that has yet come under the Foursquare banner.

"It should make a record," said Mr. Hoffman, "because it is clean, because it has a smashing story with plenty of suspense and action and for other reasons which I can best term by saying Foursquare."

ESSANAY TO ISSUE SERIES OF SCENIC AND SCIENCE PICTURES, AT RATE OF ONE A WEEK

An innovation in Essanay's portion of the K-E-S-E program in the future will be a series of one-reel educational subjects to be entitled "The Wonders of Nature and Science."

Essanay officials have been conducting an exhaustive investigation into the present-day demands of exhibitors for program material. The inquiry has covered the entire country, including the small exhibitor as well as the large. And the general public attitude has been sounded out, as well, to determine the opinion of the people on how much of a show should be given for the admission price. In almost every instance there was a demand for one-reel sceneries to fill out the program.

The forthcoming Essanay series is the result of this investigation. The units will be issued one each week and can be used with any program.

There will be ten pictures in the series, and these will be divided between the two subjects, the wonders of nature and the wonders of science. The first half will present some of the scenic beauties of Canada which never before have been seen on the screen. Views of the Canadian Rockies and their majestic splendor will comprise one unit; the four others will include scenes in old Quebec, showing the quaint old French dwellings, narrow streets and the peculiar characteristics of its people; Xu Scptia, made famous by the Longfellow, in his "Evangeline"; British Columbia and its wilderness, mountain-clad firs and ever-shining snows; and views of the Upper Wapite River, which is one of the most picturesque streams in the world. The latter half of the series will reveal the wonders of science. Each of the five units is devoted to the intricacies of one of the nation's big industries from beginning to end.

E. B. LEWIS WILL WRITE PLAYS FOR PARALTA STAR

Eugene B. Lewis, a well-known writer and editor, has been engaged to devote his time to the screen staff maintained jointly by the Essanay and the W. W. Hamill Feature Corporations.

Like many others of his profession, Lewis is a product of newspaperdom. Having acquired an education in the public schools of Lake City, he was born, in the University of Utah, he barked upon a journalistic career for eleven years he served as a copy editor on various papers all over the country, storing up the knowledge of human nature which enabled him to enter the scenario-writing field.

While on the staff of the New York American, Lewis submitted four stories to the old Brix Company. They were accepted, short time later he was engaged by the present firm as an addition to the regular staff. A year ago he was chosen to charge the scenario bureau in Universal City.

Go set down the names of the motion picture dramas which have really taken first place. Analyze the qualities which made for their great success. Set this down.

And then, with the names of the pictures in your memory, and the qualities that made them great before you, come and see this Master production which takes its place among these classics of the film.

Made by a great Director, by a splendid cast, with a charming and world-famed star of the first magnitude, from a story by a master dramatist—the picture is the work of a newcomer to the field. Ogden Pictures means, probably, nothing to you although for a year the City of Ogden has been spending itself on this film and although close to a million dollars were spent in making it what it is.

Just as a masterpiece of music or painting needs no pedigree, but is sufficient through its own superiority, so THE LUST OF THE AGES needs no argument than merely to be shown.

LILLIAN WALKER in

The "LUST of the AGES"

By Aaron Hoffman

Produced by Ogden Pictures Corporation ~ ~ Directed by Harry C. D.

Lillian Walker is at her very best—a poignant and adorable picture is carried along on this great theme. Shall we say that it was a fortuitous chance of the wheel which made this happy combination at a moment when it was most timely and psychologically the entire world is waiting for it! Shall we say that it was inspiration?

But the fact remains that, for those who have their ear to the ground, the industry is already talking of its latest wonder-child—THE LUST OF THE AGES.

The Philadelphia Ledger's Tremendous Approval

CURTIS' two great Philadelphia newspapers, the morning Public Ledger and the Evening Ledger, say about Goldwyn's perfection of production things that we, even though we know them to be true, would hesitate to say in an industry filled with doubt and suspicion. For example:

THE PUBLIC LEDGER says:
"Each new motion picture company announces that its films are to be the best ever made. But there was something so sincere and business-like about the Goldwyn announcements that I have always believed this company would show something different."

THE EVENING LEDGER says:
"If 'Baby Mine' is an index of future Goldwyn productions showmen may be assured of some capital stuff from these studios. The picture has many distinctions in addition to star and story...individuality in settings and no one to date has built such imposing rooms and halls and 'shot' the results from such effective points." What these great newspapers say will be said by other papers throughout America. Every exhibitor should take advantage of this splendid endorsement by signing contracts at once through Goldwyn's branch offices.

"One Law for Both" has high Moral aim.

"One Law for Both" is good photodrama—revolutionary Russia vividly shown. Rita Jolivet never did better work before the camera—deals effectively with the double standard. . . .

Judicial Logic

A NEW YORK JURIST has ruled that motion pictures of current events cannot be regarded as newspapers, entitling them to the Constitutional liberty guaranteed the press.

The ruling was occasioned by a suit for an injunction to restrain the Universal Film Manufacturing Company from exhibiting a news film showing pictures of a woman lawyer who is credited with solving a recent sensational murder mystery in New York City.

In considering the ruling of the New York judge we cannot escape the impression that the eminent jurist is not overfamiliar with the subject of motion pictures; otherwise the ordinary logic which he must call into play daily in his professional work would have saved him from this decision, which is absolutely destined to be reversed.

According to the jurist’s decision, newspapers but not motion pictures are entitled to be privileged under the Constitutional guarantee of free speech. We do not recall that the Constitution specified anything in particular about newspapers. Our understanding of the matter is that the Constitution of the United States guarantees to citizens FREE SPEECH, with certain necessary restrictions, of course.

There can be no question that a motion picture is a form of expression just as a newspaper is a form of expression. A sermon from a pulpit and an address from a political forum are also forms of expression. And each of these various forms of expression is entitled, in an identical manner, to the Constitutional guarantee of free speech.

A newspaper with white paper and printer’s ink sets forth a likeness of an individual in its columns. A motion picture producer takes the identical likeness, but instead of printer’s ink and white paper he uses processes of photography and prints the likeness upon a strip of celluloid which is eventually projected upon a motion picture screen.

The likeness in question is published both by the newspaper and by the motion picture producer. Every Constitutional privilege the newspaper is entitled to should also be accorded the motion picture producer, because as a publisher of news pictures, in particular, his field is identical with that of the newspaper or magazine.

It is not unlikely that the motion picture is regarded by the New York jurist as something very new, and on that ground alone not entitled to the same privileges as the older form of publication, newspapers.

But the motion picture essentially is a form of speech, and every liberty of speech guaranteed any other form of expression should also be given the motion picture.

The "All-Star" Film

PROPAGANDA WORK cannot be carried on, campaigns cannot be instituted against deterring influences from without the trade and constructive legislation cannot be fostered and promoted—without money.

This is very plain but it seems not to be appreciated fully by the trade with reference to the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry.

These rest within this organization possibilities for great constructive work, beneficial to the entire trade. But to succeed in this work the N. A. M. P. I. must have a treasury commensurate with the fiscal requirements of the work.

The "all-star" film to be issued for the purpose of supplying the N. A. M. P. I. with the necessary funds should easily and completely accomplish its purpose. This film will have a two-fold attractiveness for every exhibitor in the United States. It will supply him with a profitable attraction, and by playing the attraction he will be aiding an organization which one day may prove of great benefit to him.

Real Progress

The EXTRAORDINARY interest which the American Exhibitors Association has attracted throughout the motion picture trade in the short period of its existence can only be accounted for in one way: the business-like basis upon which the organization is founded satisfies a long-felt need and requirement.

The American Exhibitors Association has attracted a great deal more attention than would naturally be accorded just another exhibitors' organization. The situation makes it plain that the personnel and plan of operation of the A. E. A. has been received by the trade at large as a bright indication of real progress in the matter of exhibitor organization.

PARAMOUNT ABSORBS SELZNICK IN EXPANSION

Fifty-One Per Cent of Capital Stock Secured by Big Distributing Concern; Will Publish Mayfair Films; C. K. Y. Corporation Is Independent

The Paramount Pictures Corporation has purchased fifty-one per cent of the capital stock of the Selznick Enterprises and the Selznick productions will be published by Paramount under the name, "Select Films."

The new arrangement is scheduled to go into effect September 3.

These are the facts of the story which has given rise to considerable rumor and speculation about the readjustment of the controversy between Clara Imball Young and Lewis J. Selznick and the rumor that Lewis J. Selznick and Miss Young had allied forces with the Adolph Zukor interests.

As far as can be learned at this time the forthcoming productions of the K. Y. Film Corporation will be published independently, although there is a likelihood that these productions also will pass through the Paramount exchanges.

Widens Zukor’s Interests

A fact of great significance in this situation is that the new arrangement is additional testimony of the real widening scope of the Zukor interests in the motion picture trade, with the adding of the stellar celebrities who have been allied with Zukor to the Arclight-Paramount organization, this company will have practically a majority of the biggest names in motion picture work.

It is understood that the combination between Zukor and Selznick was hastened during the recent exhibitors' convention in Chicago, and that final details of the purchase of fifty-one per cent of the Selznick company by the Zukor interests were worked out after the return to New York of the interested officials of the respective companies.

Gets Mayfair Pictures

Also, the Mayfair Pictures, which have been widely advertised lately, will be published through Paramount. It is pointed out that with the absorption of Selznick and the contracting or handling of the Majestic products, that Paramount plans to go even further in taking over other concerns’ products.

It is known that there is to be a reorganization of the sales force of Paramount. Arthur S. Kane, who was general sales manager for Artcraft at the Pacific Coast, and later assistant sales manager to Al Lichtman, of the Artcraft home office in New York City, will have charge of the sales department for Select. Norman Rose, now who is handling publicity for Artcraft, will be publicity director.

Augmented by many new subsidiary concerns, Paramount now towers in the film industry as one of the most powerful distributing concerns. Led by Thomas H. Ince, the noted director, who formerly contributed exclusively to the Triangle program, many of the screen’s most talented players have come under the banner of Paramount. Among the more notable stars which followed Ince when he severed his connection with Triangle are William S. Hart, the delineator of western characters, Charles Ray, Enid Bennett and Dorothy Dalton.

Roster of Noted Stars

Applying with the Ince players under the Paramount banner are Marguerite Clark, Pauline Frederick, William Burke, Lima Cavaliere, Julian Eltinge, Jack Pickford, Vivian Martin, Wallace Reid and Sessue Hayakawa, the Jap.

Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford and Geraldine Farrar are three other stars who stand alone in their respective arts as big attractions for any exhibitor.

George M. Cohan, the inimitable American comedian, is another film luminary connected with Paramount through the arrangement with Artcraft. Cohan is an attraction with the Fairbanks-Mary Pickford-Farrar trio.

The Paramount roster of players and noted directors, of whom Thomas H. Ince and Cecil B. de Mille stand foremost, not to mention David Wark Griffith, who has been in Europe for several months, shows that many of the most noted artists of the screen have been “cornered.”

One of Biggest Combines

But this is not the end of engaging stars, directors and contracting for the distribution of other concerns’ films on the Paramount program, it was pointed out this week. As the concern now stands with its wealth of noted players, directors and films is one of the biggest combines so far formed in the annals of the motion picture industry.

Just what the combine will mean to exhibitors who have heretofore been booking features with the big stars now appearing on Paramount program is hard to tell at this juncture, is the opinion of several leading exhibitors.

A. E. A. RECRUITS BIGGEST EXHIBITORS IN U. S. TO NEW BUSINESS ORGANIZATION

Theater Owners Throughout America, Seeking Trade Progress and Protection, Throng to State and City Locals Now Being Formed, Says Pettijohn

Despite the fact that the American Exhibitors Association is still in its infancy as a business organization composed of theater owners and for the furtherance of their interests, General Manager Charles C. Pettijohn announced this week from the New York headquarters that the representative theater owners in all sections of the country are being recruited to the scores of state branches now being formed.

The initial drive to weld together the exhibitors of the South is proceeding nicely under Jake Wells of Richmond, Va., who is president of the A. E. A. North Carolina exhibitors, led by Percy Wells, president of the state organization, and H. B. Varner, the man who saved the exhibitors from a heavy tax burden, will attend the convention held under the auspices of the Virginia branch, at Ocean View, August 30, 31 and September 1.

Also, South Carolina, Maryland, District of Columbia, and other states will have large representations.

It is pointed out that "the South is in the saddle." Percy Wells of Wilmington, N. C., who operates a large chain of theaters, and one of the foremost men in southern exhibitors’ affairs, promises the state solid to the A. E. A. Virginia has capitulated in a solid body to the A. E. A., as has Indiana, led by President Rembusch.

Michigan Is Solid

Michigan is solid for the new organization, with a local in Detroit and a state branch already formed composed of the most powerful array of business men conducting film theaters in the state.

Fred J. Herrington, who is one of the best known theater operators in the country, declares that Pennsylvania exhibitors are coming over to the new organization, as is West Vir-
The Ochs organization, writhing in the throes of its impending death, made another losing stand against the American Exhibitors Association, composed of 3,000 bona fide exhibitors, late last week in New York, when Ochs endeavored to check the acceptance of the A. E. A. application for membership in the N. A. M. P. I.

The application of the American Exhibitors Association to the N. A. M. P. I. was presented in the form of an amendment to the by-laws of the organization of which William A. Brady is president. While Ochs stood in the way of action on the application, Mr. Brady pointed out to those at the session that the by-laws of the N. A. M. P. I. could be amended by virtue of article 18 of the by-laws of the A. E. A. organization. Ochs’ organization received a final blow in the fight to exclude the A. E. A. from membership when Brady adjourned the meeting until August 27, when the by-laws will be amended to admit the A. E. A. to membership in the National organization.

At this meeting the directorate of the N. A. M. P. I. was increased from thirty to forty-two, and the following directors were added: Producers of the first class, Samuel Goldfish and William Fox. Second class, composed of exhibitors, O’Donnell, Chamberlain, Robert Levy and Pasamagouos. Distributors of third class, John R. Freuler and S. A. Lunch. To supply dealers of fourth class, Ketterbish and Confal. To the general division of fifth class, Fred J. Becroft and George Irving.

The demand for the Williamson Brothers’ “submarine eye” film attraction seems to be universal, it is announced.

Williamson Brothers announce that they have received offers from practically every territory in Europe and South America.

The most recent sales include South Africa, France, Switzerland, Italy, the Balkan States and Dominion of Canada.

A. E. Beck Made General Manager for Art Dramas

Arthur E. Beck has been appointed general manager of Art Dramas, Inc. He will have entire charge of exchanges and their problems, as well as of all matters coming under the head of executive business. He is a well-known exchange man, having held responsible positions during the last ten years with Mutual, Universal and other large organizations.

Harry Ennis and his corps of assistants, headed by Patrick Kearney, will from now on confine their activities to advertising and publicity.

The personnel of Art Dramas office remains the same as heretofore: Harry Raver, president; George Wiley, vice president; Herbert Blache, treasurer, and H. M. Goetz, secretary.

Charles C. Pettijohn, general manager of the A. E. A., has received a telegram from King Perry, secretary of the Detroit local branch of the association, naming the following officers elected: F. F. Schneider, president; William Schittenhelm, vice-president; John Brennon, treasurer; King Perry, secretary.

A meeting was held on August 9 at which many plans were formulated for the betterment of the organization. The state members are working with the Detroit men to make the A. E. A. the power of Michigan.
BONDING AND INSURANCE CO. IN A. E. A. SEEN AS NEW MOVE BY L. H. O’DONNELL

Prominent Exhibitor of Washington, Ind., Who Worked Out Plan in Hoosier State, Predicts Death of Deposit System Nationally for Organization’s Members

L. H. O'Donnell of the O'Donnell-Eskridge Amusement company, owner of the Grand Opera House and Theatro motion picture theaters in Washington, Ind., announces that with the rapid expansion of the American Exhibitors’ Association, of which he is a member, he expects to see a nation-wide Exhibitors’ Mutual Insurance Company and a bonding company formed by the association to bring about the abolition of deposits for A. E. A. members.

For the exhibitors of Indiana Mr. O'Donnell worked out a bonding plan whereby the association guarantees exchanges payment for film service rendered to members of the organization in that state.

Gives Exhibitor Protection

The Indiana Exhibitors’ Mutual Insurance Company gives the exhibitor insurance protection on his theater, home and household furniture.

"While we have an ideal association in Indiana," says Mr. O’Donnell, "we must give exhibitors throughout the entire country the benefits which we exhibitors in only a few states now enjoy.

"The strictly business policy of the A. E. A., with its strictly bona fide theater owner membership, will prove vastly different and superior in improving conditions which prevailed heretofore. There will be no need of reforms; we will just go ahead and do for exhibitors what never before has been accomplished.

A. E. A. to Aid Business

"The 'Watch Us Grow' motto is an important message in three words to exhibitors, and exhibitors who help the A. E. A. grow, I feel positive, will find they have made a big step in the interests of their business.

"With the Chicago branch already set up in a system insuring the exchanges against loss, providing any of its members do not pay for service, there is little doubt that that branch of the A. E. A. will be augmented by August 150 new members by October.

JAKE WELLS HEADS BIG EXHIBITORS’ MEET IN SOUTH

A monster meeting of the allied motion picture exhibitors of Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina and the District of Columbia will be held on August 30, 31 and September 1, at Ocean View, near Norfolk, Va. Jake Wells, president of the American Exhibitors’ Association, is in charge of the affair.

The big manufacturing interests will have representatives there and a few stars have signified their intention of being present. A ball and banquet will be given on the closing night and plans are being made to present every feature of past exhibitions for the edification of exhibitors.

PARALTA TO START 3 NEW COMPANIES UNDER ANDERSON

Activity at the Paralta offices is attracting much attention in the inside circles of motion picture production, and rumors have it that three new Paralta producing companies are being organized by Carl Anderson and his associates, which will give his company the control of a large number of star productions a year.

When the Paralta company took over the China studios in Hollywood, instead of providing J. Warren Kerrigan and Bessie Barriscale with separate establishments as was at first planned, it was done because the establishment is sufficiently large to house at least five companies and give each practically separate accommodations.

WM. S. HART WORKS ON "THE NARROW TRAIL,"
HIS FIRST FILM FOR ARTCRAFT PROGRAM

Story Deals with Reform of Bandit Through Love for a Girl; Sylvia Bremer Is Star's Leading Lady; Now
Staging Scenes in Mountains

Following close upon the recent court decision in New York upholding Artcraft's right to present William S. Hart in pictures supervised by Thomas H. Ince comes news from California of the first Hart production which will be offered by Artcraft. It bears the name "The Narrow Trail."

Hart at Work in Hills
Lambert Hillyer, well known as an author and for some time attached in this capacity to the Ince forces, has been made a director for the Hart productions, and is now with Hart and a large company in the California mountain regions. The interiors of the play are being made at the Biograph studios in Los Angeles, which Thomas H. Ince has taken over.

Sylvia Bremer will be Hart's leading woman in "The Narrow Trail." Miss Bremer recently supported Hart in "The Cold Deck," and also attracted much attention by her work as leading woman for Charles Ray in "The Finch Hitter," "The Millionaire Vagrant" and "Sudden Jim."

Deals with Bandit's Reform
The plot of "The Narrow Trail" deals with the reform of the bandit, impersonated by Hart, through his love for the girl, with whom he becomes acquainted when she figures as one of the victims of a holdup in which he is the man behind the mask. When the robber falls in love he falls hard, and there follows a series of adventures that culminates in the reform of the highwayman and the capitulation of the girl.

All the Artcraft productions starring Hart will be made by the company recently organized by the actor himself for the filming of pictures in which he will appear, and will have the personal supervision of Thomas H. Ince, under whose guidance Hart has scored his success as a screen star.

OGDEN PICTURES CORP. DISCUSSES BEST WAY TO LAUNCH "LUST OF AGES" FILM

At a conference in the Ogden Pictures Corporation offices, the other day, the question before the Board was, "How can we best present the story of 'The Lust of the Ages,' so that the field will visualize it in its biggest aspects?"

Some of the remarks made were:

"No still picture or group of still pictures can do justice to a film."

"No amount of black ink and exaggeration will sell a picture that is not up to the mark."

"A trade paper advertisement, artistically speaking, may be the messenger for a great picture."

"A wonderfully created trade paper advertisement does not mean necessarily a wonderfully great motion picture."

"The best thing that an announcement to exhibitors and state rights buyers can do, is to state a story sincerely and directly to the point, without attempting to make much of any point."

"The Lust of the Ages' meant nothing when it was dis- cussed all over America today, throughout the field, because the trade papers have carried the messenger of its alleged virtues. Tomorrow, the very editorial columns of the trade paper may completely negate the enthusiastic point of the advertising man, or it may color the advertising man's text with critical compliments which make doubly sound the price paid for advertising appeal."

"A picture with a great artist like Lilian Walker, should play up the star both pictorially and textually."

"An advertising campaign for a picture of the type of 'The Lust of the Ages' is never completed until the picture is shelved, because the producer ought to per- petually keep himself wide awake toward offering new and valuable suggestions to his state rights purchasers and to his exhibitors for their use."

Virginia. Ohio also has started a branch which is being supported by some of the biggest and best theater men in that state.

The Chicago local, of which Henry Schoenstadt is president, now has a paid up membership of sixty members, representing approximately $10,000,000 in theater interests, it is estimated by the president. This branch is expanding rapidly and has recruited many of its members from the Ochs branch.

Dissension at Ochs Branches
At the last meeting of the Ochs branch dissension reigned and about three-quarters of the members left the headquarters because Ochs and his trade paper were made the subject of the meeting.

The Manhattan local of New York paralleled the meeting of the Chicago branch last week when Trigger, who deserted the Ochs organization for the benefits of the A. E. A., was verbally set upon by seven members who composed the members in attendance. Trigger spurred the Ochs local and has refused to comment on his reasons for becoming a leader in the A. E. A. affairs of New York local branch of the new association.

Both Massachusetts and New York, and New York state have turned to the A. E. A., and a fight to the finish now is being waged between the A. E. A. and the Ochs organization, which is being aided by his trade paper.

Northwest Gains Power
In the Northwest W. A. Steffes is forming one of the most powerful A. E. A. branches in the United States. David W. Rodgers and James Golo- sky, president of Ochs' northwest unit at Minneapolis, are opposing the work of Steffes, who reports that scores of exhibitors have seen the advantages of belonging to the new organization.

Judge A. P. Tugwell is organizing California from Los Angeles, and the A. E. A. branches are under way in Oregon, Washington, Oklahoma, under L. W. Brophy, as well as in Mont- tana, Idaho, Colorado, the Dakotas and other states.

Toronto, Ont.—Some important changes have been made in General Film Company. J. F. Clancy, who for the past three months has been manager of the Toronto branch, has been made business manager of the company, with headquarters in Montreal. E. H. Wells, who has been general sales manager, becomes manager of distribution. Leslie W. Math- er salesman, has been appointed as manager of the Toronto office. Starting in about three weeks' time, this company will be publishing through its various Canadian branches twenty-five reels a week.
HOPP DENIES STATEMENT TO "HERALD" THAT HE WISHED OCHS WOULD RESIGN POST

Pettijohn Secures Vice President's Letter to Trade Review Asking Cash to Pay for A. E. A. Notes Secured from Stenographer

"Dark Horse" Joe Hopp, the president of the Chicago local of Ochs' organization, who figured so prominently in the recent convention in an effort to aid Ochs, secured a copy of the minutes of the meeting of the A. E. A., held at the Waldorf Astoria, Chicago, and sent it to the Ochs headquarters—the editorial rooms of the Trade Review—with an urgent request that $54 be sent on at once to pay for the carbon copy of the typewritten report.

Below is a copy of Hopp's letter which accompanied the A. E. A. minutes; also an open letter from Charles C. Pettijohn, general manager of the A. E. A., in which letter Mr. Pettijohn advises the members of Ochs' league to refrain from buying any more copies of A. E. A. minutes from stenographers, as they can read them over at the A. E. A. headquarters in New York, if they so desire, without charge.

Mr. Hopp misquotes the "Herald" when he states that it printed a statement that Ochs would not keep the presidency more than two months. The article on page 19 of August 4 issue reads: "I wish, for the sake of peace and harmony, that Lee Ochs would resign inside of two months." Hopp, however, refuses to acknowledge making such a statement.

New York City, Aug. 6, 1917.

To the Motion Picture Industry of the United States.

The following letter came to my hands Monday morning, August 6:

I feel that its contents will prove interesting to every man and woman connected in any way with the motion picture industry. The American Exhibitors' Association has not been injured in any way as a result of the continuation of the methods employed at the Chicago convention in buying a copy of our minutes from the young man who recorded them.

The minutes of all the meetings of the American Exhibitors' Association, held in Chicago, are on file at our office, 1110 Times building, New York City. They constitute an "open book," and anybody who is interested in the welfare of motion picture exhibitors is welcome at any time to read them from cover to cover. These gentlemen might have saved $54 by coming to this office instead of tempting a young man who might have needed a little summer vacation during the hot spell just passed.

Respectfully,

CHARLES C. PETTIJOHN,
General Manager American Exhibitors' Association.

Here Is Hopp's Letter

Mr. Louis A. Ochs, 1387 Broadway, New York City.

Dear Lee: A few days ago Mr. Kent Lockwood, who was the official stenographer at the convention, gave me for delivery to you the stenographic report in typewritten form of the proceedings of the Hotel Morrison convention of the discontented. I am sending you this report under separate cover, by registered mail, in care of the Trade Review, and "personal." At the time he gave me this report for delivery Mr. Lockwood also handed me a bill for $54 for same. I was in hopes that I could influence Mr. Schindler to pay this sum and take it out of the national league and of the net profits of the exposition, but thus far he has not honored the request.

I suggest that immediately upon receipt of this letter you wire Mr. Schindler to pay the $54, or else you send me a check for that amount in favor of Kent Lockwood. I will give same to him and take his receipt, which I will then forward by mail to you. Keep in mind that conditions may arise requiring the services of Mr. Lockwood, and the national body should keep in his good graces by not making this man wait for his money, and especially after considering the real service he has rendered in making possible the securing of this report.

I have read the entire report. A perusal of same will throw the calculus on certain people along unexpected lines. After hearing the expression of loyalty at the time of the election of officers at our convention, on the part of Mr. Goldberg of Maryland, it is amusing to also read in the report his expression of loyalty to the Hotel Morrison meeting the following day.

I suggest quick and effective action to meet the garnishment proceedings against Mr. Schindler and thus bring about the release of the moneys to the national and Chicago bodies. Recently, in writing Mr. Brandt, I suggested the advisability of having one of you fellows here in an authoritative capacity regarding this matter. It is very important.

Yesterday my attention was called to an item in "Exhibitors' Herald" quoting me as having said that you would not keep the presidency more than two months. I hope you will permit it to suffice for me to say that I never gave utterance to such an expression. It is absurd.

On the request of Mr. Brandt I mailed him last Friday a complete copy of the Constitution and By-Laws as adopted at the convention. With kindest personal regards I remain, Very truly yours.

JOSEPH HOPP,
National Vice President.

It was announced by the newly elected A. E. A. officers shortly after the inception of the organization in Chicago that the books and correspondence would always be open to the trade, both at the national headquarters and at the various locals and state branches.

FISHER GIVES VIEWS ON CARTOON FILM PRODUCING

"Thinking up ideas for humorous cartoons is a very serious business," says Bud Fisher. "In fact, it's the most difficult job I have. I simply try to keep myself posted on the principal topics of the day and treat them in a universal way, keeping in mind that the laugh must always be most prominent and at the same time free from malice and unpleasantness.

"I believe people want good, wholesome humor, to remove the bad taste so often left in their mouths by suggestive pictures, put on for moral education. And it is the short, light comedy which does the business. The day for the sex picture is gone. The whole game is getting cleaner and going after finer, and less morbid entertainment.

"There is a lot in choosing the right material for either newspaper of animated cartoons. The field for selection is narrow and the subjects must be general. Religion, politics, races of people, and various types of readers and audiences must be taken into consideration and treated according to their standards. For instance, a cartoon which is extremely popular in a democratic community will be nothing but well received in a republican district. The shading or light handling of any particular race must be eliminated. For while using the negro as a butt for comedy might be popular in New England, in the South, where the exhibitor is largely dependent upon colored patronage, it would be very unwise.

"HOW CHAPLIN DOES II" EXPLAINED BY RAMSAYE

Charles Chaplin uses an average of nearly 100,000 feet of film every time he makes a 2,000-foot comedy, according to Terry Ramsaye, who has written an "inside" story of the making of Chaplin comedy in September Photoplay Magazine.

Mr. Ramsaye remarks also: "Chaplin comedies are not made—they occur. No one knows when the next one will occur. Mr. Chaplin does not know when the next one will happen. If he knew how to make one he would quit waiting and do it."

"But," adds the writer, "Chaplin has worked out the great common denominator of fun," indicating that he credits the comedian with knowing a comedy when it happens.

NEW UNIVERSAL SERVICE DEPARTMENT PLACED IN EXCHANGES TO AID EXHIBITOR

Adjustment of Claims, Paper and Publicity, Including Helps for Theater Men to Exploit Films, Included in Service

Universal has established a service department to work in co-operation with both the Mecca and Universal Exchanges, taking care of all matters calling for adjustment with exhibitors.

If films or lithographic paper chance to be delayed in transit, or any one of a dozen other things occur to cause the exhibitor worry or loss, the experts in charge of the new service department take the matter up at once and see that matters are straightened out to the satisfaction of the man whose income depends upon the money-making quality of Universal films.

In addition to adjusting claims, the new department takes care of the exhibitor's advertising and publicity, wherever such assistance is desired. Newspaper copy is prepared, handbills and special folders gotten up, and circular letters composed to meet requirements.

The service department as an adjunct of the exchange was first put into effect last year by the Canadian Universal Film Company, and soon became so valuable an aid in getting and keeping accounts that its adoption by the American headquarters of the company became inevitable.

H. BECKER SAYS "WHO'S YOUR NEIGHBOR?" FILM IS ONE OF GREATEST PRODUCED

Proof of the impression created by the latest photoplay, "Who's Your Neighbor?" lies in the fact that theaters all over the country are receiving daily at the office of the Master Drama Features, Inc., who are sponsors for the picture. No play produced in years has met with more acclaim than "Who's Your Neighbor?" it is said.

Herman Becker of the firm says: "I think in many respects this initial production of ours is one of the best ever filmed. It is a great photoplay story of the present day. It pulsates with life, dealing with people we meet every day. We 'hobnob' and 'rub elbows' with them in pursuit of our duty or pleasure. Be it understood, it is not a preachment, but points a big moral lesson that should be seen by every man and woman in America."

Willard Mack has written a compelling story: S. Rankin Drew has given a perfect production, and we have supplied a cast of distinction. These points, together with clear photography and fine settings, all go to make 'Who's Your Neighbor?' the picture that it is. This is the initial feature of the Master Drama Features, Inc. Other films will be placed on the market shortly."

St. John, X. B.—There seems to be a certain depression in the film business in the inland towns of New Brunswick, according to Charles Kerr of the Mutual Film Exchange, who states that not only the usual summer slump, but the fact of the loss of many young men from the towns is felt very much.

TWO POSES OF SHIRLEY MASON, EDISON STAR
EDNA GOODRICH STARS IN FOUR MUTUAL FILMS; TO ISSUE FIRST IN FEW WEEKS

Noted American Stage Star Will Appear in "Reputation," "Queen X," "Daughter of Maryland" and "American Maid," All Five-Reelers by Noted Writers

Edna Goodrich, the noted American actress, who has appeared in more than a dozen New York successes, is starred in a series of four new five-reel productions to be published soon by the Mutual Film Corporation. The first will be issued within a few weeks.

The productions will be issued under the policy of "big stars only" announced some months ago by President John R. Freuler of the Mutual and rigidly adhered to since. Miss Goodrich's name on the stage puts her distinctly into the "big star" class, stars of proven box office value.

Exhibitors Look for Film

Exhibitors have been looking forward eagerly to the announcement of the first publication date of Goodrich productions. Mutual has already started a nation-wide publicity and advertising campaign to herald the first film starring the noted beauty.

The forthcoming productions are "Reputation," "Queen X," "A Daughter of Maryland" and "American Maid," each of the plays having been selected by Miss Goodrich herself in consultation with President Freuler.

Stories by Noted Authors

The four new Goodrich dramas are by authors of distinction. "Reputation" was written by John Clymer, who wrote "Ashes of Embers," "The White Raven," "The Diplomatic Romance" and other widely known screen successes. It was directed by John B. O'Brien, who was formerly stage manager for Augustus Thomas.

"Queen X" is by Assistant United States District Attorney Edwin M. Stanton of New York, who led the sensational federal crusade against opium smugglers and was instrumental in stymieing out the criminal conspiracy centering in the Chinese settlements of New York and San Francisco. Mr. O'Brien also directed this play.

Albert Capellani directs "American Maid," scenarioized by Hamilton Smith from a clever story by Julius Rothschild, is, as the title indicates, a play glorifying the American girl, a role that fits Miss Goodrich delightfully. "American Maid" was directed by Albert Capellani, the famous Parisian director.

"A Daughter of Maryland" is a play with a Southern heroine who does wonderful things in great emergencies and proves herself equal to the test, just as Southern girls have been doing from time immemorial. This play was written by Samuel Morse and scenarioized by Anthony Kelly.

KING BEE PUTS OUT AID BOOK ON BILLY WEST

The new Billy West Campaign Book issued by King Bee Company will be of particular interest to exhibitors. It is one of the best books of its kind gotten out to date. It contains a brief history of this new comedy star, and describes in detail the big advertising and publicity campaign, which is being carried on for him.

PICK CHILDREN FOR THE NEXT PICKFORD FILM

Mary Pickford and her director, Marshall Neilan, now are busily engaged in selecting children who are to support "Our Mary" in her next production. The groups of waiting applicants around the Pickford bungalow, near the Artcraft studio are suggestive of the main entrance to a girls' seminary at lunch hour.

One by one the youngsters are called in and inspected by both star and director, the former always beginning by stepping up to the candidate to compare their respective heights.

It is announced that there will be an unusual number of children in this next Pickford play, which will follow "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," released in September.

ZAMBRENO GETS "SOULS REDEEMED" IN ILLINOIS

Will Exploit Feature on Big Scale in Chicago and Territory

Frank Zambreno, of the Unity Photoplays Company, Chicago, this week purchased the rights to the Edward Warren production, "Souls Redeemed," for Chicago and Illinois.

Mr. Zambreno is preparing for a big advertising campaign throughout the territory, and will exploit the production on a big scale. This feature, following its New York premiere, was shown successfully in the picture houses throughout the East, and Edward Warren reports the sale of the production in Brazil and British India.

THREE SCENES OF MARY PICKFORD IN "REBECCA OF SUNNYBROOK FARM" ARTISTIC SCENES FOR NEW GERALDINE FARRAR ARTCRAFT FILM TAKEN IN YOSEMITE PARK

Cecil B. De Mille, in charge of a large company, recently went to Yosemite and filmed three scenes for the forthcoming Geraldine Farrar production. More than 125 people were taken in the special set erected in the park. Three scenes were taken in one afternoon, and the party journeyed back and forth in a special train. This is the first time in the history of the photodrama that an organization has ever taken such a long distance in a special train for the filming of three scenes. Mr. De Mille declares that this one spot in the Yosemite is especially essential to make his production an artistic success.

Theodore Kosloff, the noted Russian dancer, is appearing in Geraldine Farrar's Artcraft production which is being made from the story by Jeanie MacPherson.

J. H. STRICKLAND, CHAMPION WYOMING RIDER, ENGAGED BY FAIRBANKS FOR NEXT PICTURE

Barstake and bucking horse expert picked from Cheyenne contests for next comedy-drama of Western Life; Five Other Cowboys Signed Douglas Fairbanks is back in Los Angeles after having filmed scenes for his newest picture at the Wild West exercises in Cheyenne, Wyo., and bringing with him as a new member of the Fairbanks company, J. H. Strickland, champion barstake and bucking horse rider of the world.

Fairbanks watched Strickland's amazing feats of horsemanship during the trick riding contests at Cheyenne, and at once decided that Strickland must appear in his next picture.

The next Fairbanks play—his fourth for Artcraft—is to be a comedy-drama of the real west, and prominent parts will be played by Strickland and five other cowboys who were engaged with him at Cheyenne. Strickland brought with him to the studio the horse which he has ridden in all his championship contests.

In the festivities at Cheyenne, the Artcraft star enjoyed a large measure of prominence. On his arrival he was met by a whooping delegation of "wild westers." The following day he headed the cowboys' band which led a parade of nearly 5,000 soldiers.

GEORGE OVEY BREAKS ARM, BUT STARTS A FILM FEATURING IT

The fact that George Ovey, known as Jerry in Mutual comedies, broke his arm in the production of "Beach Nuts" did not stop work at the Cub studios, where his plays are made. Ovey rose to the occasion and ordered a picture featuring the broken arm, and started to work with his arm in a sling. The fracture was the result of a fall during a stunt. He was able to finish the few remaining scenes of the picture in production, took a day's rest and started on the "one-arm" picture.
ALBERT SCOWCROFT, EXHIBITOR, TELLS OF “LUST OF AGES” FILM

Builder of first cinema theater in Utah state and president of Ogden Pictures corporation says state rights play with Lillian Walker is “different.”

When the announcement first gained weight that the Ogden Pictures Corporation of Ogden, Utah, had completed a motion picture in which Lillian Walker was starred, much interest was manifested in the personnel behind the organization. To be sure, it was known that Harry Revier of Am- brosio fame was the sole director, but information is now given forth that Lester Park, whose past achievements in picturedom are well known, is the general manager, while the president is Albert Scowcroft of Ogden, Utah.

It is interesting in studying “The Lust of the Ages” to note the picturesqueness of Albert Scowcroft. It was Mr. Scowcroft who built the first large theater exclusively for motion picture showing in Utah. And old-timers will remember the sensation which was caused when the Liberty Theater was first constructed in Salt Lake, under the direction of Mr. Scowcroft. Several years later Mr. Scowcroft repeated his success with the Liberty when he constructed the American Theater in Salt Lake, and then went to Ogden, his home town, and put up the Alhambra.

Ogden is a city of 30,000, and yet it maintains this playhouse which seats 2,500 and shows the finest productions in the country. The Alhambra Theater is a first-run house, and Mr. Scowcroft has watched and picked with skillful foresight those pictures which have always become great successes.

"Sold" on Idea of "Lust" Film

Mr. Scowcroft has the foresight of being able to pick a winner or a loser instantly. When Mr. Scowcroft was first interested in the new corporation he was “sold” on the idea behind “The Lust of the Ages.”

Mr. Scowcroft says: "It struck me very forcibly: it seemed to me the biggest idea I had heard in many months. It gave a reason for making a production. So many pictures, if you will pardon me, are being constructed around nothing." A cast is gotten together and a director is appointed—and the scenario is built up like a house of cards in the studio.

"To my mind, no picture must be made unless there is a big reason for its being made—unless there is a big theme underlying the construction. Here, in “The Lust of the Ages,” we find the craving for wealth, a quality fundamental in all human beings. First comes the desire for sustenance and food, then comes the desire for the means to maintain existence, and then comes the desire for the home. It is surprising to me that none ever thought of the idea before—that no other film has ever been built around it!"

Prominent Westerners Interested

"So, as I say, I was ready to back the idea behind this picture to the limit, and I wanted to see it brought into being with satisfactory material. That is why we chose the actress, who, to our mind, is the most charming girl in America—Lillian Walker. That is why we sought and found Harry Revier. He is a director unspoiled by his successes, which are among the best, to my knowledge, that have ever been produced. I refer especially to his “Fall of Troy,” which was made with that grim pugnacity and force behind it that represented the director," Mr. Scowcroft further says that a contract had virtually been signed with one of the leading distributing houses for the exclusive rights to "The Lust of the Ages," but at the last moment we decided that we would not accept the splendid offer that was made us. By placing the picture on a state rights basis we have been enabled to handle this production exactly as we wished. We are contracting for a long, vigorous trade paper campaign of advertising, because we want the exhibitors to know all about the picture. And this I know: the more they know about it, the surer they are going to be to see it, and if they see it I have no further comment to make.

Splendid Ads for Local Use

"We are getting up a splendid line of advertising matter for local use, such as illustrations and advertisements for the exhibitors to use in their own newspapers and novel lobby displays." The Ogden Pictures Corporation are already at work on a second production.

WOLFBERG

"THE DEEMSTER"

Harris P. Wolfberg, the Pittsburgh state rights magnate, has extended his field of operation by taking in Missouri and Kansas for "The Deemster." Mr. Wolfberg had already bought the rights to the Hall
Caine feature for Ohio, Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and through his purchase achieved such signal success that he decided to jump into New York and close with W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Film Corporation, for the additional states.

Optimistic reports of conditions and prospects in the central states are given out by Mr. Wolfberg, who goes on record with the statement that prospects were never better for features with some claim to distinction. He also states that he has booked "The Deemster" for early fall presentation at the best theater in every city throughout his vast territory.

So good are the prospects in his new territory that he has already opened offices in St. Louis and Kansas City.

THE RULE OF REASON," BIG SAFETY FIRST FILM, PUTS C. E. DAVENPORT AGAIN IN LIMELIGHT

Noted Director, Once Familiar Figure in Picture Directing Field, Produces New York Central's Propaganda
Play with Art, Romance and Instruction

With the private showing of the New York Central Railroad's new safety first film, "The Rule of Reason," at the Rialto Theater in New York, Tuesday, July 31, a once familiar figure in the motion picture directing field has returned to the screen. Charles E. Davenport, who is the father of the safety first film idea, directed this picture.

Three years ago Mr. Davenport was terribly burned while directing a big fire scene for the Reliance Company. He fell through a trap door into a great burning mass that had been saturated with oil. The result was that he barely escaped being burned to death and for three years he has been under constant treatment by specialists. It was during the long months in the hospital that Mr. Daventon originated the safety first propaganda incorporated in dramatic motion picture productions and used in the great safety first movements set afoot by all of the big railroads and manufacturing plants as educational features.

Mr. Davenport has incorporated in his latest pictures the same artistic touches as are to be found in all the large picture dramas. In teaching the lesson of safety first, Mr. Davenport has not lost track of all the salient points that reach the human heart and sustain interest. Diftly, throughout the picture, he touches love, romance, comedy, pathos, tenperance, and safety operations, thereby making his subject intensely interesting.

"TURN OF A CARD," KERRIGAN'S SECOND FILM
FOR PARALTA PLAYS, NOW IN PRODUCTION

Is Comedy-Drama of East and West Concerning Adventures of College Youth; Lois Wilson Is Star's Leading Lady

J. Warren Kerrigan and his company are actively at work on the production of the second vehicle in which he will make his appearance under the auspices of Paralta Plays.
The subject is a comedy-drama of the West and East, called "Turn of a Card." It was written by Fredrick Chapin and prepared for the screen by Tom J. Geraghty.

The new play concerns the adventures of Jimmy Montgomery Farrell, a college youth who goes west and there becomes involved in a series of exciting experiences and a romance with a pretty girl.

Kerrigan's leading woman is Lois
Wilson, who plays Cynthia Burdette.
Miss Wilson appeared opposite Kerrigan in "A Man's Man." She is declared to be just as well cast in the new subject.

The remainder of the supporting cast is headed by Eugene Pallette as Eddie Barrett, "Tiny" Morgan as "Big Ed" Murphy, David M. Hartford as "Ace High" Burdette, Roy Laudlaw as Jarvis, Eleanor Crow as Miller Jarvis, Wallace Wersley as Mr. Carlton, Albert Cody as Salvin, and Tom Bates as Finnegan, and Janice Vincent as Mrs. Phelps.

The production is being directed by Oscar Apiel and photographed by Guy Wilky.

DE VINNA IS DOING CAMERA WORK ON A NEW BARRISCALE FILM

Clyde De Vinna will continue as cameraman to Bessie Barriscale despite directorial changes and is now at work with her on her second Par-alta production, a screen version of Harold McGrath's "Madam Who."

While with Triangle Miss Barris-cale acted under a number of different directors but De Vinna never left her company. He made a pronounced success the first time he ever photographed her. He "took her," it is said, to better advantage than had any of his predecessors. De Vinna was engaged by Miss Barriscale when she formed her own company. He filmed "Rose O'Paradise," the Grace Miller White novel, in which she will make her first Paralta appearance.
Vapid, inane "compositions" called "hits" can be easily replaced by works of Beethoven, Wagner, Chopin, Schubert and Berlioz, says composer, and kill combine.

By JOSEPH O'SULLIVAN*

Now that the interpretation by the United States Supreme Court of the copyright law upholds the stand taken by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers in demanding a tax for the privilege of using music composed by its members, it certainly behoves the purveyor of music, particularly the motion picture exhibitor, to take drastic measures to protect his interests from this unjust tax, which is inspired by arrogance, conceit and avarice.

There is no doubt but that it will cause the music-lover to rejoice exuberantly and move him to tears of joy and hallelujahs of thanksgiving, that soon upon the Rialto may case the clamorous concatenation of cacophonous achination, and the jingling, jocular, jiggling of the jazz.

Calls "Hits!" Vapid and Inane

The exhibitor for long has been the advertising medium for the latest popular music and so-called "hits," and now, in addition to the original cost of this music, he is to be compelled to pay a tax for helping to popularize what, in many cases, are vapid and inane "compositions."

The intelligent exhibitor knows well that for all the purposes for which music is presented in his house there is enough really good and effective music not copyrighted or all time to come.

It is my opinion, frequently emphasized during my connection with the Mutual Film Corporation, that if every exhibitor were to confine his music to the standard, which is not copyrighted, for a period of six months, his patrons would never be satisfied to listen again to the sentimental gush and clatter that frequently parades under the guise of music; and there is no doubt but that the presentation of the pictures would not suffer for lack of appropriate music, for the works of the great masters—Beethoven, Wagner, Chopin, Schubert, Berlioz, etc.—are inexhaustible sources of dramatic music material.

High Class Concerns Not in Combine

It is a significant fact that such prominent publishing concerns as Schirmer, Carl Fischer, Ditson, Boosey & Co., Stasny, etc., are not listed among the membership of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. These well known houses are wise in their generation, for they realize that the imposition of a tax can have but one result—an enormous decrease in the sale of copyrighted music, with a consequent diminishing of revenue.

Then, too, it is a well known fact that the sale of standardized music has increased enormously since the advent of the motion picture theater and orchestra, and as no one house has the exclusive publishing rights of such music—probably three-fourths of the music listed in the catalogues of the principal publishing houses being entirely free from copyrighted claims—it is palpably impracticable to attempt to enforce the tax on standard music.

Good Musicians in Film Theaters

For every musician worthy of the name, the motion picture industry has been a life-saver; for since the dance mania had its inception many of the best orchestra men were thrown out of employment, being supplanted by dance combinations and "jazz" bands, whose members cannot always be classified as musicians. Some of the best organs in the country have taken advantage of the opportunity to increase their incomes by playing in picture houses, and these men are without exception musicians of the first caliber to whom the A. S. C. A. and P. is but a name.

It can, therefore, be confidently stated that the musicians of the country will gladly assist the exhibitor and other high class amusement proprietors in digging the grave of the A.S.C. A. and P., and will gladly play the "Marche Funèbre"—full orchestra parts supplied gratis. The result will be the elimination of an undesirable element in the music publishing field in this country—for which soon let us all give thanks.

UNIVERSAL SOON TO ISSUE THREE BRANDS OF PICTURES TO TRADE

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company announce to the trade that it will shortly issue three brands of pictures under the names of Golden Rod, Premier and公益.

Including the Star featurette, The Universal Current Events and the Butterfly pictures, this will make six new brands that the Universal has put on the market since the first of the year, and if the new features meet with the same reception that has been accorded the three first mentioned there will be no question whatever of their success from both an artistic and commercial standpoint.

"THE SCRUBLADY," A COMEDY IN TWO REELS, FIRST MARIE DRESSLER PRODUCTION FOR GOLDWYN CORP.

Pursuing the motion picture theory more often honored in the breach than the observance that the way to produce the best pictures is to get the best and most capable people for every angle, from the writing of the scenario to the cutting and titling of the finished film, the Dressler Producing Corporation is completing its first two-reel comedy, soon to be issued through the Goldwyn Distributing Corporation, to be called "The Scrublady."

Marie Dressler herself will head the cast of every picture. In "The Scrublady," written and directed by Vincent Bryan, Miss Dressler has an opportunity hitherto unparalleled to be as funny, it is said. She has surrounded herself with men and women of proven comedy reputation and has permitted Mr. Bryan to give them situations and action offering full play for their ability.

In her new picture Miss Dressler is a scrub woman in a munitions factory. The comedy has a real plot. The leading woman in Miss Dressler's support is Miss Florence Hamilton. Also in the cast is Raymond Cacho, noted for the way he paints picture comedians in Paris. There are other players of magnitude, including Fred Hallen of the celebrated team of Hallen and Hart, who is making his first appearance in films, and Miss Harriet Ross.

NEW OUTDOOR WORLD STUDIO STAGE NOW SCENE OF BIG PRODUCING ACTIVITIES

Rectangular Stage at Fort Lee, Sixty-five by Hundred and Twenty-five Feet, with Floor Area of 8,000 Square Feet, Largest in East

The new outdoor stage for World Pictures Brady-made is attracting a great deal of attention in the studio colony at Fort Lee, in addition to having drawn the inspection of many visitors from New York.

Five or Six Films in Work

The workers in the extensive plant at Fort Lee were at first averse to making use of the al fresco space provided for them, although the temperature under glass was utterly appalling during the recent record breaking heat period.

But the reports from members of the first company that tried the open air stage were so enthusiastic that the prejudice disappeared, and now five or six separate picture plays are being made constantly and simultaneously in this added space.

The new stage is rectangular in shape, with dimensions of sixty-five feet by one hundred and twenty-five, giving a floor area of a trifle more than 8,000 square feet. This is the largest outdoors stage in the East, and its equipment is thoroughly modern.

Founded on Concrete Piers

The foundations are a series of heavy concrete piers, which in addition to supporting the general structure sustain a series of large upright columns. From the tops of these, strong bronze wires are strung at various angles, carrying movable overhead sheets and screens which serve as deflectors and diffusers of light.

This system works out perfectly for the elimination of undesirable shadows, enabling the cameramen to secure greatly improved values in lighting effects.

One end of this great stage closely adjoins the side of the big Peerless (World) studio, so that it practically becomes a part of that structure. It was built under the supervision of Technical Director William Smart.

Stars Now at Work

At present picture plays are being completed here by Kitty Gordon, Ethel Clayton, Alice Prady, Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley, June Elvidge, Montagu Love and Arthur Ashley and Madge Evans.

SOL LESSER NOW HEADS NEW STATE RIGHTS CORP. BEING FORMED IN N. Y.

A number of state rights men in New York are forming a new State Rights Corporation. Meetings are being held regularly at the King Bee Company's offices, and although nothing as yet has definitely been given out, the details of a plan of great interest to the industry will shortly be made public. Sol Lesser is at the head of the new organization.

New York—The B. & K. Interest will make motion pictures. Harry A. Rosenberg, Harry Taft and Florence Nordenschild are the directors, and the company is capitalized at $2,500.

Frohman Registers Complaint
To the "Exhibitors Herald":

We have observed that there has been considerable publicity printed recently emanating from the office of a certain motion picture manufacturing or distributing concern pertaining to the productions of that concern but sing in each instance headlines referring to Frohman pictures and Frohman activities.

This corporation was organized, as you know, some two years ago and has spent many thousands of dollars popularizing and publicizing the name of Frohman in connection with motion picture productions.

It seems to us that you and your most valued journal will heartily agree that we have a just cause for complaint in the application of the name Frohman, excepting when pertaining to this organization.

The establishing of the identity of the name Frohman with other manufacturing concerns, particularly because of the statements issued referring to release arrangements, etc., has caused clients of this organization an end of confusion and has done us an absolute injustice.

We ask you to give ample publicity to this communication that the loyal exchangemen and exhibitors who have built for us our clientele may understand that the Frohman Amusement Corporation remains just as it has ever been, and in the same independent position.

Yours very truly,
THE FROHMAN AMUSEMENT CORPORATION

To the "Exhibitors Herald":

Will you please tell me what make of carbons are the best, and where we can get them?

What do they use to make a curtain the best, and where can we get it?

From what film companies can we obtain "War Aides," "Damaged Goods," Chaplin in "The Cure" and "Where Are My Children?"

ALLEX & HILL,
Managers Lyric Theater, Dwight, Ill.

Reply: The best make of carbons to use depends upon the current you use, whether direct or alternating. The national carbon is highly recommended, as is also the Hold-ark.

As to a good screen paint, there are two on the market which Chicago supply houses recommend, viz., the Da-lite and Curtainylene. These sell at $3.50 and $3 a can, respectively, supplying enough for two coats.

The National carbons and Da-lite screen paint can be purchased from the Exhibitors Supply Company, 403 Maller's Building, Chicago, and the Hold-ark and Curtainylene products from E. E. Fulton & Co., 158 West Lake street, Chicago.

"War Brides" is a Selnick picture; "Damaged Goods" and "The Cure," with Charles Chaplin, are both Mutual productions, and "Where Are My Children?" can be obtained from any Universal exchange.

To the "Exhibitors Herald":

I have gone into the motion picture business. Will you kindly give me the names and addresses of a few cheap pictorial journals or heralds to be distributed for advertising purposes?

I want something with space for local reprinting.

CHARLES E. PEARSON,
Elite Theater, Des Moines, Ia.

Reply: The Cahill-Igoe Company of 117 West Harrison street, Chicago, can furnish you with heralds such as you need at a nominal price. You should get in communication with them.

WAR ACTIVITIES IN FRANCE AND HANDLING U. S. MAIL ARE FEATURES OF GAUMONT REELS AUGUST 27

The Gaumont Company has both magazine and news pictures—single reels—for publication through Mutual the week of August 27. The Gaumont-Mutual Weekly No. 139 will contain its usual assortment of news pictures, including the pictures taken by the cameramen of the Societe des Etablissements Gaumont of war activities in France. It will be issued August 29. These Gaumont-Mutual pictures are forming the greater part of the news contributions to the topical and magazine reel assembled weekly by the Rialto Theater, New York.

The magazine reel. "Reel Life" No. 70, will be issued August 30. Its main section is "Handling the Mail." This is an entertaining trip with a letter after it has been posted through the various departments of the post office. How money orders are handled is also explained in pictures. A second section is "Using the Abalone," showing how these beautiful shells are worked up into jewelry and other ornaments.

"Beach Sports of California" is an exposition of the good times which the natives of that state and visitors have in the surf and upon the sand. A fourth section of the reel shows a boy nine years old doing the marvelous stunts with a lasso which one is accustomed to see only at a circus or upon the stage. The reel ends with two humorous animated sections founded upon drawings in "Life." These are called "The March of Science" and "What a Bachelor Sees at a Wedding."

Chariton, La.—D. Earl Combs has secured a five-year lease from W. G. Brown for the building that is now being erected on South Main street, and Mr. Combs will establish a motion picture theater therein.

ALGERIAN SETS IN

"BARBARY SHEEP,"

WITH MISS FERGUSON

Work on the spectacular and romantic photodrama, "Barbary Sheep," in which Elsie Ferguson is to make her debut as a motion picture star, is progressing rapidly at the studio in Fort Lee, where the Artcraft company supporting Miss Ferguson has been busy since its return from the South.

The reproduction of an Algerian street which has been built for this picture has attracted great attention in the New Jersey "picture colony." It is one of the most remarkable duplications of architecture and of "local color" which has ever been undertaken for the screen, it is said. There is even a dilapidated trolley car, of the kind to be found in Algeria, where rapid transit still is in its primitive stages, and it plays its part in the picturization of the Robert Hechens story.

The interiors have had the critical inspection of Director Maurice Tourneur, and are not only beautiful in design and treatment, but authentic. Director Tourneur has striven to present the play that the illusion of locale shall be perfect in every scene and that the spectator shall as though fancy himself in northern Africa as though he were speeding with the eye of the camera through a travelogue. "Barbary Sheep" will be one of Artcraft's September films.

New York.—The Whitman Studio Inc., have been granted a charter to make motion pictures. The directors are Don L. Moore, Edward S. Moore and Florence Hampton. The firm capitalized at $5,000.

POSES OF THREE GOLDWYN STARS IN FIRST PICTURES

In "THE SPY" (ox Film Corp. drama; six parts; published August 19)

As a whole: Gripping
Story: German secret service tale
Star: At his best
Support: Excellent Settings: Appropriate
Photography: Clear

"The Spy" is from the pen of George Bronson Howard, special box office attraction being issued by William ox. The picture is timely and surpasses in interest many the recent productions founded on the great European afflct.

Dustin Farnum, as Mark Quaintance, the American件事 who volunteers to go to Germany to learn the unit of supposed German spies working in the United ates, is at all times thoroughly likeable and convincing. he is accorded excellent support by Winifred Kingston, Greta Glaun, an accomplice of the German army set watch Quaintance. Charles Clary is an American on and William Burgess makes an excellent chief the German secret service. The picture was directed Richard Stanton.

Briefly the story is as follows: Mark Quaintance, calthy clubman and member of the Patriotic Club of York, volunteers to go to Germany to secure a list German spies in America. On shipboard he meets Greta Glaun, being deported back to Germany. The Quaintance ripens into love and when the ship touches he slips away from him. Before the outbreak of war the Imperial Government tries to enroll Mark to their large number of American spies. Mark sees a way to get the list which he seeks and when he breaks into the Wittschaft home where it is kept he finds Greta. He does not explain to the girl why he is there. Securing the book, with Greta's assistance, he is caught by German officers who enter. Greta takes the book and hurries it to the American Embassy. She is apprehended by the police after placing the list in the hands of the facial and Mark is subjected to torture to compel him to reveal its whereabouts. His iron will cannot be broken, however, and both he and the girl are shot by a squad of olders.

In "THE LONG-GREEN TRAIL" (Essanay-General drama; two parts; published August 11)

As a whole: Good Story: Unusual Star: Fine
Support: Ample
Settings: Faithful
Photography: Clear

For a short subject offering "The Long-Green Trail" would prove a good production. The story is interesting and the ending is an unusual one with plenty of variety. This film should entertain any audience. The cast includes Rodney LaRock, Virginia Valley, J. C. Carroll and Ivy Fuller.

The story: Papa Hopper insists that his son Bobby marry the daughter of his business competitor to save him from ruin, but Bobby meets Ivonne, the daughter's naid, and there is no chance of Bobby marrying Laura agley. No definite ending is given to the picture, but one is led to believe that Ivonne is some great heiress in disguise. Anyhow papa has to be satisfied, because Bobby and Ivonne are married.

A BIG MOMENT IN THE DRAMATIC FEATURE, "THE FOOD GAMBLERS," STARRING WILFRED LUCAS (Triangle)

The story: June Justice, reporter on the Globe, is given an assignment to expose the food gamblers and to find out just who is responsible for the high price of food. In her work she meets Henry Haven, president of the food gamblers' trust, and one of the richest commission men as well as one of the meanest. June and Henry find themselves falling in love, but because he will not make restitution for his grafting, June does all in her power to unearth his methods.

Henry is attacked by one of his employees whom he has discharged for stealing, and is thrown into a discarded ice box. He is left there several days without food and for the first time appreciates what it means to be hungry. When he is released and regains his strength he helps in a fight against the manipulation of food prices and works for the passage of a bill which will provide state distribution.

At the close of the picture Lucas is shown talking to the audience and urging them to notify their congressmen to fight for the passage of the bill providing for state distribution. A letter showing how to do this is also shown. Exhibitors anxious to do their bit should book this production. By playing up the necessity for the reduction of high prices and by telling patrons that this production gives figures and data which have not been given out before, exhibitors should be able to draw large crowds to their houses.

Mabel Taliaferro in

"THE JURY OF FATE"

Metro drama; five parts; published August 6

As a whole: Fair
Story: Several novel situations
Star: Excellent Support: Ordinary
Photography: Good

Just why this picture is called "The Jury of Fate" motion picture patrons will find hard to answer. Any one of a dozen other titles will suggest themselves that would be more fitting. It is an average film.

Miss Taliaferro essays a dual role, playing the part of Jeannie, the girl, and Jacques, her brother, and handling both skillfully. The work of Frank Fisher Bennett is also very pleasing as Francois, while Albert Tarnier, William Sherwood, H. F. Weber, Bradley Barker and Charles Fang fill out the east.

The story: Henri Labordie is the father of twins. Jeannie is sweet and winsome, while her brother Jacques, pampered by his father, is ill-tempered. Jeannie, to spare her father from shock at the death of Jacques, through his own caddishness, clips off her hair and dons boy's clothes so that her father will think it was she and not his adored son who was drowned in the stream. Labordie dies and Jeannie's deception ends with her going to Montreal to fulfill an ancient pact, but which terminates in a happy ending for Jeanne.

Vivian Martin in

"A KISS FOR SUSIE"

Pallas-Paramount comedy-drama; five parts; published August 2

As a whole: Entertaining
Story: Old but with new twist
Star: Excellent
Support: Fine
Settings: Very good
Photography: Clear

"A Kiss for Susie" would be just as sweet under any other name. In fact the title in this instance means nothing and has absolutely nothing to do with the story. The winsome Vivian Martin wends her way through the story and wins new laurels for herself. A capable company, including Tom Forman, surrounds her and the director has worked into the picture many amusing touches, which pleased Chicago audiences immensely. Especially was this true of the fade-out of a pair of white kid shoes Lizzie has in mind when she has to pay her board. The subtitles are very good and full of "punch" and the story holds from start to finish.

The story: While the male members of the Nolan family bring home the money, Susie keeps house and tries to fill them up with food. A wealthy uncle dies and leaves the bricklayer fifty thousand pounds of gold. The Nolans move into better quarters and fall in with a cheap set. Susie sees the ruin the money is bringing to her brother, sister and father and succeeds in getting them to invest it in supposedly poor stock. The venture fails and they suppose themselves penniless, until Susie's beau returns the money which he has invested in securities to take care of the family for life. A pretty love theme runs through the tale.

The story, laid in England and later in America, concerns a professor who shields his brother from arrest. For this he is exiled. He goes to America and here he awaits the arrival of his motherless baby, but through intrigue the baby never reaches him and he is led to believe that it has fallen off the boat.

Mr. Fields is supported by Amy Dennis, Pat O'Malley, James Harris, A. Francis Lenz and Mabel Bardine. The story is by Charles K. Harris and the direction by J. A. Richmond.

Her fate Prof. Fielding, who believes his daughter dead, become employed at the circus as a Barker. He and Florida become great friends. "THE ITALIAN BATTLEFRONT"

Official war films of the Italian Government; four parts

The only authentic portrayal of the war in Italy we have seen is this stirring drama, "War in the Adarve," the first episode, which shows the fighting at the front and the adventures that befall the heroine, the daughter of a distinguished soldier. The second episode, "The Battle of Gorizia," the second episode, shows the heroic efforts of the Italian soldiers in Corner, and the third installment gives the warfare in the still

The story of an American ship attacked by submarines and the successful landing of a small party of survivors on a barren island has been interestingly told in "The Show Down." There are things about this production which make it different from other productions of a similar nature and no doubt it will be enjoyed by spectators.

Some of the settings in the jungle are beautiful and the good photography throughout gives pleasing results. The majority of the sets are exteriors incorporuating scenes which one has not an opportunity of viewing every day. Myrtle Gonzales' is in the lead ably supported by George Hernandez, Arthur Hoyt, George Chestbro, Edward Cecil and Jean Hersholt. The direction is by Lynn F. Reynolds.

The story: John Benson, who is known as the most selfish man, and his daughter Lydia leave for Europe. On the same boat are Oliver North, a much hpaired society man; Robert Curtis, known as the most unselfish man, and Langdon Crane, author of "Back to the Primitive." A few days off the Manilla shore the boat is struck by a German mine and all make a rush for the lifeboats. Benson and his daughter, North, Curtis and Crane are all in the same boat and land on a deserted island. Here the true characters of the men are revealed and Curtis develops to be a hero, while North and Crane are cowardly. Although Lydia has tried to have as little to do with Curtis as possible, when she sees his bravery she is soon in love with him, and after they are picked up by a passenger steamer and are well on their way to home they plight their troth.

A fast moving story with a love tale much in evidence is found in "The Midnight Man," and it has been worked up into an absorbing production. Jack Mulhall, who has done some good work in previous Butterfly pictures, is the star in this production. In support of Mr. Mulhall appear Ann Krouan, Al McQuarrie, Urda Lamont, Hal Wilson and Wilbur Higby.

AN IMPORTANT SCENE FROM "THE MIDNIGHT MAN," WHICH FEATURES JACK MULHALL (Butterfly)

One of the things that should greet the approval of the audiences is the fact that instead of being a rich man's son, who is a good-for-nothing, Mr. Mulhall portrays with satisfaction the role of a rich man's son who is ambitious and who is admired by his father. The settings have been well chosen and a good fight in one of the underworld dens has been well staged.

The story: Bobby Moore works in his father's safe factory and is anxious to perfect a safe that will be burglary proof. After many nights of hard work Bobby believes he has found a burglary proof invention. The new lock is installed in the Moore home and that same night the Eel succeeds in opening it and looting the safe. Bobby is disheartened, but brightens up when he is informed that the man who opened the safe knows more about safes than anybody in the factory. Bobby succeeds in locating the Eel and brings him to his factory and together they invent a lock that even the Eel cannot open. Bobby is in love with Irene Harding, who also is a manufacturer of safes, and through his ability to open a safe which Moore thought no one could open Bobby wins Irene.

"THE LAW OF THE LAND"
Lasky-Paramount drama; five parts; published August 12

Story. Cleverly handled

Photography. Good

Some of Mme. Petrova's best work will be found in "The Law of the Land." She portrays the role of Margaret Harding in a capable manner. The plot of "The Law of the Land" is not entirely new, but it has been handled in a clever manner. At no time can one guess just what the ending will be. It keeps an audience in suspense until the end. It is an offering of strong dramatic value and should meet favor with the majority of patrons.

Maurice Tourneur is responsible for the excellent direction of George Broadhurst's story. Other members of the cast are Wyndham Standing, Mahlon Hamilton, J.D. Haragan, T. Vivian and Rawley Hatt. The settings are appropriate and some of the interior sets are beautiful. The photography is good.

The story: Margaret Harding becomes the wife of Richard Harding to save her mother from ruin. The only happiness of her life is her daughter, and one night when Harding threatens to whip the boy to death Margaret shoots him. Geoffrey Morton, who loves Margaret, and Margaret are both accused of the murder. However, when Margaret explains to the police inspector the true state of affairs and the son shows marks where his father had hit him, they are exonerated and Margaret and Geoffrey are happily united.

Bert Lytell, Hazel Dawn in "THE LONE WOLF"
Brennon-Selznick drama; eight parts; published July 2

Bert Lytell plays Michael Lanyard, the leading role and Hazel Dawn is Lucy Shannon, a detective. Mr. Lytell's agility and pleasing screen presence place him at the top of the list of "stunt" actors and there are enough in "The Lone Wolf" to please even a Doug Fairbanks. Miss Dawn also is called upon to scale housetops and slide down ropes after Mr. Lytell, which she does with less ability.

There is a big fire, an automobile race, a plane through a drawbridge, a motor boat race and an airplane fight to add a thrilling finish to the whole. Altogether an intensely interesting production, well directed and acted.

The story: Marcel, a waif, saves a clever crook from the police by a ruse. He is adopted by the crook and lat when the crook is killed by an accomplice, becomes master criminal, working under the name of Michael Lanyard. His work baffles the police, and he is known as "The Lone Wolf." A gang of criminals knows as "The Pack" notifies the "Wolf" that unless he joins the gang he is marked for destruction. Lucy Shannon becomes nurse to the leader of the "Pack" to get certain information for the police. She warns "The Wolf" escape, and after many thrilling escapes the two arrive in England in an airplane. Lanyard is somewhat surprised to learn that his companion is a detective and operator of the airplane also has a warrant for his arrest. However, it all ends happily when the detective tear on the road and sails away, leaving Lucy and Michael.

The Chicago censors shortened many scenes and made several cuts in the film that did not add to its smoothness but it held attention nevertheless.

Although pictures have been produced to awaken some of the slacker, none of them should prove as successful in bringing out this idea as Mary McAlister in The Kingdom of Hope," and the exhibitor who wants to awaken that latent spark of patriotism which undoubtedly exists in the bosom of the slacker will do well to show the latest Mary McAlister picture which brings to an end the series of "Do Children Count?" "Durand of the Bad Lands" is an interesting picture, replete with Indians, settlers and sheriff's posse. There is the usual good-bad man and the girl who returns him. The story is interesting and as a whole is very clearly and cleverly told with Dustin Farnum in cowboy make-up as a bad man. It is Mr. Farnum's first picture for the Fox banner and marks his debut on that program. The direction of Richard Stanton left nothing to be desired, and the many humorous touches heighten the interest of the tale. Maibelle Heike Justice wrote the script. The photography was excellent. Tom Mix is the Sheriff and the winsome Winifred Kingston is the girl.

The story: Dick Durand is a young outlaw, credited with robbing stage coaches. He saves three children from starvation after an Indian raid, placing them in the care of Molly Core, who lives alone on a range. Molly does not suspect Durand is the outlaw whom the Sheriff and his posse are eternally seeking. Durand is finally caught after rescuing the Governor's daughter from a band of Indians, tried and sentenced to death, but the Governor pardons him and when he is proven innocent of any wrong doing Molly consents to marry him.

The Artcraft program has another winner in "Seven Keys to Baldpate." Dull indeed must be the picture "fan" who cannot enjoy Mr. Cohan's second contribution to the cinema. The story, first told in book form, then upon the speaking stage, loses none of its appeal or mystery or action by being transferred to the screen. In fact there is added mystery by reason of the scope of the camera, as all of the action was confined to the one scene upon the stage.

George M. Cohan is cast as George Washington Magee, the author of "best sellers," who bets a clubman $5,000 he can write a novel in twenty-four hours. Other capable actors in the cast are Frank Losee, who takes Magee's bet, Anna Q. Nilsson, who is Mary Norton, a girl reporter; Russell Bassett, as Quimby; Elda Furry as Myra Thornhill; Corena Uzzell, as Mrs. Rhodes; Joseph Smiley, as mayor Cargan; C. Warner Cook, as Thomas Haykin and Eric Hudson, as Peter, the Hermit. The story is clearly told and one complication follows upon the heels of another. A brief outline of the story here will suffice.

The story: George Washington Magee bets a companion $5,000 he can write a "best seller" in twenty-four hours. He goes to an isolated summer hotel in the mountains, there is delivered the only key to the place and sets about his task. The incidents that follow are hair-raising, and follow so closely one after another one wonders how it is all coming out, which is the story the young author is transferring to paper. Guests arrive, uninvited and unexpectedly, each with his own key to the deserted hotel. Two hundred thousand dollars in bribe money is deposited, the hotel is made safe, a young girl is shot and while the author holds the crooks at bay until the police arrive, they hatch up a scheme to turn the tables on him. The body of the girl disappears from the room, and finally all are marched off to prison by C. S. secret service men. The caretaker returns the following night and congratulates the author on his success and the lady reporter capitulates under the smiles of the industrious writer.

There is no real appeal in the manner in which "The Jury of Fate" has been handled and patrons who are accustomed to good stories, well directed, will find themselves bored. The story is padded and runs slowly along until the last reel, when a fight is injected for action.

Mabel Taliaferro is pretty, but after seeing her once one knows just when she is going to smile and just when she is going to be emotional. The support includes F. T. Hiltis, Broken Masts.

Vivian Martin in

"LITTLE MISS OPTIMIST"

Paramount comedy-drama; five parts: published August 26

There is the material in the "Little Miss Optimist" which makes it a production that should appeal to all classes of audiences. There is cheerful humor and clean comedy throughout. Vivian Martin is delightful and lovable all the way through. There is a naturalness and unaffectedness about her that makes one enjoy her work and no doubt she will win her audiences from the start. Tom Moore gives Miss Martin fair support in the leading male role.

The story: When the foster mother of Maisie-Rosie marries, Maisie-Rosie is forced to find another home. She is sent to the Hope Mission, where she is given a home. A millionaire named West is murdered in his home and Maisie's brother is accused of the murder. Fear of the police drives Maisie from the home and she seeks refuge in the church, where she conceals herself for a number of days. On Sunday she is forced to seek seclusion in the pulpit and from here she is able to find the murderer of West through a much damaged coin which West had on his person at the time of the murder. With the real murderer brought to justice and her brother free, Maisie is happy. And then she finds that she is loved by the young man whom she had befriended when he first came to the town and so, like a fairy story, they live happily ever after.

"THE LITTLE DUCHESS"

World drama; five parts: published August 20

Because the World Company has put a brilliant child star in the leading role in "The Little Duchess" it does not mean that the production will appeal to children alone. The exhibitor who books this play will find the adult members of the audience as well entertained as the juniors.

Madge Evans easily ranks foremost among child players. She puts herself into her role in an exceptionally clever manner and spectators will find her a lovable mite. Other members in the cast are Pinna Nesbit, Mrs. Nellie Anderson, Jack Drumier, James Davis, Charles Hartley, Patrick Hoy, Richard Clarke, Harry Bartlett, Nora Cecil, Maxine Elliot Hicks, Ivan Dobbie and Sheridan Tousey. The story is by Julia Burton and Harley Knobs.

The settings have been faithfully selected and well brought out with good photography. There is a good deal of real comedy woven into the play and the subtitles are the kind that make one laugh out loud. It is a production that exhibitors should find a very successful offering for all audiences.

The story: Because he believes his wife to have been unfaithful the Earl of Carimmore will not permit a woman to enter his house, and when his little grand-daughter left an orphan he forces her to dress in boy's clothes and although grudgingly he at times finds pleasure in her ways. One day Geraldine, who is called Jerry for short, leads the servants up to a watch tower and asks them to clean it out that she might play in it. They are frightened when they find two skeletons and hasten to report to their master. The Earl finds a note in the hand of one and after reading it learns that his wife and friend had investigated the tower when the door closed and they had no way of escape or of making themselves heard. The Earl is repentant for doubting his wife at his faith restored in woman, he permits Geraldine to again assume the garb of her sex.

Jack Gardner in

"OPEN PLACES"

Essanay-K.-E.-S-E western drama; five parts: published August 20

The Jack Gardner pictures have brought to life so of the rough and readiness of western pioneer days as they have been full of action and thrills. "Open Places" is full of action. The story is an interesting one as has been well handled. The players have been well cast and the ruggedness of western landscape is well depicted. This production should not only prove interesting to lovers of the great outdoors, but to those people who have tired of society dramas and the type of comic drama which has become so popular.

Jack Gardner does some excellent work as a New west mounted policeman and his muscular appearance makes him well adapted to the role. Ruth King and B. Stockdale even up a well balanced cast. There is good riding and some good fight scenes, which give action and thrills to the picture.

The story: After the disappearance of her husband, Molly Clark crosses the border line into Canada to tell school. She meets Calhoun of the mounted police and the two become companions. Dan, Molly's husband, has become an outlaw and is forced to seek refuge Miss Valli is most admirably suited to the part. This is not her first important part—she has been featured in a number of Black Cat pictures and recently appeared opposite Bryant Washburn in "The Golden Idol." Before taking up her work before the camera she made a considerable reputation for herself as a dancer.

LOEW CIRCUIT, IN NEW YORK, BOOKS BRENON'S "LONE WOLF" AT BIG PRICE

Herbert Breenon's film "The Lone Wolf" was booked over the Loew circuit last week by the Selznick New York exchange at a price which is said to have established a new record for high prices for a single feature. The success of the big Breenon production at the Broadway Theater, where at dollar prices it withstood the heat wave of the past few weeks, and its equal triumph at the Studebaker Theater in Chicago, are jointly responsible for the Loew booking at the top notch figure. Sol Berman, head of the New York exchange of the Selznick enterprises, believes that "The Lone Wolf" will establish a new record for bookings in his territory and advance demand for this feature from all parts of the country indicates that this condition will prevail through the United States at large.

Already ten big cities have run pre-publication showings of this picture and others are following suit. "The Lone Wolf" is a melodrama.

"SHOULD SHE OBEY?" TO BE OFFERED ON FOUR SQUARE PROGRAM IN FALL

The word has gone out that "Should She Obey?" is a good picture. Although M. H. Hoffman, vice-president and general manager of M. H. Hoffman, Inc., bought the New York State rights for this feature some time ago, he had little to say about it. Now it appears he was holding it back for one of his Foursquare fall offerings.

"Occasionally one finds a vital theme incorporated in a picture which gives it genuine worth without in any way distributing its entertainment value," said Mr. Hoffman. "Such a picture is 'Should She Obey?' In my judgment it will do more toward making plain some of the phases of marriage and divorce than a thousand dry sermons."

"This feature is Foursquare in its essentials. It holds up to nature the mirror of follies—both in hasty marriage and divorce, which so often follow in such instances. Yet I do not recall having seen a feature that has more snap and interest than 'Should She Obey?' It will be welcomed by the exhibitor because it will please his patrons. Personally I am glad to have so splendid a picture to go out under the Foursquare brand."

IRVING VALLI LEADING LADY FOR TAYLOR HOLMES IN ESSANAY FILM, "EFFICIENCY EDGAR'S COURTHOUSE"

At last Taylor Holmes has seen fit to announce the name of his leading lady in his first Essanay feature, "Efficiency Edgar's Courthouse." After having tested made several actresses with whom he had been associated in the stage and watching the work of every feminine member of the Essanay stock company he finally chose Miss Virginia Valli as the ideal type to portray the character of Mary Pierce, Edgar's next door neighbor.
Recommendations to Insure Against Loss by Fire

Second article of series sets forth building plans aimed to eliminate fire waste—Many precautions urged.

Herewith is an article setting forth the recommendations of the National Fire Protection Association for the prevention of fires in theaters, studios, exchanges and storage vaults. The recommendations are of vital importance to the entire trade in curbing and eliminating damage and loss by fire. Many costly fires in theaters and exchanges are directly traceable to carelessness and ignorance of proper fire prevention precautions. This article is the second in a series aimed to disseminate fire prevention information and to encourage the taking of proper precautions.—EDITOR.

In lighting vaults, all lights must be at the ceiling and of the fixed marine type, with vapor-proof globes and conduit wiring. The light switches should be located outside the room with a small pilot light to indicate the room light.

Every film vault or cabinet must be provided with a separate vent to the outer air. The vent should have a minimum effective sectional area of 70 square inches for each 100 reels capacity, or the equivalent to 140 square inches per 1,000 pounds of film.

Outlet at Point Above Roof
An outlet to each vent must be located at a point above the roof, except where a different location of the outlet will not expose other property in the same or adjacent buildings, in which case a special permit must be secured.

The interior horizontal or vertical flues leading from the vaults shall be of a construction equivalent to that of chimneys as provided for in the building code, except that for 100 or less reels the flue may be of riveted sheet metal of at least No. 18 U. S. gage, covered with at least 1 inch of approved heat insulation material and not nearer than 9 inches to any combustible material. It is necessary to have exterior flues of metal equivalent in construction to that of smokestacks.

There should be ventilation of vaults other than that given above.

Artificial Ventilation in Vaults
It is sometimes desirable in factories handling new material, such as motion picture printing establishments, to provide artificial ventilation in vaults. In such cases the additional fire hazard in connection with the ventilation may be somewhat reduced if the intake and discharge openings in the vault coincided directly to the outside of the building, through a flue or masonry walls at least 4 inches thick. Only suction blowers drawing air away from the vault should be used and the outlet and intake openings shall not expose or be exposed by other property.

A single thickness of glass painted a dark color or other non-combustible material should protect each vent (opening direct through an exterior wall) against the weather. The glass should be in a sash, so arranged that it will open automatically, in case of fire, from the inside.

A light wire screen not coarser than ½-inch mesh must be placed over each vent and so arranged as not to interfere with the automatic operation of the sash. Bars or screen designed to prevent burglary may be located inside the light wire screen.

Cabinets Ten Feet Apart
To prevent films from being forced against the vent openings of small containers, a permanent guard must be installed.

Cabinets of approved construction when used must be placed at least ten feet apart, and cabinets containing reels of film must be divided into at least two distant compartments, and each compartment provided with distinct door, the separating partition to be practically a tight and of substantial construction.

It is recommended that only such cabinets as are tested by the Underwriters’ Laboratories for the storage of film be used. In general cabinets should be of a design approved by the Underwriters and insulated so that a naked reel of film burning on the outer face of the cabinet will not ignite the contents, or if burning in one compartment it will not ignite the contents of the other, the contents of same to be assumed as naked reels.

The racks or drawers must be so arranged that film containers immediately adjacent to the partitions are not touched same on either side. To have such containers kept at least ½ inch away from the partition or outside spacers should be provided.

Use of Asbestos Is Advised
Separating partitions may be constructed of ¼-inch asbestos board or of ½-inch soft asbestos board enclosed between steel or iron sheets 22 U. S. gage.

The exterior sides of cabinet and doors may be composed of ¼-inch asbestos board carried on a framework of 1½x1½x½-inch angles, or may be made of U. S. gage metal double walled with ½-inch of air space.

The shelves or racks within the cabinet must be metal and arranged to store film containers on edge. It is important, and they must be so arranged that film containers not be placed under or between containers in the vertical position.

The doors to compartments must be so arranged a weighted as to remain normally closed by gravity. It must be provided with too with catches on three sides, or closely tight to prevent the entrance of flame due to burning of a reel of film in an adjoining compartment. The doors dividing the cabinet must swing from the center and not expose the contents of one compartment the other.

Sprinklers and Other Protection
All film vaults should be equipped with at least one automatic sprinkler for every 700 pounds of film capacity. These sprinklers should be so arranged as to be effective in case of fire and sheet metal baffles must be provided.

At least one automatic sprinkler for each 300 pounds of film capacity should be installed in film storage cabinets also.

Sprinkler systems for film vaults must be equipped with a ½-inch drip line and valve and be tested once a week. In case a recording pressure gauge is attached to the drip line such tests are not required. A sprinkler must be provided in each compartment of film vaults or cabinets.

Sprinklers must be provided in all other parts of buildings where films are handled, over drying drums, in loading or assembly rooms, in receiving or distributing rooms and other places where excessive amounts of film are handled. Hand extinguishers and at least one pail of water must be placed in rooms other than film vaults where film is handled or stored.

SYDNEY HERALD GIVES RESUME OF CENSOR PROBLEM IN AUSTRALIA

Speaking of the censorship of cinematograph films in Australia, the Sydney Morning had recently said: The Minister for Customs today made available a report showing the position of the censorship of cinematograph films within the Commonwealth. It is said that any other film censorship authorities may happen to be in existence at the end of this year will merely be recency scrutinizing those that have already been examined and passed by the commonwealth board. Efforts are now being made in New South Wales to invest each municipal authority in the state—some 300 in number—with power to censor cinematograph films. One result of any multiplication of censorship bodies would be that all kinds of conflicting decisions and anomalies would inevitably arise, thus bringing the bodies into universal contempt, and probably using the public to lose faith in their efficacy besides, addition to which it would inflict, it is considered, unnecessary trouble and expense upon exhibitors.

ENSORSHIP DRASTIC IN NEW ZEALAND

During May, 1917, there were 407,900 feet of picture taken in New Zealand, which brings the total up to date to 2,888,440 feet. The censorship function is becoming more drastic, consequently it will be necessary for manufacturers in this line to send only the best class of films to this market.

William N. Selig's "The Garden of Allah," written by Robert Hichens, recently had its Chicago premiere at the Colonial Theater, one of the most beautiful houses in the Chicago "loop" district. Despite the intense heat, the drama gained in popularity day by day, and the Edmund M. Allen Company, which owns the territorial rights for eight states, cashed in on the run.

No Expense Spared

Neither time nor expense was spared in staging and exploiting the production. Twenty-sheets and eight-sheets were used for the most part in billing Chicago, and 700 twenty-sheet stands alone were utilized. The lobby display in front of the theater was particularly attractive. The pictures and lettering were in oil colors, and two sets of lobby display casel frames were used. There was also an illuminated cut-out of a scene in "The Garden of Allah."

A camel driven by an Arab attracted a crowd before the theater in Randolph street, and the young women ushers were garbed after the modes of the Orient.

Dozen Arabs Appear

The special musical score supplied by William N. Selig was used at the four performances daily, afternoons 1 to 6 and evenings 7 to 11. Before the performance a dozen or more Arabs appeared, and while one sang a song of the desert the others bowed in prayer. The lights dimmed on the desert set and the song died away, and the film drama began.

The Chicago newspaper critics were requested to see the picture on the opening night, cards of invitation being mailed to them, each card being good for two choice seats. It was an innovation from the customary re-view for the press in some dark projection room and without music.

FUNKHOUSER GETS EVEN BREAK IN JUDGES’ DECISION

"Czar" Has Not Abused Privileges, but Neither Are Pictures Bad

Judges of the Appellate Court, Chicago, found no "legal" reason August 7 for deciding that M. Funkhouser, Chicago censor, had abused his privilege in revoking a permit to the Margaret Sanger birth-control film or the film entitled "The Sin of the Sons," a drama based on the vice exposé of Chicago, state's attorney for Illinois.

Neither did the judges find the films were "immoral, obscene, disorderly, riotous and not calculated to public peace," which were the grounds on which the major revocation of the licenses last February.

"The matter stands about a said Judge David Matchett, who stated he could see no wrong in "The Sin of the Sons." Judge Albert Barnes, who viewed the film, said he considered it an instructive drama.

Both the film companies' attorneys and police department counsel will file briefs before October, when the judges will render a decision on two films that have been held up.

New York.—The Squirrel Corporation has been organized to manufacture motion pictures. The concern has a capital of $100,000 and the directors are Giuseppe Cippico, Lewis J. Selznick and C. E. Lydecker.

ky young bouncer, weighing nine pounds. She arrived July 31. Mr.
Cripps is receiving congratulations from a large circle of friends.

Halifax, N. S.—A. E. Smith of the Fairyland Theater, Oxford, N. S., has closed his house for the summer. He will reopen in September.

St. John, N. B.—Circular letters have been sent out signed by the president of the Exhibitors Motion Picture League of the Maritime Provinces requesting the members to send in suggestions as to subjects to be brought up at the September convention in St. John. On receipt of these suggestions for which a printed card has also been mailed the program will be printed and mailed to the members.
In this manner only subjects of vital interest will be dealt with first. Arrangements are going along nicely to make this convention a big success.
It is expected that a number of prominent trade officials from the United States will be present.

St. John, N. B.—The Imperial Theater of St. John, N. B., was offered for use on the fourth of August for the ceremony of presentation of cerificates to the returned soldiers, which took place from 4:30 to 6 o'clock. The theater, through the courtesy of Manager Golding, was placed at the disposal of the committee in charge for the public recognition of these heroes.

Toronto, Ont.—The aid of the films has been invoked by the military authorities at Ottawa for the purpose of getting recruits in the Kingston and Ottawa districts. From reports this work is proving considerably effective. The picture exhibited throughout the districts show the various military camps and the boys in khaki at work and at play.

Ottawa, Ont.—The Flower Theater of Ottawa, which closed in June, will reopen the latter part of August.

Toronto, Ont.—Phil. Kaufman, who has been identified with the Famous Players Company, has joined the forces of the Globe Film Company.

Toronto, Ont.—Manager Charles
Garner of the Toronto office of the Mutual Film Corporation, was in Chicago a short time ago, attending the convention of the Mutual Exchange Managers Association of United States and Canada.
Nobody in the Chicago exchanges stifled this week from the intense heat. Jack Wilks, president of the American Bioscope, declares the cool breezes have added much joy to his young life.

The Recel Fellows Club, under the guidance of Ralph Proctor, called a meeting of members on August 10 for the purpose of reorganizing the club, which has been floundering in a financial mire.

Samuel Bullock, the "fire-eating" exhibitor of Cleveland, who played a heavy role in bringing about the formation of the A. E. A., has buried the old hatchet and burst into raptures of song. Sam has just written and published a song entitled "When Pershing Leads the Boys Across the Water." He has sent a copy to Y. Scribe. The first verse of the clever piece follows:

Old "Kaiser Bill," he had a dream,
It surely was a "sneezer":
He dreamed that he was bound to be A second Julius Caesar.
But Bill, his time will soon go out
He'll wake up from his dreaming;
When Uncle Sam hits him a slam
He'll hear the eagle screaming.

Chorus:
When Pershing leads the boys across the water,
Beneath the starry flag—red, white and blue—
They'll follow him through shot and shell and slaughter.
Singing "Anything that we can do for you," etc., etc.

Sam is not only playing the piece in his Columbia and Boulevard theaters but other exhibitors are buying it. This is Sam's newest idea for combating the music publishers' combine demand.

Guy McConnell, magazine writer and film producer, is the latest acquisition of Wholesome Films Corporation of Chicago. Besides being made director general, Mr. McConnell will contribute a serial for production. This new Chicago company just finished the production of "Ginderella."

"Don't growl, kick or argue with anybody in my theater when there is anything wrong, but bring your complaints to me and get satisfaction," is the message on a unique little card that Manager Charles H. Ryan, of the Garfield Theater, 2844 Madison street, Chicago, is issuing to his patrons. Ryan has the right idea, and he is a "regular little Mr. Fixit."

Will Rossiter, the Chicago music publisher, has announced to the Chicago branch of the A. E. A., of which Henry Scohunstadt is president, that he will stand by exhibitors in supplying music without the ten-cent seat tax per annum.

Ludwig on a cloudy day
Roasted hard the A. E. A.
While Stanley Twist put in a jibe,
And "Dark Horse" Joe in recent cried.
"Down with them babies."

And while the jibes and roasts went on Exhibitors, three thousand strong,
Had joined that "baby," the A. E. A.
To work, and gain, and not for play.

The few preceding healing, soothing, pathos was gleamed at the luncheon held by George Beban, the Moroseo star, in the Blackstone Hotel in Chicago, August 8, when there was much discussion and argument concerning the membership and future of the new A. E. A. Mr. Beban did not do the rhyming, but somebody did. Enough said! Eh, wot?

"The Lone Wolf," the big Herbert Brenon feature which has been holding over at the State Theater, gave up the screen at that house to "The Seven Keys to Baldpate," the Artcraft farce-comedy featuring the inimitable George M. Cohan, beginning Sunday, August 12.

"One Law for Both," termed Ivan Abramson's dynamic film epic, being handled in the Central States by Owl Features, Inc., with offices in the Mallsor Building, was given its Chicago premiere at the Ziegfeld, Theater, on Michigan avenue, last week. The Russian Commission attended as the guests of Alfred Hamburger. Philip Lewis is elated over the success of the initial showing. It apparently made a big impression.

When you put the question, "How's business?" to Frank Zambreno, the genial Unity Photoplays president, he just smiles and says, "Never better. Don't put any stock in these calamity howlers' remarks. This has been one wonderful year for motion pictures and any fellow who has the goods has no trouble selling them."

The trade had to climb over piles of bricks and wade through bins of mortar to reach Greiver & Herz's film dispensing headquarters in the Consumers Building last week. Masons were building new walls on the fourth floor, with the usual "effects" necessary in such an emergency. Notwithstanding the handicap, the office was full of people every day.

Pete Milan, the m. or l. w. k. m. p. reviewer on the X. Y. m. p. stopped off in Chicago in his mat dash home from Los Angeles long enough to say hello and a few things.

"SOULS IN PAVN" FILM SHOWS HOW SPIES OPERATI

"Souls in Pawn," the patriotic Ga Kane production, issued by the Mutual Film Corporation, affords one of the best possible mediums for study of the war spies operate enemy countries, it is said.

Karl Prinez von Kondemar head of the enemy spy system of Paris before the war broke out and just subsequent to that time, is most convincing exemplar of subtleties involved in the spy game.

Catasauqua, Pa.—William H. Wents, proprietor of the Majestic motion picture theater, has leased the Palace theater and will conduct it in the future.

Baltimore, Md.—The Parkway Theater Company will erect an addition to its theater on North avenue and harles street.

Boston, Mass.—The Metropolitan Film Company reports gratifying results in the distribution of the new clay comedies.

To receive the full benefit of the attention that Goldwyn Pictures will command from motion picture audiences everywhere, many of the important theaters where Goldwyn productions will have their first showings throughout America are undergoing changes and renovations.

Decorates House for New Films

R. G. Larsen, manager of the Boston Theater, is one of the first of the big exhibitors to take advantage of the additional possibilities of audience-attraction in the Goldwyn productions. “New pictures—therefore a newly decorated theater,” he says. The Boston Theater, with a seating capacity in excess of 3,000, has one of the largest and finest lobbies in America, reaching from Washington street inwardly almost to the middle of the block. This job is being entirely done over and a type of pictorial and electrical display hitherto unknown in the industry being installed.

Goldwyn Interested in Larsen

Goldwyn officers are so interested in what Mr. Larsen and his efficient aide, Charles Harris, are doing that they have visited Boston to watch the work get under way.

In Toledo, Edward A. Zorn, the city’s biggest exhibitor, expresses the intention of “going dark” with his Empire Theater long enough to refit and redecorate his splendid house for the advent of Goldwyn productions.

Goldwyn Pictures are deserving of an entirely new setting,” says Mr. Zorn, “and I desire my showmanship to be as distinctive as the pictures.”

Newark Woman Exhibitor Prepares

In Newark the Goodwin Theater is being renovated in preparation for the showing of Goldwyn Pictures. From small start Mrs. L. H. Web’s enterprise has grown until it has become a splendid amusement establishment. Newark, and its owner is rated as one of the country’s most alert exhibitors. So far as is known, Mrs. Weeb is the only exhibitor in the world operating a theater named after a minister of the gospel.

The Goodwin Theater takes its name from the Rev. annibal Goodwin, rector of the House of Prayer, Newark. Mr. Goodwin is credited with being one of the discoverers and inventors of the modern motion picture film.

N. M. Exhibitor Sends First Dollar

A peculiar sentiment attaches to the signing of Sam A. Swartz of Roswell, New Mexico, for all Goldwyn productions at his Armory Theater. Last winter, when no Goldwyn Pictures had been completed and when Goldwyn’s chief assets were the names of the men who own the company, Mr. Swartz sent Goldwyn his check as an advance deposit to insure his getting the pictures first in Roswell. His check was the first dollar of exhibitor money ever sent in to Goldwyn and this confidence of a small and distant exhibitor in a new company, when made known in Goldwyn advertisements, elicited a response all the way across the country.

Mr. Swartz’s and other similar checks from exhibitors were promptly returned to the readers by Samuel Goldfish, but it doubtless will interest Mr. Swartz, out in Roswell, to know that his evidence of “dollar confidence” in Goldwyn is photographed and framed in the private offices of a film company president in New York City.

St. Paul, Minn.—The Strand Theater has been purchased by Finkelstein & Ruben and will be opened under the name of the New Garrick Theater.

Ashabula, O.—Roy Tillson, former manager of the Majestic Theater, has purchased a half interest in the C-U Theater.

Dayton, O.—Harry Brown, the local manager of several houses connected with the Keith interests, has gone to New York and the Lyceum and other photoplay and vaudeville houses will hereafter be under the direction of James Weed.

Beatrice, Neb.—Manager Peterson has closed the Gilbert Theater and hereafter all pictures advertised for the Gilbert will be shown at the Lyric Theater.

Comfrey, Minn.—Wallace Cady, who conducted the motion picture theater here, has sold out to Dr. Robinson, of Sanborn, Minn.

Cincinnati, O.—H. G. Clarke has leased the Empress theater from the Bell Theatrical Company.

Coffeyville, Kan.—C. C. Dancer, proprietor of the Odeon theater at Bartlesville, has disposed of his interest in the concern.

Springfield, O.—Plans are being drawn by Architect William F. Miller for the remodeling of the Alhambra theater in Limestone street.

Stillwater, Okla.—W. H. Cox has closed a deal for the sale of the Alamo theater to J. E. Taylor of Oklahoma City.

After pre-issue runs of a week each at the Rialto Theater, New York, the Ziegfeld Theater in Chicago, the Merrill Theater in Milwaukee, and other big houses, “Skinner’s Baby,” the third of Essanay’s Skinner series, is enjoying bookings throughout the country which promise to break all records for K-E-S-E, according to reports from this service, which is handling the films. Box office receipts on this picture are said to have reached high water marks for exhibitors.

Featuring Bryant Washburn, with Hazel Daly as Honey and the original Skinner cast, “Skinner’s Baby” seems to be preferred by critics of motion pictures to either of its two predecessors, “Skinner’s Dress Suit” or "Skinner's Bubble." The story hinges on the arrival of a third member of the famous family and is a combination of many homely little incidents arising from a visit of the stock which carry a wide appeal. It was suggested by the book, "Skinner's Baby," from the pen of Henry Irving Dodge, creator of Skinner. The picture has a screen time of sixty-five minutes.

Albany, Ore.—The Ralph Theater building here has been destroyed by fire.

Caldwell, Idaho.—Fire damaged the Horse motion picture theater here.

Molson, Wash.—B. J. Cutler has begun the construction of a motion picture theater on Center Avenue.

Seattle, Wash.—The firm of Jensen & Von Herberg, Inc., has changed its name to the Exhibitors’ Film Company.

Denver, Colo.—A fire damaged the Plaza theater to the extent of $500 recently. The house was closed at 11 p.m. The blaze was confined to the reel room.

Pendleton, Ore.—Pictures showing various phases of navy life were shown by Manager Matlock of the Patsy and Casey theaters.

Portland, Ore.—It has been found the motion picture censor board as constituted during the Abebe administration here ended with his term and Mayor Baker will appoint a new board. Portland is without a motion picture censorship board at present.

Walla Walla, Wash.—Manager A. W. Eiler expects to open the new American theater September 1.

Oakland, Cal.—The newly redecorated American theater at Pablo avenue and Clay street has been open. More than $6,000 was expended in three large signs and the theater is one of the best equipped on the Pacific Coast. It will be devoted to the best feature film and a special musical program.

SPOOR EXPLAINS NEW MONEY-MAKING PROGRAM REMEDY

Warns against improperly balanced system as menace to business; offers plan to bring maximum revenue from clientele of theater.

By GEORGE K. SPOOR*

The improperly balanced program is proving a menace to the business of every exhibitor who is not giving his theater his most serious consideration. This question is most important to theater managers who are changing their programs several times a week. The week’s program for such theaters must have the widest possible variety and appeal in order to bring the maximum revenue from the clientele of that house.

It has certainly been proven times without number that each type of photoplay has its individual class of followers. There are those who care only for western subjects, others who prefer comedy dramas, then again society dramas, straight comedies, problem plays all have their devotees. Even the short subject program is extremely popular in many localities and often comes as a relief to the fan who has grown tired of five and six reel subjects.

Now, inasmuch as it is a generally accepted fact that very few persons attend their favored picture theater more than twice each week, does it not seem advisable to so vary the programs that every class of patron will find something of interest in the selections for the week?

An Example Is Cited

As an example, certain magazines and periodicals which have a national circulation find that they can confine themselves to material which will interest only certain classes. On the other hand, newspapers having a more limited territory for distribution find it necessary to carry departments so varied in their scope that there will be something to appeal to every person within the radius of their circulation.

A very good idea as to the feasibility of properly balancing the week’s program can be gained from the manner in which this question is handled by the old time "Ten, twenty, three hundred" men. And many a small town exhibitor has reason to rue the fact that these men have balanced their programs as they have. Generally one of these companies stays even in the smallest towns for at least a week stand and oftentimes longer. By showing everything from "heavy melodramas" and "blood-curdling westerns" to so-called farce comedies, these companies are generally able to make the small town exhibitor think that his entire patronage has gone on a vacation. And be it known that the novelty of the thing draws just as effectively from the better element as from the poor classes.

Shows Exhibitors New Scheme

Let us suppose that there are enough people in a given district preferring programs made up of short subjects to make two nights each week profitable. That means a source of revenue on those two nights that were formerly untouched and still leaves four or five programs in which the patrons desiring the longer subject may choose their two nights’ entertainment.

In other words, nearly as much money can be taken in at the box office in four nights as was formerly taken in during the entire week, besides which the remaining nights can be made to provide their additional revenue.

That is one of the chief reasons Essanay is issuing a varied program.

Our investigation department has found that a certain interest in short subjects, especially of a comedy nature, still exists in the minds of the public. As a matter of fact our entire output is being made up along the most in demand and least catered to at the present time.

The longer features of a semi-humorous nature portraying the lives of every-day people with whom we and associate and subjects dealing with the red-blooded men and women of the west of today, are finding a market in all localities. Such productions, backed by strong advertising possibilities, are absolutely necessary to the exhibitor who strives to get maximum results out of his district.

Hoffman Plan to Eliminate Middleman gives Low Prices and Best Quality

Managers Selected for Foursquare Exchanges in Territories; Exhibitor Will Be Given Direct Service at Cost in Keeping with Class of Films

An independent distributing organization is now being formed by M. H. Hoffman, Inc., and the basis of its organization will be service for exhibitors.

"Mr. Hoffman's idea," says P. V. R. manager of sales and advertising, "is to eliminate all middlemen to give the exhibitor the best profit obtainable at the lowest price consistent with quality. That is the doctrine which Mr. Hoffman promulgated.

M. H. Hoffman, New York Manager

The same methods that have made Hoffman a conspicuous part of the industry surround his problem in establishing each of the 110 service stations. In New York he selected manager Hy Gainsborg, who has been in the New York Foursquare exchange at 729 Seventh Avenue. Mr. Gainsborg has H. Kram, who is considered the borough of Manhattan. The strength of Brooklyn is being cared for by J. C. Felbusch.

The eastern portion of New York City continued Mr. Key, "is territory assigned to A. E. Silverman, while the western part of the state is in the competent hands of George Halstead, who knows pictures and what the exhibitor wants.

"Eastern and western Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia and West Virginia are territory in charge of Division Manager Jerome Abrams, whose headquarters are at the Hoffman Foursquare Exchange at 1325 Vine street, Philadelphia.

Weeks in Central States

"The engagement of George W. Weeks as division manager controlling, under M. H. Hoffman's direction, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky is regarded as one of the best moves this organization has made. Mr. Weeks' headquarters are at 923 11th Street, Indianapolis.

"Sidney J. Baker, with offices at 301 Exchange Theater Building, St. Louis, is handling business in Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska and Kansas, and S. Tobias, working manager, has just been secured for the state of Connecticut."

Bach is Writing Subtitles for his First Film to be Issued by Goldwyn

The Auction Block," adapted from a novel of Glittering Life in New York, Soon Will Be Ready for Publication

On a little writing room overlooking the Lake Hopatcong, at the far end of which is his summer home, is busily called "Manana," Rex Beach, the busy with the subtitles of his picture for Goldwyn distribution of "The Auction Block." As soon as the story has been completed to the satisfaction of the director, the picture will be ready for publication throughout the country.

Story of New York Life

The Auction Block," adapted from one of the most successful of Mr. Beach's many successful novels, tells into the life of the city, New York, for its characters and action, and in making the story Mr. Beach, Benjamin B. Lipton, president of the Rex Beach 1 Corporation, and Larry Trimble, the director, went right into the environs of the story for the people of the cast.

Beach and his associates hesitated long before selecting a young woman for the part of Lorelei Knight, the beautiful heroine of the book, who comes from a country home with her shrewd parents and a scapegrace brother to be put upon the auction block of a great city. She is "sold" to the man who appears to be the highest bidder, but with results scarcely within the calculation of her folks. Rubye de Remer, virtually a newcomer in pictures, has this part. She has been a member of the Ziegfeld companies.

Tom Powers is Juvenile

Tom Powers, one of New York's capable young leading men, has the part of the juvenile hero—the son of a rich Pittsburgher, who marries the beautiful country girl against the wishes of his father and who is eventually made a man against his own wishes by the girl who took him for the money she thought he had.

In the picture, as in the book, are characters of the night life of Broadway recognizable on the instant—the foolish young spender and the wise old one; the hammer and tongs crook and the savage one; the woman who cares and the woman who doesn't; the calculating "girl show" manager; the grouchy dramatic critic; the bully, the toady and all the rest.

Forty Universal Men Answer Call to Colors

More than forty members of Universal's producing staff will answer the government's call to the colors.

There is a marked amount of good cheer manifested on the part of the boys on the Big U payroll who are on the draft list, however. Not one voiced a complaint when he learned that his number had been drawn from Uncle Sam's hat.

Among the leading actors who will come within the scope of the first call are William Franey and Milton Sims, Joker comedians; Francis MacDonald, who plays a prominent part in "The Gray Ghost" serial, and Lloyd Whitlock and J. Webster Dill of Ruth Stonehouse's feature company.

Two of the directing staff probably will be called soon—George Marshall, who has been staging the Neal Hart features, and Manchele De Grasse, assistant to Joseph De Grasse, who is producing "The Maverick," with Franklyn Farnum as the star actor. Camera man Jack Mackenzie of Director De Grasse's company; J. Kull, who has been shooting the Max Ashler comedies and E. R. Meeker, who has assisted in the photographing of Jacques Jaccard's new serial, were among those whose numbers were selected early in the drawing.

SQUARE DEAL, PAYMENT OF EXPRESS CHARGES BOTH WAYS, IS WHOLESALE PLAN

Direct Business Between Exhibitor and Producer, Eliminating Middlemen, Is Basis of New Policy Announced by M. J. Weisfeld

Direct dealing between the exhibitor and the producer is the basis of the new sales policy announced by Wholesome Film Corporation. This plan will call for one big central exchange in Chicago, with which the exhibitors will deal direct, thus eliminating branches and go-betweens, on a straight, square deal basis.

"This plan, we consider, is one of the most progressive steps thus far taken in methods of film distribution," says M. J. Weisfeld, manager of Wholesome Films Corporation. It is easy for any successful exhibitor to estimate the economic advantages of this direct sales policy by the saving on overhead expense, such as branch managers, clerks and rentals.

To Pay Express Both Ways

"One big, outstanding proof of the worth of our policy is this: we pay express charges both ways. We make only one requirement of the exhibitor aside, of course, from paying for his rentals, and that is to book sufficiently far in advance so that on-time delivery may be assured any exhibitor anywhere in the United States."

"Wholesome Films Corporation is very much interested, too, in the success of the exhibitors' circuits recently announced. We will make special offers to exhibitors' circuits—a sure, snappy proposition for the live-wire, up-to-the-minute theater man."

TAYLOR HOLMES IN "EDGAR'S COURTSHIP" FILM, TO BE ISSUED BY K-E-S-E ON SEPTEMBER 3

Mary McAlister's Play, "Pants," to Follow, and Jack Gardner Completes Month's Program with Five-Reeler, "Men of the Desert"

Taylor Holmes, the stage star, heads Essanay's schedule of feature films for September in "Efficiency Edgar's Courtship." Little Mary McAlister will follow him in "Pants," and Jack Gardner will complete the month's program of five-part pictures with the fourth of his series of Westerns, entitled "Men of the Desert."

"Efficiency Edgar's Courtship" will mark Taylor Holmes' first appearance as a screen star. Until he joined Essanay, the comedian was one of the best drawing cards of the stage. His most recent stage production, "His Majesty, Buckner Bean," ran an entire season in Chicago, duplicated that success on Broadway, then toured another season throughout the country.

Saturday Post Tale

Mr. Holmes won his fame on his interpretations of subtle, homely, humorous roles and Essanay has endeavored to afford him the same type of characterization in "Efficiency Edgar's Courtship." The story, which was written by Clarence Budington Kellogg and published in the Saturday Evening Post, is a comedy-romance in which an enterprising young man introduces strictly business methods in his love-making and wins out. Virginia Valli has the leading feminine role.

Trade showings of the picture are being held at all branch offices of K-E-S-E. It will be published through this organization September 3.

"Pants," featuring little Mary McAlister, will be published September 10.

"Men of the Desert" will be issued September 24.

MOTYO FEATURES NOT SIMILAR IN STORY MATERIAL, ASSERTS H. C. ALLEN

President of Peter Pan Film Corporation Cites Plots of Various Plays Starring Doll Character Actors to Prove His Statement

In a recent discussion of the merits and the future of the new Motyo comedies the objection was raised that, owing to the type of the films, the comedies must necessarily become similar. This point of view was taken on the ground that the field of production is limited and that the same dolls are used over and over again.

Allen Makes Statement

H. C. Allen, president of the Peter Pan Film Corporation, which makes doll comedies, denies this. He says that the films are not limited and that it possesses rare possibilities for humor. Motyo book has any quantity of similar stories, and at present is doing up the play-roles which are all totally different.

In support of this claim he pointed out the several of the cent films, showing that, in spite of using the same dolls, after it will become as well known as actors and actresses, the pictures entirely unlike.

"Take, for instance," said Mr. Allen, "'In the Jungle.' There we have a doll on the nursery floor after he owners have gone to a jungle. Various ad

Where is there another company that not only advises exhibitors to reach out and find the best available pictures in the open market, but stands ready to distribute the quality pictures of any other producer—thereby seeking to provide you with pictures on which you will make a profit each week in the year?

The Indiana Plan

THE Indiana Exhibitors' Mutual Insurance Company, backed by ten of the most representative insurance concerns in the United States, gives every exhibitor protection on his theater, home and household furniture; also a bonding concern guarantees exchange payment for film service of all members of the Indiana branch of the American Exhibitors' Association. This bond guarantee offers to the exchanges a satisfactory solution of the "deposit system." The exchanges, under the plan, take no risks. If an exhibitor books a film, he must give seven days' notice if he desires to cancel it. This also is a boon to exchanges.

Complete harmony exists between exchange managers and exhibitors who are members of the A. E. A. branch. There are no delinquencies in payment for service. L. H. O'Donnell of Washington, Ind., is responsible for the system, which he perfected.

When theaters burn or are damaged, the houses and everything in them are protected by adequate insurance. Indiana theater owners enjoy ideal conditions, under which they can profitably exhibit pictures.

Such conditions should prevail throughout the entire United States. Already the New York and Chicago branches of the A. E. A. are adopting the Indiana system, and before the advent of 1918, it is predicted by the officials of this new business organization, perfection of plans to make the Indiana plan national in scope will have arrived.

Samuel H. Trigger has resigned the presidency of Ochs' Manhattan Local in New York. He resigned after making a convincing address reflecting the sentiment of the business men of the American Exhibitors' Association, with which he now is affiliated. Only eight members of the Ochs branch were present. Mr. Trigger told these eight Ochs followers that, while he offered no olive branch to them personally, he held no animosity against them.

Ochs' trade paper now declares that Mr. Trigger has resigned as president—but has not quit the Ochs organization. The paper even prints Mr. Trigger's farewell speech, and, more—

Players' Contracts

THROUGH the Actors' Equity Association the actors of the stage have won a deserving victory in obtaining a contract which guarantees a square deal for all. In these days of screen stars "jumping" their contracts and constantly changing companies, it would seem a stronger contract should be devised between the producing companies and their employees, whereby a player could not break his contract and accept another engagement without proper notice.

These changes would be of mutual benefit to players and film producers, and the exhibitor in the end will profit by a uniform film rental more in keeping with the business of his house. As it is, he builds up a certain clientele for certain stars. When these stars shift from one company to another he is compelled to change his service to please his patrons, and with each change there is usually a marked increase in price. The exhibitor, however, cannot raise his price of admission to meet the advance, and therefore suffers a loss with each change.

Fire Precautions

THERE are many salient points in the recommendations of the National Fire Protection Association's report on the proper handling and storing of films for both exhibitors and exchangesmen which, if followed out, will not only reduce the loss by fire occasioned by the carelessness of employees, but will materially reduce fire insurance premiums now demanded.

The "Herald" suggests that these articles, the last of which appears in this issue, be posted in a conspicuous place for the guidance of employees whose duty it is to handle daily many reels of valuable film and reduce to a minimum the fire loss.
Gigantic clique of “advance deposit film men” now seeks to “corner” producing and exhibiting fields, is charge; also attacks distributing concern

The American Exhibitors Association, in a sweeping statement just issued, charges:

THAT THERE IS A GIGANTIC COMBINATION OF “ADVANCE DEPOSIT FILM MEN” WHO ARE AT WORK ON A SCHEME TO GAIN CONTROL OF BOTH THE PRODUCING AND THE EXHIBITING ENDS OF THE MOTION PICTURE BUSINESS.

The statement which is one of the most remarkable documents ever addressed to the exhibitors of America also launched a veiled attack upon one of the largest producing and distributing companies for its policy of “separate advance deposits.”

The statement in full follows:

The officers of the American Exhibitors’ Association call the attention of every motion picture exhibitor in America to the fact that we have knowledge that there is at the present time a gigantic scheme, arrangement, or combination to go into the exhibiting business on a large scale. They expect to promote and finance this proposition entirely themselves and it is the purpose of the same to increase the price of film service. They hope to have a theater in every city in the United States, and the money for this scheme will all come out of the pocket of the exhibitor.

Briefly their scheme is as follows:

1. The ADVANCE DEPOSIT FILM MEN are now contracting and have contracts with great stars for exclusive showing in their productions. They secure these stars by bidding up and paying prices which are equal to or higher than the price paid by the producers. Therefore, we have a violates of the producers and the exhibitors.

2. Instead of the advance deposit system on the entire program, as we have had, they call this new system “Open Booking Plan.” On this plan you pay not one advance deposit, but you pay a separate advance deposit for every star. In this way you are paying the producers the price they paid for the stars, and you are paying the exhibitors the same price. This scheme is an unfair one, and they have already been used in the motion picture industry for a few years, and do not need it for production purposes.

In brief they plan to have all the big stars and all the big theaters, for this advance deposit money will be used in the promotion of motion picture theaters all over the United States.

Will Oblige Exhibitors to Quit

Note.—Ninety per cent of the motion picture exhibitors today are not making money. The increased prices of film service will oblige many to sell out at little or nothing. The monopoly expects to crowd the exhibited picture theaters, then cheapen, or, if the location is not satisfactory, they will put in a fine theater of their own, use their star system, the PRODUCING MEN will be in a position to control the exhibitors, are you going to allow this? Are you going to let this so-called open booking plan swallow you whole?

Now, if you are not going to consider further with us what has already been done in the past through the advance deposit system.

Before the advent of the advance deposit system an exhibitor could rent film service on equitable terms and contracts, the same as any legitimate merchant.

The cost of production and distribution was about one-tenth of what it is today.

The exhibitor could rent service at reasonable prices.

If an exchange did not send a film in time, or sent out scratched and torn film, we were in position to arbitrate the matter.

If a film was not up to standard we could cancel.

There were no multi-millionaire film producers.

There were no million-dollar stars or star systems.

Exhibitors were prosperous.

How Millions Were Made

I look at the result of the advance deposit system up to this time. The ADVANCE DEPOSIT PRODUCER made millions under the following plan:

The exhibitor contracts for a big star at an enormous salary. Through great advertisement and smooth tongued salesmen, exhibitors are induced to take a new picture. The exhibitor rents more protection, more opportunity to make money, etc. etc. Gradually the exhibitors buy up the advance deposit system and placed millions of dollars in bank and invested millions in the stock of the producers. The ADVANCE DEPOSIT PRODUCER is up at all times with the ADVANCE DEPOSIT PRODUCER, PRODUCING MEN.

The advance deposit producers took our money and spent it wisely to build up the motion picture industry. The exhibitor, instead of spending the other fellow’s money, furthermore, is unable to sell the picture at a profit. Therefore, every exhibitor is now in a corner, and some have not been able to pay their rent, and may even be forced to go out of business.

4. All the great stars were put in feature programs at an increased cost to the exhibitor. With this, all with the exhibitors’ money. In short, the exhibitor advanced the money to the producers, who became multi-millionaires without risking a dollar, because they secured the big stars with the exhibitors’ money and then made the exhibitor pay an increased rental of 100 to 500 per cent to take care of the waste and extravagance and unreasonable salaries incurred.

Exhibitors, are you going to allow this to continue? Are you going to stand for the proposed double increase in film service? Are you going to put up a new advance deposit on every start?

4. The exhibitor advanced the money to the producers, who became multi-millionaires without risking a dollar, because they secured the big stars with the exhibitors’ money and then made the exhibitor pay an increased rental of 100 to 500 per cent to take care of the waste and extravagance and unreasonable salaries incurred.

Exhibitors, are you going to allow this to continue? Are you going to stand for the proposed double increase in film service? Are you going to put up a new advance deposit on every start?

Deposit Men Going Step Further

Every exhibitor can now see that we shall never have put up a cent of advance deposit; but, not content with what has been done, these same ADVANCE DEPOSIT FILM PRODUCERS are going one step further in what they call—

The new open booking plan, which is a scheme proposing a still further increase, which is equal and better than the high-priced service of advance deposits. Look into the proposition and you will find you are

1. To pay double and triple the amount you have been paying for film service
2. To pay a separate advance deposit on each star;

Again, they are asking you to finance their business so that they can put up the salaries and get all the big stars.

Result: You will not be able to make any money out of your theater, which is part of the argument of this scheme, and you will then either buy your own price, and, if you don’t sell, or your location don’t suit, they will build a beautiful theater in your own city against you and use the big stars in this theater and promote the whole beautiful scheme with the money that you gave them in advance deposits and with the increased price of film service.

Now, exhibitors, what are you going to do about it?

We have confidential advice from other exhibitors that they have been taken in many cities. Therefore there is no time to lose—we must act.

EXHIBITORS OF AMERICA, WAKE UP!

War on Advance Deposits Only Salvation

Are you going to let this monopoly put you out of business? Are you going to stand for another increase in the price of film service?

Are you going to work all your life for big stars and advance deposit film, producers and then let them finally take your business away from you?

Surely you have enough red blood and fight in you to save your own child.

Bring your Americanism into play!

You now have the opportunity to crush this monster before it crushes you. Exhibitors, follow this plan:

1. Cancel at once any service demanding an advance deposit.

2. We must be organized and act in unity. Join the American Exhibitors’ Association immediately.

3. Call a meeting in your city and begin to fight the advance deposit and big star system with all your might.

4. Refuse to stand for an increase in film service.

5. Refuse to book any film service where an advance deposit is asked.

6. Refuse the service of big stars.

7. Send the name of anyone in the film business who is starting theaters, so we can notify all exhibitors to use no service of film men who are going into the theater business.

Encourage the Fair Producer

Here are some facts:

1. We don’t need the great stars, but they need us. If we now showed another picture with a great star, the motion picture industry would not die, but would grow more prosperous, especially to the exhibitors. Therefore, down with the big star system.

2. There are millions of feet of film that have never been shown, which is equal and better than the high-priced service of the ADVANCE DEPOSIT PRODUCER with his big stars. This service can be bought at reduced prices, and we will only use it instead of the high-priced service we will soon be able to make money again. Therefore, our policy will be all in the United States.

3. We want to hear from every film producer who is willing to eliminate the advance deposit system, and especially those producers who do not use and are against the advance deposit system, because we believe they should have all of our business.

4. Every exhibitor in the United States is requested to immediately enlist into membership of the American Exhibitors’ Association. We are an organization of all the progressive exhibitors and must depend solely

Productions Artistically Made by Most Notable Players of New Republic to End Antagonism Against Foreign Products

The film productions of the Moscow Art Theater, Russia, described by Collier's Weekly as the pioneer in intelligent realism and one of the foremost theaters of the world, are to be shown soon in America to dissipate the attitude of antagonism to foreign films long manifested by exhibitors and their patrons.

Competent critics who have seen the half dozen productions which N. S. Kaplan has prepared from the more than fifty negatives which he brought from Moscow several weeks ago, say that he will succeed in impressing American exhibitors and theatergoers with the fact that Russian art films are consistently of a high and popular standard, that they reveal the highest and best taste in studio preparation, are based on masterpieces of literature and present unusually capable actors in a system that makes for real artistic direction.

Atmosphere Is Real

The atmosphere of the pictures is real and natural and there is no attempt to make them appear anything but what they are, true pictures of Russian life with all its struggles and passions, ambitions, successes and failures. Always logical, it is said.

With the handicap of an unfamiliar tongue Nazimoff—recognized now as the famous American star of stage and screen, Nazimova—delivered her message; without it Mr. Kaplan presents his Moscow Art Theater players.

They will be seen in America in more than fifty plays based on the writings of the greatest Russian authors. They will present Russia as it is and not as American directors have consistently misrepresented the new republic to be.

MME. NATALIA LESIENKO
(Russian Art Film Corp.)

Mozukin Appears

The players' names will bear repetition because of the assurance that they will duplicate here the popularity which has made a government jealous of their art keep them at home. One man stands at the head of the stage in Russia. He is Mozukin. He will be seen often in the Russian Art repertory.

Of the women whose natural talents have been developed by the government are Lesienko, Colodna, Fetner, Orlova, Karabanava, Nel'ska and Zovska.

Some elaborate plans are under way for the Motion Picture Exhibitors League convention, to be held in St. John, September 9 and 10. At a recent meeting held in the Imperial Theater, St. John, tentative arrangements were made and the entertainment committee was appointed. The business session of the league will be held in the Board of Trade rooms, lectures and addresses to be given in the Imperial Theater. Among the entertainment plans is a sail on the beautiful St. John river. Arrangements have also been made to entertain the visiting delegates to a motor drive throughout the city.

This spectacle possesses the quality of being able to hold the interest of young and old alike, it is said.

STAGE PLAY SUCCESSES BEST FOR SCREEN ADAPTATION, DECLARATION OF W. A. BRADY

Between September 17 and October 15 World to Publish Four Such Productions; Alice Brady Appears in “Betsy Ross,” First of Series

“The history of motion picture success,” said William A. Brady, director general of World-Pictures, Brady-Made, “is that the biggest and most enduring hits are screen adaptations of stories which have been highly favored by the public in the speaking theater. This applies not alone to program features but to special price pictures, and the fact accounts for the sharp competition always in progress to secure the picture rights to stage plays.

“All this is preliminary to the announcement that World Pictures will immediately present an altogether remarkable series of screen versions of dramas which have enjoyed big careers in the oral theater. Between September 17 and October 15 we shall publish no less than four such productions, and I desire to invite the closest of scrutiny as to their quality.

Alice Brady in First

‘Betsy Ross,’ starring Alice Brady, will be the first of the series, to be followed by ‘The Corner Grocery,’ with Lew Fields and little Madge Evans in the stellar roles.

“The third in the set will be ‘Shall We Forgive Her?’ acted by June Elvidge and Arthur Ashley as the leads, with John Bowers in an important role. Carlyle Blackwell, Evelyn Grecley and little Madge Evans will appear in a screen version of Frances Hodgson Burnett’s novel, ‘The Burglar,’ as the final picture of the series, said to be one of the greatest successes of the American stage.”

The Right Spirit!

Wm. Fait, Jr., Treas., American Exhibitors' Association, Utica, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Fait: Immediately upon assuming the office of General Manager of the American Exhibitors' Association, I prepared cost estimates for the various work planned.

Considering that the organization is new, that many expenditures of moneys will necessarily be made the first year that will not be repeated, coupled with the fact that thus far all funds have consisted largely of individual exhibitors' contributions in addition to dues, I have decided the following:

That, as your general manager, I will return to you, as treasurer, each month, the difference between my salary as fixed and guaranteed at Chicago, and the sum of one hundred dollars per week.

I have been so unsafely supported in the work to date by our officers and individual exhibitors who have given their time and money to this cause, as to feel that I want to really be one of them and "Do my bit." The money thus saved can be used to good advantage for other purposes, and all I ask in return is a continuation of the support I have had, and your belief that my heart is in this effort to build up a Business Organization of Exhibitors that will BE SOMETHING and DO THINGS.

I am sending a copy of this letter to President Wells, and I take it that I have authority to do the above without official sanction of our directors.

My enclosed statement shows a substantial balance, and I earnestly desire to maintain it.

With kindest personal regards,

(Signed) Chas. C. Pettijohn,
General Manager.
OX FILM, "THE SPY," WITH DUSTIN FARNUM, SHOWS SYSTEM OF GERMANS IN U. S.

Special Issue Propaganda Picture First Published to Trade August 19, Is from Pen of George Bronson-Howard, Noted Fiction Writer

The appropriation by the United States Government of millions of dollars in recent weeks to seek out and root the German spy system in the United States, has led William Fox to produce a vitally important photograph, "The Spy." Dustin Farnum appears in the title role.

The picture is a special issue, and was first published on August 19. Those who have seen the new screen drama of the private showings which Mr. Fox has given, are unstinting in lauding it as one of the best features ever rejected. This film, showing how the German secret service works within the United States, is in six reels.

Film Sounds a Warning

Mr. Fox's purpose in having "The Spy" filmed is to sound a strong, clear note of warning to America; not to the authorities, for they are pursuing the country for the foreign agents, but to the American people, who do not yet realize the grip which a vicious ring is fast obtaining.

To make certain that the message reached the goal for which it was intended, Mr. Fox got the story from George Bronson-Howard, the noted author, who came into possession of his material while on a mission for the national government. Mr. Howard spent a year in Berlin and in Potsdam, where the German emperor resides, and was in intimate touch with the workings of the kaiser's agents.

Richard Stanton Directed

Richard Stanton, veteran filmmaker, was in charge of the direction. The cast, in addition to Dustin Farnum, contains in the chief roles Winifred Kingston, William Burress, Charles Clary, Howard Gaye and William E. Lowry.

The story of "The Spy" is a vivid narrative of Mark Quantance's patriotism. Mark is a cook suddenly called on to prove his mettle. The Patriots' League, of which he is a member, finds that the United States is infested with thousands of spies and undertakes to learn who and where they are. Quantance volunteers to go to Berlin and obtain the book known to have the name of every spy in America. There is a big romance running through the action of the play.

B. HATRICK IS MADE SECRETARY OF INTERNATIONAL

E. B. Hatrick has been made secretary of the International Film Service, Mr. Hatrick's experience covers wide range of newspaper and film circles for several years he was employed as a reporter, telegraph editor and bureau manager on the United Press Association.

In 1908 he left that organization to accept a position as editor of the Seattle Syndicate and in that capacity he took charge of the news photograph departments of the various Pacific newspapers and welded them into one organization for the gathering and distribution of photographs illustrations for newspapers and magazines.

This organization secured one of the most notable feats in the history of the newspaper world, including such famous pictures as the Scott South Pole expedition, sinking of the battleship Audacious, the destruction of the German battleship Goeben in the battle of the North Sea, first pictures of the German invasion of Belgium, etc.

KERRIGAN BREAKS LEG IN FALL FROM HORSE AT COAST

A telegram was received at the New York offices of Paralita Plays August 11, stating that J. Warren Kerrigan, the star of the J. Warren Kerrigan Feature Corporation, broke his leg by the fall of a horse he was riding near Santa Barbara, Cal. He has been taken to the Cottage Hospital in that city, where he will probably be confined for the next six weeks.

Mr. Kerrigan had just finished his second Paralita play, Frederic Chapin's "Turn of a Card," and had gone out into the country about Santa Barbara in the cool of the evening for a ride with some members of his company.

SIXTH CHAPTER OF 'THE LOST EXPRESS' IS NEAR FINISH

The Helen Holmes company is completing the sixth episode of their serial "The Lost Express." This chapter will be published under the chapter title, "High Voltage." As the name implies, electricity will play an important part in the episode. The apparatus necessary for the climactic scenes could not be secured in Los Angeles and a rush order had to be sent to the manufacturers in San Francisco that the company might secure exactly what was needed. Ten scenes were made with the expensive machine after which it was returned.

The expense thus entailed the few scenes the most expensive ever staged by the Signal corporation in respect to "props."

"A RICH MAN'S PLAYTHING" NEXT VALESKA SURATT FILM

Valeska Suratt's newest William Fox feature, on which work was begun a short time since, has been titled "A Rich Man's Plaything." Randolph Lewis wrote the story and Carl Harbaugh is the director.

EXHIBITORS FACE PROBLEM IN NEW UNION OPERATORS’ WAGE SCALE

Increase of Dollar per Show Over Old Rate, with Supper Money, and Time and Half Pay for Overtime, Starts October 1

The projection operators' new wage scale, which demands of all Chicago exhibitors a higher per picture show and time and a half pay for overtime work, was brought before exhibitors this week by Chicago Local 110. The new wage scale, which goes into effect October 1, 1917, now is being taken up with the union relative to certain objectionable features by the Chicago branch of the American Exhibitors Association.

Exhibitors Warned

President Schoenstadt of the Chicago A. E. A. branch, at a meeting Friday, warned exhibitors not to enter into any separate agreements with their operators' union, but to cooperate with the organization in meeting with the situation.

A committee of four has been selected to meet the union committee in an effort to secure some changes in the new scale.

The A. E. A. committee is composed of L. H. Frank, Maurice A. Choyinski, George Henry and A. J. Krug.

These men will seek to bring about a plan whereby operators can be paid — at the new wage scale — for handling projection machines for four and a half hours, instead of four hours. This means an extra half hour, which is necessary to run through one reel, without the added time and a half pay for overtime. If this point can be arranged, says Mr. Choyinski, it will facilitate matters greatly.

Seeks Extra Hour Pay

The new wage scale gives the operators half pay for overtime work, which will be effective for any four hours added to the scale. Where the old scale gave operators $3 for working from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m., and $2 for matinees from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., they now will receive a dollar advance, 75 cents for supper, and for overtime they will get time and half pay.

The A. E. A. committee will seek to get an extra half hour added to the scale without pay and then adhere to the scale as originally planned.

HERE IS NEW OPERATORS’ WAGE SCALE ADVANCE WHICH CHICAGO EXHIBITORS MUST PAY STARTING OCT. 1, 1917

This new wage scale of projection machine operators of Chicago Local 110, which goes into effect October 1, 1917, which is outlined below, has been presented to the American Exhibitors' Association branch of Chicago for consideration. The Chicago A. E. A. will confer with the union officers concerning changes.

TRIGGER QUITS
OCHS' LOCAL IN NEW YORK CITY
Tells Eight Members He Quit Defunct League Because of Tactics

President Samuel Trigger, on being asked by eight members of New York Local No. 1 to "Explain his Chicago conduct," August 14, made the following statement:

"It is a most unpleasant task to be asked by gentlemen purporting to be my friends to explain my conduct.

"This is the first time in my life that friends have questioned my God-given right to exercise my conscience and judgment.

"As your president, I entered the hall at the Chicago convention in your behalf and for you.

"I was not permitted to vote, and I was not permitted to speak either as your National vice-chairman or as your president.

"Was that the treatment you wanted me to have, and did you expect me to suffer such insults? These are two questions, my friends, for YOU to answer.

"Not being permitted to take part in the deliberations of the convention, refused the right to voice your sentiments and your desires or to vote on any measure, I realized I was not a delegate and left the convention. For this act I have no apologies to offer. That I have aligned myself with the American Exhibitors' Association needs no explanation except that I am glad to do my bit in this organization of business men that really stands for something, and that I believe will accomplish something for you and for me as exhibitors.

"I now hand to our secretary my resignation as president of this local. This act I will also explain. I should not continue as president of a local that is affiliated with a National organization that I do not believe in. A few of you have indicated that you prefer a new president. You should have one. This resignation I owe you, but my personal liberty to exercise my best judgment at all times I do not.

"Now, boys, that my unpleasant task is over, let me just say this in conclusion. Forget our political differences, and let's be the same old friends and pals we have always been.

"I care not for presidencies, but my friends I love. As fellow exhibitors, continue to do as you have done for fifteen years—call on your old daddy day or night—and even if I have turned my sixty-fifth milestone, you will find me so full of enthusiasm for my friends that you can still call me 'Pal.'

"To those of you who join me in the American Exhibitors' Association I say, 'God bless you.' To those of you who do not, I say, 'God bless you, too.'"

HELEN HOLMES, DAREDEVIL FILM STAR, GETS GREATER, NEWER THRILLS IN "LOST EXPRESS" Serial to Be Published Through Mutual Beginning September 17 Presents Photonovel Favorite in Exciting Drama of Railroad Life

In past serials, Helen Holmes, the daredevil film star, has performed every conceivable feat of danger that scenario writers could think of. In chapter three of "The Lost Express," the big new mystery serial directed by J. P. MacGowan and scheduled for publication through Mutual Film Exchanges, beginning September 17, Miss Helen Holmes does a new one, however. She leaps from the top of a rapidly moving passenger train and grasps one of those overhead warning signals that are suspended above the tracks of all railroads on either side of low bridges. Clinging to the signal bar she hangs suspended until the long train has passed beneath her, and then makes her way hand over hand to the nearest pole, down which she slides, thus escaping from the villains who had pursued her to the car roofs in an effort to capture her before she could foil their plans.

President John R. Freuler of Mutual, President Samuel S. Hutchinson of Signal and many others who have viewed the first few episodes of "The Lost Express" agree that this serial is even more exciting than previous Helen Holmes chapter-plays. This serial is a mystery story. It deals with the complete disappearance of a passenger train while passing down a stretch of track between two stations but eight miles apart. Where the train went to and how it was made to disappear should mystify audiences. In the last episode the mystery is revealed in a most surprising manner. A mystery story, Helen Holmes as a star, and J. P. MacGowan as a director are the three factors upon which exhibitors can base their expectations for big business with this serial.

Toronto, Ont.—William Sturgis, manager of the Imperial Theater here, caught more than a cold when he went to the highlands of Ontario a short time ago on a fishing expedition. He now is back among his friends and is telling some wonderful fish stories. However, he has proof of his exploits as many of his Toronto friends were the recipients of a nice mess of fish.
Recommendations to Insure Against Loss by Fire

This third and last article of series sets forth building plans aimed to eliminate fire waste—Many precautions urged.

Herewith is an article setting forth the recommendations of the National Fire Protection Association for the prevention of fires in theaters, studios, exchanges and storage vaults. The recommendations are of vital importance to the entire trade in curbing and eliminating damage and loss by fire. Many costly fires in theaters and exchanges are directly traceable to carelessness and ignorance of proper fire prevention precautions. This article is the last of a series, all aimed to disseminate fire prevention information and to encourage the taking of proper precautions.—EDITOR.

III

Heating apparatus for exchanges and studio laboratories must be in separate rooms, and low pressure steam, not exceeding five pounds, or hot water is the only form of artificial heat permitted in rooms where film is kept or handled. All radiators, heating coils, pipes and returns must be inclosed or so located that combustible material, waste or dirt cannot come in contact with them.

Reels Not in Containers Limited

Relative to the handling of films, the number of reels not in containers is limited to twenty in a single room at one time. Ten reels for each operator is the limit allowed in examining or repairing rooms, awaiting attention, provided all such reels except the one under examination or repair be placed in an approved container equivalent to a double-walled No. 20 U. S. gauge metal box with the equivalent of at least one-half inch air space between walls. Covers shall be self-closing and of a construction equivalent to the walls of the box. All scrap or waste film shall be kept under water, in self-closing standard waste cans, and must be removed from the building at least once each day to a safe location. Paper waste and other rubbish must be kept separate from films.

Any compound of collodion and amylacetate or similarly inflammable cements inside the building shall not exceed the quantity required each day. The limit is one gallon.

Electrical Code Safeguards Required

All motion picture machines and booths in exchanges, studios and laboratories must be safeguarded in accordance with the requirements of the National Electrical Code. The only exception is where a machine is located in a separate room inclosed by combustible partitions with self-closing fire doors of the corridor type. Where more than five machines are used in one room, each machine must be in an approved booth.

Smoking is prohibited in establishments handling or storing films, and matches are not to be carried by employees.

Individual rooms equipped for the purpose must be provided for laboratory work and experimental work. Fire doors must separate these from the regular workroom.

The storage of other goods or material than film is prohibited in the same storage room with film.

Some Important Necessities

The perforating machines used must be equipped with efficient receptacles for catching chips, as well as a reeling device. Printing machines must also have reeling devices.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters has established rules governing fans and heaters for air systems, which must be in a separate location from walls and radiators. If lights are used under tables for examining by transmitted light, the light box must be ventilated and so constructed that it does not become a receptacle for film scraps and dust.

It is important that all motion picture film be kept in containers, except during the actual time that it is being subjected to a manufacturing operation or examination. The present type of metal plain container is of value only in preventing films from unrolling and eliminating the danger of sparks or a small flame igniting the film. Experiments have proven, however, that they have little heat-insulating property and that a burning film will quickly ignite adjoining film in such containers.

Construction of Containers

The containers recommended should be constructed as follows: Metal should be at least 25 U. S. gauge, lined with 16-inch thick fiber board or asbestos board. No metal or rivets to pass through the liner or to be used to hold metal and insulating liner in contact. Containers of other material should be of equal rigidity and heat insulation. It is required that all containers be corrugated on top and bottom; corrugations to be at least ½ inch deep net. Top and bottom of containers must overlap at least 1 inch.

A licensed executive who is familiar with the rules and requirements on fire prevention, and also familiar with local laws and ordinances, should be in charge of every motion picture studio, laboratory or exchange. The employees under him must be instructed as to fire hazards and the proper handling of motion picture films.

In disposing of clippings, chips and waste film, it is imperative that these be burned at least 200 feet from any building.

Recovery establishments for recovering nitro-cellulose base must be located in a fireproof building. All operations must be performed, such as chopping or other mechanical operation, under water or in a water spray. Drying rooms, storage rooms and workrooms shall be thoroughly protected by an automatic sprinkler system. In fact, the liberal use of sprinklers in all hazardous places is recommended.

Points on Storing Films

Negatives and other valuable films must not be stored or left in the same film vault, cabinet or container with other films, and except such film as is in the camera or in actual process of manufacture, printing or developing, such film must be kept in containers in cabinet or film vaults.

Because of the injury which water causes to film it is recommended that vaults or cabinets be not equipped with automatic sprinklers, and that instead each film or group of film be so segregated and protected as to permit the destruction of a naked reel in the vault without igniting any other reel. To provide proper insulation it is recommended that each reel be placed in a double container consisting of the equivalent of the container described above, and both inner and outer containers to be provided with covers, the covers of outer containers to be lined with ½-inch asbestos board. It is recommended that the outer container be sealed or otherwise made waterproof sufficiently to withstand a 12-hour submersion test.

January 1; Announces First Three Big Autumn Features

M. H. Hoffman, vice-president and general manager of M. H. Hoffman, Inc., left for Boston on Monday to prepare for the establishment of the Hoffman-Foursquare Exchange there —the "service station," to use Mr.
Hoffman's words, that will supply the New England needs for this product.

After concluding his arrangements for this territory Mr. Hoffman will proceed to Chicago, which is to be headquarters for one of the most important pieces of territory in America.

Immediately thereafter coast headquartes for Hoffman-Foursquare pictures will be installed in San Francisco, and at the same time Canadian headquarters in Toronto.

One of Largest Distributors
This will give M. H. Hoffman, Inc., distributing outlets in the important sections of the country through the Foursquare Exchange branches of the main office in New York. Incidentially it will be one of the largest independent distributing organizations in the industry.

"This does not mean that there will be no further additions made to the Foursquare Exchange," said Mr.
Hoffman. "In point of fact, our plans include the addition of several other centers where we shall be hard at work within the next ninety days.

But when we have gotten started in Boston, Chicago, San Francisco and Toronto we shall have adequate representation, for our present going 'service stations' include, besides
New York, Philadelphia, Detroit,
Cleveland, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

To Open Sixteen Branches
"Before January 1 the Foursquare Exchanges will not be fewer in number than sixteen. Naturally the firm of M. H. Hoffman, Inc., which is securing product for distribution through its Foursquare Exchanges, is in the market for superficier.

We want nothing that does not stand apart from the others—that hasn't the mark of distincier.

"Three full features which will interest exhibitors and the public are 'The Silent Witness,' 'Should She Obey?' and 'The Fringe of Society.'
Personally I have confidence in these pictures. They reflect the Foursquare quality. Each has a degree of excellence different from the other, and is different."

KENEAN BUEL TO DIRECT FOX CHILD STARS, JANE AND KATHERINE LEE, IN FEATURES

William Fox Picks Veteran to Handle Children Following Demand of Exhibitors and Patrons for More Films Like "Two Little Imps"

Kenean Buel, one of the veteran directors of the Fox Film Corporation, yet one of the youngest in point of age, has been selected by William Fox, personally, to direct the future activities of the Lee children—Jane and Katherine.

These two youngsters, among the best known children in films, made a big success in their first picture, "Two Little Imps," which was directed by Mr. Buel. There was an immediate demand from exhibitors and the public for similar pictures by the Fox "baby grands."

Fox in Conferences

The problem of selecting the future director of these children was a most serious one, and Mr. Fox had repeated conferences with his aides and advisors. The most capable directors, not only of the Fox Company, but of other producers, were considered.

After looking over the lists submitted to him, Mr. Fox said:

"There is no necessity of going outside of our own organization for a director for the Lee children. Kenean Buel is the man. He has already produced a marvelous picture with them, and for years I have watched his work with children. Children like and work with him, and I have the greatest confidence in his ability."

This decision of Mr. Fox places Mr. Buel in charge of one of the most unique and important features of the program of the Fox Film Corporation. He will direct Jane and Katherine Lee in future productions. Already their first picture under Mr. Buel's direction has created a furor throughout the country, and their future pictures may be looked forward to with confidence under the capable direction of Mr. Buel.

Buel Was Lawyer

Kenean Buel is only thirty-four years old, and graduated from college at the age of eighteen; two years later being admitted to the bar as a practicing lawyer.

Born in the Blue Grass region of Kentucky, it was the hope of his parents that he would follow the law, as had his ancestors. The law, however, was too prosaic and dull for the young Kentuckian, who had an imagination, and wanted to create rather than follow precedents.

KENEAN BUEL

Fox Director

The stage lured him away from his Blackstone, and he joined a stock company as its business manager. Owing to the illness of one of his players, he was suddenly called upon to play a part. He next began playing juvenile leads, and made a success. Naturally from this he drifted into playwriting and stage direction. Later he got into pictures and has remained in the business.

"THE CHEESE TAMERS" IS NEW BUD FISHER CARTOON COMIC SCHEDULED THIS WEEK

Bud Fisher has outdone himself on his new release, "The Cheese Tamers," which is to be issued this week. This picture really marks a new epoch in the art of animated cartoons. Some of the effects seem little short of impossible through the medium of pen and brush. Such features as a crowd of people surging out of a factory, an express train speeding away, and most difficult of all, the inside of a motion picture theater, showing the audience and the picture on the screen, are some of the remarkable stunts which Mr. Fisher does with his cartoons.

Mutt and Jeff are as funny as usual. They start out as laborers in a cheese factory, boring holes in Swiss cheese, and later decide to enter the "movies." After many laughable mishaps, they find that they have stepped outside their sphere and return to their gas masks and the factory.

FILM MAGAZINE TO ISSUE NOVEL FILM OF STARS

Will Show Noted Players at Work and in Homes in 12 Single Reels

James R. Quirk, publisher of Photoplay Magazine, is preparing to offer a decided film industry to state rights buyers and exhibitors who control large strings of theaters. The film will be published as "Photoplay Magazine Screen Supplement" and consist of twelve single-reel subjects, issued at monthly intervals.

The new state rights offering will consist of a collection of pictures depicting screen players in off-the-screen poses. They will be shown in their homes, with their pets, enjoying their favorite forms of recreation, making up in their dressing rooms for important roles and material of a like nature.

Photoplay Magazine Screen Supplement as now "cut" will present views of Mae Marsh in her own home, a glimpse of Henry Walthall searching for clams, pictures of Charlie Chaplin and some of the Keystone comedians as they appeared in a recent Red Cross baseball game in Los Angeles, Edith Storey with her mother, the Drews at work in their library on a forthcoming Drew comedy, and Bessie Love at the Triangle "lot" with many "extras." Each film will contain views of a half dozen or more popular stars.

Mr. Quirk already is receiving applications for territory on Photoplay Magazine Screen Supplement from state rights buyers and exhibitors who are seeking exclusive rights to these single-reel subjects in their localities.
MAGDA,” WIDELY KNOWN STAGE DRAMA, TO BE FIRST CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG FILM

New Play Replaces “The Marionettes” as First of Series of Photoplays To Be Issued by Star as Independent Producer

Herman Sudermann’s “Magda,” ayed in every language and the favorite dramatic vehicle of such stars as Mine. Bernhardt and Duse, will be the first of the new series of Clara Kimball Young photoplays to be made under the star’s own personal direction by her own personally directed company.

“Marionettes” First Film

“The Marionettes” had been announced as the initial production under the new plan, but it has been necessary to supersede it with Magda because of a question which has arisen as to the screen rights of the play.

Harry I. Garson, under whose personal management Miss Young now is operating, purchased “The Marionettes” rights from Edgar Selden.

THE RAILROADERS,” WITH GEORGE FAWCETT, IS NEXT BIG SELIG DRAMATIC FEATURE

Compares Favorably with Any of Elaborate Productions So Far Produced by This Concern; Settings Are Elaborate

“The Railroaders” is the title of a forthcoming Selig drama which, it is asserted, compares favorably with any of the feature films the Selig Company has made.

Fawcett Has Lead Role

George Fawcett, the well known actor, who scored success as Judge Stodd Whipple, in “The Crisis,” plays the principal role in “The Railroaders.” His role is that of Caleb Conover who rises by the force of his strong will from the position of a railroad section boss to a multi-millionaire whose political influence controls an entire state.

How Caleb Conover ultimately discovers that wealth and power are not everything in this world—and that gold cannot buy true friendship adds to the interest of the drama.

The interior scenic sets in this film drama are said to equal any elaborate interiors yet presented on the screen.

Strong Cast in Support

Prominent in support of George Fawcett are Thomas Santschi, Bessie Eyton, Frank Clark, Fritz Brunette, Frank Elliott and others. Colin Campbell responsible for so many of the Selig successes, directed “The Railroaders.”

Mr. Selig has not yet announced the method of issuing “The Railroad-

GEORGE ADE IS ESSANAY WRITER

George Ade, the noted Indiana humorist, has joined Essanay’s staff of writers. That organization is filming a series of his Fables in Slang.

ROMANCE FILM CO. IS PRODUCING AT COAST

The Romance Film Company, a new organization, has commenced work on a studio at Neptune Beach, Alemeda, Cal. O. L. Byers, for many years connected with the Duhem Company of San Francisco, has been engaged as director and cameraman.

A complete plant for interior work, developing and printing is being built and when finished the first work will be started on a series of one-reel beach comedies.

Charlie Small, an aquatic clown of the Olympic Club, San Francisco, has been engaged for the comedy work. Small is noted for his impersonations and pantomiming on the coast.

Miss Helen M. Bascom has been placed in charge and will select the feminine beach talent for Director Byers.

The Neptune Beach Company is back of the new film concern.
"CHARITY CASTLE," WITH MARY MILES MINTER, TO REACH EXHIBITORS SEPTEMBER 3

Hutchinson Presents Star in Initial Film Under New Contract; Little Screen Favorite Said to Have Pleasing Role

"Charity Castle," the first of the new Mary Miles Minter productions under her new contract, will be offered to exhibitors by Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Manufacturing Company, through Mutual on September 3. Lloyd Ingraham directed the diminutive star in this new photodrama.

The story tells how a happy little girl sets a certain little world aright after it had all but dried up through chronic grouchiness.

As Charity, Miss Minter appears in a role different than any before given her—a combination role—that of an orphan, ward of a rich young spendthrift who knows the joy of living, and the general peacemaker in aristocratic misunderstandings.

In her spare time, Charity tells fairy tales to the Prince, the four-year-old she has adopted. Clifford Callis, a baby player, has the latter role.

Alan Forrest is cast as Miss Minter's chief support, the "gold coast" youth who becomes her champion through the lure of fairyland. He is subsequently disinherited by his rich father and remains persona non grata until Charity redeems him.

Spottiswoode Aitken, the eminent character actor, is assigned an important part in the production, while Henry A. Barrows plays the grouchy millionaire. Other members of the cast are Eugene Forde, Ashton Dearholt, Robert Klein, George Ahern and Gordon Russell.

W. CHRISTY CABANNE TO PRODUCE OWN SUPER FILM PLAYS

Will Make Big Features to Aid Recruiting After September 1

William Christy Cabanne, whose rise as a director of superior films has been phenomenal, announces that he is to head his own producing company after September 1 and that he intends to direct a portion of his energy along the line of making big feature pictures that will encourage recruiting for the fighting forces of the United States. The noted director says he will try to furnish the Government with 100,000 fighters, through the making of patriotic films.

CHAPLIN IS FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE IN HIS FORTHCOMING MUTUAL FILM

The coast range of the Sierra Madre mountains, with the mirror-like waters of the Pacific ocean as a background, furnishes a picturesque setting for a large portion of the next Mutual-Chaplin special, which is nearing completion at the Lone Star studios, Los Angeles.

In his latest subject, Charles Chaplin makes a departure from his previous productions, adding a number of unusual thrills of a character entirely different than anything he has ever before attempted.

At the start Chaplin is seen as an escaped convict, hemmed in on all sides by a posse, and the manner in which he evades capture not alone furnishes unlimited situations for the creation of laughter, but the fearlessness of his leaps from lofty cliffs and his climbs up steep embankments is almost unbelievable.

Chaplin reveals, in his new picture, his versatility as an athlete. In carrying out the new and strenuous stunts, he is not assisted in any manner by trick photography or mechanical devices.

Gertrude McCoy in

"MADAME SHERRY"
Authors Film Corporation; five parts; published August 14

As a whole: Exceedingly amusing Story: From a musical comedy
Star: Winsome
Support: Carefully selected Settings: Elaborate
Photography: Clear

"Madame Sherry," so well known and popular with musical comedy patrons, has been picturized without losing a bit of its original charm, which is a broad statement, inasmuch as this was one of the musical comedy hits of several seasons from Broadway to Market street, San Francisco.

William Desmond in

"MASTER OF HIS HOME"
Triangle drama; five parts; published August 12

As a whole: Strong Story: Appealing
Star: Excellent
Support: Very good
Settings: In keeping
Photography: Clear

The efforts of a crude westerner to break down the barriers of snobbery of the effete east is told in interesting fashion in "Master of His Home," William Desmond's latest Triangle film.

The role of Carson Stewart, as played by Mr. Desmond, has a certain appeal and this sterling actor wins new laurels for himself in the part of the man fond of children married to a frivolous society belle. Alma Ruben is excellent as Millicent Drake, the cold, haughty social butterfly, and the balance of the cast is made up of Joseph Dowling as Boggs, Eleanor Hancock as Mrs. Drake, Robert McKim as Van Tyle and Will Bray as Mr. Drake.

The story was written for the screen by R. Cecil Smith and while jumpy in places presents a forceful drama. The picture was carefully directed by Walter Edwards.

A SCENE FROM "MADAME SHERRY," STARRING GERTRUDE McC OY (Authors Film Co.)

As one may surmise, the story is deleted to make room for comedy and the five reels of the highest class comedy.

The framework of the photodrama edition tells of a wealthy uncle who dotes on a nephew, to whom he offers all sorts of financial inducements to carry out the Rooseveltian theory of anti-race suicide. The nephew has ideas of his own on this particular subject and prefers the life of the Broadway bachelor. However, in order to get the money from Uncle, who lives elsewhere, he sends frequent reports of additions to his imaginary family, after each one of which Uncle sends the nephew more money.

The inevitable day comes, as it must, when Uncle goes to see the flourishing family and before going takes his pretty niece from a convent. When Uncle arrives the nephew has difficulties in his efforts to get a family of sufficient proportions to balance the bank book. The play ends well with the nephew getting married.

The acting of the entire cast is delightful, especially that of dainty Gertrude McCoy, as Yvonne Sherry, niece of old Theophils.

Frank L. A. O'Connor, as the nephew, did some excellent acting. The balance of the cast, all good, are Lucy Carter, Aphe James, Jack M. Mundy, Alfred Deery, Jean Stuart, H. J. Quealy and Robert Homans. The picture will be distributed by M. H. Hoffman, Inc.

"STAR DUST" IS NEW ESSANAY FILM

Marguerite Clayton, Essanay star, has just completed the filming of a Black Cat feature, "Star Dust."

A SCENE FROM "MASTER OF HIS HOME," WITH WILLIAM DESMOND AND ALMA REUBEN (Triangle)

The story: Stewart and Boggs are the owners of the rich "Ready Bullion Mine." The Drakes, as guests of Van Tyle, pay a visit to the mine and while inspecting it Stewart saves Millicent from death. Friendship ripens into love and Stewart marries Millicent. He does not fit into Millicent's scheme of life, however. He is fond of children and his wife prefers the company of Van Tyle. Disgusted with the cast and its society, he goes back to the mine, whence a little while later Millicent follows with a "little partner" and his happiness is complete.

CHANGES IN NEW GEORGE WALSH CAST

Owing to changes which were imperative in George Walsh's forthcoming picture, "The Yankee Way," several additions have been made to the star's supporting company. The new cast will consist of Mr. Walsh, Enid Markay, Joseph Dowling, Charles Edler, James O'Shea, Edward Sedgwick, Edward Cecil and Tom Wilson.
Dorothy Phillips in "PAY ME"
Jewel Productions, Inc., drama; six parts; published state rights

"Pay Me" is a story of mining camps, dance halls and lumberjacks. At its first showing at the Broadway Theater, New York, August 12, it was received enthusiastically and lovers of western melodrama should find it very much to their liking.

Dorothy Phillips is lovely and likeable as Marta Curtis and does some of the best work of her screen career in "Pay Me." William Stowell is cast as Bill Lawson, the son of a dive keeper; William Clifford as Hal Curtis, and Lon Chaney as Joe Lawson, alias "Killer" White, a bad man and partner of Curtis. Evelyn Selby was excellent as Hilda Hendricks and Claire De Brey a pretty Nita.

The story: Hal Curtis and Joe Lawson, partners in a mine, have a disagreement. Lawson strangles Curtis and accidentally shoots Curtis' wife. He describes his own wife and child and escapes with Hilda Hendricks, a weak girl of the town. As they are leaving they hear a baby's cry and find Curtis' little daughter in the arms of the dead mother. Hilda takes the baby with her.

Seventeen years elapse. Lawson has changed his name to White and has become the owner of a dance hall and gambling saloon, in the heart of the lumber country. He is called "Killer" White by the men. Marta, his partner's baby, has grown to womanhood and one of the lumberjacks falls in love with her. He is chagrined at finding her dressed in a bizarre costume, acting as custodian of the roulette wheel in the "Killer's" establishment. Curtis wanders into the camp, recognizes Hilda and inquires as to the whereabouts of his daughter. Hilda points her out to him and, enraged, swears vengeance on the "Killer." He is backed by the young lumberjack, who is none other than the son whom Lawson had deserted. A fight follows and just as Curtis is about to kill Lawson a shot rings out and White drops. Hilda is the murderer. White, on his death bed, tells that Marta is not his daughter and the two young people go forth together.

"A TRIP TO CHINATOWN"
Selig-K-E-S-E comedy; two parts; published August 20

Another of the Hoyt-Selig comedies, being published through K-E-S-E, is "A Trip to Chinatown." The story tells of a dope fiend who, after eluding the police, lands in a Chinese laundry and smokes the everlasting pipe. He falls asleep and dreams of being transplanted to the Orient, where he meets a beautiful princess.

The policeman who had caused him so much trouble appears to the fiend as a slave, and he enjoys putting him through paces of torment as sweet revenge. However, when he goes in the lion's den and conquers the lion, this proves too much, as it wins the princess' admiration, and he is forced to retreat. He awakens to find himself being hit by the Chinaman. He leaves and walks right into the arms of the policeman.

No doubt many picture patrons will be pleased with the humor in this comedy. The antics of the man-made lion are so ridiculous that it alone will cause a hearty laugh. Many pretty Oriental settings have been used. The photography throughout is good. Amy Leah Dennis makes a beautiful Oriental princess. Others in the cast are William Fields, James Harris and Fanny Cohen. The direction is by J. A. Richmond.

Signal-Mutual serial; fifteen chapters; two reels each; published September 17

Story....................................................Thrilling

Settings.................................................Good
Photography..........................................Adequate

The first three chapters of "The Lost Express" start off in stirring fashion. They are full of action, thrills and suspense. There is no reason why this serial should not exceed any of the previous Helen Holmes railroad novels and if the first three chapters are a criterion this will no doubt prove to be a serial extraordinary.

The titles of the first three chapters are "The Lost Express," "The Destroyed Document" and "The Wreck at the Crossing." The continuity of the story is excellent, each chapter picking up the dramatic thread immediately where the previous one ended. There is thrill after thrill, and every foot of celluloid contains action.

From the very first the thread of the story holds the spectator, and the endings of chapters are so full of suspense that film theater patrons should await with pleasant expectation the forthcoming installments in their neighborhood theaters. Most film theater patrons enjoy good railroad stories, and this one, with its thrills, action, suspense, good direction and a good story, should prove to be a box office winner for exhibitors.

Helen Holmes, who has won popularity in these railroad serials and who has made them popular, again has the leading role, and jumping from a fast-moving train onto a wagon several feet away, running on the roof of a fast-moving train and swinging to a dangerous place to save herself from the villains, are stunts that this daredevil heroine performs. Leo Maloney again stars as the villain in conjunction with Thomas Lingham.

Other members of the cast are W. O. Whitehead, William Brunton, Edward Hearn and John McKinnon. The direction is by J. P. McGowan, who has so successfully directed previous railroad stories featuring Miss Holmes.

The story: Helen Thurston's father is the inventor of a fluid which will replace gasoline at a much lower cost. The president of the Valquez Oil Company is anxious to secure the formula and offers a fake mining syndicate a large sum of money for the formula. The "Harelip," the man who does the work for the syndicate, is a sort of a Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde person, and when he isn't the "Harelip" he acts as secretary to Thurston.

Thurston is shot by the "Harelip" when he is attempting to save his formula, and the bullet causes complete paralysis. Helen decides to send all his belongings to the bank and charters a train. The train is stolen at a lonely point and the syndicate rides off with the loot.

They find the papers and also find that the most important sheet of the formula is missing. This is recovered by the "Harelip." Helen follows the syndicate in a train, climbs onto the roof, and with a magnifying glass succeeds in destroying the document. The men are enraged and pursue her. She dashes over the roof of the train and, swinging to a danger, escapes them and lands on the ground safely.

The syndicate then endeavors to secure the working blueprint. The "Harelip," as the secretary, gives it to the syndicate. Helen witnesses this and follows in a machine. At the crossing her car is wrecked and she is injured. She is carried to the emergency hospital of the Valquez Oil Company just after the syndicate has sold the valuable blueprint.

The story of "The Guardian" is interesting and should seal to the majority of audiences and prove a good attraction for the box office.

The story tells of the love of a guardian for his ward of the hatred the young ward bears her guardian.

when she learns how she has been shielded by her roulia and the many things he has done for her, her red quickly turns to love, and the picture has a happy ending.

Montagu Love as the guardian is well adapted to his character, and he does some excellent work, as does June Elvidge, who within a very short space of time has become a well-liked screen actress. The work of Arthur Peley as the society devotee without a vocation is just right. William Black and Robert Broderick, the other members of the cast, both do good work. The story is

W. B. M. Ferguson and the direction by Arthur Peley.

The story: Rokey, an escaped convict, is the guardian of Marie Daure. Marie loves Fenwick Harvey, a society scoundrel whom Rokey drives from the house. Marie explains his knowledge and tells Marie where he got his information. He then leaves to give himself up to the police, but is injured and taken to a New York hospital. Angered at losing Marie's money, Fenwick lures her to New York and forces her to sign a check for a large amount of money; but Rokey arrives in time to rescue the girl. The girl, having been left alone for a long time, realizes her love for her guardian, and the two are happily married.

Viola Dana satisfactorily portrays the dual role of a selfish, headstrong child and an obedient, winsome schoolgirl in "The Girl Without a Soul." The plot material, however, is old, and the astute screen devotee will have trouble solving the story's end after the first reel.

Director Noble has worked in some humorous touches, and the subtitles got many a laugh at a "loop" theater in Chicago, where it was shown last week. A remarkably ridiculous trial scene, with witnesses and prisoners present beside the judge, is shown. Miss Dana is the one pleasing feature in this picture.

The story: Priscilla and Unity Beaumont are as different as night and day. The former longs for a career on the concert stage, while Unity is the family drudge. A Russian violinist persuades Priscilla to steal some money from the village blacksmith, which he holds in trust for the purchase of a church organ. Unity is in love with Yram, the blacksmith, and when she learns the whereabouts of the money she restores it to the church people. She and a boy are on trial. Thus he is cleared of the charge.

Billie Burke has returned to the silent drama on the Famous Players-Paramount program in a delightful comedy-drama called "The Mysterious Miss Terry." And she has come back strong and with more such plays the reviewer predicts big things for the dainty stage star. The story is by Gelett Burgess and contains all the elements that go to making an interesting screen drama. There is suspense aplenty from the moment the picture opens and the comedy vein running through it is clean and wholesome.

Billie Burke and Thomas Meighan in a scene from "The Mysterious Miss Terry" (Paramount)

Miss Burke never was better than in the role of "Mavis Terry" and Director Dawley has surrounded her with a cast that could not be improved upon. Thomas Meighan is wonderful as Gordon True, the poor but ambitious author; Walter Hiers will give many a laugh as the fat boy, Freddie Bollen; and Gerald O. Smith, George A. Wright and Bessie Larmore gave splendid characterizations. Throughout the photography is most pleasing and the sets imposing.

The story: A fascinating young heiress takes rooms at a cheap boarding house and assumes the name of Miss Terry. The male boarders immediately fall in love with her and when she secures a temporary position in a hardware store as bookkeeper they all help her keep the books. As a test of the bravery of one of the young men, she arranges to have two dresses as burglars and break into the store at night while she and Gordon True are there. Professional burglars, however, overhear the plan and precede the embryo cracksmen, steal the store's money and shoot Gordon. Miss Terry nurses the young man back to health, has her book published and assists the other young men to better themselves. It is then she discloses her identity and it ends with wedding bells for Gordon and Miss Terry.

Photography ....................................... Superb

When one has seen Gertrude McCoy cavorting charmingly through a comedy role in "Madame Sherry," it seems impossible that she can with so much realism go through a heavy dramatic part so intensely. And it may be said that the entire cast deserves much credit for the success of the picture, and it is no vague statement that classifies the cast as all-star; that is, in work, if not in name.

The story, intensely dramatic and gripping throughout, is that of a lad born out of wedlock, who, while his mother is on the road selling silk, lives very much in the sack-cloth as he works himself through college by working on the campus and doing other divers jobs. A cad at college has heard the scandal connected with the boy's life and taunts him with it, which means undying enmity. The lad is overheard to threaten to kill the cad if he repeats the story. The two boys get into a fight and the cad is killed accidentally, for which the unfortunate youth is arrested.

Through the efforts of an assistant district attorney, acting in the absence of the district attorney, and who wants to make a reputation on his first case, he is about to send the boy to the gallows when the district attorney returns and learns that the boy is his own son. The attorney sees the boy is acquitted.

The story runs on without a fault in interest and presents many dramatic incidents that will make it a big attraction for the exhibitor. The story was written by Otto Hauerbach from a tragedy that took place in New York city two years ago, and while it points no particular moral, it is decidedly worth while.

Publication will be made through M. H. Hoffman, Inc., who has keen discernment in the selection of heart interest photoplays, and this looks like another winner.

Practically all of the Jackie Saunders productions have been good and have contained the kind of humor the majority of film theater patrons enjoy, but after "Bab the Fixer" has been seen it will no doubt be declared the very best.

The exhibitor who wants to give his patrons an evening of enjoyment will find that "Bab the Fixer" fills the bill. It is full of good, clean humor, with just enough pathos to make it a well-balanced production. It is especially adaptable to the neighborhood house, as there is nothing objectionable about it, and the story is not of the hackneyed and much-used type.

Jackie Saunders, as usual, is the hoydenish girl with the big heart, and her work is enjoyable and entertaining. Arthur Shirley and Mollie McComb are among the members of the cast.

The story: The Porters, having lost their fortune, make their home on a ranch. Mrs. Porter is very much dissatisfied until one day oil is discovered on the ranch. After the property has been disposed of the Porters return east to their place in society. Bab is engaged to Richard Sterling, a rancher, and while she is at school, Mrs. Porter breaks the engagement. When Bab learns the true state of affairs she wires Sterling to come east. He does so, explanations are made, and all goes well with them; but Mr. and Mrs. Porter separate. Bab does everything in her power to bring about a reconciliation, but only when her father becomes very ill does the mother repent. She apologizes to Sterling, and as Bab's husband he becomes a member of Porter's firm.

THREE CENTURY COMEDIES

Longacre Distributing Co.; two parts; published Sept. 1

The Universal Company will publish the Century comedies, featuring Alice Howell, one each month, starting September 1. At a private showing in the Universal Theater, Chicago, to which many exhibitors were invited, the first three, "Balloonatics," "Automania", and "Neptune "Naughty Daughter," were shown and were received by the exhibitors with considerable laughter.

There are many points of humor in all of the picture and the trick photography is well done. For the classes audience who enjoy slapstick comedies, these films should be a "howling" success. Alice Howell is pretty, photographs well, and she is funny. The settings have been well chosen in accordance with their respective stories, and the photography is good.

The first, "Balloonatics," deals with a young son of a wealthy family who marries the maid. The chief love with the maid, and to get revenge he gets into a balloon and, flying over their little bungalow, picks up the anchor. A trip to the clouds follows.

Father learns of his son's predicament, and although he has cast him off, he becomes worried and pursues in airplane.

"Automania," the second picture, deals with automobiles. Alice, the stepdaughter of a garage owner, is in love with the chief repairman. When her lover meets with a vampire he leaves Alice on the day of their wedding and goes to the house of the vamp. To get revenge, Alice dons the attire of a man, and, securing a Ford, hires it as a taxi, in which her lover and the vampire take ride. She drives madly on and on, and finally, dashes through the walls of her father's garage, the machine so suddenly. At the point of a revolver she forces the man to marry her.

"Neptune's Naughty Daughter" is the tale of a Quak family who fear for the safety of their eldest daughter, Alice. She is a sailor, sweetheart go to her home. Alice meets another sailor, and after a night of mermaids gets up on the stage and helps the hula-hula dancers. Sailor sweetheart rescues her and takes her home, who is met with shots from her father's gun.

FAIRBANKS ARRIVES IN WYOMING

TO MAKE "FANCY JIM SHERWOOD"

The Douglas Fairbanks special, consisting of two Primus and three freight cars, carrying Fairbanks' hero "smilies" which he rode in "Wild and Woolly," and twenty other horses to be used in the new Artcraft play, "Fancy Jim Sherwood," arrived in Laramie, Wyo., last week.

Among those who arrived on the Douglas Fairbanks special were Eileen Percy, Frank Capuconn, known for his characterization of Trampus in "The Virginian"; H. Strickland, champion bucking horse and barrel back rider, the world; Fred Burns, who holds many records for roping; Reha Haines, prominent film actress; Jos Henaberry, who with Fairbanks will stage "Fancy Jim Sherwood," assisted by Millard Webb, technical director and others.

To quote Douglas Fairbanks, "Fancy Jim Sherwood" is a western comedy-drama, dealing principally with a band of rustlers who are known as the "Hole in the Wall gang," with stamping grounds in Wyoming.

Labor unions won't like "By Right of Possession," the latest contribution to the screen, for the reason that it holds their methods in rather unfavorable light. There is a scene showing a walking delegate and four followers beating an old man into insensibility which is not a pleasant sight, and though the story has a happy ending, the sight of "Bells," the engineer, being pummeled by the miners in the doorway, is an otherwise fair picture.

Mary Anderson plays a role well suited to her historic ability. Antonio Moreno is a rough westerner, who loses his job when the people elect Kate von (Mary Anderson) sheriff, but gets it back again marrying her.

Considerable padding is employed to stretch the story to the required five-reel length. There are scenes branding cattle, fancy lariat throwing by a cowboy, a gun drawn on mine accident and aaked cattle stampede.

The story: Kate Saxton arrives at her mine in the west, while striking miners are having trouble with the chief. She demands the release of the men, although they have brutally beaten the old engineer, and by challenging their wages and reducing house rents restores peace.

The sheriff accompanies her on an inspection trip through her mine and they are trapped by falling rock.

The sheriff makes a great effort they extricate themselves and Kate runs for the office of sheriff. She defeats the stalwart incumbent by a narrow margin of votes and assumes the office.

The ex-sheriff comes to make love to her and tries saving her from a stampede caused by the blowing of a dam at the hands of a union organizer, she marries the sheriff.

As the title implies, this is a story of the turf, and very good one, too. The types are well drawn and the scenes carry the atmosphere of the South. Peopleed with sticklers for chivalry and family honor. In the role of a thoroughbred society girl, Enid Bennett is fast acceptable, and an excellent company of actors around her.

The racing scenes were well done and excitement ran high at the Covent Theater, Chicago, where the picture was shown this week. The picture should please the fast critical.

The story: While sojourning through the South a wealthy broker and his daughter discover a wonderful southern mansion. The broker tries to purchase it from young Manners, who is in possession, who although own to his last cent refuses to sell. He loses his money on tobacco pool and the home passes into the hands of the broker.

Seeing the humiliation and pain they have brought, the broker's daughter plans to win a horse race with a thoroughbred her father has given her under the guise that it is Manner's horse. The horse wins, and, after the race, the broker wants to buy it, stating: "Young man, you seem to have a habit of owning things I want." Manners agrees to trade the horse for the old homestead.

And when the deal is consumated, the joke, the broker ends, is on him.

There is a great deal of action and dramatic thrill in "The Lair of the Wolf." It concerns the story of a man who has won the hatred of mankind because of his cruelty. He is mysteriously murdered and several persons appear to be guilty. However, when the guilty man does confess, he is exonerated because his act is considered justified.

The production should have its appeal with most patrons of motion picture theaters. It is somewhat different from the general run of recent pictures and this should be something in its favor. The cast includes Donna Drew, Gretchen Lederer, Joseph Girard, Chester Bennett, Val Paul, Charles Hill Mailes, Peggy Custer, George Berrell and Josephine Sedgwick. The work of Gretchen Lederer and Val Paul stands out very prominently. Direction was in the hands of Charles Swickard.

The story: Oliver Cathcart, a man hated for his cruelty, marries Margaret Bennett, a widow, and her son refuses to have anything to do with either of them. Margareet is very unhappy and her son hearing of this swears to put an end to Cathcart. He goes to his mother's home. The same evening Cathcart is murdered and young Bennett is accused of the crime. The net begins to tighten around young Bennett, but his name is cleared by a young girl. Then an old gardener confesses to the murder because Cathcart had forced his attentions on his daughter. The gardener is exonerated and the girl who saved Bennett's life and Bennett are married.

Adopted from the book by Alice Hegeman Rice, "Mr. Opp" makes five reels of interesting screen entertainment. The story follows the book close and the pathos and humor found in the written drama has been well transferred to the screen drama.

Arthur Hoyt makes of the character of D. Webster Opp a likeable person. Neva Gerber as Guinevere Gusty offers. Mr. Hoyt good support. Other members of the cast are George Hernandez, George Cheshire, Jack Curtis, Elise Maison and Anne Lockhart. The direction is by Lynn Reynolds.

The story: At the death of his stepfather, D. Webster Opp becomes the possessor of the old homestead and guardian of Kippy, a young lady, who through an illness in childhood, has an undeveloped mind. Opp loves Guinevere Gusty, daughter of the widow Gusty, but the widow will not allow Guinevere to marry Opp, because of Kippy. The blow is a shock to Opp, but he makes things pleasant by explaining that he is too old for Guinevere. Opp endeavors to do everything to make the town of Cove an enterprise place, but he fails. After struggling through for a short time, however, the town of Cove thrives, and as a token of appreciation Opp is made mayor.
DONNA DREW, NEW BUTTERFLY STAR, HAS BIG ROLE IN "LAIR OF THE WOLF"

Donna Drew heads the cast of "The Lair of the Wolf," the Butterfly feature for August 20. Prominent in her support are Gretchen Lederer, Joseph Girard, Val Paul and Charles Hill Malles. This will be Miss Drew's first appearance as a star, but her work is said to hold forth a remarkable promise. She aroused much interest by her handling of the character of Naidine in a former Butterfly picture, "The Flame of Youth."

In "The Lair of the Wolf" Donna Drew takes the part of a romantic young girl who runs away from a commonplace home to see the world and live the life of freedom common to her dime novel heroes.

TWENTY-THREE REELS OF DRAMA, COMEDY AND NEWS FEATURES FOR UNIVERSAL PROGRAM AUGUST 20

"Squaring It," a Bison drama of the Far West, featuring Neal Hart and Janet Eastman, heads Universal's regular list of films for the week of August 20. Monday is Butterfly day, as usual, signaled by the publication of "The Lair of the Wolf," in which Donna Drew, Joseph Girard and Gretchen Lederer have been provided with effective parts. "Squaring It" is to be issued Tuesday, August 21. This film tells the story of an outlaw's efforts to play fair with a young married couple who befriended him in his hour of need.

Eddie Lyon, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts will be presented the same day in a Nestor comedy, entitled "Move Over."

"Street Cars and Carbunkles," a two-reel L-Ko comedy, featuring Bob Mackenzie, Eva Novak and Eddie Barry, is the feature for Wednesday, August 22. The commercial rivalry that exists between a street railway and a jitney bus line, and love of a girl by the drivers, supplies the comic action in this film.

Little Zoe Rae is starred in "Heart of Gold," the feature film for Thursday, August 23. This is a human-interest drama. Zoe takes the part of a child of the tenements, who is the humanizing influence in the life of a miserly pawnbroker.

"Behind the Map," a Joker comedy, featuring William Franey, will be issued the same day. Lilian Peacock and Milburn Moranti are prominent in Franey's support.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven are the stars of "A Five-Foot Ruler," a two-reel Victory comedy, scheduled for Friday, August 24. The setting pictured in the opening of this stirring tale is a coeducational college where Carter, the Beau Brummel of the institution, is expelled for coming to the rescue of Argo, a beautiful South American student, who is being showered with unwelcome attentions by her companion in a private room at the local cafe one night. The thirty-third issue of the Universal Screen Magazine will be issued the same day.

Gale Henry and Milton Sims are featured in "Mrs. Madam Manager," a Joker comedy, to be shown Saturday, August 25. A rural opera house is utilized to give a picturesque background to the tale of the joys and ills of a company of visiting burlesque artists. Lilian Peacock and Charles Haefli are prominent in the cast.

A Powers cartoon and a Ditmar educational complete the list of films for the week.

"The Pearl Necklace," the ninth—and by many considered the most thrilling of the episodes yet shown—of Eddie Lyon's "Gray Ghost," the mystery serial founded upon Arthur Somers Roche's Saturday Evening Post novel, will also be issued to exhibitors outside of Greater New York during the week of August 20.

WHEREIN OCHS PROVES HE CAN MAKE MR. ADE OF SLANG FABLES BLUSH WITH SHAME IN BACK SEAT

That Lee A. Ochs' convention speech has had a widespread sinister effect, not only on every branch of the motion picture industry, but was of such a vermillion vein that it stirred the daily paper editorialists to inspiration, is exemplified in the following editorial, which appeared in the Seattle Post-Telegram, Wash.:

A Movie Drama
War in the movies moved out last week in Chicago into the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association. Lee A. Ochs, who has ruled the destinies of the several thousand exhibitors as president of the league for the past two years, proposed to run the convention in the Auditorium. There was revolt, and nearly three-fourths of the exhibitors walked out, leaving Mr. Ochs to turn the clock back three hours to be legal to continue in the president's chair. The rebellious exhibitors hurried over to the Morrison Hotel and formed a new league.

The result was this: "This is nothing new," said Mr. Ochs. "This is a joke—that hoiling. They mean nothing to me. I am going to be president. I would like to see anybody stop me."

The convention closed with Mr. Ochs ruling his half and the American Exhibitors' Association formed, with a membership of unincorporated representa-tive to the states in the Union.

All the assembly backed to make it the real thing was Theda Bara playing the "vampire" to bring about the catastrophe. However, President Ochs' exhibition of murdering the "king's English" has never had its counterpart in the weirdest film turned out since such a film show came.

One sentence uttered by Ochs: "Before the year is over I'm going to pull something else for you; and believe me, it is something good," apparently has become a widely laughed-at classic in slang, according to the wide newspaper quotations it received.

'THE CONQUEROR,' WITH WM. FARNUM NEW FOX FEATURE, SOON TO APPEAR AT BROADWAY THEATER IN NEW YO!

In "The Conqueror," the American drama prody for William Fox by R. A. Walsh, with William Farnum in the stellar role, and which shortly will be seen in Broadway theater in New York, there exists a curious coincidence.

Henry Christeen Warnack, who wrote "The Conqueror," based his story on the historic and exciting careers of General Sam Houston, known to every American one of the most romantic and heroic figures of early bov days. Mr. Warnack specified that Nashville, Tenn.—Nashville of 1830, where Sam Houston came finally to the ownership of her husband. Over 250 individual were searched for a picture of some Nashville street of the period. Such a picture was found—a street redo with atmosphere. The street "set" was taken from picture.

Technical Director George Gronier and his art dire Charlie Odd, copied that street faithfully and to the detail. Though carpenters and painters crowded the house, the courthouse, the law offices rose into being.

"The Conqueror" is the first of the William Standard Pictures, of which William Farnum is the star. It is said to faithfully depict a cross-section cut of American history in the making, Tennessee and the Texas border being laid down in the episode. Issued orders "The Conqueror" will not be sold until it has first been seen by the exhibitor.
R. W. PRIEST Explains State Right Film Operating

Classifies Features for Successful Exploitation, from Artistic and Entertainment Standpoint; Calls "The Deemster" an Ideal Play

By ROBERT W. PRIEST

More loose reasoning, perhaps, characterizes what is written about motion pictures in general, and the state rights branch of the business in particular, than any other subject of current interest, excepting, of course, the war.

No Automatic Formula

The simplicity of the state rights plan of marketing pictures is, seemingly, so obvious to the meanest capacity that at the present time there is a bewildering list of these productions to select from. But there is no mechanical method known of producing “winners.” You cannot reduce the matter to an automatic formula. Motion pictures are essentially abstract conceptions, not concrete manufactures. It is usually very much a case of trial and error as opposed to mathematical precision when you come to filming and assembling your scenes. The finished result is a complex conglomerate of personal equations which may be an artistic and financial success or a dire failure on being shown to the public for the first time or thereafter. To this general rule, however, there are exceptions which I will subsequently cite.

But even so, you may roughly classify the state rights pictures. Yet more precisely, by the nature of things, they arrange themselves in some such order as the following:

(1) Features desirable in themselves.
(2) Features desirable in themselves and for their results.
(3) Features desirable for their results only.

Gives Films in Classes

If the unbiased student of the matter will consult recent records he will, I think, agree with me that this method of classification is permissible. To the first class belong machine-made program features; to the third, sex and problem films and empirical junk, i.e., 90 per cent of the whole. Now, when a buyer obtains a feature of the second class he invariably secures prestige and profit as the result of his judicious handling of it.

Such a picture as "The Deemster" properly takes its place in the second class; hence the favorable reception which it has received. Its success was made a practical certainty by a few simple calculations or factors invariably omitted by ignorant quacks.

Let us consider some of the reasons why "The Deemster" was a success. Than Hall Caine no modern author is better known, and the manner and original presentation of the production could not humanly be improved upon. Its publicity value and box office magnetism were universally recognized. The moment "The Deemster" was offered to the public the price fixed itself. In fairness to my contemporaries in the business it should be said that this is what usually happens when features of its class are exploited.

The Selection of Successes

It follows, then, that from the available list of state rights features a man of average intelligence can select productions that are bound to yield favorable returns. This is reducing state rights exploitation to a scientific basis. In other words, you may make financial success fairly certain.

The success of the territorial exploitation of the picture by state rights buyers is also as reasonably certain as the primary distributions, although this is not a subject that is within my province to discuss. What I am mainly concerned with on the present occasion is to make it clear that the proper production and exploitation of state rights features by responsible companies or individuals is virtually by risk, and that it is up to the buyer who obtains a franchise to profit by the data for making money out of the picture, which is usually in possession of the producing company. The concern with which I am associated is one of the few that not merely sells a picture, but also service for exploiting it.

Approaching the Ideal

Do we not, therefore, in these latter conditions approach near to the ideal of state rights exploitation in the motion picture field? The history of the business shows that no program has been attended by continuous and invariable success, but that individual productions upon which time and care have been extended have reaped the credit and profit of all concerned. "The Fall of Troy,” issued in 1910, is the first classic example of the truth of the latter contention.

One of the advantages of dignified open-market (or state rights) film manufacture is that it is inimical to the sweatshop methods of film making, under which true art is unable to manifest itself.

R. C. MEGRUE, NOTED GOLDWYN AUTHOR, TO VISIT U. S. AND CANADA EXHIBITORS

Roi Cooper Megrue, playwright, co-author of Maxine Elliott’s first Goldwyn picture, “Fighting Odds,” and member of the Goldwyn advisory board, left this week for a tour of cities in the Canadian West.

Mr. Megrue has been assigned by Goldwyn Pictures Corporation to meet the managers of all the Goldwyn offices in Western Canada and also those in Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Denver, Minneapolis and elsewhere in that territory. Through these managers he will meet the owners of motion picture theaters in cities and towns of all sizes.

This is the first time in the history of the industry, it is said, that one of the big figures in dramatic authorship has ever been sent directly to the men who exhibit motion pictures to the public to ask them influential showmen their opinions as to what the public desires on the screen.

As Mr. Megrue and his mother will be in the North-west on and after October 7, the date when “Fighting Odds” is published, big exhibitors unquestionably will see to having him make personal appearances in conjunction with the presentation of Miss Elliott’s picture.

Among the cities in the Megrue itinerary are:

Canada—Calgary, Winnipeg, Banff, Edmonton, Vancouver, Victoria.

United States—Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Oakland, San Diego, Denver, Minneapolis, Olympia, Tacoma, Sacramento, Berkeley, Los Angeles, Butte and Detroit.

LASKY ENTHUSIASTIC AFTER TRIP TO BIG PRODUCING COAST CENTER

When Jesse L. Lasky arrived in New York this week from his semi-annual tour of the Pacific Coast he declared his satisfaction in discussing the producing situation as he found it at the west coast studios of the company. The last time that Mr. Lasky visited the coast the producing activities of the corporation embraced only the Lasky and Morose studios at Hollywood and Los Angeles, respectively. Today California is literally dotted with the headquarters of independent producers who are at work preparing photoplays for distribution through the concern.

With the Lasky and Morose studios both being enlarged to accommodate the vastly augmented producing schedule of Paramount and Artcraft, there are also the studios of Thomas H. Ince being utilized to their capacity in the production of base pictures for Paramount and Artcraft. At Edendale, Mack Sennett is already hard at work completing his first Paramount-Mack Sennett comedies, in which there will appear the bevy of beautiful girls for which this great comedy producer’s pictures have long been celebrated.

“The fact about all this vast producing activity,” said Mr. Lasky, “lies not so much in its wide extent but rather in the remarkable situation presented by the individual activities of a number of great producing geniuses who are all engaged in preparing their best product for release by the one great institution.

A. E. A. BARES BIG COMBINE PLAN

for our support on dues and membership that the exhibitor pays. WE HAVE NO PROMOTION SCHEMES—WE OWN NO TRADE PAPERS—we are a six sense. Most of our officers draw no salary except the general manager, who is hired to work for your organization are the exhibitors who worked at first against legislation; who worked against the tax of 10 per cent on gross receipts. We have no affiliation with film people and don’t spread any false propaganda and help others take our business from us.

Exhibitors Urged to Join A. E. A.

Every exhibitor is requested to act as a committee of one to help organize. Send your check for one year’s dues ($12) to The American Exhibitor’s Association, 1110 Times Square Building, New York.

Surely, if the exhibitors are willing to give up millions of dollars to ADVANCE DEPOSIT FOR FILM MEN, who have used it and are using it to increase your film service expense and now to build theaters to put you out of business, they will have confidence enough in fellow managers to organize with them and help pay the expense of running an office and support an organization that, with your help, will return your deposits to you and fight to put your business back on a decent, equitable basis of trade.

Therefore, act at once. Don’t be a slacker. Join today and we will carry the battle to an immediate victory.

Fraternally yours,

AMERICAN EXHIBITORS’ ASSOCIATION

Since no organization has had the power to fight out the big problem for exhibitors in the past, Charles C. Pettijohn states that all exhibitors will find great benefits in the A. E. A. providing they will join the fight against evils with the organization.

RALPH MORGAN, STAGE STAR, IS MODERN SPEED BOY IN MAKING FEATURES FOR WHOLESOME CORP.

Here’s the modern speeded boy—Ralph Morgan. Beginning last week, the ground-covering accomplishments of this hustling young man paled the wing-foot stuff of Mergury into the selling-player class.

For Ralph has suddenly found himself confronted with two separate and distinct occupations. He is best known for the role of the dashing Joe Bascom in “Turn to the Right,” which role he has played continuously for more than two seasons. Now he has been engaged by Wholesome Films Corporation to play the leading masculine role in “The Penny Philanthropist,” Clara E. Laughlin’s script, which production has begun in Chicago.

Should you chance to hear of a speeding taxi, shades drawn tight, with a human elbow or perhaps a foot protruding, careening through Lincoln Park, don’t suspect the Black Hand. Nay, Belladonna’s neither a Black Hand abduction nor Teuton intrigue. This, our Ralph Morgan, is one of the historic duty to another, in his new and novel taxicab dressing room, which he has affectionately dubbed “Saffron Susie.”

For it is a part of Ralph’s two contracts—you know, those iron-bound affairs—that neither of his engagements permits him to interfere in any way with the other.

Director General Guy McConnell insists that Ralph remain at the studio until the last possible minute; hence the “Saffron Susie.” All the comforts of the dressing room are embodied in the taxi. We have no affiliation with film people and don’t—rouse from one post of historic duty to another, in his new and novel taxicab dressing room, which he has affectionately dubbed “Saffron Susie.”

Miss Goodrich has been at work for months on the series of photo-dramas which she is making under her contract with John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation.

The first of the series was finished some months ago, but it was decided that the third must be well under way before the publication date of the first was announced.

In the meantime great interest has been aroused in the forthcoming Goodrich pictures. In addition to "Reputation," "Queen X" has been completed and "A Daughter of Maryland" is so far under way that it will be finished before "Reputation" is issued. PICTURE INDUSTRY WAR COMMITTEE SEEKS TRADE'S AID FOR U. S. ON FOOD QUESTION

The War Committee of the motion picture industry appointed to act with Mr. Herbert Hoover on the food commission respectfully requests the consideration of the trade to the following:

The chairman of this committee now is in Washington getting in touch with the whole question and in conferences to determine along which lines the industry will be able to render the greatest aid to the country and the Government on the important question of food conservation.

Must Have Full Consideration

We realize the extreme necessity for prompt action, but at the same time feel that grave errors may be made and much effort may be wasted and in fact may have to be undone if full consideration be not first given to each step.

For this reason this committee requests the trade in general and every manufacturer and distributor in particular not to undertake the making or showing of any film dealing with any phase of food conservation until the many sides of the matter be given the most careful consideration and a plan of propaganda is worked out that is fundamentally sound in every particular.

Committee Will Consult with Trade

We believe everyone will realize the necessity for this mode of procedure. There will be a very large amount of work for the industry in connection with the various activities of the Government for the next few months and it therefore becomes imperative that no waste effort be expended anywhere.

This committee will be glad to consult and advise with anybody in the trade in regard to its future activities and will make its plans and suggestions public from time to time in the various trade papers at the earliest possible moment.

ARTHUR S. FRIEND,
Chairman Food Commission Committee of N. A. M. P. I.

GET N. Y. SHOWING.

Five exceptionally interesting reels were shown at the Strand Theater by the N. A. M. P. I. pictures, while perhaps being restricted to too few producers, are ver-much worth while. The series in chudes love scenes, fights and deeds ob-daring from many important pictures.

Unfortunately the three best fight scenes ever shown on the screen, those in "The Spoons," "The Barrier" and "The Bar Sinister," were omitted, but inasmuch as it is announced that the picture would be added to from tim-to time, it is reasonable to supposthat these fight scenes will be added.

Harold Edel announced that if profits, if any, from these pictures would be devoted to combating a verse legislation, against which the teen committees now are using the fluence in Washington, and to other wise advancing the interest of the motion picture industry. Five reels of this series will be shown at the Straevery week.

Company and the well known "exhib." J. Cooper of the Twentieth Century Theater, were recently trying to get away from the intense heat by way of the automobile route. Naturally one has to stop and rest a while and after a few portions of the "liquid" relish, like the average business men, mathematicians became a topic of discussion and demonstration. In fact, M. J. readily convinced J. C. how to subtract five bucks from two bucks. Remember Cooper, old top; it depends on the geographical location whether it is counting-house value or cabaret mathematics.

ASSOCIATED THEATERS, INC., IS ORGANIZED WITH 200 EXHIBITORS IN NORTHWEST

Will Not Start Activities of Booking Film, Handling Supplies and Equipment Until 1,000 Theater Owners Enroll, Says General Manager Hamlin

With two hundred theaters enrolled and determined not to start actual business activities until one thousand theaters are stockholding members, "Associated Theaters, Incorporated," was formed at the Hotel Dyeckman, Minneapolis, Minn., Tuesday, August 14.

The following officers were elected, each of whom is also a member of the Board of Directors: President, H. L. Hartman, Mandan, North Dakota; vice president, Forest Secor, Forest City, Iowa; treasurer, Henry P. Greene, Minneapolis; secretary, William S. Smith, Menominee, Wisconsin; chairman of board of directors, Charles W. Gates, Aberdeen, South Dakota; general manager, Thomas J. Hamlin, Minneapolis.

Adopt Hamlin Booking

The "Hamlin Plan" of booking was adopted, which is intended to conduct the looking of film, supplies and equipment at a minimum expense and solve the present high cost of marketing and distributing by cooperative collective merchandising.

The Minneapolis branch was opened at once in the Lumber Exchange Building, Minneapolis, but the actual opening of the proposed large central Minneapolis exchange and various sub-stations for inspection and shipping may not take place until December, according to Mr. Hamlin.

"We have incorporated for $100,000 under the laws of South Dakota, as 'Associated Theaters, Incorporated,'" declared Mr. Hamlin. "We have no connection either directly or indirectly with any other organization or group in the motion picture industry.

Stockholding Limited

"No exhibitor is expected to subscribe for more stock than what he would ordinarily pay for ten days' film rental, and no theater can find more than $1,800 worth of stock. "Neither myself nor any member of the board is drawing a cent of salary and the entire expense of organizing will not equal ten per cent. "We expect to do a film rental business alone of fully $50,000 a week, continued General Manager Hamlin. "and are incorporated to produce, buy, sell, lease and rent films, equipment and supplies, to buy, sell and operate theaters and to book films, vaudeville, tabloids and road attractions."

ANIMATED TITLES, NEWEST ESSANAY FILM FEATU

An innovation called the animated title is being introduced in picture being published by Essanay.

One of the chief causes for criticism of subtitles, particularly where quantity are used in a feature, is the fact that many persons read the sub-title and then forced to con- sider several yards of the title being run off for the benefit of those who read more slowly. This has resulted in every possible subtitle being eliminated in the past, in the opinion of many that the subject can be made more or less a part of the title without in any way detracting from the entertainment of those who had found cause for complaint.

The animated subtitle was first introduced to the public in "The Conjuror," a recent film featuring W. Washburn.

Sam Gibson, one of the best known men in Quebec territory, is identified himself with the General Film Company. Gibson was associated with L. H. McLean, Famous Players and Globe Films.

EXHIBITORS

William Russell is a “Knockout,” according to R. G. Willert, manager and owner of the Grand Theater at Laverne, Minn., up in the north country, where the people demand red-blooded American pictures.

“I wish to tell you what I think of Mutual’s series of Russell pictures,” Mr. Willert writes. “The last one I showed was ‘The Frameup,’ and I can truthfully say that it is positively the best picture I have ever had. It is an audience-pleaser from start to finish. Everyone talked about it.

“All the new Russells are ‘Knockouts’—pictures any exhibitor can be proud to show. I ran all of the first series, am well into the second series, and would like to ask when the third series will start.”

The new series of Mutual American star productions, with William Russell in the leading role, will start September 24 with “Sands of Sacrifice.”

ONE TOUCH OF NATURE,” K-E-S-E

BASEBALL FEATURE, WITH M’GRAW

AND GIANTS, ENJOYS BIG SUCCESS

As evidence that, despite the war, the national pastime of baseball remains in high favor with the public, it can be cited that “One Touch of Nature,” the Thomas Edison photoplay published through K-E-S-E, in which John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, is proving a success, especially in cities where baseball prevails.

The Circle Theater, Indianapolis’ largest photo house, showed “One Touch of Nature” last week. It was scheduled for two days only, but met with such a cordial reception that the Circle extended the showing through the week.

John J. McGraw demonstrates in “One Touch of Nature” that, should he decide to quit playing baseball time, he will always find a field in motion picture work which is especially adapted.

GEN. BARRY AND STAFF WITNESS

PERSHING’S LANDING IN FRANCE

IN FILM AS GUESTS OF FREU

Major General Thomas H. Barry, U. S. A., commanding officer of the central department, U. S. A., and the members of his staff were the guests of J. E. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation, last week, when a special review of 600 feet of motion pictures showing the landing of the Pershing expedition in France on August 18th was shown, at the Mutual executive offices, 125 North La Salle Building, Chicago.

The picture, the first showing of the Pershing troops abroad, reached Chicago at 10 o’clock on the morning of August 15 as part of the current Mutual Weekly. General Barry evidenced keen interest in seeing the film, which was especially well-staged. A special showing was arranged for him and the officers at his headquarters.

The general was accompanied by Colonel R. E. Hunter, Major J. C. Richardson, Major Hubert E. J. Wills, R. C. Robertson and Captain E. J. Moran, from General Pershing’s staff, and other officers from the aviation corps, officers’ reserve training camp and Signal Corps, whose offices adjoin Mutual’s in the Consumers Building were present.

The film shows the arrival of the Pershing expedition in France, the disembarking of the troops at their base, the enthusiasm and interest of the French toward the Americans and a reception for General Pershing and “Papa P.”

SELI& TO FILM “THE STILL ALARM,”

ADAPTED FROM NOTED STAGE

“‘The Still Alarm,” a melodrama known to theater-goers of the past decade, will be produced on a lavish scale at the Selig studios, Los Angeles, under the direction of Colin Campbell. Always a play of stage appeal, it is suited to the screen version, where effects not possible to play on stage will be shown in realistic vividness. ‘The Still Alarm’ is one of the few successful stage plays that lend itself admnirably to picturization, having a splendid plot allowing much of the action to center about human reactions and other spectacular effects.

The cast, which is a large one, will be headed by Thomas Santachi, Bessie Eyton and Fritzi. Streets of substantial-looking buildings are being shot on the Selig lot for the forthcoming production, sole purpose of being burned down.

and conflicts of character, that

Author Collaborated

arked the zenith of Hall Caine's as a writer of fiction, a fact recognized in a recent letter
Henry J. Brock, the president of the company offering the picture at the Criterion.

When George Loane Tucker began work on his scenario he had the cooperation of Hall Caine from the very first.

Soldiers in Picture

At the time the picture was taken there were some thousands of British soldiers, the only survivors of the "Battle of the Marne," who were stationed on the Island of Man in charge of 30,000 German prisoners.

Soldiers were required in the picture, which is a compliment to both Mr.
Caine and Mr. Tucker these battle scared warriors were detailed for a day, by the home government, as motion picture actors.

President Henry J. Brock of the of the picture will be greatly enhanced by its special musical setting

Concludes Arrangement by Which She Is to Get Larger Remuneration Ever Paid Screen Star, It Is Said; Is Aligned with Superpictures

Madame Petrova, the noted stage and screen star, left New York last Tuesday for her summer home on the Maine coast after concluding an arrangement by which she is to receive the largest remuneration ever paid to a woman star, it is said. By telegraph the actress authorizes the following statement:

"It is true that I have formed my own company, the Petrova Picture Company, for the production of my own pictures in my own studios under my own supervision.

"This company has unlimited capital behind it, and I am to have unlimited time in which to get the very best results. I want to make a few big, very big pictures each year. All producing and distributing arrangements are in the hands of Frederick L. Collins, my partner in the new company."

At the office of Superpictures, Inc., Mr. Collins, who is also president of the McChure Publications, said:

"Madame Petrova's statement requires no confirmation from me. The Petrova Picture Company already is established.".

The Petrova pictures, all of which will be special productions, will be handled by Superpictures Distributing Corporation in accordance with its recently announced policy of pictures for big exhibitors. C. Milliken, president, of Superpictures, Inc., and secretary of McChure's, will act as general managers of the new company and handle its financial and business affairs.

We want to tell you something more about STANDARD PICTURES.

They are better pictures than anyone has ever made before. We spent two and one-half millions making them, without saying a word about it.

We've got the pictures now. We won't book them to you until you have seen them first; that's how sure we are of their box-office powers.

If you don't think they are as big as we do, we don't want you to play them. If you review STANDARD PICTURES, however, with your own eyes and brain, you will realize their box-office value; you will become enthusiastic, a strong booster, an intelligent advertiser of STANDARD PICTURES. There are men ready to show them to you in any district of the United States and Canada.

JACK AND THE BEANSTALK played to turnaway crowds at the Globe Theatre.

THE SPY, William Fox’s sensational expose of Germany’s secret police system in the United States, is now at the Globe for a two weeks’ engagement.

William Farnum, the screen’s greatest actor, in THE CONQUERER, follows —— and others.

THE HONOR SYSTEM you all know—and if you don’t ask any New York or New Jersey Manager for his box office records.

Theda Bara will soon be seen on Broadway in a super-picture production of CLEOPATRA, which will distance anything we have ever seen for splendor—massiveness—and accuracy in production, to say nothing of the wonderful art of Theda Bara.

YOU WILL BE OBLIGED TO SEE ALL STANDARD PICTURES BEFORE BOOKING. THIS IS OUR POSITIVE RULE REGARDING STANDARD PICTURES.

These pictures can each be booked individually, and there is no obligation for you to take any picture that you do not want. You are welcome to one or all.

But see our Exchange Manager at once, before your competitor does.

"Pictures That Are Different"

Centuries of oppression and suffering have left the impress of intensity on the Russian people. Eighty per cent. of the population were slaves, released from bondage as recently as 1861.

This intense feeling is reflected in the acting of Mozukin and his wonderful feminine associates of the Moscow Art Theatre.

Their portrayal of the stories of Tolstoy and his celebrated contemporaries visualizes the happenings of real life, expressed naturally by authors who have not stooped to appeal to shallow minds which demand that every story, every play, every picture shall end:

And it is true that it is worth double or triple the price you pay for it under a Goldwyn contract. The Distributing Center of the World
Paramount Deposits

NOTWITHSTANDING the terrific amount of objection which has been raised by exhibitors everywhere over the subject of “advance deposits” it has remained for the Paramount Pictures Corporation to develop recently a system of advance deposits which is far more iniquitous, from the exhibitors’ standpoint, than any which has previously been in vogue.

The system in question is that of requiring separate advance deposits on the productions of the various important players whose services are at the command of this company and its affiliated organizations.

Never since the first cry against advance deposits was raised has there been such a bitter feeling against a system as there is against this one, according to information the HERALD is receiving daily. In fact, this editorial is written at the earnest solicitation of a group of prominent exhibitors who state their belief that with the subject brought up for discussion generally they will receive an equitable readjustment, especially in view of Paramount’s long record of fair dealing with exhibitors.

The HERALD believes in accord with these exhibitors that the present system is eminently unfair and should be changed forthwith. This trade paper does not believe, however, that Paramount should be stripped entirely of its means of protecting itself against financial loss in its transactions with dishonest or unsuccessful exhibitors.

A fair deposit system is no more vital to exhibitors than is proper credit protection to producers and distributors. Those who make and distribute films must be protected against a high percentage of loss through non-payment of bills or the entire industry will encounter disaster.

But when the deposit system no longer remains a system of credit protection but becomes a system for borrowing large sums of money—without sanction of consent—from the exhibitors of the country, then it becomes a genuine evil and should be combated vigorously.

No honest and intelligent exhibitor can object to the proposition of giving to distributors fullest justification for the credit which the exhibitor asks. The motion picture business in the exhibiting branch is a “cash business” and for that reason exhibitors should not require any “terms” on the payment of their bills.

In addition, it must be recognized that there are a large number of exhibitors who, unfortunately, are not willing or able to meet their film bills promptly. This fact probably is the greatest contributing factor to the establishment of the advance deposit system.

But the Paramount system of “separate deposits” is more than a credit guarantee and as such should be modified.
An Exhibitor's Problem

NEVER since the birth of the motion picture industry has the exhibitor been confronted with such a complex booking problem as the task now before him.

There is a multitude of splendid productions being issued by companies everywhere. Pictures—and excellent ones—of every conceivable nature may be obtained. And the booking arrangements are almost as diversified as the themes of the pictures themselves.

The only possible hope for the exhibitor to master the booking problem before him lies in obtaining thorough and impartial information concerning the entire film market.

It is an axiom that the tastes of the amusement world are changing constantly, but it must be further realized at this time that the tastes of the amusement world of America have undergone a terrific change since the entrance of this nation into the War. And strangely enough many of the producers have not yet awakened to this fact.

But exhibitors, if they are to prosper during the ensuing Fall and Winter must recognize this fact and book their pictures accordingly.

The American public will want more to be amused than to be grieved, frightened or thrilled. This public will have sufficient of these latter emotions in the ordinary course of its existence and will turn to the film theatre for complete diversion and relaxation. And the wise exhibitor will have his program afford what they are seeking.

The great requirement upon the knowledge and information of the exhibitor at this time can only be successfully met with the aid of an impartial trade paper. The trade paper being a mirror of the trade and the products of the trade will reflect to the exhibitor what it is essential for him to know. Without such an auxiliary his task is practically hopeless.

FIRST A. E. A. SESSION OPENS IN VIRGINIA

To Confirm Officers, Define Policy, Lay Plans to Enlarge Organization, and Plan Fight on Menacing State Rights Combine; will Set Convention Date

To confirm the present temporary officers, definitely define the future policy of the organization, lay plans to enlarge the organization, and set the date for the first annual convention to be held in Detroit in 1918, the American Exhibitors Association went into its first general assembly August 29 to last until September 1, at Ocean View, Va.

New York and officers from thirty-eight states, in which strong A. E. A. branches have been formed by members of the new organization, were present at this first general session since the bolt and formation last July at the Chicago convention.

To Combat Combine
Aside from the general routine of work, careful plans will be made to combat the big state right combine, of which the Association last week warned exhibitors throughout the country. Also, campaigns will be laid out to eradicate the prevailing deposit system, to fight censorship, and the music publishers' combine, which already has demanded that exhibitors who play the music of any publisher in the combine must pay an annual tax of ten cents per seat.

While the American Exhibitors' Association is in session in Virginia, H. B. Varner, secretary of the North Carolina branch, will watch and report developments from Washington, D. C., concerning the theater tax which it is announced, is not yet "out of the fire."

Holders Present
The strong New England A. E. A. Branch, New York, led by Samuel Trigger; Chicago, headed by Henry Schoenstadt, who is accompanied by A. J. Krug, Louis H. Frank and Maurice Choykini; Ohio, headed by Samuel Bullock; J. H. Simpson, George Heinbuch, W. O. F. Combo, the big state right combine, which already has demanded that exhibitors who play the music of any publisher in the combine must pay an annual tax of ten cents per seat.

While the American Exhibitors' Association is in session in Virginia, H. B. Varner, secretary of the North Carolina branch, will watch and report developments from Washington, D. C., concerning the theater tax which it is announced, is not yet "out of the fire."

New York, Led: A. Ochs, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America, elected by that body to work for its interests, put his personal interests in the vanguard in the recent legislative fight at Washington, and instead of combating the proposed federal taxation on the smaller motion picture theaters, went on record as favoring such a tax, saying it had to come and could not be avoided, while at the same time he affixed his signature to a brief submitted by the film manufacturers, praying for relief against taxation on positive prints or negatives.

Defeated by Williams
That Ochs' plan to have the exhibitors of the country, including the large, small and middle-sized theaters, pay a just tax, with the manufacturers exempted from taxation, was defeated was due to the energetic efforts of James D. Williams, manager of the first National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc., who early in the fight sent out telegrams to each of the circuit's members, urging them to use their every influence with senators and representatives to eliminate all theaters up to the twenty-five cent class in the proposed war revenue tax. This provision has passed the senate, and stands an excellent chance of being finally adopted by the conference committee of the Senate and House, although the fight is by no means over, and pressure still is being brought to bear to deprive revenue from this source.

Back of Ochs' duplicity to the exhibitors of the nation is found a most excellent reason. Ochs owns the Exhibitors' Trade Review, and depends entirely for his existence upon the advertising support given it by the film manufacturers. Ochs is said to have remarked that the time was ripe for the effort to exempt motion pictures up to twenty-five cents:

"Got to Be Taxed"—Ochs
"The five and ten cent theaters have got to be taxed. There is no getting out of it and there is no use trying to fight it. On the other hand I have got a trade paper, and I have got to have a advertisement. You can't blame me."

WILLARD-JOHNSON FIGHT FILMS BURN WITH DECKER PLANT

The Decker Film Company plant, located at Edgewater, N. J., was destroyed by fire Sunday night, August 26. The loss is estimated at $19,000. The original negatives of the Willard-Johnson fight, filmed at Havana, were burned in the fire.
PRODUCERS PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION NEWEST STATE RIGHTS CONCERN TO ENTER FIELD

Nearly 100 Percent of Producers Are Enrolled to Fight Salacious Pictures and Fly-By-Night Companies, It Is Said

The "P. P. A.," which stands for "Producers' Protective Association," is the latest organization to make application for a charter under the laws of New York and which will enter the field of state rights buyers for the betterment of the industry, it is announced.

William L. Sherrill, head of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, is the temporary chairman of the new body; M. A. Schlesinger, of the Mayfair Film Corporation, is treasurer, and Jesse O. Goldberg, of the Ogden Pictures Corporation, is secretary pro tem.

Nearly 100 per cent of the independent producers of the country have already enrolled, it is said. The purpose of the P. P. A. is to correct many evils which have sprung up in the territorial field. Efforts will be made to eradicate the salacious features from which the state rights buyers are the chief sufferers, by reason of small concerns who make one or two sensational films, reap a rich profit therefrom, and then go out of business. They will eliminate the sensational films and establish an exchange, presided over by a competent manager, where all films will be passed upon.

Officers Are Named.

The temporary directors of the organization are Messrs. Sherrill, Schlesinger, Goldberg, Harry Rapt, president of Rapt Productions, Inc.; Dr. Shallenberger, of Arrow Film Corporation, and Jos. A. Golden, of Triumph Film Corporation. Fourteen concerns have signed as members. Membership is by corporation only, and each is entitled to but one vote.

MONSTER EXHIBITORS' MASS MEETING WILL BE HELD IN DETROIT, SEPTEMBER 5-6, BY A. E. A.

Automobile Rides, Smoker, Cabaret and Theater Party Schedule for Theater Owners to Interest Business Men in New Association

Detroit, Mich. (Special to "Exhibitor's Herald).—A monster meeting of all the motion picture exhibitors of Michigan and the city of Detroit will be held by the A. E. A. in Detroit, September 5 and 6. The afternoons will be devoted to automobile rides about the city and at night a smoker and cabaret with twelve vaudeville acts. The ladies will be entertained at a theater party.

The purpose of the meeting is to interest more exhibitors in the new association and an invitation is extended to every exhibitor in the state.

The Detroit local of the A. E. A. now has eighty per cent of the exhibitors of the city and all are working in harmony to make Michigan solid in this organization.

Already arrangements are being made for the convention of the A. E. A., to be held in Detroit next July, by King Perry, secretary of the Detroit A. E. A., which promises to be the biggest one ever held in the United States.

"THE SPY," A FOX FILM IS HELD UP BY M. FUNKHOUSE

Major Funkhouse, Chicago's imitable motion picture censor, is at it again.

This time his mailed fist is aimed at "The Spy," a Fox feature film portraying the machinations of the German government secret agents. The Fox Film Corporation has begun court proceedings to have the picture passed by the over-zealous city censors and compel them to issue a permit for its presentation.

Attorney Charles P. Schwartz, representing the Fox Company, speaking of the attempt of the second Deputy of Police to administer the death penalty to "The Spy" film, said: "Funkhouse is playing into the hands of the Kaiser boosters in the city hall, and we do not intend to let him get away with it."

"Within the Law," another film made from the stage play by Bayard Veiller, is being held up by the Major. It is said the producers will also take this matter into court.

NOBLE FINISHES NEW FILM DRAMA FOR STATE RIGHTS

After ten weeks spent in making a special picture which represents his idea of the acme of motion picture production from the standpoint of direction, acting, story and photography, John W. Noble has completed his first important contribution to the state rights buying exchanges.

The drama, which concerns a pertinent subject, promises to cause comment by its presentation of a phase of the yet little understood by Americans far removed from the trenches.

Jules Burnstein, who has sole charge of the business management of Mr. Noble's special feature, promises that it will interest producers and dramatists as much as it does exhibitors and the general public.

A. E. A. BRINGS MEMBERSHIP APPLICATION IN N. A. M. P. I. TO AN ISSUE

In the following letter to the N. A. M. P. I., Charles C. Pettijohn, general manager of the American Exhibitors' Association, asks that the application for membership be brought to an issue.

In the letter, Mr. Pettijohn states that the A. E. A. does not care whether it has one or fifty votes on the directorate, and that William A. Brady, the N. A. M. P. I. only to answer the call of President Wilson as a unit of the industry to aid the government in the war crisis.

Mr. Pettijohn also asks that the A. E. A. be either promptly accepted or rejected so its members and officers know where the organization stands.

To President and Directors of the National Association of Motion Picture Industry, Gentlemen:—

In order that the attitude of the American Exhibitors Association toward the National Association of Motion Picture Industry may be clearly understood and that the directors may have definitely in mind our position with reference to the A. E. A.'s 'application to affiliate with the National Association of Motion Picture Industry,' I am instructed by our directors to write you the following:

First—The American Exhibitors' Association, on July 20, 1917, tendered, through Wm. A. Brady, not as the President, as the President of the National Association of Motion Picture Industry, but as the designated official, by reason of his selection of the National Association of Motion Picture Industry, our hearty co-operation and services to help carry on the work set aside by our government for the Motion Picture Industry during the present crisis. We are building a business organization of exhibitors to the end that this may be effectively done and results obtained.

Cares Nothing About Votes. Second—We care not whether we have one or fifty votes, either as directors or members of the National Association of Motion Picture Industry, because voting inside the industry cannot interest us.

Third—We are asking nothing of you, and are offering only our affiliation and assistance in a stand with the other branches of the industry for what is healthful, and against that which unjustly attacks.

Fourth—On the other hand, we will not at any time, by any unit vote or combination of votes, permit ourselves to be bound to support any act, measure or effort that is not for the best interests of real exhibitors of America, who comprise our membership, nor for or against any faction in any other branch of the industry that may hereafter develop.

Seeks No Change In By-Laws. Fifth—We desire to have it clearly understood that our services are tendered, and that no application is made at this time for votes, or for any change in the by-laws of your organization.

Sixth—We ask that the directors at the meeting August 29, 1917, either promptly reject or accept our proffer of affiliation, assistance and co-operation in such manner as our position may be clearly and definitely interpreted by our officers and entire membership.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) CHAS. C. PETTIJOHN,
General Manager.

A. M. P. I., William A. Brady, president, ruled that the by-laws could be A. E. A., despite the fight waged by Ochs and his followers to exclude the new exhibitors' organization.

H. B. Varner Goes to Capital to Finish Death of Theatre Tax

Henry B. Varner, of Lexington, N. C., who represented American exhibitors' interest in Washington, and who was not instrumental in killing the proposed ten per cent tax on motion picture theaters, but who ably represented his trade on many other important issues, has been appointed chairman of the legislative committee of the American Exhibitors Association.

Big Southern Exhibitor

tive exhibitors of the South, as well as publisher of several well-known newspapers. His personal acquaintance with many of the Washington officials aided him in the fight in behalf of American exhibitors.

Late Tuesday afternoon, August 21, in New York, Mr. Varner sat in a conference with John D. Williams, of the First National Exhibitors Circuit, and Charles C. Pettijohn, general manager of the American Exhibitors Association. It is known that this conference at Washington is not yet "out of the fire." Mr. Varner refused to confer with anybody on the subject except those who represented the exhibitors only.

Leaves for Capital

While no details of the conference were given out, it was announced at the New York headquarters of the A. E. A. by Mr. Pettijohn that Mr. Varner had left New York, Friday, August 23, for Washington, where he will remain and represent exhibitors until the tax question is decided.

Despite the fact that the ten per cent tax is not yet "out of the fire," it is stated that exhibitors have little to fear. Had this issue been taken lightly at the beginning, it is pointed out, scores of theaters would have been forced to close their doors under the burden of the proposed tax.

ALICE BRADY QUITS WORLD TO PRODUCE INDEPENDENTLY; FIRST PLAY FOR OCT. 15

Alice Brady, daughter of William A. Brady, director-general and head of World Film Corporation, has resigned from that organization and formed her own company.

She will become a star-producer at the head of the Alice Brady Pictures Corporation, which has been incorporated for $250,000 and will hereafter publish films of her own make under the new corporation.

The company has taken offices at 901 Lexington avenue, New York, and work has been started on the first picture, to be issued October 15.

WM. RUSSELL WILL STAR NEXT IN "LUCKY JIM," A FIVE-REEL COMEDY

"Lucky Jim" has been selected as William Russell's vehicle following "The Sea Master," now nearing completion. It is a comedy in five reels and will be produced by the American under the direction of Ted Sorman.

"THOU SHALT NOT KILL" IS TITLE OF NEW FOX FILM WITH VIRGINIA PEARSON

The new William Fox production which is in work at the big studios in Fort Lee, N. J., with Virginia Pearson in the chief role, has been titled "Thou Shalt Not Kill." William Nigh is in charge of the direction.

STAR AND SUPPORT IN "THE RED ACE"

"Sirens of the Sea," a six-part feature of Jewel Productions, Inc., went into the Broadway Theater August 26, with Louise Lovely, Jack Mulhall and Carmel Myers taking the leading parts. Alten Hollubar is the director and the story is by Grace Helen Baily.

The film story has to do with the finding on a Pacific coast island of a small girl, who is adopted by wealthy Americans dwelling on the island, where she is placed in a fashionable school, attended by girls from the states. Cruising in search of adventure is a blase millionaire, who, through field glasses, sees a novel sight when the girl students don weeds and ukuleles and dance on shore. He lands with a young companion and then things begin to happen.

The settings of the piece are said to be unusually elaborate, and a cast of 1,000 persons was continuously employed for the production, which took six months to complete. A special musical program accompanies the offering at the Broadway, where unusual preparations have been made for its premier. This is the second Jewel offering, the first having been "Pay Me," with Dorothy Phillips in the stellar role.

LAST SCENES OF CHAPLIN'S "ADVENTURER" ARE BEING TAKEN AT PACIFIC COAST

Mutual Comedian Will Be Seen in Role of Convict; Work of Cutting 20,000 Feet to Two-Reels Is Now in Progress

Charlie Chaplin will next be seen as a convict in "The Adventurer." The last few scenes of his forthcoming comedy are being taken at Los Angeles, and Mutual's $670,000 a year comedian is at work cutting the 20,000 or more feet of film which were taken in the course of the production down to the regulation 2,000 feet which will be seen on the screen.

Chaplin christens his own pictures, and it was not until the forthcoming comedy was in the last stages of production that he decided upon the title.

"FRINGE OF SOCIETY" FILM WILL PROVE ONE OF SEASON'S "BEST SELLERS" SAYS M. H. HOFFMAN

The first cutting of "The Fringe of Society," a Hoffman-Foursquare super-feature just completed by the George Backer Film Corporation, is finished. M. H. Hoffman asserts that this product will prove one of the "best sellers" in the fall offerings of the motion-picture industry.

Mr. Hoffman bases his belief upon the elements that form the picture. First, according to Mr. Hoffman, is the story, which has drama and action throughout. Next is the cast, in which Ruth Roland and Milton Sills are co-starring and supported by Leah Baird, J. Herbert Frank, George Larkin, Jules Cowles, Ollie Kirkby and Tammany Young. Robert Ellis directed the feature.

WE BURY OCHS' LEAGUE IN PITY, SAYS PETTIJOHN

C. C. Pettijohn, General Manager of the American Exhibitors' Association, in reply to the Exhibitors' Trade Review editorial of August 20, 1917, says:

"If the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League wishes to indulge in personalities to create discord and hard feelings between the American Exhibitors' Association and the National Association of Motion Picture Industry, let them go to it. If we did not know that the N. A. M. P. I. was as 'big' and broad as it is, we might be alarmed; but it is too comprehensive to be affected by an editorial that presents prima facie evidence of its purpose.

"The A. E. A. will always be in harmony with the N. A. M. P. I. in everything intended for the good of the industry.

"We have no answer to any of their personalities. We bury them with pity."

CHARLIE CHAPLIN IN FOUR SCENES FROM "THE ADVENTURER"
"THE CONQUEROR," BIG FOX FILM, WITH WILLIAM FARNUM, MOVES INTO N. Y. GLOBE THEATER SEPT. 10

Play Depicts Romantic Period of General Sam Houston; Called a Cross Section Cut Out of American History, Being Photographed in Three States

In "The Conqueror," which he offers as the first of the series of Standard Pictures of which William Farnum is the star, William Fox believes a new standard has been set in motion picture production—a standard which, going farther than the thrill and the spectacular, affords new and higher plans for dramatic exposition through the medium of the screen.

"The Conqueror" opens at the Globe theater, in New York, September 10, following "The Spy," the newest Fox success which enjoyed a Broadway run, playing to capacity houses.

"The Conqueror" pictures the heroic life and romantic times of General Sam Houston, known to every American. It is a cross-section cut out of American history in the making, and it holds intense interest for every citizen and resident of these United States.

Farnum In Houston Role.
There is probably no more romantic figure in American history than Sam Houston, and there is unquestionably no actor better equipped artistically as well as physically for the portrayal of Houston than William Farnum.

Given Henry Christeen Warnack's engrossing, virile story, and the facilities afforded by the unlimited resources of the Fox producing organization, it needed but the master hand of R. A. Walsh, the Fox director and the man who staged "The Honor System," to make of "The Conqueror" a photo-dramatic masterpiece.

Statistics On Production.
"The Conqueror" was photographed in California, Texas and Mexico," says Mr. Fox. "It was six months in the making. On the production $300,000 was spent. In the making of the picture, 8,000 persons were employed. Among these were 400 Sioux Indians secured through the Department of the Interior from the Pine Ridge Agency and for whose safe return at the end of their artistic labors a bond of $50,000 was deposited. And among the 8,000 also were Mexican soldiers, negroes from Southern plantations, Texas Rangers and U. S. Cavalrymen. Weeks were spent on the big battle scenes, thousands of dollars worth of ammunition went up in smoke, and as a result the battle scenes in "The Conqueror" are reality itself. About 1,000 horses appear in the picture and numerous other animals, among which is a dog that figures prominently in the action."

"THE GIRL ANGLE" IS FIRST OF NEW HORKHEIMER FILM SERIES WITH ANITA KING

Anita King, Balboa's new star, has begun work in a five-reel feature under direction of Edgar Jones, who has just completed "The Twisted Thread" for Horkheimer Brothers. Miss King's first story is "The Girl Angle," by L. Y. Jefferson. Miss King will be featured in a series of six photoplays, all to be produced under the management of E. D. Horkheimer and for publication by Mutual.

OCHS LAYS PLAN TO KEEP A. E. A. FROM N. A. M. P. I.

Lee Ochs and his followers held a heated discussion, it is reported, behind closed doors at the Astor Hotel, New York, on August 25, at which plans were perfected to fight the admission of the American Exhibitors' Association in the N. A. M. P. I.

The question of the admission of the A. E. A. came up before the national body on August 27, the matter having been held over from an adjourned meeting early in the month.

It is understood F. D. Eager, of Nebraska; Eugene Clark, of Mississippi; Daniels Chamberlain, of North Dakota; Peter J. Schaeffer, Joseph Hopp, William J. Sweeney, Robert Levy, of Illinois; Thomas Dunniss, of Minnesota, and many others attended the meeting.

FOUR BIG SCENES FROM THE FOX FILM, "THE CONQUEROR"
HENRY WALTHALL WILL MAKE OWN PLAYS FOR PARALTA

Will Soon Start Work at Coast With Mary Charleson as Leading Lady

The Henry B. Walthall Pictures Corporation, capitalized at $100,000, has been organized in New York through the efforts of N. William Aronson, who has offices in the Times building.

Henry B. Walthall will thus head his own producing company and will appear only in such plays as have been personally selected by him. He will be supported, it is said, by Mary Charleson, and Reginald Barker will probably direct all productions.

The Walthall company will locate at 5300 Melrose avenue, Hollywood, Cal., and Mr. Walthall, Miss Charleson and Director of Publicity Aronson left New York August 22 for the west coast, where work will be started on the first picture.

The production will be made for Paralta, at the Hollywood studios, and later published through Triangle. The first film story already has been selected.

S. E. MORRIS GETS TERRITORY IN OHIO FOR SELZNICK FILMS

Sam E. Morris, who has been a member of the Selznick executive staff ever since the formation of the Lewis J. Selznick Enterprises, Inc., has been placed in entire charge of Selznick branches in the large Cleveland territory.

MARION DAVIES OF STAGE STARTS NEW FILM FOR ARDSLEY

Marion Davies is in motion pictures to stay. At least the young star who left the cast of "Oh, Boy," at the Princess Theater, New York, several weeks ago, to make her film debut in her own story, "Runaway Romany," has decided not to return to the musical comedy stage for the present and this week started work on her second photoplay for the Ardsley Art Film Corporation.

"FALL OF ROMANOFF'S" FILM SHOWS HISTORY OF EX-CZAR'S BANISHMENT TO A VILLAGE

Town of Tobolsk, in Which Rasputin Lived Until He Become Religious Preacher, Reproduced in Play to Be Screened in N. Y. Sept. 6

In "The Fall of the Romanoffs," which will be seen for the first time at a private showing at the Ritz Carlton in New York September 6, Herbert Brenon has an exact replica of the Russian village of Tobolsk in which Rasputin lived until he decided to become a religious preacher, and which now is the residence of the Czar in his exile.

This little town has received much dubious publicity in revolutionary Russia as the birthplace of this mystic who wielded so remarkable an influence over the ex-Czar's family up to the time of his assassination in Petrograd last December. The Czar's wife and children have accompanied him of their own free will to this little town where he has been sent for safety.

According to some newspapers, the ex-imperial family will reside permanently in the former governor's palace at Tobolsk, which is a large house without modern improvements built in the eighteenth century. Nicholas spent one night there in 1891 when returning from the Far East. Other newspapers say the former Emperor will stay at the ex-governor's palace for one week only, and then will be sent to a monastery in a forest twenty miles outside the town.

In "The Fall of the Romanoffs" Herbert Brenon shows the removal of the ex-Emperor and his family from the palace, and their transformation to a lonely estate.
MUTUAL "THE LOST EXPRESS" SERIAL WITH HELEN HOLMES COMES TO SCREEN SEPT. 17

Fifteen Chapter, Thirty-Reel Photonovel on Railroad Mystery Directed by J. P. McGowan to Be Published One Chapter a Week

The Mutual Film Corporation will publish "The Lost Express," a fifteen chapter, thirty-reel photodrama starring Helen Holmes on September 17. "The Lost Express" was produced by the Signal Film Corporation under the direction of J. P. McGowan. The production will be issued a chapter a week for fifteen weeks.

Helen Holmes' fame as a star in photodrama is international. Her successes have all been staged by Director McGowan. In staging "The Lost Express" he had the active assistance and co-operation of the author, Frederick R. Bennett, a newspaperman and the author of successful short stories and novels.

Scientific Mystery

"The Lost Express" is built around a scientific mystery. An express train carrying highly valuable documents leaves its terminal under armed guard.

"QUEEN OF THE SEA," NEXT FOX SPECTACLE SET IN OCEAN FEATURING ANNETTE KELLERMANN

Star and Cast Now Working on Film at Bar Harbor, Maine; Producer to Oversee Making of Story Written by George Bronson-Howard

"Queen of the Sea" is the title upon which William Fox has decided for the new sub-sea sportplay in which Annette Kellermann will display her aquatic talents.

Weeks have been spent in arranging the details of the production preliminary to the actual filming. The script has been completed, most of the casting has been done, and the "locations" have been selected.

Miss Kellermann and a large company of players now are at beautiful Bar Harbor, Maine, and work started this week on the new subject under the direction of John G. Adolph.

George Bronson-Howard, author and playwright, wrote the story, and the action will be entirely different from that of "A Daughter of the Gods," the successful fantasy in which Miss Kellermann also had the chief part.

In the making of "Queen of the Sea," Mr. Fox will have the co-operation and assistance of the Smithsonian Institute and the United States Fisheries Commission at Washington, and of the British Museum. Scenes will be taken at the bottom of the ocean by means of a patented submarine apparatus which will furnish something extraordinary and unique in the way of entertainment.

Mr. Fox will personally oversee the production of "Queen of the Sea."

THREE SCENES FROM FORTHCOMING PARALTA PLAYS

WHOLESALE FILMS CORP. AD. IN “HERALD” BRINGS BOMBARDMENT OF INQUIRIES, SAYS WEISFELDT

New Sales Policy Announcement Which Fills Long-Felt Want of Trade Grasped by Theater Owners; Concern to Pay Express Both Ways

Recent announcement of the sales policy of Wholesome Films Corporation, Chicago, has stirred wide-spread interest in the motion picture trade. M. J. Weisfeld, general manager, literally has been swamped as a result of the page advertisement which appeared recently in the “Exhibitor’s Herald.”

“We expected many inquiries when our new plan was announced,” Mr. Weisfeldt asserted. “Our expectations have been exceeded many fold. The response of exhibitors literally has been a bombardment—gratifying testimony that the new Wholesome Films Corporation sales plan fills a long-felt want in the exhibitor’s field.

Proof of Accomplishment.

“It is proof,” Mr. Weisfeldt continued, “that we are accomplishing what we set out to do, namely, to give the exhibitor what he wants. It is proof too that the exhibitor appreciates this opportunity to deal direct with the producer—that he appreciates our offer to pay all express charges.

“A special feature of our plan which makes a generous offer to exhibitors’ circuits, has proved a sensation among theater owners.”

“The Penny Philanthropist,” by Miss Clara E. Laughlin, the first film of the Wholesome Films Corporation, now is practically completed.

Ralph Morgan In Lead.

Director Guy McConnell, with an able cast headed by Ralph Morgan of the “Turn to the Right” company, has been putting in long hours at the Wholesome Studios on the North Side, Chicago.

M. J. Weisfeldt, general manager of the Wholesome Films Corporation, announces that the film will be ready for publication within the month.

Eddie Foy, Jr., son of the inimitable Eddie, the world’s greatest father, has been an interested spectator at the Wholesome Studios during the production of “The Penny Philanthropist.” Young Foy is a close friend of Director Guy McConnell.

Exhibitors Will Be Able to Present Patrons With Entirely New and Novel Screen Entertainment, Is Promise of H. C. Allen

H. C. Allen, president of the Peter Pan Film Corporation, promises to give exhibitors and the public something entirely new in a series of pictures based upon a trip around the world to be participated in by Mr. and Mrs. E. Richard Schayer, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Aldrich and an Irish terrier “Bill.”

Mr. Schayer was formerly publicity manager for Lewis J. Selznick and recently married Miss Ethel Taylor. The Peter Pan Film Corporation is sending them upon a trip around the world with the idea of making a record of their trip. Mr. Aldrich will be cameraman.

Will Live As Natives.

The idea is not to merely make a series of views of foreign lands, but the travelers will live as the natives of other countries do, and get their pictures from that angle.

Mr. Schayer will be the hero of the series. He is a cross between Jack London and Richard Harding Davis combined with Kipling’s sense of finding a good story, it is said. He was formerly connected with the staff of the New York Evening World and has had wide experience as a newspaper man, war correspondent and writer of short stories.

The serial will be entitled “The Honeymooners.” While no definite time has been allotted to the production, it is expected that they will complete it in about two years.

First Scenes In Hawaii.

The party left New York August 1 for San Francisco, from which point they sailed for Honolulu. The first pictures will be made in Hawaii, where Mr. Schayer will recruit a company of nates. They will remain one month in Hawaii, then the party will sail for Japan.

The first of the Goldwyn productions, "Polly of the Circus," featuring Mae Marsh, is something well worth anticipating. The story is an excellent one and deals with circus life—a subject which should interest both young and old. The story has a very well-marked dual line. Scenes of humor and pathos are combined in an excellent manner.

Mae Marsh handles her role in a manner which only Miss Marsh can. The role of Polly seems to have been created especially for her, and she is capable of moving spectators to laughter or tears in a way superior to anything yet done by her on the screen. Every member of the supporting company has been selected with care, and the result is a well-balanced cast. The settings and photography are in keeping with the other good points of the production.

The exhibitor, in bringing "Polly of the Circus" to an audience, is bringing something that the patrons have long waited for. There is every reason to believe that exhibitors will have little difficulty in filling both their houses and box offices with this first of the Goldwyn offerings.

The story deals with a little bareback rider, known as Polly. Both of her parents are dead and only Toby, circus hands, are her sponsors. One night, while performing, Polly is thrown from her horse and injured. She is taken to the home of Parson Douglas and the circus is forced to leave without her. She endeavors to send him away, but he will not go. The tents catch fire and there is general confusion. Out of the wreckage the parson and Jim bring Polly to safety. In the arms of the parson Polly bids her circus friends good-bye forever.

The role of Pamplona Smith is well adapted to Bessie Barriscale and Miss Barriscale has made of her role a charming character. "Wooden Shoes" deals with quaint old Holland. The story and production are of an entertaining nature, and no doubt picture patrons will be pleased with it. Miss Barriscale and her supporting cast do some good work. The photography is clear and the settings, supposed to be in Holland, are realistically done.

The story deals with the son of a wealthy family who marries a young Dutch girl. The family denounces him and after the death of his wife he and his daughter struggle on. He dies, and Pampy is left alone. She decides to go to her wealthy grandfather in America. A young officer of the Hussars, succeeds in establishing a young girl, who partially resembles Pampy, in the Smith household and they extract large sums of money from the old man. "LUST OF THE AGES"
Ogden Picture Corp. drama; five parts; state rights

As a whole ................................ Real enjoyment Story ........................................ Well told

Photography ................................ Adequate

Lillian Walker has done nothing so good as her portrayal of Lois Craig, in "Lust of the Ages," nor has any screen actress been so handily invested with a more delightful character to portray. Her work stamps her as one of the screen’s foremost players. The story shows, allegorically, the greed, unhappiness and sadness that comes through the lust for gold.

Edmund Craig, excellently portrayed by Harry Revier, through his obsession for greater wealth, saddens the life of his wife and daughter, suddenly dying from a stroke of apoplexy, as he argues with his board of directors for control of the food market. As the daughter grows into young womanhood she writes a book in which she tells of the effect on the poor of the grasping men in high financial places. She has worked under the tutelage of her college president, in the preparation of her book. Lois is engaged to a brilliant young financier, Byron Masters, who also seeks to crush everything in his path to accumulate greater wealth.

Lovers in order to test her resolve, he offers the chance in which she has found the aid of the president so valuable. Because of his antagonism, the professor is dismissed at the instigation of Masters. Lois goes to his fiancée to plead for the professor’s reinstatement, but is refused, whereupon she breaks her engagement, at the same time asking Byron to read her book. Throughout the night he studies the book and becomes convinced that Lois is right in her premise and seeks her forgiveness. She writes the professor and they are married, with a happy life in sight.

In many places the story treads on old ground, but is so cleverly handled as to avoid the commonplace. Its episodes are tremendously gripping, particularly “The Temple of Mammon,” which is an unusually strong spectacle. The interplay of the picturization of the book, in which Masters becomes the hero and Lois his only, is unique and abounds with thrills. Another episode with much heart interest is one in which Lois, as the fairy princess, seeks, through the invention of her scientist sweetheart, to prevent all war. Her scientist has invented a liquid free from the sake of the story, will make war impossible. A pro-German ruler is brought into the scene and he causes the inventor to be shot, thus defeating the purpose of the two who would destroy the world’s monopoly of gold. This is a tragic bit, wonderfully well done. Probably no such excellent exhibition of double exposure photography has before been shown. Much credit is due Joseph Seiden for this work. Special mention should be made of the acting of Jack Moore as Byron Masters. He is a convincing financier and a charming lover. The story was written by Aaron Hoffman and directed by Harry Revier.

"THINK IT OVER"
U. S. Amusement Corp. Art Dramas drama; five parts; published August 13

As a whole ................................ Satisfying Story ......................................... Ordinary with new twists
Star ......................................... Good
Support ...................................... Excellent Settings ...................................... Salient

Herbert Blaché, who wrote and directed "Think It Over," has given an orderly and entertaining piece of work. Able support is accorded her by Richard Tucker, as Henry Whithworth; A. Iloy Lack, as George Baring, a villainous guard; Eugene Borden, as James Baring, and Augusta Burmeister, as Mrs. Martin.

Photographically, "Think It Over" is perfect, and the picture has been given an unusually careful production. The settings are well done. The deft hand of Herbert Blaché is seen throughout the five reels, the many humorous touches helping materially to sustain the interest. Exhibitors should draw good houses with "Think It Over."
